IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money sent in paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Any one wishing their money order and receipt is made to the name of "The Restitution," will please write plainly at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has done so. Often he does not do this.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and after awhile when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored and to produce his [illegible] of three important pages, [illegible] in an efficient wrapper, [illegible] postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Until the Day Dawn.

Ages have sunk in the eternal past,
Forever dead with all their joys and woes,
Their glory, and their madness, and their shame,
Since Peter—he of fear and fearlessness,
A moment weak, a lifetime firm as rock—
Traced on the parchment these enduring words

They speak of night; and long that night has been;
With storm and tempest of destructive force
Threatening the Church with ruin; so that time.
In the grand story, when the hurricane
Boomed its wild thunders, and produced alarm
In hearts unused to fear, until the cry
"Master, we perish!" reached the sleeping Christ,
And brought salvation and a joyful calm.

The Christ asleep by toil for men fatigued,
He sought brief rest in no luxurious home,
But in no open boat upon the lake.
Hard resting place! Unsheltered, and exposed
To rain and cold and storm—should storm arise.
Calmly He rests, at peace with God and men
A foe contingent in the darkness sees,
And unites his destined Victor, now asleep.
And the dark mover in all deeds of guilt—
The chief of the demon powers of the air—
Lets loose his dread artillery of storm,
To drown in the holy sleeper and His friends
In the dark waters of that frenzied sea!

Like Paul's companions, long by tempest tossed,
The ocean engirt, darkness all around,
And hope's faint whispers almost hushed in death,
What numbers of the race have "wished for day!"
Until the dawn! Until the morning-star
And sign to sign that long-drawn-out "until"
Like a faint vision, hardly visible,
Beckons the pilgrim Church, with weary foot,
And eye half blind with looking to the East,
For the first gleam of soul-reviving light,
Not to despair, for "day will surely dawn."

Patience, O Church, O man, O friend of Christ!
God's time plan never errs not. When the hour arrives
That He has fixed for the sublime event,
The Morning Star, the harbinger of day,
Is sure to rise. The glorious Sun Himself
Will flood the world with light, and joy and song,
And prove how wise it was to trust and wait.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVIII. Read PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JANUARY 6, 1909. NUMBER 1.

Communicated.

When Will the Lord Come?

When this gospel of the kingdom shall have been preached in all the habitable for a testimony to all the nations; and then shall come the end. Matt xxiv 14. Surely this prophecy of Jesus has not been fulfilled, there are many people in the world today who have never heard of Jesus, much less have they heard the gospel of the kingdom. Many have heard of an immortal soul and of hell and heaven, but this is not that which must be preached. When God is ready he will raise up men in all countries in all the lands to proclaim the coming kingdom and coming judgements against those who will not repent. The prophet Daniel said, when he shall have accomplished to scatter the power of the holy people, all these things shall be accomplished. Christ Jesus never was so popular as he is in the world today, (especially in that world which is termed Christendom) often preached in envy and strife, it is true, but proclaimed without persecution anywhere in the earth. Much error is preached, mixed with truth, but the name of Jesus is acknowledged everywhere; his coming is also getting quite popular, but according to the apostle Peter it will not be so popular in the last of these days. Then this prophecy of Daniel is not fulfilled.

Again, Daniel says, in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed." What kings? Some Adventists tell us the toes of the image represent ten kingdoms which arose after the decline and fall of Rome, but it has been a long time since then, and no stone has struck the image on the [illegible] and God set no[illegible] dent therefore that this prophecy means nothing as fulfilment. The apostle Paul said, Now we beseech you brethren, touching the coming of our Lord and our gathering together unto him; to the end that ye be not quickly shaken from your mind, nor yet be troubled, either by spirit or by word, or by epistle as from us, as the day of the Lord is now present; let no man beguile you in any wise, for it will not be except the falling away come first, and the man of sin (lawlessness) be revealed, the son of perdition, he that opposeth and exalteth himself against all that is called God, or that is worshiped, so that he sitteth in the temple of God setting himself forth as God. Read this carefully, for it has never been fulfilled. God recognizes no temple outside of the holy land, and there is no doubt about this man and king being a Jew, while it is evident that one of the strongest delusions of the day will culminate in Zionism. Because the Jews who are going back, are in an unconverted state, and represent Esau rather than Jacob.

Why did not the end come during the dark ages? It was not in the purpose of God, because there are darker times just ahead of us. Why did Israel suffer again after their great deliverance from Egypt? Why do the saints suffer? is not the suffering of their Lord and Master sufficient? Why was it told those under the altar to rest a while longer until their fellow-servants also and their brethren should be killed as they were, should be fulfilled? God said to Abram, in the fourth generation they shall come forth again; for the iniquity of the Amorites is not yet full. Gen xv 16. So the iniquity of the nations is not yet full, but when it is all the prophecies relating to them will be fulfilled. Let us have patience and wait, improving the time in doing good and teaching the people. In Dan vii 21 we read, the same horn made war with the saints and prevailed against them until the ancient of days came, when judgment was given to the saints of the Most High. Has the ancient of days come? if so, we can expect immunity from persecution and power to rule and judge. But if he has not come persecution was to occur until he arrived with seasons of great for the saints. In Rev xiii 1-8, There arises from the sea, which indicates waters or peoples, in commotion, a wild beast of prey or strong powerful rulers with wild beast characteristics, having their own selfish, abominable ways with the people. There are ten of these rulers; they divide the world up into seven territories.

There comes up another would be king, he subdues three, five fall, two remain, one is, and one to come. 10 plus 1 equals 11 minus 3 equals 8. He is of the 7 minus 5 equals 2 minus 1 equals 1.

We apprehend that there will be great changes in the map of the world in the near future. One of the heads of this beast speaks great things and blasphemies, and authority was given him over every tribe, and people and tongue and nation and power to persecute forty and two months. [illegible] dare change this time [illegible] given him to wage war with the saints and to overcome them. No nation or king has ever [illegible] combinations. Sometime during the divided condition of the earth, there arises two lambs [illegible] horns like lambs, but they have the mouth [illegible] of lions, commanding, boastful [illegible]. They are part of the then present [illegible] combinations, and get the control [illegible] other kings or rulers. This [illegible] gloss kingdom of the earth [illegible] joins their doings and [illegible] or be killed; few will escape.

[illegible] and the one controlling power, comes the severest trials to the Church, and afterwards to Jacob, then to the whole habitable. Indications show that these times, called the time of the end, are approaching rapidly.

After the persecutions of the saints by the two united power, the false Messiah is manifested; then all that died in Christ are raised, and those left over from the persecution are caught up together to meet the Lord in the air. Then comes the day of Jacob's trouble though their false Messiah, as Jesus said "If one come in his own name him ye will receive." These are the only tribulation saints left over after the first resurrection. The left over of the nations can live, if they are obedient to the call, to come up to Jerusalem and worship and learn the truth; while those who take the mark of the beast are punished in the presence of Christ and those on the throne, who they have before put to death.

Isaiah v. 19, predicts woe to them that say "Let him make speed and hasten his work that we may see it; and let the council of the Holy One of Israel draw nigh that we may know it." Luke xxi. 8, Jesus said They shall say, the time is near or at hand, go not after them.

These earthquakes and fires are only the beginning of sorrows. There shall be famines, pestilences and fearful sights, and signs shall there be from heaven. But before all these—when we shall begin to work in earnest—they shall lay hands on you and persecute you, and deliver you up to synagogues and to prisons for my name's sake. But when ye see Jerusalem compassed with armies, etc, Was not Jerusalem compassed with armies and destroyed? Will it occur again? Read Zech. xiv. 1, 2, I will gather all nations against Jerusalem etc. Is it not the controversy of Zion? Surely these things will all be repeated, "for with much tribulation shall ye enter the kingdom."

The saints or holy ones shall suffer. These are they who were killed because they refused to worship the beast or take his mark or number. They rise in the first resurrection and reign with Christ the thousand years. See Rev. xx 4.

Jacob suffers, coming through a time of trouble such as the world has never known. The nations suffer. The priest and the prophet Esdras sees a horrible vision of death, blood, and destruction in the cities in the last days. Famine, sorrows wars in all the earth. For there shall be in every place and in the city a great insurrection upon those that fear the Lord. They shall be like madmen, sparing none, spoiling and destroying those that fear the Lord, wasting and taking away their goods, casting them out of their houses.

Then shall they be known who are my chosen, and they shall be tried as gold in the fire. Hear ye, O my beloved, saith the Lord; behold the days of trouble are at hand, but I will deliver you from the same. Be ye not afraid, neither doubt, for God is your guide and the guide of them who keep my commandments and precepts saith the Lord God. 2 Esdras xvi. 70-66.

The prophet Amos said "Woe unto you that desire the day of the Lord! to what end is it for you? The day of the Lord is darkness and not light, as if a man did flee from a lion and a bear met him; or went into the house and leaned his hand on the wall and a serpent bit him and Jer. xxx: 7, alas for [illegible] day is [illegible] so that none is like [illegible] it; even the time of Jacob's trouble, but he shall be saved out of it.

Now let us turn to Ezek. xx: 33-39 As I live saith the Lord God, surely with a mighty hand and with an outstretched out-arm, and with fury poured out, will I rule over you. I will bring you out from the people, and will gather you out of all countries wherein ye are scattered, and I will cause you to pass under the rod, and I will bring you into the bond of the covenant, and I will purge out from among you the rebels, and them that transgress against me, if ye will not hearken unto me, and they shall not enter into the land of Israel, and ye shall know that I am the Lord."

Esdras speaking of these times says, Then the Most High comes and begins to deliver them upon the earth, and the Son to rebuke the wicked inventions of the nations and their wicked life, [illegible] ambition [illegible] another [illegible] punishment [illegible] they purpose [illegible] out of their own [illegible] do not in the time [illegible] Osea the King, whom Salmanasar the King of Assyria led away captive, and he carried them over the waters, and so came they into another land. But they took this council unto themselves, that they would leave the multitude of the heathen, and go into a further country where never mankind dwelt, that they might there keep their statutes, which they never kept in their own land, and they entered into the Euphrates by the narrow passages of the river. The same region is called Ararath, and they dwelt there until the latter times. When they shall begin to come, the Highest shall stay the springs of the stream again, that they may go through. The prophecy is certain.

Let us keep in mind the three general classes of the last days, viz the saints, or household of God; the remnant of Israel, called Jacob, and the left of the nations. Those left over from the persecution of the saints in that day do not die, but are caught away together with those raised from the dead in Christ, being changed in the twinkling of an eye from mortal to immortal. Their refuge is with God the Father, and with Christ and the holy angels in the air, the New Jerusalem, where the marriage supper of the Lamb takes place.

Jacob's refuge is the promised land on the earth, those alive and obedient in that day do not die, but live from the reflected glory of Christ and the saints. Those left over of the nations do not die, for if they are obedient and come up to the feast at Jerusalem and learn the truth they shall live, but none of these two classes will reach the immortal glory of the saints.

After the first resurrection of the saints, followed some time afterward by the resurrection of Israel as spoken of by Daniel xii. 1, there seems to be no record of any resurrection until after the thousand years.

The greatest persecutors of the early Church were first the Jews, afterwards the Apostate church. Paul had about made up his mind to receive Jesus, but the Jews [illegible] out, if you let this man go you are no friend of Cæsar's. The false Messiah of the Jews, the man who succeeds in controlling the other kings is not the saints' worse persecutors in the last of the days, but the Apostate ecclesiastical system who rides the Beast of Rev xvii, which is the same Beast of Rev xii developing into one of Blood. After she has destroyed the saints God puts it into the hearts of the kings to hate her, make her desolate, naked, eat her flesh, and burn her with fire, so when Jesus comes with the saints to destroy the ten kings there is no church on earth. When the first seal is opened the others and the trumpets and the vials follow in rapid succession. It is the "Day of the Lord", the times are given 2300 days (evenings and mornings) is about the limit. Immediately after the daily sacrifice is removed the abomination is set up, a period of time is recorded of 1290 days and 45 days more or 1335 should bring the Jewish resurrection, the saints having gone sometime after their persecution of the first 42 months, for it is given this beast to make war with the saints during this period of time and overcome them. Rev xiii 7. The Arch Angel Uriel said to Esdras regarding the third trumpet, "If the most High grant thee to live thou shalt see after the third trumpet, that the sun shall suddenly shine again in the night, and the moon thrice in the day and blood shall drop out of wood and the stone shall give his voice and the people shall be troubled, and even he shall rule whom they look not for, and the fowls shall take their flight away together. 2 Esdras v 4-6. If the earth should reel like a drunken man, would it not cause this disturbance? These are the days of vengeance, and the [illegible] of the wrath of the Almighty God. The leader [illegible] Church Fathers [illegible] it by hearing [illegible] interpret [illegible] and [illegible] are external, [illegible] some of our [illegible] are rich means [illegible] they believe it [illegible] fulfill the petition [illegible] the Lord's Prayer, "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven."

Wait for the Mud to Dry.

Father Graham, as everybody in the village called him, was one of the old fashioned gentlemen of whom there are so few left now. He was beloved by every one, and his influence in the little town was great, so good and so active was he.

A young man of the village had been badly insulted, and came to Father Graham, full of angry indignation, declaring that he was going at once to demand an apology.

"My dear boy," Father Graham said, "take a word of advice from an old man who loves peace. An insult is like mud; it will brush off much better when it is dry. Wait a little till he and you are both cool, and the thing is easily mended. If you go now, it will only be to quarrel."

It is pleasant to be able to add that the young man took his advice, and before the next day was done, the insulting person came to beg forgiveness.

Editor Restitution:

As my time for the dear old paper is about out, I will renew as I would be lost without its welcome visits. It and my Bible are all the preaching that I get. I occasionally go to some of the popular churches to see whether or no there is any gospel in their sermons, but usually come away disgusted. Oh Lord, how long will thou delay thy coming to gather thy saints, all that have made a covenant with thee by sacrifice.

I would love to have some good minister come this way and give us a call. Another year is passed. How have we spent the time? We will each have to answer for it well.

May we be ready to meet our Savior with joy, is my prayer.

J. B. LENT.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the restitution of all things which God has spoken "by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end it urges the establishment of the kingdom of God on earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Report of Labor.

Dear Restitution:

Brother S. J. Lindsay, of Oregon, Illinois, has been with us again at Argos holding a series of meetings, beginning November 29, and ending December 13. As a result of these meetings Sister Mary Baker became obedient to the faith, and was baptized at Huff's Lake one-half mile north of town.

FLORENCE CORDILL, Sec.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

Thinking our brothers and sisters other than those here in Rensselaer, Indiana, are like unto us in that we enjoy hearing of any good that comes to them, we want to tell of the good cheer given us by a visit from Brother S. J. Lindsay of Oregon, Illinois.

He commenced a series of meetings December 14 and closed the 23d. The attendance was better than expected, with excellent interest, which apparently was on the increase rather than showing any signs of diminution. Several out-siders have expressed a desire that he come again, which we hope we may be able to accomplish in the near future, when perhaps we may find that some of the seed sown has fallen on fertile soil.

We believe that on account of these meetings the Church has taken a new lease on life, and that altogether it was a good thing we could have him with us.

Your Sister in Christ,
MATTIE BENJAMIN.

On November 1 Brother and Sister Robison commenced a series of meetings in Miami County, Ohio, at Brush Creek, delivering eighteen discourses. From there they went to Union. We want all in Brother and Sister [illegible] interest [illegible] and [illegible] Not courses being delivered attendance was good notwithstanding the broken weather and dark nights.

No one knows the good these meetings do, even if we do not get immediate results. It is our duty to sow the seed. I had the pleasure of attending the greater part of these meetings. They were all doctrinal sermons, spoken in a way that would impress any one who was interested enough to investigate for themselves.

Brother and Sister Robison, Sister Edenmiller and myself held a short social service on Thanksgiving Day, which I doubt if any of us will ever forget. Mr. Edenmiller was also present.

The Brush Creek Church has been holding a social meeting each First Day since the meetings, which are a spiritual benefit. I think the social meeting is a feature which should not be forgotten. Preaching is essential and necessary, but it can never do for the body or members what the Sunday school, Bible reading, and Social meeting will do for us.

Our Sunday School since reorganization in September, has held its own and is in a prosperous condition with great possibilities before it.

I am glad to announce to the brothers and sisters that Brother Robison was called to our midst December 19, to help two worthy ones put on the all-saving name. They are Raymond Jones and wife. The sister is a daughter of Brother and Sister D. L. Lehman, and her husband is a young man whom we are glad to welcome into the body. It is encouraging to see the young taking a step in the right direction.

Your Brother in the One Faith,
H. ASHFORD LEHMAN.

Our offer of the next two months for 10 cents is meeting with response in some directions. Will all make a little effort and put our paper in several thousand new homes.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock; as they are handled by the authors direct.

Plymouth, Indiana, Jan'y 6, 1909.

Nineteen Hundred and Nine.

We have passed over another marking line. A year ago we did not know what the days of 1908 held for us. It was all dark—unknown. Standing now on this new threshold—this one of God's three-holds—we can glance back and see the trials and difficulties, the sorrows and heartaches we have each passed through. We can picture in our minds the joys and pleasures that the blessings of a kind Father has given to us. But we cannot stay to mourn over the losses of last year, nor to laugh in contemplating the good we have received. We must face about, for the things of NOW demand our attention. For in the future we know there is a time of eternal gladness, but to reach it we must take the steps one by one. No single bound brings us to the everlasting abode, but one step at a time we progress.

Does 1908 show blots and crooked lines, grievous mistakes on its once fair page? Very few will say that; no blot of any kind mars it—that it has been kept all pure and white. Brother, Sister, there is a blank page before you with "1909" at its head. What shall be written on it? Will the vile trail of the serpent defile it? Will God's Light make it all beauty when we come to the close of this new year? Stop just a moment. Do you realize that the making of history—your history—is in your own hands? Then let its reflection be generous, true and good. Let principles that are Divine actuate us, and diffuse only cheer to those about us.

God sees and knows. He has given us a present duty. He has told us the ultimate outcome. We are his if we do his commands. Our future is secure in his hands. He does not ask us to definitely understand and comprehend all that lies before, but he does want us to perform our present duties with an eye single to his glory, and as we advance we [illegible]

[illegible] plans.

Do not send to Brother Wilson for any more of "Destiny of Russia" as the supply is out.

A letter dated December 13, from Sister L. R. Freed says that Brother A. L. Corbaley is at Okanogon, Wash. holding a series of meetings, but that it is hard to get the people much interested in the truth.

Brother P. Neill writes they are preparing to begin special meetings at Salem, Ohio, on January 10, and continue two weeks. He expects that Brother and Sister Robison will be with them and assist. May God add his blessing.

A card from Sister Boice dated Jan. 2, refers to a letter purported to have been sent us, and which has failed to appear. We gain from the card that she is holding the type as set for the Visitor, and wants orders that are not in sent at once. Let all interested take note.

On the morning of December 28, an earthquake destroyed many cities of southern Italy and the island of Sicily adjacent. This was followed by tidal waves and subsequent disturbances until the death roll counts to the hundreds of thousands. No such horror as this is recorded on the pages of history.

A degree of uneasiness prevails on account of changes in China again. After the death of the emperor and then that of the dowager empress, it seemed that the "reform" element was in the ascendency, but the sudden unexplained removal of officials who favored that policy, and the appointment of others opposed, has caused anxiety.

Brother O. J. Allard, State Evangelist of Iowa, is to begin a series of meetings at the Plymouth Church on Friday evening, January 8. It is expected that he will go to Roll about January 23, to remain about two weeks. If other churches in the state want Brother Allard to visit them let word be sent to Brother J. H. Willey, President of Indiana Conference, at Plymouth, Indiana, and arrange for time

Roll Call for 1908.

An examination of our files for the year just passed shows a heavy loss. Many names in this list have been familiar to us for years. Some of our best known brethren have gone to the silence of the tomb during the past year. Will my name be in the list when the year 1909 shall end? Will yours? Let us make such good use of the short time that remains for us each, that if we are called to lay our armor by, we may simply sleep in Jesus until God's own good time shall come to overthrow the enemy death, and wake us to his unending.

Following are some of the names of those who were with us a year ago, but now sleep in Jesus waiting the resurrection morn.

Let Us Pray.

Ever-loving God and Father: we bless and praise Thee for this day of privilege. The privilege of coming together as the household of faith to commune with Thee and with Thy exalted Son. The privilege of communing with Thy saints around the table bearing the emblems of the broken body and shed blood of Thy Unspeakable Gift. We come to Thee as we have often come before, with all our weariness, and disappointments, for rest, and peace and comfort, and strength; and as we come at Thy gracious invitation we feel that we are more than welcome,—feel assured that we shall be blessed of Thee according to our needs and go away refreshed with water from Thy never failing fountain.

Father in heaven, we realize that the days of the last days are upon us, and though our hearts do not fail for fear, we feel much in need of Thy watchful care and Thy guiding hand. Outside of Thy family every influence is for evil,—help us to cultivate the spirit of reliance upon Thee, of casting all our cares upon Thee, so that we may fall into none of the snares which are set for our feet. Especially would we commend to Thee younger members of the household, may they cling closer and closer to Thy precious promises,—enter not into the path of the wicked, nor go in the way of evil doers. We praise and magnify Thy great Name for the evidence that they are growing in Thy favor as well as in knowledge. Oh, God in heaven, bless and protect the dear young people who have taken the name of Jesus, so that they overcome and enter into the joy of their Lord. Bless the aged and infirm ones; bless the sick and afflicted ones; may Thy presence be ever with them,—may Thy Word ever sustain them. Do thou bless all the lonely ones of the household of faith, especially we would commend to Thee the obscure ones. And Lord, Remember Abraham's seed according to the flesh, may the Great Deliverer soon come and turn away ungodliness from Jacob; for [illegible] name.

Satan's yoke is easy to wear it [illegible] and burdens light; but it will not fit a stiff neck.

Count your blessings; name them one by one. They exceed your curses so much that if you look at them fairly they will drive the "blues" away.

Wanted, copies of THE RESTITUTION from May 1 to December 1, 1908. Any reader who has above issues to spare, please mail them to the Editor of "Ebenezer," stating price.

Please note our address at the top of the page. Do not send Brother Underwood copy you desire to have published in "Ebenezer". It takes postage for him to remail your article to us.

The thief on the cross is the only case in the Bible of repentance at the close of life with which God expressed himself as well pleased. One instance is given that none may despair; and only one, that none may presume.

We thank our brethren and sisters who have contributed able articles for our page during the year of 1908. We do not now have as much time for writing as formerly; and for this reason we hope that our readers will write the oftener. Let us hear from you frequently either by letter or composition, or both.

We still have a few copies of "An Exposition of Isa. vii. 14, 15, 16," the substance of a sermon, and an expose of Josephitsism. Copies should be in the home of every believer; and as they can be had at the readers own price, there is no reason why all can not have copies for individual use and distributing purposes long as they last.

We have badly neglected correspondents of late. Particularly is this true of my brethren in Illinois, "Neglected" is hardly the right word to use when we have to attend to pastoral duties in the Church of Cleveland; with more or less travelling vicissitudes occasioned by attending special meetings elsewhere. We simply cannot engage to privately correspond with any one, for the reasons stated. Lately we have passed over replying to interesting questions, much to our regret.

A correspondent who has carefully read the writings of Brethren Tomkins and Adams on the imprisoned spirits, remarks that we should now give our interpretation, so readers can pass upon it in making up their minds about the passage. In replying will say that it is not necessary for us to write on the question now, as we have formerly given an exegesis of the passage. All who care to ascertain how we look at the text, will find our exposition of it in THE RESTITUTION, Sept. 9, 1908, under the heading, "Did Christ's Spirit Hold a Protracted Meeting in Hades?"

Millennial Dawn Versus the Church of God.

Brother Huggins:

Will you please enlighten me as to the chief points of difference between the Church of God and Millennial Dawn? Do so through THE RESTITUTION. Yours respectfully,

N. D. WEBBER.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

We do not have time nor space to state all "the chief points of difference" between us and the Millennial Dawn, but will indicate a few of the fundamental differences. Millennial Dawn teaches in opposition to us and the Word of God: The immortality of the soul (or rather a nameless something that exists conscious and glorified subsequent to the death of the body); the conscious state of the dead since the Lord's advent; going to heaven at death for all the elect of God; the non resurrection of Christ; the personal pre-existence of Christ; the devil made out of an angel; the mortality of all the saved, except 144,000; the Lord has already come; the "spiritual" coming and invisible reign of Christ on the earth; unconditional "ransom" for all, pardon of sin prior to baptism, etc., etc., etc. Origin and other adept spiritualizing mystifiers may have equaled, but they certainly did not surpass Millennial Dawn in the flights of imagination and forced interpretations of God's Word. The Dawn is far more dangerous than all former "spiritual" interpretations, for it adds to the Universalism of Origin the sin of exulting and glorifying a poor, sinful man—Chas. T. Russell. He is not merely a spoke in the wheel of Millennial Dawn; he is the whole wheel. Like John A. Dowie and other impostors who have deceived their thousands, he poses as something more than human; to be "that servant" mentioned in Matt. xxiv. 46. His poor deluded followers seem ready to believe anything he says. If Russell frowns, they frown; if he bobs his head up and down, they follow suit; if he takes snuff, they all sneeze! Though the papers report that he is now divorced from his wife, or rather his wife is divorced from him, on grounds, too, that the courts of the land have justified her in, yet his devotees remain as loyal to him as does the Catholic to the pope. We believe ourself that Russell is mentioned in the Bible; that he is distinctly referred to in Matt. xxiv 23 by the word "man"; and he only confirms my faith when he says that Christ has already come secretly; that "he is in the desert" somewhere, he does not know where! and that "he is in the secret chambers". v. 26. "Believe it not", says our loving Savior. "Take heed", dear reader, "that NO MAN deceive you". V. 4.

An Apparent Contradiction Explained.

BROTHER HUGGINS:—Will you kindly harmonize the records of Matt. xxvii 44 and Mark xv: 32, which declare that the "thieves"—"they"—"reviled him," with Luke xxiii: 39-43, which teaches that but "one of the malefactors" railed on him," while the other was promised salvation.—G. E. Marsh.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

The apparent contradiction in the gospel records mentioned by Brother Marsh has caused some of our brethren much anxiety and trouble. Some of them have been so perplexed and confused by the difference in the records that they have made wild suggestions and advanced unscriptural theories in their efforts to harmonize the different, and to them, conflicting accounts about the thieves on the cross. One theory very unscholarly and decidedly reprehensible is that Luke xxiii: 43 is a question, not an affirmation: "Shalt thou be with me in Paradise?" If the advocates of this view would only look up the original they would find "thou" before "shalt:" "Thou shalt be with me in Paradise." This is not an interrogative but a declarative sentence. The repentant thief prayed, "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom." (V. 42) God's word pledges mercy and forgiveness to those who confess and forsake their sins. Prov. xxviii: 13. How befitting our Lord who came into the world to save sinners (1 Tim. i. 14) by dying for them (Rom. v: 10); how like our Lord as he hung between vile transgressors (Isa. liii: 12), to extend love, mercy and pardon to a praying apostate! He answered the thief's prayer with words of loving assurance. "Verily I say unto thee today, Thou shalt be with me in paradise." "Verily," says Young, means "So be it, so fait, amen." If the word "verily," followed by an emphatic "thou shalt," does not grant the thief's prayer and give him a home in the kingdom when the Lord comes, language has no meaning. Because this matter was not told by Matthew and Mark's gospels is nothing against Luke's account. Luke intimates in the preface of his book (Luke i: 1-5) that those who had written gospels before him had omitted some things. As he had perfect knowledge of all things "from the very first," he gives us many things the former writers did not tell. Hence his gospel is invaluable.

Matthew and Mark plainly state that the "thieves" (both of them) reviled Christ. Luke in no way conflicts with their narratives. He does not contradict; he only adds to their account. About half of the difficulties in the two records are created by us. Luke does not say, "but one of the malefactors reviled him." If he had said "but one" (only one) railed on him, he would have contradicted Matthew who says the "thieves"—both of them—did. Instead of saying "but one," Luke says: "One of the malefactors which were hanged railed on him." (xxiii: 39): If the "thieves"—both of them—reviled Christ as Matthew affirms, was not Luke within the bounds of truth when he declared "one" did? As Matthew says two did, I am sure Luke was not over-stating the truth of the matter when he said "one" railed on Christ.

Luke reports a prayer Christ made on the cross (xxiii: 34) which all of the other writers omit. God gives us the truth by the mouth of "two or three witnesses." Deut. xvii: 6; Matt. xviii. 16; John viii: 17; 2 Cor. xiii: 1; Heb. x. 28. If one writer told the details and omitted nothing, we would only need one gospel record. But God has given us four gospels, revealing "here a little, and there a little" (Isa. xxviii: 10), until his "whole counsel" (Acts xx: 27) has been made known. It is by taking the different words the Holy Spirit has taught us, in different parts of the Bible; it is by comparing "spiritual things with spiritual" (1 Cor. ii: 13) that we get the "mind of Christ" (verse 16). If one writer told it all, others would have been left without anything additional to tell. So after believing all Matthew and Mark tell that happened on the cross, we turn to Luke's record, and there we find this much additional information; Christ prayed, the thief (one of them) repented, prayed, and as he had been a baptized believer, he was pardoned, and was assured a home in the coming kingdom of our God.

PSA LX 7 and PSA CVIII 8.

The "Sceptre"—symbol of official power, or authority, according to the predetermined purpose of God the Almighty Creator. The only exception is in the case of Saul of the tribe of Benjamin; who was permitted to rule over Israel for 40 years, and this at the urgent request of the Israelitish people so as to be—in this respect—like the surrounding nations. They got what they demanded in abundance as predicted, 1 Sam viii 8, 9, and succeeding context. Apart from this deviation the sceptre continued with Judah till the 11th year of Zedekiah's reign.

The history of Jesus' ancestry all along the line from Abraham to David, Matt 1 2-6, is exceedingly interesting from a genealogical point of view; but much more than that when the object for such minuteness is recognized in the guardian watchfulness on the part of God is considered. There was, and are tremendous consequences involved and developed, which demonstrates the watchful guardianship, on the part of God, lest any deviation from the "plan of the ages" would intervene, so as to hinder or obstruct the redemptive work in view, by means of the Lord's Anointed. Consult Heb x 5 and Psa cxxxix 13 to 16 and on to verse 18. Everlasting evidence of Divine oversight, "For" verse 13, a causative conjunction, Because Thou (Yahveh) hast spread thy covering over me—as a protection during the set days—see margin, "my substance"—frame, physical organism, "was not hid from thee, when in the lower parts of the earth," made, formed, developed..... "curiously wrought," different from the common procedure in such cases. "In thy book (Oyahveh) all were written"—prophetically in the mind of Yahveh—"when, as yet, none of them existed." Being fashioned, made or produced from mother's substance. Consult Luke i 35 and context.....To return to Judah, we have in the case of Tamar sufficient evidence for the belief in God's supervision and recognized as a necessity in the development of his purpose concerning his Messiah; and an important link in the ancestral chain and the recorded facts assert the necessity for divine supervision. And hence the line—Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Judah, Pharez—an important link in the Abrahamic chain. Hezron, Ram, Amminadab, Nashon, Salmon, Boaz, Obed, Jesse, David the king. See Ruth iv 18-22. The story of Ruth, too, not merely an interesting narrative about a good and noble woman; but rather the introduction of a non-Israelitish element into the royal line of David's house, and in this way affirm the truth that "in every nation the one that feareth God and worketh righteousness is acceptable with him." And therefore the overstepping the Israelitish boundaries. And therefore Obed was born of Ruth, another link in the chain.

Reflecting upon these historic facts and in view of current misrepresentation of these facts, one is ready to exclaim: "O the depth of the riches of both the wisdom and (love) knowledge of God; how unsearchable are his judgments [ability to decide rightly] and his ways past finding out," until revealed to his holy apostles and prophets—that the Gentiles should be fellowheirs and a joint body, and jointly partakers of the Abrahamic promises in the Christ by means of the good message concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus the Christ, that by adding to the like precious faith of apostolic times those graces of character mentioned by Peter—an abundant entrance into the kingdom of the age may be obtained. And therefore the recorded testimony and Davidic covenant concerning this kingdom is believable to the extent of producing the One hope of our calling.

Respectfully submitted.

C. W. TOMKINS.

This Is Another Right Business.

Observe, we do not intend to offer you a life of unbroken prosperity or of undisturbed repose. Righteousness will give you love, joy, peace; but it will not give you an invincible amulet against misfortune nor a continuous immunity from pain. Pain, bereavment, failure may be the needful fire to purge away the dross of your nature from the seven-times refined gold. Let Satan tempt you with the transient spasms of enjoyment or the mean baits of ease; the service of God disdains such lower amusements. Yes, the path of evil is broad and smooth and downward, and near at hand. But toil stands in the path of righteousness, and that path is narrow and steep and rough. But who would exchange its saddest sigh for the laughter of fools, which is as the crackling of thorns under a pot? Who would exchange the tears which God's hand shall wipe away for "the troubles of the envious or the fears of the cowardly, the heaviness of the slothful or the shame of the unclean?" Nay, who would exchange the banquet of the prodigal, at its maddest and most luxurious moment, for the sternest duty and the heaviest affliction of his Father's home?

Whatever happens to you, if you hunger and thirst after righteousness you shall be satisfied; for then your hunger is not for the stones of the wilderness, but for "the tree of life." You thirst, not for poisoned fountains, but for "the river pure as crystal flowing out of the throne of God and of the Lamb." For you that tree was planted; for you that river flows. Christ is the river of living water; Christ is that Tree of life. "All things are yours, and ye are Christ's and Christ is God's."

Young as you are, have you never thirsted for something to calm and satisfy and give peace to your souls? Well, he that cometh to Christ shall never hunger and he that believeth on Christ shall never thirst; and if you have failed to win the blessing, may there not be a special meaning for you in that appeal: "O that thou hadst hearkened to my commandments! Then had thy peace been as a river, and thy righteousness as the waves of the sea?" But if you have hearkened to God's commandments—if you have at least striven to hearken to God's commandments—then you see that what God gives he gives richly; he gives abundantly. It is no dribbling rivulet of peace which he pours into the thirsty soul, but a rejoicing river; no transitory torrent, but an abounding tide, rising in his children as water dwelleth in a mighty sea. This is his promise, and if we fulfill its conditions it can never fail; for the mouth of God hath spoken it, and God is true.—Dr. F. W. Farrar.

Gold Dust.

Rule for a holy life: Do all to the glory of God.

A Christian is one in whom the spirit of Christ abides. We can know them by the fruits of their lives.

Our real selves are our inner selves. And the self, hidden from all human eyes is what God looks at.

You will find it less easy to uproot faults than to check them by gaining virtues. Do not think of your faults, still less of other's faults; in every person who comes near you look for what is good and strong; honor that, rejoice in it, and as you can, try to imitate it, and your faults will drop off, like dead leaves when their time comes.—J. Ruskin.

Though the snows of winter cast a mantle of death over every living thing, yet the flowers will again bloom and beautify the waste places of earth. So this change is a token of the Father's care and an emblem of the resurrection from the grave.

Unreality in Character.

"Christian Science" hallucinations produce unreality in character. Hypocrisy is simply acting a part; and no man can write with a material pen "There is no such thing as matter," or can, while pain racks the body assert "There is no such thing as pain," or while a corpse lies before him declare "There is no such thing as death," without acting a part.

In "Science and Health" we read "If delusion says 'I have lost my memory,' you must contradict it. No faculty is lost." Her directions for denying what you know to be a fact. Again "If a child says 'I am hurt,' though the bleeding gash may be there, the mother must reply, 'Oh, no, you are not hurt, you only think so.'" "Sight, hearing and [illegible] of man are external, [illegible] lose"—which means that a blind man must declare he is not blind, a deaf man must assert that he is not deaf.

In another place this Bible of Christian Science says "Man cannot depart from holiness," and therefore when he sins he must assert that there is no such thing as sin. I submit that there never was made a better formula for manufacturing hypocrites. Let one continue to declare what he knows to be false, and act his part accordingly for a few years, and he has formed a habit of hypocrisy which will become a second nature.—A. C. Dixon.

There are two classes of disagreeable people in this world whose presence is not edifying. The first are gloomy. They go about with their bitter cups, and want everybody they meet to take a sip. They take a morbid delight in making themselves and other people miserable. If they have no real troubles to worry about they manufacture artificial ones and their mills never run down. They grind out just about so much misery whether the market is brisk or dull. Such people remind me of old rusty pianos that have not been tuned for years. They are so full of discordant elements that no harmony can be evoked from them. Play on any key and you evoke nothing but a jangle. These are the ones who always talk of life as a "vale of tears," and a waste, howling wilderness, in which, by the way, they themselves do most of the howling. They whine and sigh, but they do not sing.—J. I. Scudder.

The distiller, from a bushel of corn, makes four gallons of whiskey (with the aid of various harmful adulterations.) These four gallons of whiskey retail for $16.40. The farmer who raises the corn gets from twenty-five to fifty cents. The United States Government, through its tax on the whiskey $4.40. The railroad company gets $1.00. The manufacturer gets $4 00. The drayman who hauls the whiskey gets fifteen cents. The retailer gets $7 00. The man who drinks the whiskey gets drunk. His wife gets hunger and sorrow. His children gets rags and insufficient food.—Bible training School.

The Kind of Religion We Want.

We want religion that softens the step and turns the voice to melody and fills the eye with sunshine and checks the impatient exclamation and harsh rebuke; a religion that is polite, deferential to superiors, considerate to friends; a religion that goes into the family and keeps the husband from being cross when the dinner is late, and keeps the wife from fretting when the husband tracks the newly-washed floor with his boots, and makes the husband mindful of the scraper and the door-mat; keeps the mother patient when the baby is cross, and amuses the children as well as instructs them; cares for the servants, besides paying them promptly; projects the honeymoon into the harvest moon, and makes the happy home like the Eastern fig tree, bearing on its bosom at once the tender blossom and the glory of the ripening fruit. We want a religion that shall interpose [illegible] and rest

Things that Differ are Not Equal.

"Things equal to the same thing are equal to each other." Nothing truer than the above when applied to the churches of God. The churches of God are equal to the first church at Jerusalem, therefore all the churches of God are equal to each other. How then, can some claim that churches differing in faith and practice from one another can all be churches of God?

Like an exotic in the midst of blighting winters, the Christ life has a hard struggle in this world. The climate is cold and unfriendly to it; it is sure to become sickly, shrink and die, if we do not use all diligence to keep it alive by courage, zeal, pity, love, prayer, sympathy and holiness.

Married.

Brother Underwood,

We wish to notify the household of faith through THE RESTITUTION, that Sister Hattie Aley and Brother Clarence Woods were united in marriage on Christmas eve, December 24th.

Sister Hattie was baptized by Brother F. L. Austin, May 25, 1902, and has been one of the most faithful workers, in church and Sunday School, and Brother Clarence was baptized by Brother J. H. Willey Jan. 12th, 1903. Both are very highly respected, and we feel that you will join with us in congratulating them on making so wise a choice. May naught but joy and happiness, be with them throughout life, is the wish of their brothers and sisters in Christ.

LIZZIE WILHELM.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

An Address.

TO THE LITTLE BAND OF BELIEVERS ASSEMBLED AT LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA.

"Behold, he cometh with clouds, and every eye shall see him; and they also which pierced him; and all kindred of the earth shall wail because of him. Even so, Amen." Rev. i. 7.

"Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy and keepeth those things which are written therein; for the time is at hand." Rev. i 3.

If the coming of the Savior was at hand when John wrote these words how much nearer is his coming today? And who will be blest? Just those that readeth? Oh no, those that read or hear and keep those things which are written therein.

Among the numerous events that have occurred in human history of which the Sacred writers made mention there is none so great and sublime and to which is attached so great and so many important considerations, as the second coming of Christ back to this earth to fulfill his second mission here. But the world is full of missions. Missions from the rock bound shores of England to the blood stained valley of France; missions from the frozen zones of the north to the burning plains of the south; but there is no mission that we should be more interested in than the mission of the Son of God. This event will be the grand conclusion of the redemptive plan; the terminus of the mortal economy, and the setting up of a kingdom of peace and justice; where the King will not judge after the hearing of the ear or the sight of the eye; for he knoweth the heart of man.

The second advent of the Savior to the world is one of the great fundamental truths of the Word of God. It is indeed the central sun amid the stars of truth in God's divine revelation to man. Since this subject occupies such a conspicuous place in the great system of divine truth, ought it not to be regarded as important? and should it not command the serious and undivided consideration of us all?

There is no truth more plainly taught or that there are more beauties clustering around, or is clothed with a greater degree of moral grandeur in all the teachings of Holy Writ [illegible] ever be, be the grand era of eternal victory and deliverance and triumph impending to the people of God. [illegible] au will the command go forth, "Gather my saints together unto me." Yes, "unto me," that is the sweetest word to me. Then shall we see him as he is for we shall be like him But who are those that will be gathered unto him? Those who have made a covenant with me by sacrifice. This is an important thought for our consideration. Do we not have to give up all? Yes, if need be father, mother, brother, sister, children, yes; and all those that have been near and dear to us, for we must love him more than all else. But what is this gathering of his saints unto him for?

Let us see if we cannot find in the Word of God the reason of this grand assembly. Yes; for he says, "Behold, I come quickly and my reward is with me to give to every one as his work shall be." And what shall thereward be? Let us first see what the Sweet Singer of Israel says. He looked down the stream of time and saw what God had in store for his saints, and it made his heart rejoice, and from his pen came forth these words of praise, "For the Lord taketh pleasure in his people, he will beautify the meek with salvation. Let the saints be joyful in glory. Let them sing aloud upon their beds, let the high praises of God be in their mouth and a two edged sword in their hands, to execute vengeance upon the heathen, and punishment upon the people, to bind their kings with chains and their nobles with fetters of iron, to execute upon them the judgments written." This honor hath all the saints. Praise ye the Lord. And with this agree the words of John the Revelator, Rev. ii. 26. "And he that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers, even as I received of my Father." "He that overcometh the same shall be clothed in white raiment." He shall "sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame and am set down with my Father on his throne." "And he that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death; and the hidden manna and the white stone." Who does not have an anxiety to eat of the precious manna; for it must be very precious to be hidden away; and the name in that little stone. I have a great anxiety to know the name and receive the stone, and the white raiment, and our names written in the Book of Life. "And I will confess his name before my Father and all his holy angels." O blessed thought, that the Savior will tell the Father that this is one of my saints that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice; one of my jewles; one that has overcome and will recieve the reward promised to the faithful. Therefore beloved, let us be steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, in view of these great and glorious truths that have been revealed to us in respect to the soon coming of the Master.

I will close this with an exhortation to that firmness in the faith which ought to result from a truth so glorious and a hope so elevated as this truth is able to impart. Let us be strong, be firm, be confident in the faith. In view of this that if dead we will be raised our from among the dead to meet the savior in the air, let us not be shaken or agitated with the strifes, the temptations and the cares of this life. Always be found doing the will of God in presenting the truth by precept and example to our fellowmen, and remember our labor will not be in vain. Let us not be excited or influenced by the hope of worldly honors and pleasures; but let us toil on with the conflicts of this life ever looking forward with the hope of a future life in the kingdom of God where we will have the opportunity of taking part with the King of kings in ruling the nations; for he is soon coming to redeem his precious jewels and gather them unto himself. The victorious palm bearers sing songs, wear white robes, walk amid Eden's beautiful groves, recline themselves among its vine clad hills that are dressed up with a band that is all divine. Have their ears saluted with the sweet notes of Eden's feathered songsters borne along on zephyrs stainless wing. Behold them as they stand on the banks of life's beautiful river and view its crystal waters as they flow majestically along through [illegible] verdant hills of the Paradise [illegible] and as they rise [illegible] upon Eden's heights [illegible] anthems of salvation. The days of their mourning is ended, the last tear shed, the last sigh heaved, the last groan uttered. Songs and everlasting joy will crown their heads. A dazzling halo of Glory now dances upon their glowing faces, and unfading beauty lingers at every step. Glory be to God their saving King is with them. A crown of righteousness shall forever sparkle upon their brows and harmonious music flow from their gladsome tongue, no jarring earthquake, no sweeping tornado, nor rattling hailstorm or terrific thunder or flashes of lightning shall be there to disturb their peaceful abode. Wave after wave of glory will roll over and inundate this earth, and beneath the sunshine of an endless day they shall bathe themselves in a sea of bliss eternally. Where the glory of God like a boundless sea shall bathe that immortal company. O who would not endure the troubles and trials of this life for such unending glory. And let us remember the greater the cross the brighter the crown, and whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and he will not forsake us if we put our trust in him.

MRS. CASSIE HICKLIN-WILLIAMS.

The Elements of the Kingdom of God, is the title of an eighteen page tract by Brother T J Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He sets forth that a kingdom cannot exist without a King, his cabinet officers, territory, a capital city, subjects, laws. Brother Daniel will send this little tract to you at 10 cents each, or $1 00 a dozen. Send direct to him for them.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

Notice.

BROTHER John Foore of Parsons, Kansas, realizing that his preaching days are getting short, as he is nearly 76 years old, has issued a series of 10 tracts. They have cost him a considerable sum, and he offers to supply them to the brethren on most liberal terms. The average cost of these tracts is about 10 cents each, and he offers to send them at cost. Also he says that where people are too poor to pay for them he will send them to such free if they will send name and address. The subjects treated are as follows: The Great Divine Healer vs. last day healers, The stature of Christ The restitution, The kingdom of God, Law and testimony, The judgment, Is baptism essential to salvation, Life and death, Signs of the end, Through the second vail, Three days and three nights, Election and predestination. Let any one wishing these tracts send direct to John Foore, Parsons, Kan

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

AN EXPOSITION of Isa. vii 14 16.

A booklet by Robert G. Huggins, of 3502 Woodland ave, Cleveland, Ohio, and designed specially for the brethren. Plain, brief, true, thoughtful, logical. Price for those who want to pay 50ts. for those who want to pay the postage only, one two-cent stamp, for those too poor or who do not want to pay anything free. On such terms every brother and sister in the United States and Canada should read it. Send as above.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1 00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1 25.

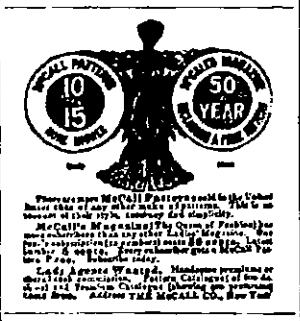
Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Address W. H. Wilson, 420 North Willow Ave, Austin Station, Chicago, Illinois.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 366 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.



Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance houses will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money when paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Contentment.

Some murmur when their sky is clear
And wholly bright to view,
If one small speck of dark appear
In their great heaven of blue.
And some with thankful love are filled
If but one streak of light,
One ray of God's good mercy, gild
The darkness of their night.

In palaces are hearts that ask,
In discontent and pride,
Why life is such a dreary task
And all good things denied.
And hearts in poorest huts admire
How Love her, in their aid—
Love that not ever seems to tire—
Such rich provision made.

The Bible and its Message.

The Bible is unlike all other books in many respects. It is the product of more than 30 different writers and is made up of more than 60 different books. It has been translated into every known language. No people can plead that they have not God's purpose concerning the creation of the earth and man. Paul in Acts xiv preached to the Gentiles that they turn from these vanities unto the living God, which made heaven and earth and sea and all things there in. Who in times past suffered all nations to walk in their own ways. Nevertheless he left not himself without a witness, in that he did good and gave us rain from heaven and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness. Every rain from heaven and fruitful season is a witness that God has warned them of the coming destruction that is coming upon the disobedient.

The Bible as a book is naturally divided into the Old and the New. The Old giving a history of the race for 4000 years. It is divided into history, poetry and prophecy. The first five books are called the Pentateuch and gives a history of God's dealing with the race from creation to the death of Moses. The first book is called Genesis, meaning the beginning. The first six chapters gives a brief history from creation to the deluge. The next six chapters relate to the covenant with Noah and the filling of the earth with his offspring and their dispersion. Ten chapters give us a brief history of the call and trials of Abraham. The remainder of this book is devoted to the history of Isaac, Jacob and Joseph, also of the family of Israel that went down into Egypt. It closes with the death of Joseph and his burial in the land of his fathers. It covers a period of more than 2000 years.

Exodus, the second book, means a "going out." God had promised Abraham (Gen xv) that his seed should again come up out of Egypt. This he did by the hand of Moses. This book gives us a history of the birth of Moses and his care by the daughter of Pharaoh, king of Egypt. Also the exodus of the children of Israel, God's covenant with them in the Mount. (Ex xix 4, 5. In this book Moses was directed to build the tabernacle where the presence of the Deity might dwell. Leviticus contains the law of ordinances and a strict hygenic law. Numbers receives its name from the numbering of the people. This book also gives a history of the march of the children of Israel from Sinai to the borders of Canaan. The report of the spies sent to view the land. The false report brought by the 10 spies and the wandering in the wilderness.

Deuteronomy the fifth book comes from the repetition of the law. This book consists mainly of three addresses given by Moses in his extreme old age. In these addresses he admonishes them to obey the law and God shall greatly bless them in the land. After his death Joshua is appointed leader and he leads them into the land promised to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. The book of Joshua recites the possession of the land by the 12 tribes and the driving out of a portion of the inhabitants. After the death of Joshua Israel was ruled by the Judges until the time of Samuel when the people demanded a king. The rule of the Judges gave way to the ruling of a king. 1 and 2 Kings and 1 and 2 Chronicles gives a history of the kingdom from Saul to Zedekiah when God overturned the kingdom, and said it should be no more until he comes whose right it is and I will give it him. Ezek xxi 25, 27. It is well worth reading and studying with care. With this book we close the historical books of the Old Testament and take up the poetical works, viz. Job, Psalms, Proverbs, Eccl. and the Songs of Solomon. These books are some earlier and some later than the historical books. They are classed together because they are in Hebrew verse, and mainly because they formed the devotional books of the Jewish congregations. Job contains a very interesting story of the afflictions of God's worthy sons. Under the most trying circumstances. Job remained true to his trust in Jehovah. There is no poetry written equivalent to that written by the authors of this Hebrew poetry. The first Psalm recites the blessedness of the man who walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. He shall be like a tree planted by the river of water that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper.

Many of the Psalms relate to the Messiah whom God promised, as a deliverer of his people. He is alluded to in Psalm lxxx. Let thy hand be upon the Son of man whom thou madest strong for thyself. In Psalm lxxxix. he is called the seed of David whom Jehovah promised should occupy his throne forever.

The Proverbs contain many very beautiful gems of thought. How beautiful are these. Words fitly spoken are like apples of gold in pictures of silver.

The Prophets are divided into the major and minor. Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel and Daniel are classified as the major prophets. Those following from Hosea to Malachi are named as the minor prophets. These all write concerning the redeemer of his people Israel. Isaiah speaks of him as the child born, the son given, and the government shall be upon his shoulders. Upon the throne of David and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice. The prophet declares that the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of God as the waters cover the sea.

Again he says, Behold a king shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rule in judgment. Micah calls him the tower of the flock to whom shall come even the First Dominion. Jeremiah calls him the Branch of Righteousness. The theme of every prophet is that Jehovah made this branch strong for himself. Paul says through his blood he obtained eternal redemption. Again it is written that he hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. The last of the Hebrew prophets calls him the Sun of Righteousness who shall arise with healing in his wings.

D. C. ROBISON.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 69.

Father stepped up in to the pulpit to preach his valedictory sermon. Imagine if you can his feelings. He was yet young in years and in the ministry. The bonds of friendship, of brotherhood, were dear. He must give these up. Sensitive to ridicule, he must set himself up as a mark for all scorning. The good opinion of his fellow-ministers must count as nothing.

All eyes were fixed upon him as the brave martyr spirit spoke out in the text—"If thy brother, the son of thy mother, or the son of thy daughter, or the wife of thy bosom, or thy friend entice thee secretly, saying, Come, let us go and serve other gods, thou shalt not consent unto him nor hearken unto him." The words that followed were words of faithfulness and decision; there was no mistaking their true meaning. The Baptist church had lost the young minister over whom they had so rejoiced and from whose labors they had hoped so much. He was free to go wherever he might be called of the Lord. Doors opened and at God's behest he entered, preaching everywhere, "The Kingdom Near at Hand," and the precious kindred doctrine of Life Only Through Christ.

It took courage to thus crucify self, but Christ had loved and bought him and this was all for Christ.

The homeless ones met at the house of Brother Rowland Willard where they rejoiced together that "they were counted worthy to suffer on behalf of Christ."

The time appointed for the Advent went by, and many returned to the world but father was not to be moved. his pen was still busy, his voice, constantly uplifted in defense of the truth. Supporting himself and a family of five children by farming and teaching he pursued his studies and continued preaching in his own and in other states. His practice was to work till noon on Saturdays, then bathe and dress, eat his dinner and then start on the run to reach his appointments.

The fall of 1858 was one of peculiar trial. His whole family were prostrated by typhus fever and his oldest son—his stay and staff—went down into death's dark house; the youngest, "the little brother" followed, and lovely neice, sisterinlaw, friend and beloved mother were carried to the grave before the New Year's dawn. Yet still my father trusted in God, and when the storm was past, went on as before, making with Brother Ephraim Miller extensive journeys to sound the warning cry.

He attended the early conferences at Old Union, Little Wild Cat, Fairfield, Buchanan, Pine Creek, Bracken, Antioch, Oswego, Union Mills, Laporte, Middlebury, etc., at the same time holding pastoral charge of several churches at various points.

Brother Ephraim Miller and Brother Hoyt had brought the truth to Marshall County and Brother Catlin and father had followed and as a result of their labors, and of the labors of Brother Henry Logan and Brother Hugh Barnhill, several churches were organized and that county became the headquarters of the Conditional Immortality brethren in Northern Indiana, and the scene of a thousand happy gatherings. To its County Seat, Plymouth, THE RESTITUTION was removed, and thither, after the death of my mother in 1872, and his marriage to Miss Sarah C. Logan in 1874 he came to make his permanent home.

A little after this, he was chosen Editor of THE RESTITUTION, and for nearly thirteen years held the place, writing for its pages and for other papers, ministering to the churches, and visiting and preaching during the same period in the cities of New York, Philadelphia, Brooklyn and Chicago.

Through personal contact and through his writings, this shrinking, modest man won the affections of the brotherhood in every part of the globe, and had come to have "a good report from them that were without."

In personal appearance he was quite spare, had a well formed head, a pleasant grey eye, and a low, soft voice, that in preaching, or in conversing on religious themes, was full of earnestness and enthusiasm. His manner was kindly, his step quick and nervous. He moved as one moves who has no time to waste. He loved the muses, and sometimes let his thoughts flow in rhyme. He seldom sang; not often I think in public, but did so for his children when they were small. One Advent Hymn that he trilled for us I never heard any one else sing, and I have wished for years that I could recall the words; they were beautiful. "The Eden of Love" and "The White Pilgrim" were pieces that we loved to hear from his lips.

His married life was in both cases signally happy. He had an exalted opinion of woman, and treated his companions with the utmost tenderness and respect. I deeply revered and loved my father and one of the sweetest thoughts connected with the coming age is, that I shall meet him there.

In the spring of 1880, a malignant cancerous growth made its appearance on the good right foot that had helped to take him over so many miles in preaching the glad tidings of a coming Savior, and in the fall of the same year he left the editorial chair and was soon prostrated by a nervous affection that brought him for many months very near to the grave. But our prayer was heard, and he was restored to us again for a brief season; to visit the little churches, to write precious things in autobiography, in verse, in essay and in exhortation, and to sketch somewhat at length the story of Israel and Jerusalem.

These late effusions from his pen were scarcely finished when his only remaining son sank into death, July 16, 1891. From that time on he grew rapidly worse, though still pursuing his studies and writing for a time. Then pain dimmed his vision and on March 23, 1892 he died—his public ministry having covered a period of fifty years.

Report.

A REPORT FROM THE CHICAGO BEREANS, TO THOSE WHO HELPED IN THE CHRISTMAS WORK.

We wish to thank you in the name of the Master, and for the poor, who are his brethren, for the generous response to our letter.

The Bereans and friends sent in twenty-eight dollars and the Chicago Bereans and Church collected about thirty dollars. With this we sent dinners to eight families, bought warm stockings and mittens for two families and gave the rest in money. For the dinner we sent a sack of flour, butter, sugar, turnips, celery, potatoes, oranges, apples, fancy cakes as peanut bars and chocolate drops, canned goods as corn, tomatoes and salmon, crackers, soda, graham and animal, peanuts, dried beans and peas and onions. We sent no meat because it is so expensive, preferring to remember more families without meat than a fewer number with it.

The need was so great that we gave more money this year than we usually do and we would like to give you just a few cases we remembered with money.

One was a woman of about seventy years of age, a widow and three insane daughters and absolutely nothing in the world but what is given to her. Another a widow with five children, she is trying to pay for in a half-orphan home. The factory where she and her oldest daughter worked burned down three months ago and neither had had any work since, and to make matters worse the little money they had saved was stolen from them when they moved. Again we sent to an elderly couple whose income is really microscopic and the struggle to make ends meet is very great.

On the Wednesday before Christmas after the dinners had been ordered and the money sent, we received $2 50 more and a telegram telling us that $5.00 was on the way from a dear sister in California. So one of our number went to a brave widow, supporting four of her own by washing, to ask her if she knew of any one to whom a Christmas gift would be welcome. We had remembered her with a dinner. Everyone of you would have felt repaid for any sacrifice you have made if you could have seen her dear face as it lighted up and her eyes filled with tears of joy, "Oh," she cried, clasping her work-worn hands, "how I would like to help if you will let me. There is poor, old Maria living alone in the attic, could I give her a dollar; and that woman back of us. She has such a hard time to get along with her seven children. To be sure she is kind of shiftless but who would'nt be with seven to keep and poor health"—and she named many more. "Oh tell the good people God opened their hearts and the tears and prayers of those they have helped will go to God for them."

So the thought came that another Christmas we will be able to reach many needy by asking these brave, Christian widows to help in the giving. No name is sent with any of these offerings but they are given as a Christmas present from our God and Father as we are all his children.

To show that the groceries are appreciated we will give one instance. One of our number teaches in a district where many of the dinners are sent. On Wednesday noon a little girl rushed up to her, with her eyes wild with excitement and cried, "Oh dear teacher, what do you think, some one sent us such a lot of groceries! My mamma don't know it yet because she has'nt come from work yet, but how she will cry for joy when she comes home!" The mother washes tubs in a butterine factory. She is a widow.

Before closing we wish to speak of another work we can do for Christmas time that many of the sisters can help with during their spare minutes. We dress dolls for some mission. For two years now we have given them to the Jewish mission. The good people who have charge of the mission told us that last year, out of the dozen and a half dolls that we sent, eight of them were given to little girls who had never in their lives owned a doll; and that no one could have witnessed the joy and delight of those poor, forlorn, neglected bits of humanity with dry eyes. Think of this dear sisters during the long winter evenings. Dolls do not spoil with keeping.

This is a long report; but we felt that it would be of interest to all. "Freely ye have received, freely give."

LEILA E. WHITEHEAD.

OUR offer of the next two months for 10 cents is meeting with response in some directions. Will all make a little effort and put our paper in several thousand new homes.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JANUARY 13, 1909. NUMBER 2.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

The Gospel.

Paul says, "The Gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." Rom. i. 16.

What are we to understand by the word "Gospel?"

Whatever this Gospel is, it is something to be believed in order to obtain salvation. The word "Gospel" means "Glad Tidings," "Good News" something to cause joy and gladness, something to hope for, because in the end, if believed it brings salvation to the believer. Let us see if we can find out what this Gospel is.

In Mark i. 14, it says, "Jesus came into Galilee preaching the Gospel of the kingdom." and in Acts xxviii. 31, it says, "Paul preached the kingdom of God and taught those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ."

Well, what are some of the things of this kingdom, that makes the believer glad and gives him hope? Is it not in the fact that God raised up our Lord Jesus from the dead and gave him glory and dominion, and that he is to reign on the throne of David, and of his kingdom there shall be no end. Luke i, 33, and as described in Isaiah xi., when righteousness shall be alike to all, and the animals shall be at peace with one another, and the knowledge of the Lord fills the earth as the waters cover the sea.

If there was no promise to us of a resurrection from the dead, would the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ be any Gospel to us?

Certainly not. The fact that God raised up Christ from the dead and the things concerning his kingdom, only become Gospel to us in that he has promised to raise us up from the dead. 1 Cor. vi. 14.

Is that all that is promised to us? Let us see. Paul says in 2 Tim. ii. 12. "If we suffer with him we shall also reign with him," and in Rev iii. 21 "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me on my throne."

Are the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus any glad tidings to unbelievers?

No, certainly not; but it is to those that believe in the mighty power of God that he is able to perform that which he has promised and that his Word is sure, and that if we continue in the faith, grounded and settled in the hope of the Gospel that there will be ministered an entrance to us abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Dearly beloved, let us examine ourselves, whether we be in the faith, let us prove ourselves by the Word of Truth, going on to perfection, that when the Lord comes we may be able to stand before him, and not be ashamed before him at his coming.

WILLIAM HANDSETT.

Editor Restitution:

As my time is about expired, you will please find enclosed money to continue THE RESTITUTION.

Wife and I are here isolated from any of the brethren, doing what we can; but our race is about over. We are both over 66 years old; but we are in hope of being young again sometime, thank God. It is a great consolation to think that sometime we will be able to stand and point the hand of defiance to the hole in the ground from whence we come, and say, O death, where is thy sting? O grave where is thy victory? We know that the sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law; but thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. Then, dear brother, we will not get old any more. O may we always be unmovable, rejoicing in the blessed hope of a resurrection and the establishment of that righteous rule when the glory of the Lord will cover the earth as the waters cover the great deep, is my prayer. Pray for us that we may prove faithful.

With best wishes to you and all the faithful, I subscribe, Yours, in the Blessed Hope.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:

A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JAN'Y 13, 1909.

A LETTER from Sister Woodward says that Brother Woodward is not improving in health very fast.

BROTHER Samuel Pressley of Dutton, Michigan, has been visiting in Plymouth the past week, and attending Brother Allard's meeting.

THE Sunday School Lesson Notes prepared by Brother P. Neill for Jan. 3, should have been here for insertion in issue of Dec 23, but failed to reach us in time. Some are preserving all of these notes and so we give this to readers in this issue.

BROTHER O. J. Allard is holding a series of meetings at Plymouth, having commenced on January 8, and will continue through the present week. The audiences are fair, and attention is very good. Brother Allard makes his points clear and distinct, and no one can misunderstand him. The seed is being sown. What the result will be is yet to be seen.

FROM reports made at the meeting of the Knights of Zion held at Chicago last week, it was shown that the "movement to make Palestine the legally secured and recognized home of the Jews, has advanced materially within the past few years." There are now 100,000 Jews in Palestine, it is estimated, and 10,000 of these have emigrated from Russia and Roumania during the last two years. Many more are being sent just as fast as assurances are made that they can earn a livelihood in the domain now ruled by Mohammedans. It was shown that this work has been greatly aided by funds supplied by adherents of the faith in America. An arts and crafts school has been started in Joppa, to develop students who can take rank with those of other places, and it has been a help in fitting emigrants to become self-supporting. Large donations are being made for the erection of a Jewish university in Palestine. This is given as a straw showing the drift of sentiment that exists in certain Jewish circles.

Notes by the Way.

Having concluded the services at Morse Mill, Missouri, I took the Iron Mountain Railroad for St. Louis, arriving there at about 1 o'clock P. M. At 1:50 P. M. I boarded the train on the Illinois Central Road, bound for Hammond, Louisiana. I had hardly gotten seated when some one touched me on the shoulder, and on looking up, I was delighted to see Brother Jeffrey, of Murfreesboro, Illinois. He rode with me for about the distance of a hundred miles. I can assure you we had a pleasant visit together. The thought uppermost in the mind of both of us, was the Blessed Hope.

"The Lord is coming, let this be
The herald note of jubilee;
And when we meet and when we part,
The salutation from the heart."

I arrived at Hammond, at about 10:30 A. M. Arriving there the first one of the Pine Woods Bible Class that I met, was Albert. He is running a large dairy business; he had just delivered his morning milk at the depot. I rode back with him, as far as the home of Arloa and Ella, and took dinner with them. What a sweet pleasure it was to see their familiar faces once more. The Blessed Hope is uppermost in their hearts.

It was refreshing to see their nice vegetable garden, with vegetables ready for use. Ella went out and pulled some nice, crisp radishes for dinner. Across the street from their home, I saw one of the finest market vegetable gardens, that I ever did see.

After dinner I went over to George's house, but he was not at home, but I had a pleasant visit with his wife and children; but before I left, he came in. He is engaged in putting down artesian wells. These wells all overflow, and it is the purest, soft mineral water that I ever tasted. It is surely a fine remedy for kidney diseases.

The next day being Thanksgiving Day Albert invited me to a family gathering at his home. The table was loaded down with good things to eat, such as turkey, chicken, venison, pumpkin pie, etc. The table was also decorated with a bunch of roses cut from their garden.

The next day being Friday, George took me to see a large poultry farm; it is said to be one of the largest in the state, devoted to raising blooded stock. One large brick building was filled with incubators, devoted to hatching various kinds of poultry. In another building was thousands of doves of different kinds, each kind being separated. These things are of interest to me.

After dinner, George suggested that we go and visit Lud and Carrie. That suggestion pleased me. So then, myself, George and family and Ella, took a drive through the Pine Woods to their dairy farm. This is the same Pine Woods where the Bible Class was organized, and is called "Happy Woods." Happy Woods has certainly seen some happy meetings of the Pine Woods Bible Class.

After a pleasant drive through these beautiful woods (which brought to me many pleasant memories) we arrived at the Dairy Farm. Lud and Carrie heartily greeted us, together with their son Alfred who is a student in the University at Baton Rouge, the Capital of Louisiana.

While we were there the milking time came on, so we all went over to the large Dairy Barn, to see their method of milking, and handling so many cows.

On Saturday I walked about the city of Hammond to view the improvments, and call on many citizens with whom I had personal acquaintance, in the years now past. Among these I called on Mr. and Mrs. Reed, who were born and raised in Geneva, Illinois, where I was also raised, and knew each other as children. It was interesting to recall and talk about early childhood. On Sunday morning the entire Pine Woods Bible Class met at the Happy Woods School House to attend a Sunday School organized by this class. There were fifty-one present, who gathered in from different parts of this great pine forest. Arloa is the Superintendent, and Carrie teaches the adult Bible Class Ella, Albert's wife, beside others teach classes.

After the Sunday School, I preached to the congregation, and continued these series over the following Sunday.

This School House is a building, I should judge, about 40 by 60. About eighteen years ago, myself, wife, Lud, Carrie, and others, interested ourselves in the matter of the education of the children of the neighborhood. Lud and myself were among the first School Directors, who applied to the State for a Charter, and I aided to devise ways and means to obtain money with which to build the house. One neighbor gave an acre of ground for the house; and then the men of the neighborhood gathered with their axes, and other tools to cut down the pine trees, and root out the stumps, etc, preparatory to building the house; and this is the house now used by the Pine Woods Bible Class Sunday School.

George's wife planned for a drive for me about the City, that I might see the extent of the improvements of Hammond. So together with her children, and also Arloa, and Ella, we took the proposed ride, as far south as the Sanitarium. During this drive we called upon Lucy, and had a short visit with herself and family.

During my visit at Hammond, one of the farmers named Ganey, lost a child by death. He sent for me to preach the funeral sermon. The services were held in a small Baptist Church, they call Beulah Church, five miles away in the thick, dense, pine forest. The burial took place in a graveyard, by the side of the church.

The meetings held in the Happy Woods School House, were quite satisfactory. It is thought that much good has been accomplished. We have left some interested ones behind. Much good that has been done in other parts of the country, has its root in this Pine Woods Bible Class, by the lessons which have come time to time appeared in THE RESTITUTION, and collectively in the "Pine Woods Bible Class Book," and also in the "Student's Text Book." Now, if these lessons were scattered abroad more extensively, the work will still go on. Push on the car of truth.

The time came for us to part company for awhile. After the parting words, George accompanied me to the depot. I then boarded the train for Crowley, Louisiana, the home of Brother and Sister Haupt.

This is a new road, cut through dense timber, for about forty miles, having its terminus at Baton Rouge, the Capitol of Louisiana. At Baton Rouge, I was to make connection with the Texas Pacific on the other side of the Mississippi River at Port Allen. We arrived about an half hour late to catch the Ferry boat, crossing the river. I then rented a room, and remained at Baton Rouge until eleven o'clock the next day. While there I visited points of interest in the city, such as the University Buildings, the Capital Building, etc. The next day I crossed the river to Port Allen and then took a bus for the depot. Next to the depot was a saloon, whose sign read as follows: "Red Eye Saloon." It made me think of the Scripture: "Who hath redness of eyes," etc.

At 6:20 P. M. I arrived at Crowley. Brother Haupt met me at the depot. On arriving at his home, I was heartily welcomed by Sister Haupt and family. I reserve this place for the next "Notes by the Way." I must mention one thing, however. About an half mile from Brother Haupt's home, is a fine lemon and orange orchard. He invited me to go with him, and see this orchard. I went, and it certainly was a delightful sight. The trees were loaded down with ripe fruit. We were invited to enter the orchard and help ourselves to all the oranges we wanted. The quality of the oranges were fine, simply delicious.

I expect to preach the Gospel of the Kingdom through Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri and Illinois. I must close for the present.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.
W. H. WILSON.

Dear Restitution:

This is New Year's morning, bright and nice, and we are thankful to our Heavenly Father for his blessing to us through another year. I am still strong in the faith of the soon coming of our King, our Life Giver, the Bright and Morning Star. I am watching and waiting for his return, for at his coming and through him and his saints all things will be restored. Mount Zion and Jerusalem will be redeemed, and the throne of Israel restored to them, and he will restore to them the years of the caterpiller, the locust and canker worm.

Paul said blindness in part has happened to Israel until the fullness of the Gentiles be come in. And again Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be come in. Again we are told I will send you Jesus Christ, whom was preached unto you before, whom the heavens must receive until the restitution of all things spoken of by all the holy prophets since the world began.

This restoration will take place at the end of the Gentile times, then the iron heel of the Gentiles will be removed off Jerusalem, and it will become the City of the Great King.

May that time soon come, is my prayer. Wishing the Editor and all readers of THE RESTITUTION a Happy New Year, I am

Yours as ever in Christ,
JESSE HARROLD.

Dear Restitution:

As my subscription is up I enclose you an order for the dear old paper. I look for its weekly visits as I would a dear friend. It surely helps me it is so full of just what I need, and it answers many questions that rises in my mind in reading the Holy Scriptures. In fact it always has reading just to suit my case.

We have had some preaching this year, and carried on a Sunday School and trust we will have some preaching brethren come among us this coming year. Probably Brother John Boyer will visit us and preach. He will find a hearty welcome here.

Surely we are living in the last days when men will not endure sound doctrine, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of truth. Often one hears the remark, "Have a good time." This should not be. We ought to be about the Father's business, as our Savior was about his Father's business.

May all be diligent during the new year is my prayer. "Be thou exalted O God above the heavens; let thy glory be above all the earth."

Your Sister in Christ.
M. F. COOK.

Editor Restitution:

I think well of THE RESTITUTION teaching the truth of God's Words just as they are in the Bible, and I think or rather know it is worth more to have part with our blessed Lord Jesus when he cometh in peace than to gain the whole world and lose our souls, believing on our blessed Lord Jesus, that he is our resurrection and life, and we must believe in two resurrections, the dead in Christ first, a thousand years before the second resurrection.

Obituary.

Unbidden tears will start as we chronicle the death of our dearly loved Sister in Christ Caroline Decker. Arriving from Adrian on Monday eve. January 4, the sad news awaited us. It had been her wish for years that Brother Woodward should preach her funeral sermon. He tried to think he could go, but when the time arrived found he was too weak, so I started Tuesday morning alone on the sad duty.

Caroline Aldrich was born Dec 21, 1836, in Lower Canada. Was married to Peter Decker May 21, 1852. In the fall of 1860 they moved to Macosta County, Michigan, erected a log house and dedicating it to the Lord, they began their pioneer life in Michigan. This was the place of worship for the neighborhood for years. In time Bro. Decker built a fine frame house, and the family had become nicely settled in their new home, when he developed cancer of the stomach, from which he died November 14, 1883 This was almost a death blow to the loving wife, and often we have heard her say but for her hope in God she would have died. But her earnest desire of seeing her children accept that same blessed hope, gave her strength to live and work for them.

Nine children were born to them. Two now lying beside the parents. There are twenty-six grand children, five great grand children, five sisters, one brother with many other relatives, the entire church and neighborhood to mourn for Aunt Caroline, as she was familiarly called.

Always of a devotional frame of mind, when she heard the "glad tidings" she accepted it, and in 1862 Brother John Bower baptized her with her husband and others, and "faithful unto death" can be written of them. Her death came very suddenly, although she had been failing for months, no one was prepared for it. She arose Monday morning, saying she did not feel well, but going about her usual duties. She started to gather a little snow and returning sank by the porch. A neighbor saw her fall, ran and picked her up. She never spoke, falling asleep at the noon hour. We believe if she could have spoken she would have exhorted the Church in the apostle's words, "Keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life."

To her dear children in Christ, she would have said "To him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy." To those for whom her burdened heart had often petitioned the Heavenly Father, her exhortation must have been "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found; call upon him while he is near."

From Revelations xiv. 13 we gave a brief eulogy of her life and faith, with an earnest prayer for the absent and recently widowed daughter. Committing all the dear family to the care of the tender Shepherd, we reverently followed the dear form bourne by the loving hands of her six grandsons to the silent home, there to rest until called forth to immortality.

M. A. WOODWARD.

The Wandering Evangelist at Work.

I reached Sacramento, California, from Central Point, Oregon, on Dec. 18. It was a cold night, and a fireless car, but we reached the city at 5:30 A. M.

On December 20 I spoke in the house of J. L. Bancroft at 2:30 P. M. This is the home of our zealous Sister, Edith Bancroft. I formed their acquaintance on my visit during the earthquake year. She with Brother and Sister Cook and a few others have remained firm to the Life and Kingdom convictions that they learned through Elder Richard Corbaley during the earnest evangelizing that he gave to California years ago. I hope I can be the means of causing some to "give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip." Heb. ii. 1. While I feel thus concerned about the work that has been once so well done in California, my mind turns with intense concern to Washington and Oregon. Where is the strong young man that "will stir up your pure minds by way of remembrance?" All the faithful of the Northwest must take hold of the work under the perils you have to cope with.

On Christmas morning Sister Cook gave their family Christmas cheer, including a nice silk handkerchief with "S" worked in one corner, and a five piece, which made me feel that the "wandering evangelist" will not be neglected. We had a merry turkey dinner. We made two evening calls with relatives of Brother and Sister Cook, with the Bancroft and Stone families, and a host of relatives who came to the city for a family reunion.

As the young were gathered with the old, I engaged in the uncertain problem of being young again. The evening was spent in pure and innocent amusement, until 9 o'clock I was asked to give a Bible talk. I was invited to speak at Brother Cook's the next night, and at Brother Stone's on Sunday, so I postponed the talk till those occasions. So much of the extremely serious has been mingled in the events of my religious work of the northwest, that whether it was right or not I felt that the change was too violent a shock from the innocent amusement of the Christmas time, to the serious things we seem destined to struggle with during this mortal life. So we met with some friends at the Cook residence Saturday evening and at Stone's Sunday. The friends and brethren at these meetings were related under the names of Cook, Stone, Bancroft and Condon—and Sister Brainard and husband and daughter. Some of them had become so well established in the gospel proclaimed by Elder Corbaley, that they will not give up the light with the rendering up of life itself. Some persons have been persuaded that it is a religion of good works alone that saves us, and that we can safely and with more popularity go with the organizations that practice good works without regard to the faith, if we are member of a—or any church.

I have decided to go to Arizona, so after this to me much valued visit in the capital of California, I expect to start toward the capital of Arizona, by way of Los Angeles. I still hope that I may meet with the brethren in Oklahoma as well as of Oregon and Washington at some future day, if such ambition please Providence.

W. L. SKEELS.

The Home Department Visitor.

Bright, beautiful and cheery is our New Visitor. Ably edited, with carefully arranged lessons which ought to attract every one. This Visitor if properly encouraged will be of untold value especially among Bible students who are isolated from others of like precious faith. Any man or woman or an one of the young people in a Bible reading family may take this new publication to the neighbors regardless of whatever faith the neighbor may entertain and invite a little neighborhood gathering to meet once a week at each others homes, and hold converse concerning the teaching of Biblical truth. It is unsectarian and offers only the pages of the Book and should be welcomed by all people. Once brought together in this way you have a Bible School in the best sense of the word. One which will later lead to the distinctive teaching of the great plan of salvation. "He did visit the Gentiles to take out of them a people for his name."

Sister Boice made a house to house canvass in the town where she lives, selling copies of her Visitor to get the money to pay expenses of sending copies to our people. Here is a noble work for our young Bereans to do—work which will help them as well as those in whose hands they place the paper, for nothing helps one so much to grow in grace and in the knowledge of the truth, as to take hold of the work and do something for the King. No one either young or old can keep the vital spark of true Christianity alive in their hearts without doing something for it. "Faith without works is dead being alone."

Let us work while the day lasts for the night cometh in which no man can work. Our record whether good or bad, or lukewarm like the Church of Laodicea (Rev. iii. 14-17) will soon be finished, and in the day when the books are opened we shall wish we had done more for him who standeth at the door and knocketh.

Send in all the orders possible for the Visitor now, as the printer is holding the type ready to print more. Send orders to Harriett E. Boice, 1009 S Wright st. Champaign, Illinois. "Behold I come quickly, and my reward is with me to give to every man according as his work shall be."

ELIZABETH A. REED.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

SALEM, Ohio, January 1, 1909.

The Church of God in Salem, Ohio, sends greeting to all that have obtained like precious faith, grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord. Beloved, let us love one another; for love is of God.

P. NEILL.

Notice.

Any Berean desiring Berean pins, address our treasurer, Wm. Hardesty Box 281, Oregon Ill. Also send all dues to Bro. Hardesty.

Any desiring Berean booklets, send to preident Anna Drew, 629 N. Galena Ave, Dixon, Ill.

Those desiring tracts, make it known to the Tract Committe, Anna L. Adams, 603 Peoria Ave., Dixon, Ill., and the same shall be sent free of charge, but any free will offering will be gladly accepted by that committee.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

The Elements of the Kingdom of God, is the title of an eighteen page tract by Brother T J Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He sets forth that a kingdom cannot exist without a King, his cabinet officers, territory, a capital city, subjects, laws. Brother Daniel will send this little tract to you at 10 cents each, or $1 00 a dozen. Send direct to him for them.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

Ebenezer. 1. Sam 7, 12

This copy for this department of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 3502 Woodland Ave. Cleveland, Ohio. Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

Let Us Pray.

Oh God, our heavenly Father; we approach Thee with grateful hearts this morning. Our lives have been precious in Thy sight, while dire disaster has overtaken many, very many of our fellow creatures, and our hearts go out in sympathy for the bereaved and destitute, and afflicted ones; and we sigh for the time to come when Thou shalt send Jesus again, to complete his great redemptive work and restore discovered nature. Oh, Father, the hope of that good time coming enables us to live above the troubles and cares incident to this time of trials and perplexities. And as we see Thy purposes ripening fast, unfolding every hour, we rejoice with joy unspeakable.

And now here, on this day of holy privilege, we crave Thy presence and Thy blessing. Oh that we may be able to shut out the world and worship Thee without distraction,—worship in spirit and in truth. May each of Thy children be strengthened and encouraged to prosecute the fight of faith and at last lay hold on eternal life. We pray for all who are lawfully detained from this assembly—the aged and infirm, the sick and afflicted and all who are borne down with the trials of life. Bless the church scattered abroad. Bless Israel according to the flesh and soon bring them home. Bless all proclaimers of Thy truth, and give them souls for their hire. Forgive all our trespasses and love us freely because of Jesus' name. Amen.

An Arab Saying.

Remember, three things come not back;
The arrow sent upon its track—
It will not swerve; it will not stay
Its speed; it flies to wound or slay.

The spoken word no soon forgot
By thee; but it has perished not;
In other hearts 'tis living still,
And doing work for good or ill.

And the lost opportunity,
That cometh back no more to thee,
In vain thou weepest, in vain dost yearn,
Those three will never more return.

—C. E. Brooks.

If gray hairs were an unfailing sign of wisdom, fewer men would have them.

Many philanthropists (so called) never do a good deed unless they manage to get caught at it.

"Ape no greatness. Be willing to pass for what you are. A good farthing is better than a bad sovereign."

Do not honor the devil by writing his name with a big D. If you are puzzled as to who he is, just drop the letter d and write—evil. Now you have him.

Sister Hazel McLeland, of Richmond, Indiana, writes:—"THE RESTITUTION is of great value to me. I am sorry to know any one objects to your publishing Brother Joblin's prayers. They strengthen me, and make me feel that I want to live better every day. I hope no one will try to discourage you in your good work."

The Bible is a Book of seeds; from these a rich harvest of knowledge is to be realized. Human compositions, at best, are as gold in the leaf, and thus a small quantity is spread over a great surface. In the Bible we have it in ingots and precious bars, one of which will make a man rich for both worlds.—Jabez Burns, D. D.

Someone says that quitting a habit is like trying to destroy the word habit by butting out a letter at a time. Take away h and you still have "abit" of it. Omit a and you have a "bit" left. Drop b and you have "it" still. Erase i and you are not free from "habit" now. A slow and hard way this to quit a habit.

An Orthodox Claim Exposed.

Brother Huggins:

I see by THE RESTITUTION that you require me to make it plain how people use 1 Pet iii 21 to prove pardon before baptism. I will give their claim verbatim as near as I can: "As Noah was righteous before he entered the ark, so must sinners become righteous before baptism". In this way they apply the figure. Please let us have your exposition through the paper.

Yours in hope,
W. H. STEWART.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

The Revised Version is plainer and is to be preferred to the Authorized Version. It reads: "Eight souls were saved by water. Which, the antitype (of that), doeth now save us also, even baptism; not putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the enquiry of a good conscience after God, by the resurrection of Jesus Christ". Verses 20, 21, 22. Eight souls had been saved by water, "which" historical fact the apostle takes hold of to modernize in antitypical signification. Though the waters of the deluge were destructive to the ungodly of Noah's time, Noah himself and family were saved "by" them. The same element differently effected the righteous and the wicked: the righteous were saved on the water; the wicked perished in it. The water bore up the ark above all the dangerous judgments of God on the earth; it floated the ark and carried it safely to the mount of sweet deliverance. But because the inspired writers of the New Testament often make Old Testament incidents "figures", as Adam Rom v 14, the law and its services (Heb ix 24), we must not indiscriminately mix history and prophecy, type and antitype, and make one "the very image" of the other. Heb x 1. Although Paul says that Adam was a "figure" of Christ (Rom v 14), no one with a smattering knowledge of Christ would reason like the orthodox claim cited by Brother Stewart. No man would say: "Adam was a figure of Christ; Adam sinned; therefore Christ, his antitype, was a sinner". A man who would thus reason would be laughed at for his simplicity. When a man says: "Noah was a righteous man before he entered the ark, so must sinners become righteous before baptism", he makes a "figure" where Peter makes none; and he so strains the language of type and antitype by hypercritical interpretation that he makes all details in type duplicate themselves in antitype. Such a method of construing God's Word is folly distilled into nonsense. There are similarities and dissimilarities in all types and antitypes; and it is the similarities, coincidents, and parallels, between two events, always pointed out by inspired comment directly and inferentially, that make the "figure" of New Testament illustration. In 1 Pet iii 21, the apostle Peter is the word painter; inspiration in him is the Great Artist; and it is our business to look at the "figure" or photograph made by the Holy Spirit, and accept it. Peter does not say, "Noah was righteous before he entered the ark; sinners must, therefore, become righteous before they are baptized". The apostle paints no such a "figure" as this. On the contrary, he virtually says: Eight souls were saved by water; the antitype of that saves us now, even baptism. He exhibits baptism as a saving ordinance; he makes it as essential antitypically to our salvation, as the ark was essential typically to the salvation of Noah and his family.

We see this thought developed in a clearer light as the apostle elaborates his argument. He goes on to say that baptism is "the answer of a good conscience toward God"; better rendered in the Revised Version, "The enquiry of a good conscience after God". The Greek word eperotema is only found once in the New Testament, and that in this text. Our translators have clouded the meaning of the passage by translating it "answer". Eperotema means "an asking about". See Young's Concordance. The "good conscience" here spoken of cannot exist prior to or even at baptism; for the same writer elsewhere says that a good conscience is received at, and is effected by, baptism. Acts ii 38. Eperotema is never used in the sense of cleansing the conscience; it does not signify promise or pledge, as Grotius tries to make out: it means simply "an asking about", enquiry. Baptism, then, is the enquiry of a good conscience before God; a desire and longing for it. Thus Lutz beautifully interprets: "Baptism is the request for a good conscience, for admittance to the state of reconciliation * * * a petition for the pardon of sin". Without question the apostle Peter here alludes to the baptismal interrogatories which were used in the Apostolic and Primitive church. For them please read Rom x 10; Acts viii 37; Heb vi 1, 2; Justin Martyr Apol. 1, c 61; Tertullian de Spect. c 4; Euseb. 7, 9. And now to conclude our remarks by recapitulation: Peter says that salvation had been historically exemplified "by (through, on) water"; that the "figure" deducible from the stated premise is that baptism "now saves us" (provided we make the "enquiry of a good conscience after God" before immersion), "by the resurrection of Jesus Christ". It is admitted that Christ's resurrection was essential to the justification of sinners. Rom iv 25. So when Peter states, as he does in this text in the most explicit manner, that we are saved by baptism and "by the resurrection of Jesus Christ", he takes the peremptory stand that baptism for a sinner plays as important and essential a part in his salvation as the resurrection of Christ. Dear reader, do not misconstrue what God has magnified.

Begotten of God.

I would be glad to get some light on 1 John iii. 9, "Whatsoever is born of God doth not commit sin, for his seed remaineth in him, and he cannot sin, because he is born of God."—Sister A. J. Martin.

ANSWER.

The Greek word GENNAO translated born in 1 John iii. 9, is defined "to beget, to bring forth." (See Robt. Young's Concordance.) Primarily it means "to beget;" but since begettal is generally followed by a birth, it has the secondary sense of "bringing forth" or giving birth to what has been begotten. It is helpful to the mind to remember that GENNAO has two, and only two meanings: it always means either to beget or bring forth.

To beget is its primary and therefore prevailing sense. Occasionally it means to bring forth, but it never has this latter sense unless a begettal has preceded it. It is always easy to determine in what sense the word is used by its immediate context. That the expression "born of God" means begotten of God is obvious from the fact the father begets and the mother brings forth, or gives birth. We are begotten by our father but "born of" our mother. "Born of God" is absurd on the first reflection. We may be begotten of God, but born of him—never.

Seed is essential to induce conception. Hence John asserts that not only does God beget his children by seed, but such as have life enough to manifest themselves as his children by doing righteousness, of such converts he affirms, "His seed remaineth in him," v. 9. Now God's "seed" is the Word of God. 1 Pet. i. 23; Mark iv. 14; 1 Cor. iv. 16; Jas. i. 18. By this Word we are "begotten to a lively hope" 1 Pet. i. 3. Christ is formed in us, Gal. iv. 19. A "new creature," or "inward man," has been begotten by the "incorruptible word" Gal. vi. 15; and if he is "renewed day by day" 2 Cor. iv. 16, he will be brought forth in the "image," or "likeness" of Christ at the resurrection Psa. xvii. 15. Then we will be "born of the spirit" John iii, and will have a "glorious body" like our Redeemer. But this all depends on his "seed" remaining in us. Pait. iii. 21, 22.

An Explanation.

We often quote the words of uninspired writers and sometimes the statements of even orthodox theologians, for the sake of some great truth they have forcibly expressed in a scholarly and impressive manner. We abhor the sin of plagiarism. Let us honor those who are worthy of honor. A few hypercritical brethren object to us quoting the words of the worldly wise. They say so many things that are not true, some of our good people object to things they say that are so. A mistake. Our motto is:

"Let truth be seized wherever found,
On Christian or on heathen ground."

We have Bible precedent for quoting words of uninspired men when they uttered words of righteousness and truth. Our brother Paul says that "things which ye have both learned, and received, and heard, and seen in me" we are to "do." Phil iv 9. Now how did Paul "do" in this matter? He quoted the words of a heathen poet in his sermon on Mars' Hill Acts xvii. 28. And in Titus i. 12, the apostle cites words of truth against the Cretians, although they were uttered by a "prophet of their own" craft. To some who "make a man an offender for a word" (Isa xxix 21), who have a predilection for criticism, and who had rather attend a debating club than a prayer meeting; to them we humbly offer this explanation. We are only doing what we have "learned, and received, and heard, and seen" (Phil iv 9) in Paul. Are we at fault for taking him "for a pattern?" 1 Tim i 16.

The Imprisoned Spirits.

Brother Huggins:

Though not personally acquainted with you, I am a deeply interested reader of both your and other's writings in THE RESTITUTION. I have followed your suggestion to read the recent articles on 1 Peter iii 18 21, and desire to write a few words to state the result of my readings of the same. I have for many years culled from our paper, articles which seemed to me of great value and saved them. I herewith send to you some quotations from an article written by our Bro W. H. Wilson, and printed in THE RESTITUTION of Feb 5, 1896, which I still have in my keeping, and which I feel very thankful I have saved, as to me, this difficult passage grew luminous as I read his article. Bro. Wilson's article is entitled "Spirits in Prison." He says in part: "I will give the text as translated from the original Greek, by Doctors George Campbell, James Macknight, and Philip Doddridge, that we may get nearer the fountain head, and the real teaching of the Spirit of God, as revealed through the holy men of old. 'For even Christ once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God; being put to death indeed in the flesh, but made alive by the Spirit. By which also he made proclamation to the spirits in prison, who formerly were disobedient, when the patience of God once waited in the days of Noah, while an ark was preparing in which few, that is, eight souls were effectually saved through water." Who was it that preached to the spirits in prison? We are told that it was Christ, but the text don't say so. The nearest antecedent in the text is 'The Spirit'—'Christ' was the subject acted upon, and 'made alive by the Spirit' and 'by which' 'Spirit' also (he) God preached to the spirits in prison" "Peter says, 'Holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit. Noah was the man whom God by means of the Holy Spirit, 'preached to the spirits in prison' and not Christ.

"When did the preaching take place? "When the patience of God once waited in the days of Noah, while an ark was preparing." Christ was not born at this time, and consequently could not do any preaching to them, but God made (Jesus) alive by the Spirit. By which (Spirit) also he made proclamation to the spirits in prison, who were formerly disobedient, when the patience of God once waited in the days of Noah," through whom, God by his Spirit preached to them, "The facts are that God did preach to the people by his Spirit through Noah, at the time the ark was building, and that is all there is in it, except the impressive lesson to us, that in the day when the Son of God shall be revealed, the condition of things will be similar, and that the people will pay about as little attention to God's true message of life, as they did then. Nevertheless it is our duty to faithfully proclaim the message, and not be discouraged even if we do not have any better success than Noah did."

As I said before, this exposition seems to me a clear and satisfactory one, and I desire to express a wish, that if agreeable to your judgment, it might appear again in the columns of our paper, as early as may be convenient to you. Apropos of the subject I would like to ask, Could the pronoun "who" relate to any other spirits except those who were disobedient in the days of Noah? Would any other grammatical construction of the whole sentence be correct? Wishing for every brother and sister that 1900 may prove their best year in faith, hope and love, I subscribe myself,

Your Sister in the hope of the gospel.
MRS. M. A. LILLYBRIDGE.

Table Talk.

Beloved of the Lord:

We have been separated from the world for the glorious gospel of the blessed God. We occupy a position of great favor. It is a source of comfort for us to meet together and remember him who has made it possible for us to attain to such blessedness. It is a great work which we have undertaken, and we need the assistance of him who has promised to meet with us. We may be assured that there will be no failure on his part. If we come here to meet and remember him, we will receive his blessing and go from this place feeling that it has been good for us to be here.

He has said "Do this in remembrance of me." Do we comprehend the importance of those words? We are not only to think of him as having obtained the great salvation, but of how he obtained it. This we may learn if we will but read and consider the things written concerning him.

In Psalm lxix. it is testified of him that the zeal of his Father's house hath eaten him up. We understand by that, that he was in earnest about the Father's work; it consumed his time and energy. We may take a lesson from him to our profit in that respect, for he requires the same devotion of us that he bestowed on the Father. He has told us very distinctly that unless we are in earnest about him and his work, we cannot please him. "Because thou art neither cold or hot," to the Laodiceans he said, "I will spue thee out of my mouth." It is necessary then that we be in earnest about the work of Christ. He is only to be the author of salvation to them that obey him. The apostle has told us to be diligent to make our calling and election sure. Such advice would be useless if we were to work in dark without instruction, but we are not. We have the lives of many noble men and women written in the Bible that we may study them with a view to imitating them. You will find that they were in earnest. Strive to be in their company. We cannot be much in the company of those we love, without becoming in some measure like them.

How much we would be helped in the right direction if we had before our minds the Great Pattern given us. What a change it would make in our lives if we were to follow his example. "When he was reviled, he revived not again. When he suffered he threatened not, but committed himself to him who judgeth righteously." A knowledge of the truth with a determination not to compromise it for the sake of any doctrine of man, which may appear pleasant, will bring to us many trials, which will be very trying to the flesh, but if we remember and consider the words of him who said,—"Blessed are ye when men shall revile you and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely for my sake. Rejoice and be exceeding glad, for great is your reward in heaven, for so persecuted they the prophets which went before you." In this way are we helped to bear the reproach in meekness.

It is written that "Christ suffered for us, leaving us an example." The way to future glory in the kingdom of God is through suffering. If we strive to avoid it we shall not be made partakers of Christ's glory. "If we suffer with him (now) we shall also reign with him" (in the future). "For unto us it is given in the behalf of Christ, not only to believe on him, but also suffer for his sake."

Suffering is God's way of perfecting character. It makes manifest the material of which we are made. Without it we would be unfit for the kingdom of God. Even his beloved Son learned obedience by the things he suffered; and if the Captain of our Salvation was made perfect through suffering shall not we expect the same? In every circumstance that we may be placed, we may know that Jesus has been there and tasted of the same, for he was tempted and tried in all points like as we are. We shall do well then to have him constantly before us as an example to follow. We shall not go far astray if we but keep in his company.

In trying to imitate the example of Christ, that we may become assimilated to him, we must study the various characteristics which he manifested. He tells us he came not to do his own will, but the will of him that sent him. Paul tells us that Christ "pleased not himself." We belong to Christ, and as he pleased the Father, and made it his meat and drink to do his will, we in like manner must imitate him in this respect. In some circumstances it is very easy to forego our own pleasure when it does not cost any particular effort, and the multitude will praise us.

W. S. TOMLINSON.

Dr. Adam Clark says that the Greek words for man of sin means the same as expressed by the Hebrew, ISH BELIAL, "The perverse, obstinate, iniquitous man." He adds, "It is worthy of remark that among the rebbins, SAMAEL, or the devil is called ISH BELIAL NESHE AVEM, the man of Belial, and the man of iniquity; and the these titles are given to Adam after his fall."

The Contents of the Holy Bible

It is so complete a System, that nothing can be added to it or taken from it.

It contains every thing needful to be known and done.

It affords a copy for a King (Deut xvii 18), and a rule for a subject.

It gives instruction and counsel to a senate, authority and direction for a magistrate.

It cautions a witness, and requires an impartial verdict of a jury.

It furnishes the judge with his sentence.

It sets the husband as lord of the household, the wife as mistress of the table. It tells him how to rule, and her how to manage.

It entails honor to parents, and enjoins obedience to children.

It prescribes limits to the sway of the sovereign, the rule of the ruler.

It checks the authority of the master, commands the subjects to honor, and the servants to obey.

It promises the blessing and protection of its author to all who walk by its rules.

It gives directions for weddings, and for burials.

It promises food and raiment, and limits the use of both.

It points out to the departing husband and father a faithful and everlasting guardian.

It tells him with whom to leave his fatherless children, and in whom his widow is to trust. Jer xlix 11.

It promises a father to the former, and a husband to the latter.

It teaches a man how to set his house in order, and how to make his will.

It appoints a dowry for the wife, and entails the right of the first born, and shows how the younger branches shall be left.

It defends the rights of all, and reveals vengeance to every defrauder, over-reacher or oppressor.

It is the first Book, the best Book, and the oldest book in all the world.

It contains the choicest matters, and the best instruction.

It affords the greatest pleasure and satisfaction that ever was revealed.

It contains the best of laws, and the profoundest mysteries that ever were penned.

It brings the best tidings, and affords the greatest comfort to the enquiring and disconsolate.

It exhibits life and immortality from eternity and shows the way to glory.

It is a brief recital of all that is past, and a certain prediction of all that is to come.

It settles all matters in debate.

It resolves all doubts, and eases the mind and conscience of all scruples.

It reveals the only living and true God, and shows the way to him.

It sets aside all other gods, and describes the vanity of them and of all that trust in them.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, JAN. 8.

THE ASCENSION OF OUR LORD.

ACTS i. 1-11.

Golden text—It came to pass, while he blessed them, he was parted from them and carried up into heaven.—Luke xxiv. 51.

For months past we have been studying about the establishing and the growth of the kingdom of God—the kingdom of Israel—and now at the beginning of another year, we have a lesson about the King of that kingdom—the next King of the kingdom of God.

We are informed by the prophet Ezekiel that the kingdom was overturned until he comes. Ezek. xxi. 27 Until Jesus comes again. You remember the wise men came from the east to Jerusalem, saying, Where is he that is born king of the Jews? Matt. ii. 1, 2.

In the lesson title this King is called Our Lord. If we believe what he preached about the kingdom, and have been immersed in his name, he is our Lord He is the Lord of all such. You will notice verse 3. For forty days after his crucifixion and resurrection, and before his ascension, he was seen of the apostles, and speaking to them of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God. Let us always keep in mind that the story of the Bible is the story of God's kingdom, and that the story of the kingdom is the gospel of Christ, and the gospel of Christ saves. Rom. i. 16

In verse 6 we find the plain question Will you at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel? From the next two verses we know he would restore the kingdom, but not then—there was much work to do before that would be done. The work began then is still going on.

When he had spoken these things . . he was taken up. Before his death and resurrection Jesus said some interesting things about his going to heaven. I came forth from the Father . . . again I leave the world, and go to the Father. John xvi 28. Jesus never mentioned any Father except God, and charged his disciples "Call no man father upon the earth; for one is your Father, which is in heaven." Matt. xxiii 9. Anticipating his ascension he said "And now I am no more in the world." John xvii 11. Being a prophet mighty in deed and word, Luke xxiv. 19, he sometimes spoke of "things which be not as though they were" Rom. iv. 17. His first message, by Mary Magdalene, to his disciples, after his resurrection, was "I ascend into my Father, and your Father: and to my God, and your God." John xx. 17.

Again, speaking prophetically, he said "No man hath ascended up to heaven but he that came down from heaven." John iii. 13. Thousands on thousands who profess to believe every word Jesus said, do not believe this plain statement "No man hath ascended up to heaven" According to his own word, Jesus was the first to ascend to heaven, and we do well to believe that none have ascended since.

Jesus not only ascended to heaven, was taken up into heaven, verse 11, but passed into the heavens. Heb. iv. 14. In Eph. iv. 10, He ascended far above all heavens, and is made higher—more exalted, than the heavens, see Heb. vii. 26, for he is "set on the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens. Heb. viii. 1.

But even all this ascending to the heavens, and being exalted above them, as our Mediator, our High Priest, our Lord, does not, will not save us; will not fulfil the promise of God to Abraham, to David, nor to the Lord Jesus Christ, unless he comes again.

The concluding words of the lesson gives all the waiting faithful ones full assurance that their faith is not vain, that their longings and their prayers will be answered in due time, when the Lord himself descends from heaven. 1 Thess. iv. 16.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY JAN. 17.

THE BEGINNINGS OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH. ACTS ii 32-34.

Golden Text. They continued steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in the breaking of bread, and in prayers. Acts ii 42.

It is really painful to be obliged to reject many "religious" statements of men; but it is necessary to call attention to the lesson title. By referring to Matt iv 4-10 any one can see how particular Jesus himself was to the Word of God as "it is written." By holding to what is written he overcame the strongest temptations. We will state here that the title of the lesson is not correct, then proceed to show what is, and is not written. The words "Christian Church" are not in the Bible. This may sound like mere carping. It is better to be accused by men, of unreasonable faultfinding, than to be guilty of following "the wisdom of the wise" which God says he will destroy. 1 Cor i 19. The word church is in the New Testament more than one hundred times Of this number it is nearly one hundred times "The Church," about nine times "The church of God" once the churches of Christ. Rom xvi 16. In Eph v. 23 he is called the head of the Church. The word church is not in Old Testament. It is from the Greek, ekklesia—that which is called out, or the called out ones. This takes us back to a beginning, to the time when God judged Adam, Eve and the serpent. Judging the serpent he said "it shall bruise thy head." Gen iii 15. This is a promise from God that he who is, in the New Testament, called Christ, will in due time destroy him that has the power of death, that is the devil, and deliver from death all the called out ones—the church of God. Heb ii 14, 15.

Abel came to know and believe, that the seed of the woman would bruise the serpent's head, and resurrect him—save him. Having this faith he was called out. "The Lord had respect unto Abel and to his offering." Gen iv 4. In Heb xi he is mentioned first of the faithful, the first called out, the beginning of the church of God, of which Christ is the head

The church was not destroyed, nor obliterated when Cain killed Abel. Seth was called out, and hasson Enos. The church may then be said to have been organized and established. Gen iv 25, 26.

The next that stand out prominent as the church—called out ones—are Noah and his household. Gen vii 1. There are few members of the church that stand as high before the Lord as Abraham. God calls him "My friend Abraham." Is xli 8 Also "the father of all them that believe." Rom iv 11. All them that believed what he believed. The Lord preached the gospel to him saying "in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed." Gen xxii 18. This promise includes Christ and the church of God. Indeed it comprehends all the good promises God has made.

In Acts vii 38 we read that Moses was with the church in the wilderness.

The name or word Christ is not in the Old Testament; but we recognize him under many other names and titles from the seed of the woman. Gen iii 15. The Word of God, Rev xix 13. to the name of his father. The Lord God, or Jehovah. Isa xl 10. Many have been called, yea, thousands, but few have come out, few at any one time, very few indeed compared to the many that have not heeded the call. Yet God has never been without a church. Today among the rushing, jostling millions, struggling for daily bread, or a name among men in the halls of fame, there are here and there one or two, or a few who have taken time to consider and heed, and obey the call of God and Christ, the things of the kingdom, Acts viii 12; the gospel of Christ, Rom i 16; and have come out from among unbelievers 2 Cor vi 17. Two or three such form a church of God, or a part of the body of Christ. It is now in order to kindly ask, have we not done right to reject the title of the lesson?

In the lesson verses, the apostle Peter is preaching to the Jews and proselytes, who had come from far and near to observe the passover He is proving to them from Joel and David, prophets of God, that the Jesus whom they had crucified God had raised up and made him both Lord and Christ, and if they were at all anxious to have a hope of salvation they must believe that he is the promised one. They were convinced, and inquired what they should do, the answer was—and is—repent, and be baptized every one of you, for the remission of sins. They that gladly received his Word were immersed, and became a part of the Church of God. Though there has never been many thousands at one time, there will be tens and tens of thousands in "the general assembly" when Christ comes. Heb xii 23.

Next lesson, The lame man healed. Acts iii 1-16.

P. NEILL

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

"The Kingdom of God," is the title of a tract written by T J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom; second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist; third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ. BROTHER John Foore of Parsons, Kansas, realizing that his preaching days are getting short, as he is nearly 76 years old, has issued a series of 10 tracts. They have cost him a considerable sum, and he offers to supply them to the brethren on most liberal terms. The average cost of these tracts is about 10 cents each, and he offers to send them at cost. Also he says that where people are too poor to pay for them he will send them to such free if they will send name and address. The subjects treated are as follows: The Great Divine Healer vs. last day healers, The stature of Christ The restitution, The kingdom of God, Law and testimony, The judgment, Is baptism essential to salvation, Life and death, Signs of the end, Through the second vail, Three days and three nights, Election and predestination. Let any one wishing these tracts send direct to John Foore, Parsons, Kan

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

AN EXPOSITION of Isa. vii 14 16.

A booklet by Robert G. Huggins, of 3502 Woodland ave, Cleveland, Ohio, and designed specially for the brethren. Plain, brief, true, thoughtful, logical. Price for those who want to pay 5cts. for those who want to pay the postage only, one two-cent stamp, for those too poor or who do not want to pay anything free. On such terms every brother and sister in the United States and Canada should read it. Send as above.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Address W. H. Wilson, 420 North Willow Ave, Austin Station, Chicago Illinois.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 306 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Lady Agents Wanted. Monthly premium to Agent and commission. Address THE McCALL CO., New York

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

IMPORTANT.

All persons ordering us should give their names, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is sent by at your risk and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So simple is us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

Good Life.

He liveth long, who liveth well—
All else is life but flung away:
He liveth longest who can tell
Of best things truly done each day.

Then fill each hour with what will last,
Buy up the moments as they go;
The life beyond when this is past
Is the ripe fruit of the life below.

Sow love, and taste its fruitage pure;
Sow peace, and reap its harvest bright;
Sow purposes on life's rock and moor,
And find a harvest home of love.

THE QUESTION OF SALVATION.

From the time the writer began to have serious thoughts on the "future state," the question of his own salvation kept recurring. Never for one moment did he think of risking future happiness on the ground of what he was by nature or on the basis of his moral character, aside from compliance with conditions of pardon as he, at the time, understood the Word to teach. He never undertook, as many did then, and do, today, balance the account as between the amount of good and evil in his course of life, throwing the balance on the side of the good, making it outweigh the evil. It was not his disposition to postpone indefinitely his turning to God for peace and pardon. How often he put up an unavailing prayer in solitude for the loving Father to work an instantaneous change in his heart. His imagination was often set to the task of picturing the torments of hell, and in contrast portraying the glories of heaven that he might have a feeling of revulsion to the one, and a feeling of attraction to the other. Oh what dense ignorance; but—who could enlighten him. He had but the vaguest knowledge of the gospel. The kingdom as brought to view in the prophets was unknown to the best informed of the clericals whose duty it was to instruct the simple. The repentance commanded by the gospel in the view of all was sorrow for sin; and eternal life? that was already in man's possession, in the form of an immortal soul that could defy omnipotence to end its being.

What could he do in his blindness but grope and feel for something in the dark; and to obtain what he desired was impossible by his own unaided efforts. In the spring of 1851 the opportunity was afforded him of attending a series of revival meetings at Zion Baptist meeting house, conducted mainly by Benjamin Thomas, one of five Welsh brothers all of whom were preachers. Thomas had fine descriptive powers, and a lively imagination which he employed to paint the torments of hell, so graphic were his pictures of the fabled "nether world" that his audience could almost see the writhing of the "damned" and hear the "screams of the tortured ghosts." Here he "got religion," using a popular phrase, and was baptized by Thomas; but not in order to remission of sins, but because his sins had been remitted (?) a few days before as the sun was sinking behind the western hills. Such was his ignorance of God's plan at the time he started out to serve the Lord; with a heart burning with the desire to be good and useful. In the providence of God, highways and byways were to lead him across the way of truths. He and the truth met unexpectedly. In the autumn of 1853 he came with an aunt to Whitley County, Ind., and during the winter succeeding his arrival, taught a term of school nine miles south of Columbia City. The aunt went seven miles further west and settled near Claysville. During the winter two men, father and son came to the little village and held a lengthy series of meetings in the log school house, the only available place for public gatherings back there. These men advocated the theory of man's entire mortality; in a word denied the popular doctrine of the immortality of the human soul, and offered to give five dollars to any man in the audience who would produce from the Scriptures a passage affirming the soul's immortality. The passage called for was not brought forward.

This aunt came on a visit to the place where the writer was boarding—with another aunt—and reported what was preached. This was the first time he ever heard that the immortality of the human soul was called in question. It was true that some learned men, as Tyndale, Luther, Archbishop Whately, John Milton and many others had argued against natural immortality. But what these affirmed on the subject had not fallen under the writer's notice. Hearing this report he tried to call to mind a text affirming the doctrine called in question. He could think of none, and so confessed to his friends present. He had met with a shock to his sentiments previously cherished as the ground of hope. The soul not immortal!! Here was a new subject for thought, or rather an old one brought up for discussion; for back in the primitive day of the human race both sides of this question were clearly stated; the one side by Jehovah, and the other by the Serpent tempter, followed by a short discussion between the Serpent and the woman; resulting in the former gaining his point—not because he was on the side of truth but because he was artful and knew how to approach the subject, and conduct the argument. Many thoughts crowded into the writer's mind after he went to bed that night. He reasoned hypothetically: If the doctrine, popular as it is, is not plainly stated in the Bible it may not be found there at all under any form of words. If it cannot be fairly inferred then it is false, and then what will become of the present burning hell over which the Wesleys, the Whitefields and Edwards had shaken the poor sinner in the most frightful manner that this could be done by language, by tone and gesture. If men who had read the Bible nearly all their lives and cherished the doctrine of the soul's immortality could not bring forward the text or texts stating it, what must the young and uninstructed do under the circumstances? There was but one course for an honest man wishing to know the truth, to pursue, investigate. This he did, and found that the Bible was not merely silent as to statement of the doctrine in question, but that it presented a formidable array of testimony perfectly overwhelming, on the other side; showing that man is wholly mortal. After his term of school closed the writer went into the neighborhood of Claysville where the preaching alluded to, had been done. The preachers had left, leaving a promise to return. The seed sown by them had taken root in more than one mind and was bringing forth fruit into eternal life. Wm. T. Guffin and Samuel Andrews of sacred memory are worthy of special mention, being very proficient in learning the system of truth so recently brought to their attention; and which they subsequently proclaimed in public. These men took the writer in charge and instructed him in the so recently discovered truth; and to further aid him in his search for the hidden treasure, and the pearl of great price, Storrs' Six Sermons, the Contrast by Catlin, and one by Ephraim Miller were put into his hands. Returning to Ohio early in the spring, of 54, he let his friends know of his change of views on Bible topics. This raised somewhat of a breeze as it spread abroad in the church where he still held his membership. The news of his change reached the ears of the Pastor, Lewis Madden, a very good and pious old man, who invited the writer to dine with him at the home of Sister [illegible] near the church; [illegible] to a talk on the difference between the young man's newly acquired views, and the Baptist confession of faith. Deference to age and superior attainments, suggested that the pastor should have the privilege of introducing the talk on doctrinal differences; especially as he gave notice that the interview was to be for this end. The young man was somewhat disappointed when the visit ended, and no allusion had been made to "soul sleeping." What the state of mind of the old man was that afternoon was not definitely known, but the conclusion was that he thought that "prudence was the better part of valor." There was no summons of the renegade from the traditions of the elders, to appear before a church court to answer to the charge of heresy. It may have been that prudence again, as with the pastor, suggested the better course, to let the matter drop.

Eight months after he returned to his old home he came back to Indiana where he heard some preaching on the fundamental doctrines of our faith; on the belief of which he was baptized in order to the remission of sins, late in the autumn of 54, and sometime during the year 55 united with the Church of God at Claysville, Ind. To this church at the above named place several preachers whose names are familiar to the older brethren, preached from time to time. These were Nathan Hornaday, Ephraim Miller, S. A. Chaplin, E. C. Andrews, J. M. Stephenson, Jacob Shaffer, J. S. Hatch, H. V. Reed, J. F. Wagoner, L. E. Conner, Nathan Gebelman, Benjamin and Mary Woodward; and the writer who has continued to preach there for forty odd years. Soon after uniting with this church he was urged by the leading members to preach; accordingly an appointment was made for him at Liberty Mills, in Wabash County. He made preparation to preach a half hour discourse, but ran out of subject matter at the end of fifteen minutes. Ralph Carter being present took up the subject and discoursed three quarters of an hour. This effort, at the solicitation of the brethren, was followed by others at irregular intervals, and always under a feeling of great embarrassment; so much so that he felt at times like he was sinking through the floor. He was painfully conscious of himself, and of being in the presence of critics. Stage fright would come on in spite of an effort to keep it off. Constant practice in public speaking wore off this embarrassment almost entirely. During the years of his public ministry his strength has been divided between the farm and the pulpit, the farm being allotted the larger share. Much of his study has been between the plow handles; so to speak, under figure of speech. Perhaps this course of life i. the open air and in close touch with nature has fortified his inherited weak constitution, so that now at the age 76 he can endure an amount of physical exercise that is vastly beyond what he could have hoped for in his earlier years when health had for a time failed through lack of a knowledge of the commonest laws of life. Less time for study has been afforded by this course of, between plow and pulpit, but with a gain in a more vigorous grasp of the subjects in hand.

He has for years attended all the Conferences of the churches, held in different parts of the state; allowing nothing to interfere with his duty in this direction save sickness, and this only once, when he had the small pox. Farmwork has rarely prevented his filling of his appointments. The most of his preaching has been done at Claysville, Gospel Grove, Plymouth, North Salem, Eagle Creek in Stark County, with an occasional sermon or two at other points. He regards the truth as paramount to everything else; therefore to make sacrifices for it has been the aim of his life. In this his good and faithful wife has shared to the full extent of abilities and opportunities. Her means and pen have ever been employed to further the cause of Christ. Her willingness to do [illegible] and this is no trifling affair on the farm—has oftentimes made it possible for the writer to leave home to perform ministerial work for the benefit of others.

EARLY CONFERENCES IN INDIANA.

The writer did not attend the first State Conference, which was held at Old Union a few miles from Indianapolis; but his two faithful friends in the faith W. T. Guffin and Samuel Andrews did; and on returning had much to tell him about the preaching. This Conference followed by a few years the the discussion at the same place on the nature of man, between Dr. N. Field of Jeffersonville, and Thomas P. Connelly; which discussion was reported by short hand and in 1854 published in a book of 308 pages and given to the reading public. Hearing that Dr. Field, the able defender of the faith was met at this Conference by the two brethren before mentioned, it kindled a desire in the mind of the writer to see this champion of the Truth; which desire was gratified at a Conference held later below Kokomo, near Fairfield. Here also he met Joseph Marsh of Rochester, N. Y., editor of the Prophetic Expositor and Bible Advocate, the first denominational paper of the Church of God. Marsh in the estimation of the writer was an indifferent speaker; very slow, lacking in enthusiasm, but clear and logical. Other speakers present came nearer his ideal of a preacher than brother Marsh. He printed a tract of his entitled "Axe to Come" in which he advocated the national restoration and salvation of the two houses of Israel; and extension of mercy and blessing to the nations after the epoch of the Lord's second coming. The view advocated by him was opposed to Mr. Miller's world-burning. English writers had advocated this view before the issuance of this tract, and so had Dr. Thomas of this country. The agitation and discussion of the question of mercy to nations in the flesh led to a division in the ranks of those looking for the speedy advent of the Lord. To those holding Miller's view, age to come mercy and opportunity, was rank heresy, not to be tolerated.

The pioneer days of the settlement of Indiana and with it the pioneer days of our faith when self-sacrificing men and women battled with hardships, and for the Truth, are past. The excitement of travel a long distance over roads none too good shaded on both sides by overhanging forests and making the journey in tented wagons to reach the place of the Conference is no more the experience of our people. Railroads thread our young state in all directions, making it easy to reach the places of general assembly.

About all those who attended these larger gatherings of early days are gone to the house appointed for all the living. Unconsciously they sleep awaiting the trumpet call that will awake Job and all the long line of ancient worthies who saw the fulfillment of the promises from afar. May those who now live and labor in the good cause be nerved by the recorded examples of heroic faith, to do noble work for unpopular truth.

JOHN L. WINCE.

Confessing Christ.

What is the act of confessing? 1 Publicly to own, to acknowledge, as his own: Thus Christ will confess the faithful in the day of judgment. Luke xii 8. Whosoever shall confess me before men, him shall the Son of Man also confess, before the angels of God. 2. To own and profess the truths of Christ, and to obey his commandments, and that in spite of all opposition and danger from enemies 8. To own and profess the gospel of Christ, and pay obedience to in.

Now we find that in Paul's day there were those teaching a gospel different from the one he was teaching, and he said of such they should be accursed. Gal i 8. So there is no salvation for one if he confesses to another gospel than the one that Paul preached. And Christ in speaking of a class that professed to confess him; said this people draweth nigh unto me with their lips; but their heart is far from me. Why? Is it possible for one to be earnest, and claim to confess Christ, and not confess him? We think so. For Christ says the reason these people are far from him, is because they teach for doctrines the commandments of man, and he says it is vain for such to worship him. Matt xvii 9. Paul in his defence when arrested, said his accusers could not prove the things they accused him of. But he confessed that he worshiped God in a way they called heresy. Perhaps both were honest. Will both be saved? No. Only those that confess Christ, and believe, and obey the gospel he taught, can in way be saved: For his (Christ's) command was, Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel; not a gospel; he that believing and is baptized shall be saved, he that believeth not shall be condemned. Confessing is shown by our acts. When we take a companion for life we confess to the world, that one is our choice. When we go to the polls, and cast our vote, we then confess to the choice of our candidates. When we make out a deed for real estate we have given up all claim on that estate. And when we confess Satan, we show by our acts that we prefer wicked and sinful companions to any other, and will be found with such, and avoid those that try to do right. When we confess Christ, we will shun evil companions, avoid all appearance of evil, and try to live so near to Christ, that we may expect, when he comes to earth to reward those that obey him with eternal life, to be found worthy to obtain that life. And in confessing Christ we must overcome the world, and in so doing, we have the promise of Christ, that he will not blot out our name from the book of life, but will confess our name before his Father, and before his angels. For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord. Rom vi 23. Confess Christ, and obtain eternal life, there is no other way.

Yours in hope,
E. W. KNAPP.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Editor Restitution:

I write to renew my subscription, you will find P. O. order for $1 50. I thought the last paper I read was almost worth the subscription price. We have meetings here every Lord's day afternoon. There are not many of us in number, but are all earnestly seeking for the truth. We want to be among the wise ones who will understand, and not be in ignorance. Bro. Kimbal is a fine Bible student and gives us some excellent lectures on his charts which has taken a vast amount of study and work to prepare. Last meeting we had Bro. Skeels and Bro. Corbaley with us. Bro. Skeels led the meeting. He is in very poor health. We always enjoy strangers, especially those of like precious faith.

Very respectfully.

Our Helping Fund.

Plymouth, Indiana, Jan'y 27, 1909.

Brother O. J. Allard, Evangelist for the State of Iowa, closed a series of two weeks of meeting at the Church in Plymouth, on last Friday evening. As stated last week four were added to our number during this effort. The audiences increased to the close, and many were the warm-hearted invitations to "Come again." We hope this can be arranged, and that at least one more meeting can be held here before Brother Allard has to go home. He is a ready speaker, makes his points clear to all, does not speak to a wearying length, but gives some thing to think of, and always leaves his audience wanting to hear more. He is now at Roll, and from there will visit Hillsdale Church. May God's blessing be with him always.

Under date of Jan. 19, Brother D. C. Robison of Salem, Ohio, says, "Our special meetings are growing very interesting. Brother Huggins came on yesterday, and spoke last evening to a very attentive audience. We rejoice to know that our audiences have increased in number. Many who have never heard the truth preached, are now attentive listeners." Brother P. Neill writes on Jan. 21, concerning these meetings "In the matter of attendance and attention, they have been a success from the first. This week we are favored with the company and help of Brother Huggins. We all are enjoying the meetings, and Bro. Huggins will stay over Sunday, while Bro. Robison will go to Cleveland." May the Lord lend his favor to the efforts made to impress a few more with the beauty of his service.

From the Christmas number of the Salem, Ohio, Daily Herald is clipped the following extract. The pastors of the Salem churches were each asked to write an account of their church, and this is what was written concerning the Church of God.

CHURCH OF GOD

The church in Salem is a part of the same body found in various places throughout the civilized world.

The members in Salem built a meeting house on West Main St. in 1888. A plain, substantial frame building, comfortable, and with electric lighting.

Each church is self sustaining. All in a state, unite in sending forth an evangelist. No collections taken. No donations solicited. All expenses are met by the members.

The church has no creed. The writing of Moses and the prophets are closely and continuously studied, because Jesus Christ preached these writings as the only means of salvation.

Regular weekly services are held, Sunday School, and preaching morning and evening.

After the morning sermon the Lord's Supper is commemorated. Following that, one member reads a paper on some important Scripture subject. Each one weekly in turn does this. After the reading all may take part in exhorting and edifying the body with portions of Scripture.

The Sunday evening topic is usually of an educational character, so that visitors may learn what we believe and teach, and also WHY we believe and teach as we do. Meetings are also held every Thursday evening at 7:30 at the homes of the members. A special Bible topic is considered. Scripture is compared with Scripture until a conclusion is reached. Visitors are welcome, and all present may take part. The meeting is announced Sunday evening.

By this continuous study of the Bible, each member becomes more and more familiar with the whole Book, and enables all to be ready at all times to give a reason for their hope, and also to help any inquirer to "search the Scriptures."

When one develops a speaking talent, he may be a public teacher—preacher. All are held responsible to teach publicly or privately, as opportunity may offer.

There was no resident pastor here until the past six years. During that time the membership has grown steadily. Not rapidly, because each member is required to have a personal knowledge of "the gospel of Christ," Rom i. 16, as found in "Moses and the prophets," Luke xvi 31. Having learned and believed "the first principles of the oracles of God," Heb. v. 12, and repented, and confessed faith "in the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ," Acts viii. 12, they are immersed in the name of the Lord Jesus, Acts viii. 16, and the Lord adds them to the church Acts ii. 47. As the future outlook, the growth of the church cannot be stated. The business of the church is to see that the—Word is preached, 2 Tim. iv. 2. That the good seed is planted and watered—God gives the increase.

The church is rejoicing in the hope of seeing—the Lord descend from heaven to raise the dead saints, 1 Thess. iv. and change the living, 1 Cor. xv. and set up the kingdom of God, Dan. vi. For this the Church of God continually watches and prays.

Visitors always warmly welcomed at the church or parsonage.

The Bible and its Message. Number 3.

The critics have pretty generally agreed that Luke is the author of Acts of the Apostles as well as the book bearing his name. His address in both books is to the most excellent Theophilus. In Acts the author gives a history of the two apostles, Peter and Paul. The book begins with the statement that Jesus remained forty days with his apostles speaking of the things concerning the kingdom of God, and stating to them that they were to remain at Jerusalem until they were endued with power from on high.

In the first part he records what he has heard, in the second part he is an eye witness to many things.

The date of this writing cannot be fully determined. Probably between 62 and 72 A. D. There is no mention in it of the destruction of Jerusalem or of the persecution under Nero.

Acts of the Apostles records many incidents and sayings not found in other parts of the New Testament. Paul's conversion and his life as a witness and an apostle to the Gentiles is very beautifully and forcefully written. The apostle's address before Agrippa is a masterpiece of eloquence and logic. Before it Felix trembled and Agrippa said "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian." Stephen's address before the Sanhedrim in Jerusalem is a wonderful address reciting God's dealings with Israel and charging them with putting to death the Just One. This address made him the first martyr. There is one remarkable fact stated in Acts, viz, all preached the gospel of the kingdom of God.

The Pauline epistles are fourteen in number and are addressed to the churches and to individuals. Paul being the apostle to the Gentiles his letters to the churches are addressed mainly to that class of converts. The church at Rome was made up of Jews and Gentiles. This church was founded it is supposed by Christains from other parts of the world. Some may have been converts at Jerusalem on Pentecost. It is a well established fact that Romans, Corinthians and Galatians were written by the apostle Paul within a period of fourteen months. These epistles were written to correct errors that had crept into the churches by false teachers. Many Jewish Christains still taught that it was necessary for the Gentiles to be circumcised after the law. These letters contain many beautiful thoughts, 1 Cor. xv. is wholly devoted to the resurrection.

Some taught that there is no resurrection. In this chapter the apostle teaches or proves that Christ had arisen from the dead and proved it by 500 brethren. He then proved that our resurrection depends upon the resurrection of Christ. Finally he proves that the dead are raised to immortality. It is sown a natural body and it is raised a spiritual body. He further declares a mystery. That we shall not all sleep but we shall all be changed in a moment in the twinkling of an eye. It is strange that any one who had heard the apostle preach would so soon deny so vital a doctrine of the gospel as that of the resurrection. In this chapter he associates with the gospel the death, burial and the resurrection of Jesus. Those who preach the gospel without preaching the facts do not preach the ancient gospel, also those who preach the facts without the gospel do the same.

The gospel that is the power of God unto salvation unto every one that believes, is the gospel that Paul preached. If an angel from heaven preach any other gospel let him be accursed. The epistle to the Galatians was written to correct some errors taught by false teachers. They taught that the Gentiles must obey the law of Moses. They also taught that Paul was not a chosen apostle, as he was not chosen at the first. In the first chapter the apostle teaches that he was a chosen vessel and that he had received the gospel by revelation from the Lord Jesus Christ. In the third chapter Paul answers these Judaising teachers by showing that the gospel was preached to Abraham in these words, "In thee shall all families of the earth be blessed." The promise to Abraham was not to his fleshy seed but his unit Seed which is Christ.

The promise did not come through Jesus the Christ. If a law could have been given that would give life verily righteousness would have been by the law. The law was our teacher to bring us to Christ. "As many as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ, and if ye are Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise."

Paul begins this epistle rather abruptly, omitting his thanksgiving found in his other epistles. It is supposed that during his first imprisonment the apostle wrote the epistles to the Ephesians, Phillippians, Colossians and Philemon. There is a marked difference in these and the preceding ones. The apostle has nothing to condemn in these letters. But his language is that of a father to his loving and obedient children.

The two letters to the Thessalonians are supposed to be the earliest written of the Pauline epistles. The Thessalonians entertained the idea of the soon coming of Jesus. The apostle in this letter teaches that Christ is one with the Father and he is our Saviour and Lord. In his first letter he teaches very plainly the resurrection of the dead and that those who are alive at Christ's return have no advantage over those who sleep. "This we would say unto you by the Word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent (go before) them which are asleep. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first." 1 Thess. iv. 15, 16.

Many more thoughts might be given on the epistles of Paul, Peter, James, John and Jude but space will not permit without our extending this article beyond what we first designed. The beloved apostle John is the author of three epistles. By comparing the first epistle with the gospel of John we see the proof that they were written by the same author. 1 John iii. states that God shows his great love to us by calling us his sons. When we consider that we are flesh, a spirit that passeth away and cometh not again, we are able to measure his unlimited love to us, his creatures. The race merited extinction because of disobedience, yet our Heavenly Father hath been long-suffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish but that all should come to repentance. What a consoling thought it is to know that God regards us with such favor. "Beloved now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is. Every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure."

Brothers and sisters, let us so live that when our great Life Giver shall come that we shall see him as he is.

Your brother, in the interest of the truth as we find it written.

Seek Souls.

What is the object of seeking souls? It is either to destroy, or to save that soul. Can a soul be destroyed? Yes. Listen to David. "Let them be ashamed and confounded together that seek after my soul to destroy it; let them be driven backward and put to shame that wish me evil." Psalm xl. 14; xxxv. 4. But those that seek my soul to destroy it shall go into the lower parts of the earth. Psalm lxiii. 8.

David understood that his soul could be destroyed, and he prayed to to God to afflict those that sought to do him harm, and asked God to say unto his soul I am thy salvation. Ps. xxxv. 3. He says strangers are risen up against me, and oppressors seek after my soul. Psalm liv. 3. David had faith in God and felt no fear while he served him, for he says, God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave, (hell, margin) for he shall receive me. Again he says, Thou hast redeemed my soul from death. Psalm lvi 13; cxvi. 8.

These are remarkable statements of David. He continually praised God while alive, for he said the dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down in silence. Psalm cxv. 17. We see that in David's time wicked people were seeking after his soul to destroy it, and human nature has not changed since David's time. But the wicked are continually seeking to destroy man's soul.

Solomon says the bloodthirsty hate the upright; but the just seek his soul. Prov. xxix. 10. Here we see another class seeking after the soul—the just. Do they seek to destroy it? No, they seek to save it. How can one save the soul? Paul says he was sent to preach the gospel, and it was the power of God unto salvation, to every one that believeth, Rom. i. 16, and those that believe and obey are saved. For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved. Rom x. 13-17.

Christ came into the world to save sinners and those that were lost, and all that believe and obey Christ are saved. James says, Let him know that he which converteth a sinner from the error of his way, shall save a soul from death and hide a multitude of sins. We want to hide that multitude of sins, and in order to do so we must convert one from the error of his way. When we get one to forsake evil, and come to Christ, and live in a true Christian way, so that God will give him eternal life through Christ, then we have sought that soul to save it, and if we are to expect eternal life we can seek souls for no other purpose than to save them.

Yours in hope.

At Breaking of Bread.

I have taken for a foundation for my lesson 1 Kings viii. 57. 58. It reads like this "The Lord our God be with us, as he was with our fathers; let him not leave us nor forsake us. That he may incline our hearts unto him, to walk in all his ways, and to keep his commandments, and his statutes, and his judgments, which he commanded our fathers."

It says "The Lord our God be with us, as he was with our fathers." The question which may arise in our mind is How was he with our fathers? If we turn to the 12th chapter of Genesis and read the first three verses, we will find how it was, for it says "Now the Lord said unto Abram, get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will show thee. And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great, and thou shalt be a blessing. And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee; and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed."

We find other promises nearly like this to our fathers if they are only faithful. Another one is found in Josh. i. 5, when the Lord said unto Joshua "I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee." If we only prove faithful servants the Lord will not leave us nor forsake us, for he says in Deut. xxxi. 6 "Be strong and of good courage; fear not, nor be afraid of them, for the Lord thy God, he it is that doth go with thee; he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee." This is certainly a grand promise for the Household of Faith.

The first part of the 58th verse of my lesson says "That he may incline our hearts unto him." In Psa. cxix. 36 we find "Incline my heart unto thy testimonies, and not to covetousness. In 2 Cor. iii. 5 we read "Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think anything as of ourselves; but our sufficiency is of God." This tells us very plainly who we are to look to.

In the latter part of verse 58 it says that we should "walk in all his ways, and keep his commandments, and his statutes, and judgments, which he commanded our fathers." What were some of these? We will find one in Gen. xviii. 19, "For I know him that he will command his children and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of the Lord, to do justice and judgment; that the Lord may bring upon Abraham that which he hath spoken of him."

Another one is found in Ezek. xxxiii 19 "If the wicked restore the pledge, give again that he had robbed, walk in the statutes of life, without committing iniquity, he shall surely live, he shall not die."

May we all walk in the statutes of life, is my prayer.

Ruth ii. 12. The Lord recompense thy work, and a full reward be given thee of the Lord God of Israel, under whose wings thou art come to trust. Thus spake Boaz and Ruth who, as we all know, left her own country and people and followed her mother-in-law to her home among her own people, the Israelites. When she was entreated to return to her own people, she replied Entreat me not to leave thee. Whither thou goest I will go, thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God. She was well rewarded for her love to God and his people Israel. So is it always, whosoever leaves all and trusts in God will receive a just reward for faithfulness.

They that trust in the Lord shall be as Mount Zion, which cannot be removed, but abideth forever. It is better to trust in the Lord than to put confidence in princes, for then we can say as did Isaiah, God is my salvation, I will trust and not be afraid, for the Lord Jehovah is my strength and my song; he is also become my salvation. Sing unto the Lord, for he hath done excellent things. Cry out and shout, thou inhabitant of Zion, for great is the Holy One of Israel in the midst of thee.

The Wandering Evangelist.

I left Los Angeles yesterday, Jan'y 14, and reached Phoenix, early this morning. Whether I shall discontinue the role of "the wandering evangelist" will be determined by circumstances. We are largely the creatures of circumstances. While on the way from the northwest to my present stoping ing place with Brother Fike, I received a letter from my daughter Grace, that they thought they had a prospect of selling their farm in Washington, and if they should they might beat me to Arizona. If this desirable change has had a beginning in the sale of their property it has not resulted in their reaching Phoenix, so we cannot anticipate anything with any certainty till in is reached, and then much may not be of any permanence, or even desirability.

The touch of this warm dry climate rekindles vigor in my nerves and my blood. I am in a territory where lovable and loving brethren have made their homes. I must and will still do work for the Master's cause while means and ability are in my reach. Desire and health are the strongest incentives to that end. The desire has never abated. I believe that a kind Providence and Arizona climate will assure the health.

I find in my travels that contending theories are doing the work of the last times. Prominence is given to determining who the "man of sin" is—if he be the pope of Rome, or a personal antichrist to be developed at Jerusalem. Another source of discord is the "Anglo-Israel" question. I am more fully established on the platform of my faith that Christ is coming in person very soon. "Be ye also ready." He will make priests unto God and unto Christ of his saints. His ancient people Israel will be restored and have peace; the nations will be blessed and you and I, if obedient children, will have the "always life." If we get back to the old "Church of God" paths we will find plenty of food to live on—food that the combined assaults of the devil and the churches have not made stale or deprived us of.

My hobby is Life through Christ in the kingdom of God, and living with that in view. Oh, it will be grand to be sinless, painless, deathless—immortal.

W. L. Skeels.

Dear Restitution:

I see my time is just at hand so will renew again for our beloved paper I wish I could do more, but am thankful to our Heavenly Father that I can do. I have been in poor health for a long time. My brother James Calderwood was always so kind to me, and I miss him so much, but he rests from his labors now waiting a glorious resurrection when Christ who is our life shall appear in glory. I thank God that I ever learned the more perfect way—the blessed hope that can sustain us through trials. How kind our Heavenly Father is to us all.

I think Brother Joblin's prayers as published in The Restitution are inspiring. I know it is so with me. May God prosper our beloved Restitution this year more than ever before.

May God bless you in your labor in the work for Master.

Yours in the blessed hope.

Mrs. Mary C. Smith.

Home Department Visitor.

The first edition of 4000 copies of the Home Department Visitor has been disposed of and a second edition of 4000 more copies ordered from the printers. About 1200 of this edition have already been ordered, leaving 2800 with which to fill orders.

It is desired to sell these at a price that will bring enough back into the Home Department fund to issue a 2d Visitor as soon as possible. About 2000 of the first edition were given to the brethren in order that they might have a part in the messenger work. The balance were sold at about cost. No more can be furnished at the rate offered before Jan. 1. The prices for the second edition are as follows: A single copy 10 cents, ten copies for 80 cents by mail, $5 00 per 100 by express, the charges to be paid by the person ordering.

It is my desire to continue the Home Department work and make it benefit every member of the Church of God and all with whom we come in contact. This can be easily done if the brethren will co-operate with me in the work.

I know that if our people, young and old, will take up the messenger work, there is almost no limit to the number of Visitors that can be disposed of. The best results will not be obtained by a free distribution. My experience has proven that it is not wisdom to distribute papers in this manner. In making house to house visits to interest people in Bible study one must first have something to offer them. Do not call attention to yourself, but to the means you can provide at small expense to assist them in Bible study.

The Visitor has been made attractive both in appearance outside, and in the subject matter inside, in order to attract and gain attention. It sells readily to all classes, except the rich, who have other reading matter that claims their attention. By making a house to house canvass in my city, I not only paid the expense of mailing copies to the brethren, but made a study of the messenger work and the best way to handle the Visitor. I give you the facts in order that you may benefit by my experience.

As soon as I received the Visitor mailed and expressed copies to the brethren. Then I placed stores and on news stands sold 200 copies to the poor of this city day. A physician took banker the other. The offered me his horse and buggy der that I might distribute them self. In three days of messenger I and my son, a boy of eleven years sold 300 copies; I taking one side of the street and he the other. It was a real pleasure to do this work, and I saw how eagerly boys do this work, and the training that will be of great value in the Lord's service.

I not only found in this messenger work a field for the boys and girls to work for the Lord, but great opportunities for older ones like myself, especially if a little more time could be given to going in where invitations are given to assist in Bible study. The Visitor in the hands of Christian messengers can be a great factor in evangelical work. I went to business men, and many said I will take this home and study. If I had given it to them they would have placed it in the waste basket before I was out of sight, but it is human nature to want to get your money's worth of what you buy. I found the best way to approach busy men and women and help them to better things in life. I found a basis that will make our home department work self-supporting. I found a field of work for the isolated members, and one in which the whole of the brotherhood can engage and be benefitted and help others.

I make no charge for preparing of copy, reading proof, looking after printing and mailing. I only ask that our brethren take up the messenger work and use the finished product of many hours of hard labor, but willing service for our Lord's cause.

Yours in the work,

Harriet E. Boice.

A lady met with a serious accident, which necessitated a very painful operation, and many month of confinement to her bed. When the physician had finished his work and was about taking his leave, the patient asked—"Doctor, how long shall I have to lie here helpless?" "O, only a day at a time," was the cheery answer, and the poor sufferer was not only comforted for the moment, but many times during the succeeding weeks did the thought, "Only a day at a time," come to quiet her suffering

Ebenezer. 1. Sam 7, 12

Let Us Pray.

Oh God, our refuge and strength. We delight to know that thou hast revealed Thyself as One slow to anger, great in power, and in mercy to all who call upon Thee in Spirit and truth. This encourages us to come to Thee as to a tender parent and make full confession of all the trespasses which may have marked our conduct since we last met as a company of Thy adopted children. Conscious ourselves that we fall very, very short of the perfect example set us by Thy glorious Son, we think with deep humility of what Thy all-seeing eye must have seen amiss in us and ask in Jesus' name to be forgiven. Loving Father, notwithstanding all our imperfections, it grieves us to grieve Thee, and we sincerely desire to keep these bodies of ours in more complete subjection to Thy Holy will through the divine help that Thou hast provided. God help us to use them so that we may daily grow in Thy favor by doing what Thou wouldst have us to do. May Thy children before Thee be able to rejoice in Thy pardoning love, and so, by communion with Thee and Thy Son Jesus, renew our spiritual strength and go on our way rejoicing. Oh, God we would bear up to Thee every member of this congregation—the young, the middle-aged and the infirm, and the sick ones, and any in affliction of mind, body or estate—Oh, God suit Thy blessing to each and all. We pray too for any who are enquiring the way to Zion—may they choose this day whom they will serve.....We would not forget the church scattered abroad—and we would make supplication in behalf of those in authority that they may so rule us that we may enjoy our privileges till Jesus shall come. In Jesus' name.

The Church at Salem, Ohio, has held two weeks of special meetings. We had the pleasure of attending their meeting Jan. 18 24.

Brother D. A. Halcomb, of Dunlap, writes: "Please name a few of [illegible] reformers who were most [illegible] since the days of Martin [illegible] in restoring the doctrine, organization, and practice of the Church of God." Feeling that our Sister S. Roxann Wince was much better qualified than we are to answer this historical question, we referred the enquiry to her. Her answer will appear in a series of articles entitled, "Sketches of Church History."

We have received a pamphlet of 93 pages entitled "The Millennial; or The Return of Christ Brings the Restitution," by Wm. Huls, of Rockbridge, Ohio. It has the "earmarks" of Russellism, but there are many good Scriptural thoughts in it. There is no price mentioned; and we presume the work can be had free of the writer. People who do not object to reading books that are a mixture of wheat and chaff, will be interested in reading this production. "Times of Restitution," the poetry that will be at the head of Ebenezer next week, is selected from above work.

Is the Holy Spirit a Person?

The Holy Spirit is not a person, because it is called in the Scripture the Spirit of God The spirit of a being is the breath of life by which he lives and acts. Man's spirit is not another person from himself; therefore God's Spirit is not another person from himself.

The Holy Spirit is not a person, because in all the Bible there is not one prayer or song or exclamation addressed to it; nor is there one precept in all the Bible authorizing such prayer or song.

The Holy Spirit is not a person, because the word for Spirit in the Greek is in the neuter gender; and the article and pronouns referring to it are all in the neuter gender. The masculine pronouns in the English Bible referring to the Spirit are all mistranslations. The word Comforter, Helper, is, indeed, masculine in Greek, but this does not prove personality, as we have clearly shown under another heading. No masculine noun, can make that noun to be personal. In Greek the word water is neuter, but the word river is masculine. So the Spirit is neuter, but as the dispensational Spirit of God, it is the Comforter, the Helper, and in this form it is masculine. But this does not prove that the Helper is a person any more than it proves a river is a person. The Bible helps us, and it is feminine in Greek, but it is not a person. The Word of God is masculine in Greek, but it is not a person, yet it helps us and comforts us. God's Spirit helps us and comforts, but it is not a person,—it is a neuter noun.

The Holy Spirit is not a person, because the names and titles applied to it show that they but represent the life, power and attributes of God whose Spirit it is. It is called living water, John vii 37-39, the Spirit of life, Rom viii 2, 11, the Spirit of the truth, John xiv 17, etc., indicating that the Holy Spirit to us is but the outflowing of the quickening power of God, and not another person from God. The title "Ghost" might indicate a filmsy personality, but, as we saw above, the word "Ghost" is falsely translated from the word for Spirit in the Greek.

The Holy Spirit is not a person, because it is spoken of among other things and spirits that are not persons, as being one of them and yet opposed to them or distinguished from them. It is contrasted to the flesh, Gal v 17. The flesh, although feminine in the Greek, is not a person, and it is only proper to infer that the Spirit (neuter) with which it is contrasted, is likewise not a person. The Spirit of God, is in its knowing the things of God, compared to the spirit of man in its knowing the things of man: 1 Cor ii 10-11. The spirit is not a separate person from man, nor can the Spirit of God be a separate person from God. The Spirit of God is put in contrast to the spirit of the world, 1 Cor ii 11, but the spirit of the world cannot be a person. And so we might go on and show how that the Spirit of God has been contrasted to the spirit of error, 1 John iv 6, and to other spirits, all of which are neuter and impersonal.

The Holy Spirit is not a person, because it is not spoken of in Scripture among other persons as though it is one of them. Jesus, in Rev iii 5, says of the overcomer, "I will confess his name before my Father and before his angels." Now, if the Spirit is a person, like the Father and the angels are persons, why would not Jesus confess the overcomer before the Spirit? Why leave out a person who is equal in power and glory to the Father, and include angels? Trinitarians will not answer this question. Turn to Rom i 7, "Grace to you and peace from God our Father and Lord Jesus Christ." Why did he not invoke grace and peace also from the Holy Spirit if the Spirit is a person and equal in power and glory to the Father and Son? Another question our orthodox friends will never answer. But the same form of salutation is used in 1 Cor i 3, 2 Cor i 2, Gal i 3, Eph i 2; Phil i 2, 2 Thes i 2, Tit i 4, Philm 3. And with the addition of the word mercy the same form is used in 1 Tim i 2 and 2 Tim i 2. Why is the Spirit left out in these invocations, eleven of them? If the Holy Spirit is a person and equal to the Father and the Son in power and glory, why this omission? Why do we not, at least in some instances, read: Grace, merry and peace from God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Ghost? Verily, because God never was a son of anybody, and the Holy Spirit is not a ghost, nor a person, but the blessed Spirit of a Person, the God of heaven and earth. Peter salutes the brethren in these words: "Grace to you and peace. Be increased in knowledge of the Deity and of Jesus our Lord." 2 Pet i 2. And the beloved John beautifully writes: "Grace, mercy, peace shall be with us, from God, Father, and from Jesus Christ, the Son of the Father, in truth and love." 2 John 3. Now, Mr. Trinitarian, let me ask you, Why did not Paul and Peter and John when invoking blessing from God and his Son Jesus Christ, not include the Holy Spirit also if it be a person equal to the other persons, the Father and the Son? Paul closes his letter to the Romans by saying, "To the only wise God, through Jesus Christ, be the glory into the ages. Amen." Rom xvi 27. There is nothing in this about, "Glory to the Father and to the Son and to the Holy Ghost." For this was not the ascription in the beginning, is not now, and never shall be among those who worship in Spirit and truth. Rather do we say, "Glory to the Father, through the Son, and in the Holy Spirit, as it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, ages unceasing. Amen!" Paul's letter to the Ephesians closes with these words, "Peace to the brethren and love with faith from God, Father, and Lord Jesus Christ. The grace be to all those loving our Lord Jesus Christ in incorruption." Eph vi 23-24. And Jude pens the grand ascription: "To the One who is being able to guard you without stumbling, and to set you down before his glory without blemish in exceeding joy, to Only God our Savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord, be glory, majesty, dominion and power, before all the age, and now, and into all the ages. Amen." Jude 24, 25. And yet no ascription to the Holy Ghost as the third person of a triune god? What does it mean? It means this: There is no triune god and the doctrine of the personality of a Holy Ghost is a myth, a fable. Trinitarian language is not the language of Sacred Scripture, but of mythology and polytheism.

We will now notice some passages in which the Holy Spirit is mentioned in connection with the Father and the Son, and we shall see whether it is mentioned in such a way as to prove the Holy Spirit is a third person in a triune God. The Holy Spirit is mentioned with the Father and the Son in the apostolic benediction, 2 Cor xiii 14, "The grace of the Lord Jesus and the love of the Deity and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit be with you all." But notice, reader, that it is the fellowship "OF" the Holy Spirit. The fellowship that is "OF" the Holy Spirit is the fellowship that it gives us with the Father and his Son and with one another. We have the fellowship of love, the fellowship of truth and the fellowship of the Spirit, for these are not persons; but we have fellowship with the Father and with the Son, for these are persons. Hear the words of John: "That which we have seen and heard we announce forth to you also, that you also may have fellowship with us, and also the fellowship that is ours with the Father and with his Son Jesus Christ." 1 John i 3. Now, reader, do your own thinking, and we are sure our contention shall be vindicated. We are sure you cannot fail to see that fellowship OF the Holy Spirit indicates non-personality; and that the fellowship with the Father and with his Son indicates personality. We also read of fellowship "of" Spirit in Phillip ii 1. These little words are the articulations of thought. The fellowship of the Holy Spirit, with the Father and his Son, and with one another, is the language of Scripture. The blessed Holy Spirit of God is the outflowing of God himself to give us fellowship in love and grace with all holy beings. Therefore the Holy Spirit is not a person, but the Spirit of the Deity. The Holy Spirit is also presented with the Father and his Son after the baptism of Jesus, but not in such a way as to indicate that the Holy Spirit is a person. The passage reads as follows: "But the Jesus being baptized, at once ascended from the water and behold, the heavens were opened, and he saw Spirit of God descending, coming upon him as a dove; and behold, a Voice from the heavens, saying, This is my Son the Beloved, in whom I am well pleased." Matt iii 16 17. Two things are here related as coming from God; 1st, his spirit as a dove; 2nd, his Word as a voice. Now, if the bodily form of a dove indicates personality, then that particular local and circumscribed form is the representative person of the Holy Spirit. But this would be absurd. The Holy Spirit is not a personal bird. There was a reason why it came in the form of a dove upon Jesus, but it did not stay in that form; for on the day of Pentecost it came in the form of tongues of fire and as a mighty wind. Acts ii 2-4. What does this mean? Jesus came dovelike with a message of peace in the Spirit to the Jews, but they did not receive him; then on the day of Pentecost the Spirit came as a shaking wind and tongues of fire, indicating the removal of Judaism and the fiery message against the Jewish nation. The Holy Spirit, therefore is not a personage; but came in the form of a dove to indicate the form of work through Jesus to the Jews and to all to whom the word of grace comes.

Another instance in which the Holy Spirit is mentioned with the Father and his Son is in Matt xxviii 19, "Baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit." This passage teaches that we should be baptized into the things that the name of the Father signifies, and likewise into the things that the name of the Son signifies, and also into the things that name of the Holy Spirit signifies. It does not mean into the person of the Father and into the person of the Son, and into the person of the Holy Spirit. We cannot be baptized into the person of the Father, for the Father personally is in heaven; and we could not be baptized into the person of the Son for the same reason. Therefore this passage does not assert or prove personality to the Holy Spirit. But we go further. For, when we consider what the name of the Holy Spirit stands for, we see positively that the Holy Spirit is not a person. The name of the Holy Spirit, as we have previously seen in this article, stands for the living water, the quickening power of God; therefore it is not a person. Again the Spirit is mentioned with the Father and his Son in 1 Pet i 2, but not in any way to indicate personality. Peter there speaks of Christians as being elect "according to the foreknowledge of God, Father, in holiness of Spirit, into obedience and sprinkling of blood of Jesus Christ." The blood that sprinkles us is not a person, and the Spirit that makes us holy is not a person.

We read in Scripture of "the throne of God and of the Lamb," Rev xxii 3, for these are persons; but the throne of a personal spirit separate from the Father, a third person of a triune god, is not mentioned in Sacred Writing. Such a "spirit" is a myth, and belongs to the fables of men (2 Tim iv 3-4), and the mysteries of Babylon (Rev xvii 5). We repeat: The true and ever blessed Holy Spirit is the Spirit of the Father and the Father is the only true and living God.—E. D. Gilford.

They Wrote Letters.

Brother Huggins:

I have preached four times in the Christian Church by the request of the Elders and members of the body. I expect them to ask me to preach for them again as I learn their regular minister will be absent. If they request me to preach I will fill the place and preach what I consider to be the truth. I will not handle the Word deceitfully. I hope that I may get some of these interested in the truth in this way, and probably get an opportunity of having some of our preachers to hold a series of meetings. I know quite a number have expressed themselves—both to myself and others as being interested in what I have already done. I do hope and pray that the Lord will open a way for an entrance for the furtherance of his cause in our city. You know how hard it is to overcome the deep prejudice that exists towards those of our faith, especially where it has no following.

I expect to go to Morse Mill, Missouri, Sunday week and preach Saturday evening and Sunday.

I notice through our paper the meetings you have occasionally at different points. May the Lord bless you in your efforts for his truth, is my prayer.

Yours in hope.

PETER JEFFREY.

Brother Huggins:

The Young People's Society of the Church of God in Cleveland, Ohio, had a particularly joyous time at their last meeting, held January 15, 1909.

At this meeting they added nine resident members and one non-resident member. Sister Jessie Kauffman, of Springfield, Ohio, became a corresponding member, while Sister Jessie Herron, Florence Herron, Alberta Lang, Alice Tomlinson, Clifford Grove, Howard Goss, Earnest Blythe and Bert Mearman, became regular members.

We are all looking forward to the time when we may call all these young folks brothers and sisters. May the time soon come.

We meet every third week at the homes of the different members, to build each other up in our most holy faith, and see if in any way we may help the cause of truth, either among our brethren or among those outside the faith.

In the last sixteen meetings we have collected $41 48, and of this we have spent $29.70 in helping those in need. We also try to cheer all the aged and infirm ones; also those who are ill or in trouble of any kind.

Our Corresponding Secretary reported sending 58 letters in the year just past. This includes the letters written to non-resident members as well as to those isolated ones of whom we have heard.

We wish to extend a hearty invitation to all young folks to join hands with us that we may help each other and finally be ready when our Lord shall claim his jewels.

EDNA M. COWELL.

Brother Huggins:

A Happy New Year to you! We were very much disappointed that you could not be with us during the Christmas holidays, for so many had expected you out then; but we did not wish to be selfish, for we know others were anxious to have you with them too.

We all spent a very pleasant vacation. Our Bereans met three Saturdays in succession during the holiday season. Other times we meet twice a month. We are all so glad that we have been successful in forming the organization of Bereans, and feel that it will do much good. We now have nineteen members, and all take a great interest in the study. Some of the lessons are hard, but we try to get them, for our purpose is to get a knowledge of the truth of divine revelation. Our president is Sister Eva Wilson, and we think we have the right one in the right place.

How we wish we could have ministers to deliver unto us some excellent sermons real often. We considered ourselves quite fortunate in having you and Brother Wilson with us after the Missouri Conference. Brother Wilson has been here once since then. We certainly feel grateful to him for his kind words of encouragement to the class. Brother Jeffray of Illinois, came out once. We also enjoyed his visit very much.

But, if we can't have ministers as often as we wish, we have some very good literature in our homes—good books and papers, as THE RESTITUTION, etc., and from these we get different ideas from different minds. Being personally acquainted with the different writers, the paper holds a greater interest for the readers.

With best wishes for continued success through the New Year, I am

Your Sister,

Life's Time Table.

The train of life has a time table, plain and easily read. In order that we may reach the right destination, we should understand its connections before starting.

If a man die shall he live again? All the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come. Job xiv 14. If I wait the grave is my house; I have made my bed in darkness, and where is now my hope? xvii 13. That man does not now possess eternal life is very clear. He does not live forever (Gen iii 22), but is of few days and full of trouble (Job xiv 1). There is nothing in his natural and moral constitution which guarantees to him eternal life,—if he ever enjoys this blessing (see John vi 40, 47, 51, 53), it will be because it has been given him by God. It is a "gift," not a natural possession. "The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." However, this by no means argues—that it will be given to all men without distinction. The Scriptures clearly and emphatically forbid such a conclusion. "As sin hath reigned unto death, even so might grace reign through righteousness unto eternal life, by Jesus Christ our Lord." Rom v 21. This finds its basis first of all, in the favor of God, and secondly, in the faith and obedience of the one seeking to be justified. Rom vi 16; Phil iii 9. Without faith it is impossible to please God. Heb xi 6. "Faith" has to do with those "things" that are "not seen" but "hoped for," and is the "conviction," the confidence, that "those things" will become matters of experience and enjoyment. "Hope" and "conviction" can only exist where there is a promise.

According to Paul, "There is one faith," "one gospel." Gal i 6, 9. What is this gospel? The answer is—good news, or glad tidings, pertaining to the kingdom of God. Acts i 3. He who disbelieves the gospel, discredits God, rejects Jesus Christ, because he rejects the words spoken by him, Jno xii 47-50, which announce the gospel and are the words of eternal life. Jno vi 68. Because he hath appointed a day, in which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained: whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, In that he hath raised him from the dead. Acts xvii 31.

The word resurrection means, "A rising again," chiefly the reviving of dead to life again, or their return from the grave. If the dead rise not, then they are "perished," even those who have "fallen asleep in Christ." 1 Cor xv 18. Adam was disobedient, and died. How was the death penalty executed? By his expulsion from the garden and exclusion from the tree of life, "lest he eat of the tree of life, and live forever." Gen iii 22. Thus it is plain that the quality to "live forever" (which God claims for himself, Deut xxxii 40) was not inherently in Adam. This penalty passed through him to all men. "Man is mortal" subject to death. Job iv 17. "The dead know not any thing." Eccl ix 5. It will be observed that the "resurrection" pertains to the dead. If men have an immortal soul, that does not and cannot die, they have no need of a resurrection.

Let them understand that death is the "enemy" he is said to be in 1 Cor. xv. 26, "the king of terrors," Job xviii. 14, who reigns over them, Rom v. 14, until compelled by a Mighty One to yield them up, and they will know how to appreciate the meaning of resurrection. Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, today, and forevermore. "For yet a little while, and he that shall come, will come, and will not tarry." "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven, with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God. The dead in Christ shall rise first; then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air; and so shall we ever be with the Lord." 1 Thess. iv. 16, 17.

He is "the resurrection and the life." John xi. 25. "Christ our life" is to appear. Then they who are his shall appear with him in glory. Col. iii. 4. Be like him, John iii. 2, fashioned like unto his glorious body, Phil. iii. 21; be partakers of the divine nature. 2 Peter i. 4.

What shall be the end (the finality) of them that obey not the gospel of God? 1 Peter iv. 17. Paul solemnly avers that the end of such is destruction." Phil. iii. 18, 19. Thus it is seen that the destruction of this class is final. Then "many of them," Dan. xii. 2, "remain in the congregation of the dead." Prov. xxi. 16. "Like sheep they are laid in the grave." Psa xlix. 14.

Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ, who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works. The Lord direct your hearts into the love of God, and into the patient waiting for Christ. The Son of Man shall come in his glory; then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory; and before him shall be gathered all nations. Matt. xxv. 31. With him shall be those of the little flock, Luke xii. 32, for whom "the Father's good pleasure" designs the kingdom, as it has been appointed to him. Luke xxviii. 28-30.

May we all follow the Good Shepherd's voice, is the prayer of your Sister in that Blessed Hope.

DO NOT forget to renew your subscription when it expires.

Men will learn who is selfish and who is disinterested. And men who have climbed up by pulling others down, and who have sought to build their own houses by tearing down the houses of others, will see that their hopes and plans end in ruin and chaos while dwellings of the faithful will stand secure upon a rock.

The tide will turn; if not now, by and by; if not here, hereafter; if not in time then in eternity; and we shall see that all things have been working for good for those who love the Lord, and who are called according to his purpose.

An Ananias lie is a barefaced falsehood, half of a fact is a whole falsehood. The one who gives the truth a false coloring is the worst kind of a liar, and should be drummed out of camp.

OUR offer of the next two months for 10 cents is meeting with response in some directions. Will all make a little effort and put our paper in several thousand new homes.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, JAN 21.
THE TRIAL OF PETER AND JOHN. ACTS IV. 5-20.

Golden Text. "They were all filled with the Holy Spirit and they spoke the Word of God with boldness." Acts iv. 31.

There are various kinds of trials. Trials of strength, of patience, of endurance, and of faith. The trial of Peter and John was different. Let us see. The last lesson was about these two apostles going up to the temple and healing a lame man This brought a great crowd together, and Peter preached to them about the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and God's Son Jesus Christ. The apostle accused his hearers with having killed the Prince of Life; but God had raised him from the dead. Acts iii. 12 15.

This bold preaching of the resurrection of Jesus, grieved and angered the priests, the captain—ruler—of the temple, and the Sadducees. The priests would not believe that Jesus was raised from the dead. They had direct proof from the Roman guard that was set to watch the sepulchre. Matt. xxviii. 11-15. The Sadducees denied all and any resurrection, Mark xi. 18. For these reasons they were annoyed and angry at the preaching of Peter and John, and they put them in prison. This did not prevent about five thousand men from believing what the apostles preached. Acts iv. 1-5.

This brings us to the trial of Peter and John. They had been kept in prison all night. In the morning they were brought before what is now called an ecclesiastical court. A priestly, ministerial, or religious court, where men are tried for heresy. For preaching something the professing church does not believe. The court that tried Peter and John was called the "Sanhedrim" the Great National Council of the Jews. They called it "The Great Sanhedrim" or "The Great Council of Justice." Notice the trial, see if there was any justice given the two apostles.

This court was made up of the chief priests, elders and scribes. They had power to try all "religious" cases, in fact all cases except offences against Roman authority. Seventy persons composed the Sanhedrim. Caiaphas was then the high priest, Annas had been, and was still a great power in this body, and often called the high priest. In the face of all the evidence they could not but believe, or at least allow that a great miracle had been wrought by the apostles. So they asked—By what power, or by what name, have ye done this?—Then Peter filled with the Holy Spirit said..... that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth whom ye crucified, whom God raised from the dead, even by him, doth this man stand here before you whole. This is a clear and concise answer to the question, and the healed man was there in person to prove it. It may be thought by some that Peter should have stopped there, that he had said enough, having fully answered the question. He was not at liberty to say just thus and so. In Matt. x. 16-20 we find instructions on this point from their Master. He said, You will be delivered up to the councils.....before governors and kings for my sake.....take no thought how or what ye shall speak; for it shall be given you in that same hour—time—what ye shall speak; for it is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father which speaketh in you.

The Spirit of the Father moved these men to tell the Great Council—the most dignified, and bigoted religionists on earth—some very offensive truth. Just let us try to think seriously of two Galilean fisherman positively asserting before that highly learned court that the name they despised above all names, was the only name by which they could obtain salvation.

Peter and John were unlearned and ignorant in comparison with the Sanhedrim, or other worldly wise men, but they had the learning and wisdom that made them "friends of Jesus." John xv. 14, and Sons of God, 1 John iii. 1. "The righteous are bold as a lion." Prov. xxviii. 1.

In secret conference the council said—What shall we do with these men? Why did they not commend them for the work they had done, and send them forth with endorsement, and encouragement to continue the grand work they had so kindly begun? The council cared nothing for the healing, nothing for the joy, nothing for the praise and glory to God. They, the learned and pious, the highest court had been openly accused by these two illiterate men of a terrible crime. The most heinous and wicked. We will not here charge them with positively knowing the real depth of their wickedness, but they very well knew that they had condemned and caused the death of a man—Jesus—after an unfair, unjust, a mock trial. They had stubbornly refused to consider any thing like justice. The trial of Peter and John did not even have the outward appearance of justice. Having no cause against them, they used the great power of their position to threaten and commanded them. They would have had strict obedience from the two apostles if they had commanded them lawfully to do right, but they would not consider such a charge; for it would have been wrong for them not to do as Christ commanded. Obedience to God and Christ is righteousness.

Next Lesson. "True and False Brotherhood." Acts iv. 32 37; v. 1 9.

ANY Berean desiring Berean pins, address our treasurer, Wm. Hardesty Box 261, Oregon Ill. Also send all dues to Bro. Hardesty.

Any desiring Berean booklets, send to prudent Anna Drew, 629 N. Galena Ave, Dixon, Ill.

Those desiring tracts, make it known to the Tract Committe, Anna L. Adams, 698 Peoria Ave., Dixon, Ill., and the same shall be sent free of charge, but any free will offering will be gladly accepted by that committee.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor

The Elements of the Kingdom of God, is the title of an eighteen page tract by Brother T J Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He sets forth that a kingdom cannot exist without a King, his cabinet officers, territory, a capital city, subjects, laws. Brother Daniel will send this little tract to you at 10 cents each, or $1 00 a dozen. Send direct to him for them.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John G Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

THE MESSENGER

Is the name of a religious monthly magazine advocating the coming of the Kingdom of God, the return of the Lord Jesus, and the hope of Eternal Life. Published in Glasgow, Scotland. Subscriptions received by the American agent, William G. Rothe, 970 St Marks ave, Brooklyn, N. Y. 1 copy 87 cts, 2 copies 69 cts, 3 copies 97 cts, 5 or more copies 25 cts each copy per year. Sample copy on application.

"The Kingdom of God," is the title of a tract written by T J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom; second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist; third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ. Address T J Daniel, Magazine Ark

BROTHER John Foore of Parsons, Kansas, realizing that his preaching days are getting short, as he is nearly 70 years old, has issued a series of 10 tracts. They have cost him a considerable sum, and he offers to supply them to the brethren on most liberal terms. The average cost of these tracts is about 10 cents each, and he offers to send them at cost. Also he says that where people are too poor to pay for them he will send them to such free if they will send name and address. The subjects treated are as follows: The Great Divine Healer vs. last day healers, The stature of Christ The restitution, The kingdom of God, Law and testimony, The judgment, Is baptism essential to salvation, Life and death. Signs of the end, Through the second vail, Three days and three nights, Election and predestination. Let any one wishing these tracts send direct to John Foore, Parsons, Kan

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to the word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

AN EXPOSITION of Isa. vii 14 16.

A booklet by Robert G. Huggins, of 3502 Woodland Ave, Cleveland, Ohio, and designed specially for the brethren. Plain, brief, true, thoughtful, logical. Price for those who want to pay 5cts, for those who want to pay the postage only, one two-cent stamp, for those too poor or who do not want to pay anything free. On such terms every brother and sister in the United States and Canada should read it. Send as above.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Address W. H. Wilson, 420 North Willow Ave, Austin Station, Chicago Illinois.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 866 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Then remember McCall Patterns sold for the United States than of any other make of pattern. This is on account of their style, accuracy and simplicity.

McCall's Magazine (The Queen of Fashions) has more subscribers than any other Lady's Magazine. One year's subscription (12 numbers) costs 50 cents. Latest number, 5 cents. Every subscriber gets a McCall Pattern Free. Subscribe today.

Lady Agents Wanted. Handsome premiums or liberal cash commission. Pattern, Catalogue of fashions and Premium Catalogue (showing 500 premiums) sent free. Address THE McCALL CO., New York.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think they are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon? Or have no use for a God who will punish sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it forever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stuck together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not use such it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Odors and Flowers.

O, some while I am living, if sorrow wrings my heart,
Then sympathetic kindness will thrills of joy impart:
My cheeks when cold in death will not be wet with tears;
My heart can sense no love when warm life disappears.

Bring alabaster boxes, bring spikenard's sweet perfume
Before the grave is opened—before the hearse's plume—
Nods sadly at my doorway—can odors then avail
When I am in my coffin, all silent chill and pale?

If you have wreaths of blossoms, Oh bring them to my home,
Let them exhale their fragrance before the mourners come
To weep around my casket; for what avails the sweet
When I no longer sense it, when heart has ceased to beat?

I want the joys of sunshine when darkness glooms my way,
I want the friendly soothing before the final day:
Love cannot scatter shadows, when fearful life is past,
Speak now your words of loving—the end is coming fast.

The blossoms may have beauty upon my coffin lid,
But when my eyes are cryless—beneath that cover hid,
I cannot sense their fragrance, nor on their colors gaze.
Bring flowers to me living—speak now your words of praise.

The Bible and its Message. Number 4.

In connection with our subject we wish to devote one article to the Prophets. Moses said: The Lord thy God will raise up unto thee a Prophet from the midst of thee, of thy brethren, like unto me, unto him shall ye hearken. Deut xviii 15 and 18. Moses and Jesus are here called prophets. As the Jews were partial to Moses as a prophet so should they have been to Jesus. If ye believe Moses ye should believe me, as Moses spake of me. Moses was the greatest of the prophets. Enoch is called a prophet by Jude 14. Enoch, also the seventh from Adam, prophesied of these, saying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousands of his saints.

In fact all the Ancients spoken of in Heb xi are considered prophets. A prophet was God's, Jehovah's messenger to convey the message to the people. This message was often delivered to them by an angel from heaven. Again through a vision. The prophets are naturally divided into major and minor. There are four major and twelve minor prophets. Jeremiah, Daniel and Ezekiel were of the captivity. Daniel and Ezekiel were carried into captivity by the king of Babylon. Isaiah and Jeremiah continued longest as prophets. Jeremiah continued as a prophet for the period of fifty years, Isaiah for forty years. These two prophets suffered many hardships and persecutions. Isaiah prophesied from 740 to 700 B. C. Jeremiah 627 to 577 B. C.

These two prophets resided at Jerusalem, the capital of Judah, the southern kingdom. There is little known of their death. Obadiah and Joel are of the ninth century, or of the Pre-Assyrian period. The first of these directed his prophecies against Edom. The nations are summoned by Jehovah's messenger to make war against Edom. It was for his inhuman behavior toward his brother Jacob that this sentence is pronounced. Edom rejoiced when Jerusalem was taken and sacked by a foreign enemy. Edom perished but Israel survived. Obadiah's prophecies reach beyond that of Edom and Israel. He speaks of the final restoration of Judah and Israel in their land when they shall no more be removed.

Little is known of Joel. The name was not an uncommon one. It is significant. It means Jehovah is God. Joel was a native of Judah. His home was in Jerusalem or its immediate vicinity. He speaks of Zion and the children of Zion. He frequently refers to the temple and its worship. His prophecies not only relate to the punishment of the Jewish nation and Jerusalem, but to the distant future when the nations will be summoned to Jehovah's tribunal to answer for the wrongs they have done to his people. Joel iii 8. In that day of terror Jehovah will be his people's refuge. Jehovah's presence will be manifested in the midst of a pardoned people. Joel iii 16 to 21.

Amos, Hosea, Isaiah and Micah are the prophets of the Assyrian period. During their period the northern kingdom, Israel was weighed in the balance and found wanting. They, the ten tribes were carried away into captivity and Assyrians were planted in their land and were the Samaritans of Christ's day. Amos and Hosea prophesied to Israel and Isaiah and Micah to Judah. Amos and Hosea were in part contemporary but Amos was somewhat the earlier of the two. They both commenced their ministry in the reign of Jeroboam II. Their prophecies related to the downfall of Israel which occurred 750 B.C. by the Assyrian king. In the book of Amos we find the Jehovah God made prominent. He prophesies in the name of the Powerful One. We find these expressions viz., Jehovah the God of hosts, the Lord the God of hosts, Jehovah the God of hosts, the Lord. In the R. V. God and Lord printed in capitals represent the sacred name JHVH, which the Jews would not pronounce. In place of that name was read Adonai—Lord. When Adonai was with Elohim—God, it was Lord God. Jehovah God, God the Lord. Great reverence was paid to this sacred name. It was the Yahweh name revealed to Moses and the Ail name revealed to Abraham. It is this name that we take when baptized into the name of Jesus, the Yahweh—Eloah. If faithful we in the resurrection become the Yahweh Elohim. Eloah meaning one, Elohim many. This is the numerous seed promised to Abraham when he had offered Isaac as a burnt offering. Gen xxii 17, 18. Hosea was a younger contemporary of Amos and an older one of Isaiah and Micah. The word came to him in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah kings of Judah. Hosea's prophecies related to the northern kingdom. To its destruction and the final destruction of the city of Jerusalem and the dispersion of the Jewish people. However he closes with their future restoration and greatness as a nation. Also that Israel and Judah will again be planted in their land and shall not be removed. I will heal their backsliding, I will love them freely; for mine anger is turned away from him. xiv 4. This will be accomplished that God may be all in all.

Isaiah and Micah both delivered their prophecies to Judah. Isaiah during forty years, Micah from 735 to 725 B. C. Isaiah was one of the greatest of the prophets. He was more diplomatic than others of the prophets. If Judah attempted to make an alliance with another nation he declared that they were forsaking Jehovah God and were breaking the covenant which had been made with their fathers. They were informed that the arm of Egypt and Assyria were not strong enough to protect them. Only the arm of the Eternal One could do that. He spoke of the restoration of the kingdom to the Son of David. I will create Jerusalem a rejoicing and her people a joy. They are the seed which the Lord hath blessed.

His Messianic prophecies are very prominent. "Out of the stock of Jessie shall come forth a shoot, and a branch out of his roots shall bear fruit." This is the corn of wheat that fell into the ground. He was raised from the dead and will produce much fruit. John xii 24. Micah's message is one of judgment. We learn through this prophet of the extreme wickedness of the people and the judgment that Jehovah God would surely bring upon them, of the utter destruction of the northern kingdom. His closing prophecy is full of good things. He concludes with, Who is a God like unto thee? Forgiving iniquity and passing over transgressions for the remnant of his heritage. He retaineth not his anger forever, because he delighteth in mercy. He will turn again and have compassion upon us. He will subdue our iniquities. Thou will show thy faithfulness to Jacob and thy mercy to Abraham, which thou didst swear unto our fathers from the days of old. The prophets of the Chaldean period are Nahum, Zephaniah, Habakkuk, Jeremiah and Ezekiel. Their prophecies began about 640 and continued until about 577. Of these prophets Nahum is probably the earliest. His message was to that wicked city Nineveh. He told of its certain and utter destruction. The Assyrian empire has passed off the stage of action. The judgment of Jehovah God has been executed and the Chaldean period has emerged. These governments have all been cruel to God's chosen people and they have each in its time suffered.

This prophet spoke with such definiteness that not a vestige of the wicked city of Nineveh was left. The very site of this city remained for centuries unknown. She pitied none and there is none to pity her while the prophet Nahum pronounced the judgment against Nineveh alone, Zephaniah proclaimed an universal judgment. He saw that Jerusalem must first suffer. Judah has violated the covenant made with the fathers and must suffer the consequences that she may be purified. In morals and religion she had been corrupt. "Her princes in the midst of her are become roaring lions." "Her prophets are light and treacherous persons." "Her priests have profaned that which is holy." They have done violence to the law. They have not spoken according to the law and the prophets.

The prophets of the restoration were Haggai and Zecharish and Malachi. After the captivity the dispersed were permitted to return and rebuild the walls and temple in troublesome times.

The first two of these prophets were raised up to recall the people to their sense of duty. The workmen had become discouraged, and their voice again aroused them to their task of rebuilding the city and temple. Malachi lived at the time that the temple service had been restored, and relates to the [illegible] into which the people [illegible]. The history of the restoration should be [illegible] in connection with Ezra and Nehemiah.

Trusting the above brief history may be helpful to the readers of THE RESTITUTION, we submit it to them.

Your brother in the one faith.

D. C. ROUNSON.

Notes by the Way.

My last Notes ended with my arrival at the home of Brother and Sister Haupt, at Crowley, Louisiana, where I spent Christmas day. They are old time acquaintances of mine. I have known Brother Haupt for over twenty-five years, and Sister Haupt who was a daughter of our Brother and Sister L. Z. Baker, of Aurora, Illinois, from early childhood. I baptized them more than a quarter of a century ago.

While I was at Hammond, Louisiana, I found Ella and Bessie, of the Pine Woods Bible Class, were studying Esperanto, the World's International Language. Brother Haupt introduced it to them at the time he baptized Alfred, the son of Lud and Carrie.

On arriving at Crowley, he explained it to me. I found that he had already learned it and is now in personal correspondence with strangers in many nations. While I was at his home he received correspondence from Russia, France, Germany and England, and all understood each other like as though they were using their mother tongue. This was marvelous in my eyes. It dawned upon my mind that this must be the way created of God, to carry "the gospel of the kingdom into all the world as a witness," prior to "the end," as spoken of in Matt. xxiv. I at once commenced its study. Sister Jessie Kauffman, of Ohio, has written to me requesting me to explain it through THE RESTITUTION. I will do so, in a brief manner at this point.

Esperanto is an auxiliary language invented by a Polish oculist, Dr. Zamenhof, now resident at Warsaw, Russia. In 1887, he published his scheme at Warsaw, Russia. At first the progress was slow. Russia was the place of its first activity. Finally clubs were formed and periodicals started. Polish and Russian classics were translated into it, demonstrating it to be a living tongue, with a splendid style and spirit of its own. There are now hundreds of books, of high literary excellence printed in Esperanto, some of which I will name:—The Song of Roland; four of Shakespeares plays; large parts of Aeneid; the Iliad and of the Bible. The Word of God is in parts being translated into it. I have seen it with my own eyes. I tell you, beloved in the Lord, this is no fad, but a living reality.

The First World's Congress was held at Boulogne, France, in 1905; the last one was held last August at Dresden, Germany. Two thousand people representing forty nations, and as many languages were present. The proceedings were conducted in this International Idiom. The King of Saxony, [illegible] the Honorary President. [illegible]ited States Government was [illegible]y Major Paul F. Staub. [illegible] presented by Prof. Shi[illegible] Imperial University. Emperor William of Germany telegraphed his approval.

Esperantists are found not only in the chief nations of the world, but also among the Arabs, Egyptians, Fijians, Zulus, Japanese, Turks, Syrians, Persians, Madagascarans, Hindus, and other races. It is not only a nearly perfect language, but the easiest language in the world to learn. The grammar may be mastered in six hours by a person having a common school education. Such an one ought to be able to read, translate and speak the language in six months time.

There are about two thousand root words, many of which are already known to us by which we are enabled to do the work of 185,000 words in the English. There are no exceptions to Esperanto grammar rules, no irregularities, the pronunciation is shown by the spelling. One writer said: "It is easier to learn the whole grammar of Esperanto, than a single irregular French verb."

It is estimated that there are now over a million Esperantists in the world today, and at the present rate of increase may be near two million at the close of this year. Some seventy-five periodicals use it. There is a magazine in Chicago, devoted entirely to its use. Near twelve hundred societies are devoted to its propaganda.

Q. Can the Gospel of the Kingdom be sent into all the world today?

A. It can. Different nations print yearly directories giving names and address of Esperantists, which can be purchased for little money. I can purchase thousands of addresses in Chicago, today for six cents.

In closing this part of my "Notes," I will say that I started its study near Christmas, and I am making satisfactory progress. I expect by the time I arrive at home next spring to be able to use the language in a practical manner.

My plan is, that if I should receive sufficient financial encouragement, when I arrive at home, I will purchase Esperanto type, which is made in Chicago, and print tracts on the Gospel of the Kingdom in this International Language, of the size which can be mailed in a letter envelope. Then if we can form an Association, who will take these tracts and buy envelopes and postage stamps, and by use of these directories, mail them to all nations, the expense among many would be small.

I would like to have the names of those who favor this plan. If I can have them now, a plan can be formulated for such an organization, by next Spring. It is important that as many as can do so, should learn this language; it will help materially to do so. All the books necessary to learn it can be purchased for about forty-five cents, in Chicago. A teacher is not necessary.

Bidding good bye to the dear believers at Crowley, I started for Alvin, Texas.

On arriving there Mr. Carlton sent a carriage to take me to his home. On arriving there I was warmly welcomed by Sisters Carlton and Bently. These two isolated Sisters dearly love the Blessed Hope, it is their delight by day and by night, it is a pleasure to be with them, and converse on these topics. While circumstances were such that it was not convenient to hold any meetings, yet our visit was not in vain. They so seldom see any one of the faith, it is a treat to them to meet one, ask questions for information, and take sweet counsel one with another. I shall long bear in sweet memory my visit with these dear children of God.

Alvin, might be called a garden of delights. Mr. Carlton took me to see a beautiful Orange orchard, owned by Mr. Webster. What a beautiful sight it was. The trees were as full of fruit as they could hold, without breaking down. The weight of oranges bowed them down like weeping willow trees, until the fruit touched the ground. Mr. Carlton had several branches cut off a tree, with the oranges hanging on the twigs, for me to send home. He also gave me several bunches of Kunquots, a Mexican fruit, they look like yellow plum tomatoes; they are of the flavor of an orange and a lemon combined. Sister Carlton gathered an exquisite bunch of roses and other flowers, from her garden, and together with the oranges Mr. Carlton boxed them up and sent to my wife. It was a delight to my family, as they had never seen the oranges hanging on the twigs.

He next showed me his own fruit farm, containing 000 Cape Jasemine bushes, ten acres of oranges, and some 1800 fig trees, and eight acres of strawberries. I saw strawberries displayed for sale in the store windows at Alvin.

He then took me to a large fruit farm outside of Alvin a few miles, run by a man named Stout. This farm was in full bearing, and consisted of 1000 orange trees, and thirteen and a-half acres of fig trees, together with other fruits. Mr. Stout had built a large factory on his farm, in order to preserve his own figs. We eat oranges from this orchard which were delicious.

We passed by a Japanese fruit farm run by about thirteen Japanese. One of them had been to Japan to purchase trees to send to this farm. I feel truly indebted to Mr. Carlton and family for their kind hospitality.

My next visit was to Lissie, Texas, at the home of Brother and Sister Arnold, who are old-time believers, and are well known in Northwestern Illinois, especially at Lanark, Oregon, Plum River, etc. Brother Arnold had baptized his daughter and son-in-law. Three meetings were held at the Evangelical Church, and the remainder at the Arnold residence. I baptized two at Lissie, Brother and Sister Shelton. Brother Shelton was formerly of the Campbellite faith, and Sister Shelton of the Advent faith. Both of them saw that their faith was defective, and the baptism that they then received, was like their faith. May God preserve and keep them unto his heavenly kingdom.

On the Sunday afternoon I preached to them for the last time, at the conclusion of which I administered communion.

On the Monday morning I departed for Goldthwaite, Texas, having received an invitation to preach for the Christadelphians at this place. While these people may hold to the mortal resurrection error, they no longer make it a test of fellowship, but receive into communion all those who have believed the gospel of the kingdom, and been baptized for the remission of sins.

Dr. E. Wilson met me at the depot, and took me to his home, where I was very hospitably entertained by himself and family. They secured the Presbyterian Church for me to preach in. Dr. Wilson expressed his desire that I should preach for the Christadelphian State gathering next summer.

I am now at Brownwood, Tex. and will reserve this place for next time.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

W. H. WILSON.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, FEBRUARY 3, 1909. NUMBER 5.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of Kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Plymouth, Indiana, Feb'y 3, 1909.

The Balkan war-cloud has again passed and the sky is clear. This time it was a dispute over the amount that Bulgaria should pay to Turkey for her independence. The differences are settled through the mediation of Russia. In years past it has always been Russia's custom to ask a slight remuneration for such services, but the dispatches do not mention it in this instance. Wonder if the Czar has forgotten, or will take "toll" from each later on.

Word reached Plymouth Monday of the death last week at Los Angeles, California, of Sister Ella Roberts, wife of Brother A. C. Roberts. They formerly lived here, but went to California a few years ago hoping for benefit from the change. She has been a great sufferer for years, but was patient and hopeful always. Our Sister rests from all care, awaiting the coming of her Savior. We hope to have a full obituary later. May the Father in heaven "temper the wind" to our sorely tried brother, granting him strength to bear his trials.

Brother P. H. Bouk wishes us to announce in The Restitution that the new Church building at Fonthill, Ontario, will be dedicated February 14, 1909, and they extend a general invitation to all to attend the service. Brother L. E. Conner of Cleveland, O. is expected to be present and assist Brother Austin, so that all who attend will be well repaid for going. All who are within reach will surely make an effort to attend. The distance from Plymouth is all that keeps the Editor from being there. May God's blessing be with you, and our prayer is that from this new Church may go out an influence for good.

From Mrs. Augusta Pew, we receive intelligence of the death of her father H. H. Hall, of Converse, Indiana. The date is not given, but he died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Arbuckle Murphy, aged nearly ninety-three years. "He had carried his age well, and his alacrity and excellent state of preservation had made him an unique character for many years. He was confined to his room but three days previous to his death, which was the result of pneumonia." He leaves five children to mourn their loss. In early life he was a teacher of penmanship, when residing at Peru, Ind. It never was our privilege to meet Brother Hall, and only knew him by his writings, which have appeared in The Restitution at times. He was somewhat eccentric, and was extremely severe when writing of the fallacies of orthodoxy. His special aversion was the doctrine of the trinity, as set forth in the creeds of the day.

1 Cor. x. 16-21; xi. 20-30.

This subject of the Lord's Supper is one which we have often considered from the positive side—that is, of its proper observance; but, whether we consider it positively or negatively, the lessons are the same. If this sacred institution is not always observed rightly today, it is no proof of the deterioration of the body of Christ, since even in the Spirit-guided church there were those who did not discern the Lord's body.

Can we say that we abuse a thing by failing to use it? In many instances we can. The privilege of the Lord's Supper neglected, or even taken advantage of only occasionally, is an abuse of an institution left to us for our perpetual spiritual help. Those who come only occasionally to the Lord's table can not enter into the spiritual observance of it, because they are following, not the command of the Master, but their own inclinations.

The Lord's Supper is abused by those who keep it only in cold formality. There may be those who, while they recognize the divine request, partake of the loaf and the cup in the same manner in which the papist counts his beads. Nowhere is there such an opportunity for high and holy thoughts as when, in the silence of the Lord's house, we partake of the emblems of the blood and body of our Lord. Let us not imagine that we have done his bidding when our lips alone have taken part in the feast.

Need we say that the Lord's Supper is abused by those who partake of it with frivolous mind and behavior? To break off in the midst of foolish conversation and laughter, and go through the form of communing with the Lord, is to insult him in the presence of men. While it is a joyful feast because it looks to the time when he is coming again, we cannot be too sober nor reverent in our manner of keeping it.

The Lord's Supper is perverted when we make it an occasion for harshly judging others. More than once we have heard those who absented themselves from the table of the Lord excuse themselves on the plea that others were unworthy. Not only is this contrary to the spirit of the institution, but it is also violating the command of self-examination. He who, in the presence of the Lord who died for him, examines himself, will have no disposition to judge his neighbor.

We abuse the Lord's Supper when we go to it unprepared. Many who are careful to array their bodies suitably when they go to sit down to a banquet with men, give no thought to being spiritually prepared to sit down to feast with their Lord. The man who spends a part of the morning of the Lord's Day in absorbing the Sunday paper, or in going over business schemes, will hardly be able to give his mind to spiritual things when he comes to the Lord's table.

We do not rightly use this feast if we fail to call to mind the things for which it stands. When the Jews kept the Passover they were to remember how by blood they had been delivered from death in the land of Egypt. Then, in the midst of it all, they read the renewed promise of One who was to come. So the Lord's Supper is an everlasting pledge to the church. While we look back to the time when the blood of the Son of God was shed for us, we also look forward to the time when he shall come again.

Gold Nuggets.

Christ did not select the rich but poor fishermen to tell of greater riches than the mines of the worlds can produce.

He said "Lay not up for yourselves treasures on earth; lay up treasures in heaven, for where your treasure is there will your heart be also."

He warned of the deceitfulness of riches. The camel must be unloaded of its burden before it could get through the pass known as the needle's eye.

Those that have money can do much with their means for the gospel or much for the applause of men. They can even hide their designs and yearnings after notoriety from their own conscience under the cloak of religious zeal.

They may use of their plenty and because only the widow's farthing can be given by some, they boast of the great deeds their riches accomplish. Do these things pay? The one that has money may help much with his money as the poor fisherman casts his net into the unknown sea to save if possible the perishing. It is poor encouragement for him to work as though he were securing souls by the head or by the pound estimation to be made on the value of each soul "when you make good" or on delivery at a ready market. No man of God will accept help on a basis of that kind.

But they that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare and into many foolish and hurtful lusts which drown men in destruction and perdition. For the love of money is the root of all evil, which while some coveted after they have erred from the faith and pierced themselves through with many sorrows. But thou, O man of God flee these things, and follow after righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, meekness. "Fight the good fight of faith." It would be a great mistake for a general to use his means and men to build fortifications for those who for years had been engaged in deadly conflict against the principles he and his forces are upholding. It would be equally unreasonable for a leader in religious works to spend thousands in building palaces to the king and the priests of a Pentecost kingdom and profess to be waiting for the great King of the nations—our King.

Let us strive on though beset by difficulties. The riches "laid up" are more valuable than those accumulated. A farthing in a coming crown is worth more than millions given by the earthly rich.

If left alone in this world be careful about receiving help from the opposite sex. It may not be understood. If poor guard against the dominating claim of the rich. I would rather do my work in poverty and my legs carry me to the work, than to ride in the chariots of the rich and submit silently to their giving their force and means in support to the opposing cause.

Cheerfulness as a Companion.

To say "we are worried to death" is a common expression; but do we really comprehend the terrible truth of the remark? Do we realize that the hounds of care and anxiety and fretful inability may actually tear and torment us into paresis, or paralysis, or dementia, and as virtually worry us to death, as a collie dog worries a sheep, or a cat worries a mouse? And yet, if we are Christian men and women, worrying is just the [illegible] thing not needful; for the [illegible] sixty admonitions in the [illegible] it, and the ground is [illegible] by them that between the first "not" and the last, every unnecessary anxiety is met, and there is not a legitimate subject for worrying left.

Are we troubled about money matters? We are told to consider the fowls of the air; they sow not neither do their reap, nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?" Are we in doubt and perplexity? "I will bring the blind by a way that they know not. I will lead them in paths they have not known. I will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight." Are we sick? He has promised to make all our beds in our sickness.

Is the worry not for ourselves, but for wife and children that will be left without support and protection? Even this last anxiety is provided for "Leave thy fatherless children to me, and let thy widows trust in me, and I will preserve them alive." Now, if we really believe that God made these promise, how shameful is our distrust! Do we think that God will not keep his word? Do we doubt his good will toward us? When he says that he will make all things work together for our good, is the Holy One lying to our sorrowful hearts? Thirty years ago I was thrown helpless, penniless and friendless upon these assurances of God; and in thirty years he has never broken a promise. He is a God that keepeth both mercy and truth. I believe in his goodness, I trust in his care. I would not, by worrying, tell him to his face that he either has not the power or the good will to help and comfort me.

Worries live under a very low sky. They allow nothing for probabilities and "Godsends." They suffer nothing to go by faith. All times and all places supply them with material. In summer it is the heat and the dogs and the hydrophobia. In the winter it is the cold, and the price of coal. They take all the light and comfort out of home pleasures; and abroad their complaints are endless. Yet to argue with worries is of little use.

What remains for them then? They must pray to God, and help themselves. Egotism and selfishness are at the bottom of all worrying. If they will just remember that there is no reason why they should be exempted from the common trials of humanity, they may step at once on to higher grounds; for even worrying is humanized, when it is no longer purely selfish and personal.

It is usually idle people who worry. Men and women whose every hour is full of earnest business do not try to put two hours' care and thought into one. Even a positive injury or injustice drops easily from an honestly busy man. He has not [illegible] a catalogue of his wrongs, and worry about them. He simply casts his care upon him who has promised to care for him—for his health, and wealth, and happiness, and good name; for all the events of his life and for the [illegible] of his future.

Worriers would not like to [illegible] ten down all the doubt[illegible] have said of God, and [illegible] ured things they have s[illegible]; besides, they might consider they are often righteously worried, and only suffering the due reward of some folly of their own. Would it not be better to ask God to put [illegible] what they have put wrong; to [illegible] hold of all that is good in the present; to refuse to look forward to any possible change for the worse? Come, let us take cheerfulness as a companion. Let us say farewell to worrying. Cheerfulness will bid us ignore perplexities and annoyances and help us to rise above them. God loves a cheerful liver; and when we consider the sin and sorrow, the poverty and ignorance, on every side of us, we may hold our peace from all words, but those of gratitude and thanksgiving. Worrying is self-torment. It is always preparing "for the worst," and yet never fit to meet it.

Cheerfulness is a kind of magnanimity; it listens to no repinings; it outlooks shadows; it turns necessity to glorious gain; and so breathing on every gift of God, Hope's perpetual joy, it enables us, mid pleasant yesterdays, and confident tomorrows,—

To travel on life's common way,
In cheerful godliness.

Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for Strength. Phil. iv 4-13.

Trust signifies a resting of the mind on the integrity of justice or friendship of another; reliance, confidence, the person, or thing that is the ground of confidence, to rely on, to believe, to commit to the care of, in confidence, to hope, to be confident of something future, trusting, confiding. Then trusting in the Lord Jesus is to rely on him; to believe him; to be confident of something future; then if we find he has promised us something, and we rely on him, we expect that which he has promised.

What has he promised? He commanded his disciples to go into all the world and preach the gospel, he that believeth and is baptised shall be saved; he that believeth not shall not be saved. Then, here, conditions are given to us, whereby we may be saved. Are we willing to trust the One who made the promise, and rely on him and be saved? or are we going to trust ourselves and not believe the gospel that Christ is the author of, and not be saved when he comes to earth to reward the faithful?

What is the reward for trusting and obeying Jesus Christ our Lord? It is eternal life, which is the Gift of God through Christ. Then if we trust in Christ, and rely on the gospel he taught, we surely will be saved. If we trust in Christ we will obey his commands and be initiated into his body, and our name will be recorded in the Book of Life. Then, when he comes to earth to reward those that have trusted in him, they will be raised to eternal life, whose names are found written in the Book of Life.

Those that are found trusting in another gospel made by man, and not secured by the promise of God. Paul says we have the sentence of death in ourselves, and Holy Writ teaches if we trust in ourselves it is death! eternal death!! But to trust in God is life! eternal life!!! There is no promise of an eternal life only through Christ. God is not slack concerning his promises but will fulfill all—he has made a law that if we obey, we shall when death comes to us be laid in the grave to sleep until Christ comes, then the obedient ones will be raised to a life that has no end, and will ever be with Christ.

Are you wishing for eternal life? Then trust and obey Christ; for the promise is unto you, and your children, and to all that are afar off.

Yours, seeking for eternal life.

E. W. Knapp.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

Sister Thompson and myself visited the Springfield, Ohio, brethren a short time ago. Enclosed are our papers which we read on Sunday morning. You may publish in The Restitution for the edifying of others if you wish. We found them awake in Springfield, and hoping soon to have a Church building. I trust that you have fully recovered from your accident.

Yours in the Truth.

Beloved in the Lord:

Grace, peace and mercy be unto you from God the Father and our Lord Jesus Christ.

When Jesus was before Pilate, Pilate therefore said unto him, Art thou a king then? Jesus answered and said thou sayest that I am a King. To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth. Pilate said unto him, What is truth? And when he had said this he went out again unto the Jews.

The truth did not seem important enough to Pilate to enquire deeper into. The truth did not appeal to us until we were interested enough to enquire and prove if it were true, and we found 2 Peter i. 20, "Knowing this first, that no prophecy of the Scripture is of any private interpretation. Let us value the truth, and not be content with any man-made ideas of our eternal welfare.

We may be as Paul when he freely told the Galatians they had returned to the weak and beggarly elements they were in before they knew God; and says, Am I therefore become your enemy because I tell you the truth? Do we realize we should all be light-bearers, ministers of the truth? When a young brother was telling his relatives of the gospel of the kingdom and the things concerning the name of Jesus Christ, the relative said What are you telling me that for? He said, Because it is my business to do so. We are his witnesses. The truth that Jesus came to bear witness of with many miracles, signs, and wonders is that he was sent from God. John iii. 16. "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

May the truth ever abide and abound in us, and may we be careful to know only the truth. And the very God of peace sanctify you wholly, and I pray God your whole spirit, and soul, and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Ora M. Thompson.

Dearly beloved in the Lord:

"Grace be unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ."

The Psalmist says, "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

It is not always that brethren dwell together in unity, but when they do it is a good thing, it is pleasant to dwell together under such circumstances. Those who believe and teach the same things certainly ought to be in this happy relationship. Be of the same mind. Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus. In Ephesians i we read, "With all lowliness and meekness, with long-suffering, forbearing one another in love; endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace.

There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling. One Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all."

A belief in the one Lord, one faith, one baptism and one God ought to cause us to dwell together in unity. In these last days we have faiths many and even more than one baptism.

I see an inscription on one of the churches in our end of town "Believers Baptism." I suppose that means persons entering the church can have their choice of baptism. But the Lord says there is one baptism, or baptizo, immersion. In order to dwell together in unity it is necessary to be of one mind in regard to our faith and baptism.

In Acts ii 42 we read, "And they continuedly steadfastly in the Apostle's doctrine." The result was the most perfect church we have had and will have until the kingdom of God is set up. "And they continued steadfastly in the Apostles' doctrine and fellowship and in breaking of bread and in prayers." We see that they did more than to continue in doctrine, they assembled together to remember their Lord and to pray, which help to build them up in their most holy faith.

In Eph. iv 14, That we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive. But speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Christ. No if we are anchored to the one faith, we will not be carried about and tossed to and fro with every wind of doctrine. We are exhorted in Titus ii 7, "In all things showing thyself a pattern of good works; in doctrine showing uncorruptness, gravity, sincerity." If we all obey these commandments we cannot but dwell together in unity. In 1 Peter i 22 we read, "Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently."

Finally, brethren, farewell. Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace shall be with you.

The Kingdom.

The old Jewish Church, called Israel, was ruled by a king for a long time. The last king was Zedekiah who reigned about six hundred years before Christ. The kings and people had become so wicked that God overturned the kingdom. See Ezekiel xxi. 25, "And thou profane wicked prince of Israel whose day is come, when iniquity shall have an end, thus saith the Lord God; Remove the diadem, and take off the crown: this shall not be the same: exalt him that is low, and abase him that is high. I will overturn, overturn, overturn it: and it shall be no more until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him."

The word "until" shows us that it was not to remain overturned forever, and it was generally understood that Christ was the One that was to take the kingdom; but they mistook the time. Some, if not all expected him to take it at his first coming. Even his apostles and disciples were not thoroughly posted as to the time. See Acts 1 6, 7, 8. They asked him to restore it to Israel, but he told them it was not for them to know the time until they had been endued with the power from on high, and after the day of pentecost we nowhere read of them speaking of its being restored, but on the contrary they speak of it as in the future. See James i 5; Acts xiv. 22. Again, Luke xix. 11, 12, "And as they heard these things, he added and spake a parable, because he was nigh to Jerusalem, and because they thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear. He said therefore, A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return."

The Romans were in possession of Palestine at that time and if one man wanted to be king over any part of the territory he had to go up to Rome, for his commission, it was that, that Christ used as a simile. Christ is the nobleman. Heaven is the far country, and in due time he will return to sit on the throne of his glory and all the holy angels with him. Matt. xxv. 31.

Dear reader, which class do you expect to be with, the keeper of the goats, or the third class styled, These my brethren?

Let all strive to be one of his at his coming.

C. P. Graham.

Dear Restitution:

Please find enclosed three dollars to pay our dues for this year, and you may place the balance where you think best, either use it to help publish the paper or add it to the helping fund, as you think best. We love the dear old paper and hope and pray for it, and all that are connected with it. We love to read the letters written by the brothers and sisters, especially Brother and Sister Woodward, as we remember them so well, for we had the privilege of hearing them preach some splendid gospel sermons when they were out west. May the heavenly Father bless them and give them health and strength to preach many more as good, is my prayer.

Your brother and sister in Christ.

Mr. & Mrs. Sol Tetherow.

Editor Restitution:

I see my time has come to renew for the dear old Restitution, which I gladly do. I can't seem to get any one to sign for it. Enclosed please find two dollars. $1.50 to pay for my paper another year, and the 50 cents for the helping fund to use as you think best. May the Lord bless you and keep you, is my prayer, till some day when we all meet at Jesus' feet.

Sincerely,

Mrs. B Coleman.

Chasing Lies.

A lie is a bad thing to run at large. It damages, ravages and devours. More poisonous than a serpent, it often ruins not only health but reputation and usefulness. Every lie should be stopped. But whose business is it to chase a lie? Who let it loose? The man who let it loose is bound to catch it again; but a man of truth is under no obligation to chase and catch other people's lies. Suppose some man or a dozen men send forth a falsehood about me, am I obliged to spend my days and years chasing and contradicting it? By no means. Let those that made it attend to their own work, or meet the responsibility of it in the reckoning day. Every man concerned in sending forth a false statement must purge himself of it or give account to God for what he has done. God holds men to very strict accountability in these respects, and every man who thinks to dwell in God's tabernacle must look well to his words, and "refrain his tongue from evil, and his lips that they speak no guile."—Christian.

Many a minister preaches more religion in one month than he practices in a life time. Practice should be made to conform to the amount of preaching.

Subscribe for The Restitution to be sent to a friend. It will cost you but little—the result of seed sowing is safe in God's hands.

The copy for this department of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 3502 Woodland Ave. Cleveland, Ohio. Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

Let Us Pray.

Oh, Kind and Tender Parent, who has graciously invited us as Thy adopted children, to make known our wants to Thee, and to cast all our burdens upon Thee, assuring us that Thou carest for us,—and that the Spirit maketh intercessions for us with groaning which cannot be uttered. We gladly come to Thy call, oh, Father, and ask forgivness for all remissness, all shortcomings and thoughtlessness, and forgetfulness, and trespasses that we may feel Thy pardoning love toward us because of Jesus' name, that we rejoice in hope and go on from one degree of grace to another, till we appear before our Lord in Zion. We need Thy strength, oh God, as the trouble of the last days crowd upon us. We need wisdom from on high to direct our steps while all around us hearts are failing them for fear of some dread calamity ahead. May our hope of future life and glory be a firm anchor to steady us, so that we may outride all the storms of this life and land at last safe on the evergreen shore. Father, while we would bear up to Thee all the members of this household, we would especially pray for the aged and infirm ones,—and those languishing on beds of sickness; be very gracious to them, blessed Father; lift upon them the light of Thy countenance—may Thy presence ever be with them so that they may realize the promise that all things shall work together for good to them because they love and trust Thee.

Bless the dear lambs of the fold, oh, Father; preserve them, direct them, bless them, and at last save them with Thy great salvation. In Jesus' name.

Times of Restitution.

January 24th, Bro. D. C. Robinson, of Salem, Ohio, preached in Cleveland, morning and evening. We are always glad to hear our brother minister the Word, for he knows how to rightly divide it.

Bro. J. F. Wagoner, of Rochester, Indiana, writes: "By the way, why not make a valuable addition to our paper. I suggest this title: Gems of Truth from American Pulpits. Make choice selections from R. G. Huggins, M. Joblin, and as many others as you desire." We thank our brother for his good suggestion, and will act upon it, if we can get enough of our ministers to write for the purpose. After delivering a sermon, there is one seed-thought you have demonstrated and illustrated, and this you can write in almost the same words you used in the pulpit. From four to six pages will be long enough for one sermon extract. The following brethren and sisters have promised to write for the department Bro. Wagoner has suggested that we open in Ebenezer: D. C. Robinson, N. B. Robison. P. Neill, Mattie Neill, and, of course, Bro. J. F. Wagoner, as he is father of the proposal. We have brother Joblin's sermon MSS and can give extracts from them regularly. Will other ministers of our faith join us in this effort to improve our paper? Sometimes we hear a brother complain about THE RESTITUTION; that its subject matter is not what it should be, and yet that same brother never writes anything for the paper. Remember, our paper is just what we make it. The door, opening to a large field of usefulness, now swings open; will you enter it and labor for the Lord and his truth?

The Divine Design.

"As truly as I live, the whole earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord."

Th thing most lacking, and that is most needed in modern conceptions of religion, is continuity of thought. The "great gulf fixed" between this world and the other one—or rather the other two up and down conditions of existence that the theological creeds have impressed on the popular intelligence—is so vast that no mind of ordinary education can bear to take the leap in the dark. Only by dropping these fatal conceptions can we hope to arrive at anything like consecutive and logical ideas of Scripture revelations of the Divine purpose.

The very first thing in this revelations is the extent and limitation of the subject, and thus the concentration of the thought. The Earth is the picture; the Heavens are only the margin purposely left blank. The whole Earth is the extent, the complete unit—the stage with audience and actors—the drama strictly historical.

Now this kind of subject is just what appeals to the best thought of modern humanity; it develops to the fullest extent the utmost range of human sympathy, and so limits it as to bring it perfectly within the range of human experience and understanding. We as "humans" are in connection with the wildest tribes of central Africa, and with the darkest periods of human history, while other conditions and other beings of other worlds are unthinkable, undebatable, and as subjects, can enter into no sane conversation.

Again, this matter of unity, limitation and completeness of design not only appeals to the reasoning faculties, but to the artistic sense as well; to that sense of beauty and grace that is inate in developed intelligence. A beautiful building, a work of art, a neatly dressed person, gives us a sense of satisfaction—the answering result of expended effort, directed by skill, in good taste. The clean outline, the fine modelling, the fitness or richness of color, and above all the unity in diversity, the completeness of design—these are the stamps of higher intelligence whereby skilled minds recognize each other on sight. But where the drawing is bad, the coloring crude the design monstrous or nil—where silk hat trudges along with shabby shoes, such atrocity only appeals to the sense of the ridiculous.

This indeed is the condition of theology at the present day. With some excellent ideals, it is full of absurd inconsistencies, and like a machine with some of the pieces lost, it is useless for anything but old iron, and the melting pot. It can make no appeal to the higher intelligence and the best sympathies of the race, because of its disjointedness logically as well as denominationally, and because it deals with "other worlds" of the fairy story cast, that mature minds cannot take even an "academic interest" in, and hence the best humanitarian efforts of the time make it a special point to carefully avoid the least appearance of "religion" in the endeavor toward the "uplift of humanity."

What a refreshing consideration it would be for such to discern that they are working in the proper and only sphere of human usefulness. What an impetus it would give to righteousness to discover itself working together with God to bless the earth and fill it with his glory.

Sketches of Church History.

It is not an easy task to determine who among those who followed Luther are to be designated as reformers, and who are not, as those who held, and passed down to us the glorious doctrine of the Advent and the simple form of Apostolic church organization and government, are not called Reformers on the pages of history. We can only single out those here and there, who seem in our judgment to have been most prominent in this work. And even so, the task will be a long and tedious one, as merely to give names will not suffice.

Partly contemporaneous with Luther stand the names of Hugh Latimer (born in England 1470, burned at the stake 1555) surviving Luther but nine years, who believed that "the end of all things draweth very near, and that Christ would soon come in a cloud with power and great glory."—Nicholas Ridley (born about 1500, and burnt at the stake with Latimer) who held the same view, and Thomas Cranmer (born in England 1489, and burned a year later). Greene in his "History of the English People," says of Latimer that "No such preaching had been heard in England before his day," that "he was sensible, earnest, ironical, and denounced wrong with prophetical directness and fire, thrusting the image of the Virgin Mary out of his cathedral at Worcester and hinting that it ought to be burned at Smithfield."

Thomas Cranmer "was a representative of the religious revolution that had swept over England. His figure stood on the frontispiece of the English Bible," and Greene says that "the decisive change which had been given to the Reformation under Edward VI. was due wholly to Cranmer. The following quotation from his own writings gives his own views, "We ask that his kingdom may come for that as yet we see not all things subject to Christ; we see not yet how the stone is cut out of the mountain without human help, which breaks into pieces and reduceth to nothing the image described by Daniel; or how the only Rock, which is Christ, doth possess and obtain the empire of the whole world given him of the Father. As yet Antichrist is not slain, whence it is that we desire and pray, that at length it may come to pass and be fulfilled and that Christ may reign alone with his saints according to the divine promises, and that he may live and have dominion in the world according to the decrees of the Holy gospel and not according to the decrees and laws of man and the wills of the tyrants of this world."

Gold Dust.

The Christian is a hearer and doer of the Word.

If you make a promise, take care that it be so that no one may suffer by trusting you.

Proving the crookedness of other lives will not straighten your own.

Shun arguments, especially with the ungodly. It hurts us and makes no change in them.

The more we spread religion abroad, so much the more have we remaining, and so much the more richly does it flow back.

If God is your guide, he will be also your guard; he always protects whom he leads.

Upon what condition may we obtain immortality? "Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life." 1 Tim vi 12.

They Wrote Letters.

Brother Huggins:

I have been reading some remarks in THE RESTITUTION about the prayers of Brother Joblin. Some are for them, and some are against them.

Whether it is right or not right for his prayers to be printed, I don't think we who read THE RESTITUTION have any right to judge. If the one who publishes them does it for the good of the brethren, and the prayers are from the heart, and we who read them do so for the good we can get out of them; I cannot see why they are not a blessing. The brother knows why he prints them, and it lies between him and his God, if he is in the right or wrong.

I for one am glad they are printed, and that I am permitted to read them. I am one of the isolated ones; have not heard a gospel sermon in fourteen years. I take THE RESTITUTION, and would not be without it if in any way I can honestly do so. The short sermons that appear from time to time, and the prayer at head of Brother Huggins' department, are God-sent blessings to us isolated ones. I do not think it matters where or in what position we pray, if we from the heart ask what we need and believe Father will answer us if he deems it best for us.

Remember me in your prayers, dear ones in the faith, that my lamp may be found trimmed and burning when the Bridegroom comes.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 70.

[redacted] the story of my fa[redacted]tel in late numbers [redacted]TION, but yesterday, [redacted] W. H. Wilson kindly sent me [redacted]items, pertaining to that history that seem to me worth preserving, and I trust the readers of the dear old paper will pardon me for giving them.

Brother Wilson says:—"I was very much interested in reading in THE RESTITUTION the incidents you have given in your father's life, and while reading, two incidents came to my mind that you may not be aware of. Once while he was in Chicago preaching, he was our guest. He expressed a desire to see some of the sights of the city, and I accordingly took him to various points of interest, among which was the Board of Trade. We entered a few minutes prior to the opening of business and took our seats in the Visitor's Gallery. He was interested in viewing the beautiful interior of the structure, the ceiling of which was formed to represent the great arch of the heavens at night all studded with twinkling stars. He drank in deeply this beautiful representation of the divine work of the Great Creator, whom he so devoutly loved.

While sitting there his attention was called to the people rushing to and fro upon the floor, creating so much confusion. He said to me, 'I suppose there is some one here who is able to bring order out of this confusion when the time for business comes?'

I said 'No, Sir, the confusion will be much greater than it is now.' He replied, 'I cannot see how any one can do business amid such confusion.' The great clock pealed forth the time to start business. Every one rushed in great haste to several pits in which their interest was centered. The scene was that of confusion worse confounded. I apprehend that the confusion at the Tower of Babel could hardly have excelled it.

The men shouted and screamed at each other in distant parts of the pit, trying to make bargains with one another, what the voice could not do gestures made by arms and hands, talking by signal made up.

On an elevated platform was a blackboard and a telegraph instrument. A man receiving Market reports from other cities wrote them upon the board. All eyes were watching the entries upon this board.

When some radical change in the Market occurred, the wild scenes of confusion were simply indescribable.

The 'bulls' tossed, and the 'bears' squeezed the market. At every such point colossal fortunes were either made or lost. I was interested in watching the face of your father. He was as motionless as a marble statue, but I could see a busy mind at work. After awhile he broke the silence and said, 'My verdict of this whole business is, that it is the World in bloom!' A better verdict could never have been rendered.

Some years after this we removed [redacted] Louisiana and located two and [redacted]half miles west of Hammond, in a [redacted]ful pine forest. While there we [redacted]our father's painful afflic[redacted] month of March, while th[redacted] still held sway in Indiana, we were gazing with enraptured eyes upon the beauties of Springtime, a profusion of beautiful flowers surrounding us on every side. While viewing these my wife said, 'Let us send Brother Chaplin a can of rosebuds.' She then clipped a bunch of them of different colors and perfume, and packing them in the can, sent them to him. We very soon received an appreciative letter from him and a manuscript poem, entitled 'Odors and Flowers.'

The sentiment of the poem was that he preferred the flowers while he was living, in preference to the time when the nodding plume of the funeral hearse stood before the door, for at that time he could neither appreciate their beauty, form, color, or perfume.

The picture of the self-sacrifice of your father is before me. I would rather fall asleep in Jesus with a record like his than have all the wealth of the world."

Father's verdict as to the Board of Trade and the mad rush of those interested therein, marks as with prophetic finger the significance of the times in which we live.

If that scene represented "The World in Blossom," what will it be when the fruitage has ripened? "And he that sits on the clouds thrusts his sickle into the earth and the earth is reaped .....and the angel gathers the vine of the earth and casts it into the great wine-press of the wrath of God." Rev. xiv 16. 19.

Father says, in a beautiful poem, entitled

HARVEST AND VINTAGE.

'Tis the harvest of ages; the seed that was sown
In 'the field of the world" to ripeness hath grown,
And the reaper has come to gather the grain
That whitens on hill-slope, o'er valley and plain.

'Tis the vintage of ages—and see, the wild vine,
Is purpled with clusters that swell with the wine
Of madness and hate that soon like a flood
Shall gush red from the treading in wine-press of God.

For the Lord of the Harvest, the plants of his love,
Will gather, and shelter in garners above,
While the full grapes are crushed by the press of his ire,
And the wild vine that bore them is burned in the fire.

The Revelation of Jesus Christ.

ACTS II. 4-11.

In Acts ii. John is taken into the King's court in heaven and shown the inauguration of the new King, who alone is found worthy to receive power, riches, wisdom, strength, honor, glory and blessing. He had "become obedient unto death," even the death of the cross, and was therefore now "given dominion, glory and a kingdom, that all peoples, nations and languages should serve him."

The Lamb, the Lion of Judah, takes the book, the portfolio of state, 'the law and manner of the kingdom." Ps. ii 8; xxii. 28; lxxii. 1-20; Dan. vii. 13-14. Types Deut. xvii. 14-20; Gen xli. 37-46; 1 Sam. x. 24-25; xvi. 6-13; 1 Kings ii. 1-9. He proceeds to unseal his commission, and order and establish his kingdom with judgments and justice, and execute the judgments written.

Here, as is often the case, the prophet briefly outlines the prophetic field, and then returns again and again to give various lines of events, and fuller particulars in the same field. This act belongeth to the time of the end, the last end of the indignation, for the controversy of Zion is on again. The first seal reveals the symbol of a man of war who receives a crown. He rides prosperously to conquest. Psa. xiv. 1-6; Hab. iii. 9. His campaign goes on till the kingdoms of this world become the kingdom of the Lord and his Christ.

The second seal brings wars and insurrections. Isa. lxii. 13 25; Jer. xxv 29-38; Joel iii. 4-10.

The third seal brings bread famine; war has decreased grain growing.

The fourth seal brings death from many causes, details under the trumpets and vials.

The fifth seal brings the martyr's cry for vengeance; they rest yet a little season, and now comes in the great tribulation time of trouble, Mat xxiv. 21; Dan. vii. 21; viii. 12; xii. 1; Rev. iii. 10; xii. 12-18.

The sixth seal brings a great earthquake, Rev. vi. 12-16; xi. 13, 10, 18; Psalm xlvi; Isaiah xxiv. 19; xxix. 6. The sun became black as sackcloth of hair; Isaiah xiii. 10; Joel ii. 10; men hide themselves from the wrath of the Lamb.

After describing the sixth seal the prophet goes back and takes up Israel's interest, briefly sketching what shall befall them in the latter days. "Hurt not the earth, till we have sealed the servants of our God." "Can these dry bones live?" Thou must prophesy again. Ez. xxxvi. 37.

Now great industrial prosperity and wealth come with the resettling of the land, the temple is rebuilt and the sacrifices resumed. Ez. xxxviii. 8 13. The man of sin comes in his own name, places the abomination that maketh desolate in the holy place, the temple, scatters the power of the holy people, showing himself that he is god. Dan. vii. 25; viii. 13; xi. 36 39; Isaiah vi. 11-12; xvi. 1-5; Matt. xxiv. 15.

After the seventh seal the prophet again returns and under the seven trumpets gives more particulars of the judgments for the blood of saints, and the abominations, for their wickedness is great. Isa. lxiii. 5.

The seventh trumpet brings a crisis, the earthquake of the sixth seal; the nations were angry. Joel iii. 9-10; Rev. xvi. 12-14. The time of the dead, that they shouldst give reward to thy servants the prophets, and to them that fear thy name small and great.

A. S. CLOUSE.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

"Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel." 1 Cor. 9 4. Not a gospel, or another gospel, but the gospel which Jesus preached. It is the gospel that brought good news, joy and glad tidings of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. See what he has come for and what he has done for us. Some one may ask or think what did he do for us?

The believers of the gospel know that he laid down his life for us that we might have everlasing life. If we believe the gospel, the good news of the coming kingdom and obey the gospel we must then work out our own salvation with fear and trembling. We must labor and suffer reproach. Things wont run smooth all the time, we will get drawbacks or setbacks, or more clearly we may be tempted to do something which we ought not to do; then is when we are tried, but if we live of the gospel we will overcome temptation; but if it is another gospel we will fall by which we are tempted. Why? Because it has no foundation to bear us up.

This gospel which Jesus preached is the good news of the coming kingdom of God which God has promised since the world began. If we believe it, and have faith and hope for it, put our trust in the true and living God who is the God of all, especially of those that believe in him, 1 Tim. iv. 10; let the light shine by which we are called, for God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labor of love which ye have shewed toward his name in that ye have ministered and lived according to the gospel promises; for the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous and his ears are open unto their prayers, 1 Peter iii. 12. Trust in the Lord forever, for in the Lord Jehovah is everlasting strength. Isa. xxvi. 4.

Let us practice what we preach according to the gospel promises. "In all thy ways acknowledge him and he will direct thy paths." Prov. iii. 6.

"Stand up and bless the Lord,
Ye people of his choice,
Stand up and bless the Lord your God,
With heart and soul and voice.
Stand up and bless his glorious name
Henceforth forevermore.

J. GRIEF.

The Spirit Birth.

Being born of the Spirit is not some kind of a mysterious incomprehensible affair, as some people would have us believe. It is a change, a bodily change, that is, a change of nature. This change, or spirit birth, is variously spoken of by the inspired writers. They speak of it as a change, quickening of mortal bodies; 1 Cor. v. 2; redemption of body, Rom. viii. 11; clothed upon, and house from heaven, 2 Cor. v. 2; change of vile body, Phil. iii. 2; like Christ's body; a spiritual body, image of heavenly, raised incorruptible, put on incorruption, put on immortality, death swallowed up, 1 Cor. xv. 44 54; eternal life, Rom. ii. 7; cannot die, equal to angels, Luke xx. 36; partakers of the divine nature, 2 Peter i. 4; born of spirit, John iii. 5.

Therefore as long as we have not had this change, as long as we are mortal, corruptible, vile, earthly, natural, dying, we are of the flesh, and not born of the Spirit. When does Paul say that this change will come? "At the last trump."

In the resurrection morning all those who have run with patience the race, will be changed from flesh and blood to flesh and spirit, as was Christ.

Then they can say with him "I once was dead, but now I am alive for ever more." They will then be born of the Spirit.

CHARLES COOPER.

We may lay it down as an elemental principle of religion, that no large growth in holiness was ever gained by one who did not take time to be often, and long, alone with God.

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, FEB. 7.

"True and False Brotherhood." Acts iv. 32-37; v. 1-9.

Golden Text. "Lying lips are abomination to the Lord: but they that deal truly are his delight." Proverbs xii. 22.

As the true brotherhood is the most pleasant, interesting and profitable theme, we will give that the greater consideration. Like precious stones compared to building stones is the true brotherhood in the Lord, to all other men.

Since the days of Seth and Enos, Gen. iv. 26, we may say there has been a true brotherhood. Abel may truly be called the first brother, but judging from what is written, he had no company. Abraham had one brother in the Lord, Gen. xii. 8. Isaac had none,—Father, Mother and wife excepted,—Jacob had none, except we say his son Joseph. There were Moses and Joshua. Deut. xxxi. 14 Joshua and Caleb, Num. xiv. 6 10. David and Jonathan, 1 Sam xviii. 1-3

These examples show that among the thousands of people, there were very very few—at any one time—that enjoyed the benefit and pleasure of true brotherhood.

Coming down to the New Testament times we find the following expressions by Jesus the Son of God.

The multitude,—a great crowd—said "Thy mother and thy bretheren without seek thee." He said, Who are they? Getting no answer he pointed to his disciples—mentioned in Mark iii. 16 18—he said, "Behold my mother and my brethren! For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother, and my sister, and mother," Mark iii. 32-35. The true brotherhood was more dear, and precious, more to him every way than all relatives and friends. One reason may be given. They will be with him in his kingdom. When he sits on his father David's throne, Luke i. 32. The King on Mt. Zion, Psa. ii. 6. The disciples will be kings over Israel, Matt. xix. 28. Jesus will then be the Christ, the King of kings, and the true brotherhood will be established forever.

The true brotherhood was not complete with the calling of the twelve apostles. None are excluded from this brotherhood, but many—the multitude—exclude themselves. Jesus said I pray not for these—disciples—alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their Word, that they all may be one—one in us, John xvii. 20, 21. This prayer includes all true believers from the moment of that prayer to the last moment of the present dispensation,—the present gospel call. When the Lord himself shall descend from heaven, 1 Thess. iv. 16, and calls the general assembly of the church of the first born, Heb. xii. 23, and that new brotherhood is complete, and they sing a new song, saying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof; for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people and nation, and hast made us unto our God kings and priests, and we shall reign on the earth, Rev. iv. 9, 10.

It is much to be regretted that the fate, the doom, the swift destruction of Ananias and Sapphira did not there, then, and forever stamp out, and put an end to "false brethren." It may be well here to notice that some may think that Ananias had at least, a shade of excuse, for Peter said "Why hath Satan filled thine heart?" Some, a good many, have been heard to say,—when taken to task for wrong doing, or when making voluntary confession, "The devil tempted me" and other strong expressions to this effect. Such expressions of blame come from moral cowardice, and began with Adam, The woman you gave me is to blame, Gen. iii. 12. Here is falsehood first, slander, censure of God next, and last blame on the woman. There is little or no limit to the reckless statements of the false brotherhood. False brethren are not all rude, nor ignorant. This class are not dangerous. They cannot make lies appear true. It is the well educated and polished reasoner that deceives the hearts of the simple—the guileless. Rom. xvi. 18. They make the worse appear the better part. These things can hardly be charged to Ananias, but he was truly a false brother, a member of the false brotherhood. He was like many of the present day. Because the true brotherhood sold their land and houses and gave the money to the apostles to distribute, as they knew best. Ananias and his wife wanted to appear equal to the rest. The apostles with great power,—miracles by the Holy Spirit—gave witness to the resurrection of the Lord Jesus. Ananias had overlooked or forgotten the power and judgment of the Holy Spirit in and by the apostles. The Spirit forewarned Peter of the deception of Ananias, and when he appeared with the money, the apostle was ready to expose his falsehood, and tell him he had not lied to men, but to God, and it was no outside Satan that had tempted him, it was conceived in his own heart. He heard the words and dropped dead. Three hours after his wife came and repeated and confirmed the lie. They had tempted the Spirit of the Lord, and his wrath fell upon them. According to the apostle's words in verse 4, they had no need to sell their property, nor to offer the proceeds, nor to lie. The same can be said today. There is now no need for any one to add to the false brotherhood, but some are so charmed with the logic of the false, that the simple truth has nothing for them.

Any Berean desiring Berean pins, address our treasurer, Wm. Hardesty Box 281, Oregon Ill. Also send all dues to Bro. Hardesty.

Any desiring Berean booklets, send to president Anna Drew, 629 N. Galena Ave, Dixon, Ill.

Those desiring tracts, make it known to the Tract Committe, Anna L. Adams, 608 Peoria Ave., Dixon, Ill., and the same shall be sent free of charge, but any free will offering will be gladly accepted by that committee.

The Elements of the Kingdom of God, is the title of an eighteen page tract by Brother T J Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He sets forth that a kingdom cannot exist without a King, his cabinet officers, territory, a capital city, subjects, laws. Brother Daniel will send this little tract to you at 10 cents each, or $1 00 a dozen. Send direct to him for them.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You [illegible] tell how much good a [illegible] used in this manner.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed [illegible] (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured Hall No. 618 on 6th floor, Masonic Temple, State Street for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 80 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Be[illegible]otten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money in paper money is easily detected and is at [illegible] always. Money sent in a registered letter is not [illegible] by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

People Will Talk.

You may get through the world, but 'twill be very slow,
If you listen to all that is said as you go;
You'll be worried and fretted and kept in a stew—
For meddlesome tongues must have something to do,
For people will talk.

If quiet and modest, you'll have it presumed
That your humble position is only assumed—
You're a wolf in sheep's clothing, or else you're a fool;
But don't get excited—keep perfectly cool—
For people will talk.

And then, if you show the least boldness of heart,
Or a slight inclination to take your own part,
They will call you an upstart, conceited and vain;
But keep right ahead—don't stop to explain—
For people will talk.

Threadbare your dress, or old-fashioned your hat,
Some one will surely take notice of that,
And hint rather strong that you can't pay your way,
But don't get excited, whatever they say,
For people will talk.

If you dress in the fashion, don't think to escape,
For they criticise them in a different shape;
You're ahead of your means, or you're tailor's unpaid,
But mind your own business—there's naught to be made—
For people will talk.

Now, the best way to do is to do as you please,
For your mind, if you have one, will then be at ease;
Of course you will meet with all sorts of abuse;
But don't think to stop them—it ain't any use—
For people will talk.

Pre-existence of the Son of God.

I have been requested by a brother in the faith, to write on this theme. My position on this is not known to many of the readers of THE RESTITUTION, as I have never written on the subject for publication. There are some who hold that the Son of God had a personal existence prior to the begettal by the Holy Spirit, and birth by the virgin mother; while others hold and teach that the beginning of his individual existence was this begettal and birth. So there are two sides to this question. A score or more of texts are quoted in proof of our Lord's personal pre-existence. What is claimed as proof from these texts is called in question by writers on the other side, who endeavor to show that these passages do not sustain the conclusions drawn therefrom. These [illegible] are regarded by the advocates of pre-existence as quite unsatisfactory. This is natural enough. Will my exposition of these texts prove more satisfactory? This remains to be seen. I am disposed to think, the plain historical view ought to be satisfactory to all who claim to believe in the inspiration of the first and second chapters of Matthew, and the first, second and third of Luke; namely the view recorded here that the Son of God was begotten by the Holy Spirit overshadowing the virgin Mary, and as the result his subsequent birth at the proper time in the village of Bethlehem, Judea. Faith can rest here on a solid, and all sufficient foundation.

Old as I am, and so long in the faith, I had never written on this topic prior to this effort; not because I deemed it unimportant; nor because of offending some who have all along held this view of pre-existence of our Lord; nor yet, because the subject is beset with difficulties that I could not, to my own satisfaction, remove; but because others more able I thought, were writing on the subject sufficiently often, and at such length as properly suited the narrow compass of our good paper where variety is looked for by its readers.

THE SUPERNATURAL IN REQUISITION.

At what point is the supernatural operative? Just where the record places it as announced by the angel Gabriel; "The Holy Spirit shall come upon thee (Mary) and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee; therefore that holy thing born of thee shall be called the Son God." Luke i 35. Matthew records "She was found with child of the Holy Spirit." Chapter i 18. Thus early, on the ground of this supernatural operation that gave being to the world's Redeemer, it was announced: "That holy thing shall be called the Son of God." Conception is the beginning of all beings of whom birth is literally and properly affirmed. Plainly in the light of the record Jesus had such a beginning. Let us not go back of the record and draw inferences from passages which have no reference to "pre-existent personality;" and thus contradict what it says in the plainest terms inspiration could employ. It is a query in my mind whether those holding the doctrine of "personal pre-existence" stop to think of what their position involves as logical conclusions. 1. It contradicts the fact that this record is a full and exact statement of the truth touching the beginning of being, or existence, of the "Son of God;" so entitled in advance of his birth, and on the ground of what the angel said concerning this marvelous personality's begettal. This history, though brief, was written to furnish us exact information on this point.

2. The theory of "personal pre-existence" is ground for the conclusion that a being superior even to the arch angel in mental capacity; and, in possession of creative power, and existing prior to the fall of man; prior to the creation of the physical universe, and equal, or nearly so to the Creator of all things, was so nearly unmade—destroyed; for this suits the case better—as to be but a germ of life, or a life cell. This conclusion involves the idea of a miracle back of the marvelous conception by the Holy Spirit and the power of God. So accordingly two miracles were wrought instead of one, in the light of the theory of "pre-existence." The one miracle is plainly recorded, but the other finds no mention on the pages of inspired history. The truth is, there was no need of Jehovah working such a mighty change upon a pre-existing Son of his; and the begettal by the Holy Spirit proves that he did not. The question is, Did the only begotten Son, the one born of the virgin mother, exist as a person prior to the recorded conception and birth? If he did such a fact ought to be plainly revealed. There ought to be a passage, or passages quite as plain as the proposition itself. Such plainness we could reasonably demand on a subject of this nature, with that brief history in Matthew and Luke before us, together with [illegible] promise made to the fallen pair. That the seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head. Such is not the kind of proof alleged in support of the proposition, that our Lord personally pre-existed; that before the creation of man, before the physical universe was framed, before all things and creatures brought into existence by creative power and skill, he was in being, and jointly with the self existent Jehovah shared in the work of creation. The humble Nazarene, though he affirmed himself superior to other men, even to the great Lawgiver of Israel, did not make reference to the part he performed (?) in creation. If he shared in such a stupendous work as that of creating worlds, and the animate and sentient creatures upon them, surely this would be ample ground of superiority, sinking all others out of sight. "For this man was counted worthy of more glory than Moses, inasmuch as he who hath builded the house hath more honor than the house. Heb iii 3. But Christ as a Son over his own house whose house we are, if we should hold fast the confidence and exultation of the hope." v 6. When the church reaches completion under this great Builder's hand it will include Moses as a part of the house, while the "Son is head over all things to the church or house," but inferior to his Father in the light of his admission, "My Father is greater than I." John xiv 28. Trinitarian commentators are obliged to explain this explicit statement. Owen says, "The meaning which is to be attached to these words, is official superiority, and conversely that for the time being there was in him an official inferiority." The 4th verse of Heb. iii reads, "Every house is builded by some one (R. V.) but he that built all things is God." The Scriptures from the first verse abound in statements of this great fact.

EXAMINATION OF PASSAGES ADDUCED IN PROOF OF PERSONAL PRE-EXISTENCE.

It is in point to begin with Gen i 26, "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness. It is claimed that here is proof of the presence of at least one other God (some say two) on the scene sharing with the eternal and self-existent Father in making man, the last and crowning work of the six days creation. Elohim here rendered God, is plural and as agreeing with this noun the pronouns are plural. This fact taken in the light of Col i 16, "For by him were all things created that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers; all things were created by him and for him." This and a few other passages, regarded as parallels, are brought forward as proof beyond controversy of his agency in the creation of the physical universe and man. If this and similar texts prove what is claimed for them, we would be obliged to concede the fact of personal pre-existence. Before examining this passage, and its connections, I wish to remark in reference Gen i 26 that though the Hebrew word rendered God is plural, and is followed by two pronouns in the plural yet in the 27th verse the same plural noun is the antecedent of pronouns in the singular, and in other verses of this history as well. Another fact to be observed is that the translators have rendered this noun in the text by the noun God in the singular; and higher authority than these English translators, the Son himself, in applying this text on the question of marriage, adultery and divorce, uses the word poieas, Creator in the singular; thus sustaining the Old Testament doctrine of one God, one Creator. This Son, conceived by the Holy Spirit, born of a human mother, and growing in stature and increasing in wisdom as a child, and in youth and manhood learning and practicing the trade of a carpenter, was not on the scene to join in the work of creating man. He bore testimony to the truth of one God on whom he was dependent [illegible] power, word and works. Prof. [illegible] the Commentator, though a strong Trinitarian, says, "The language employed is not,  in itself any more a decisive argument in favor of the doctrine of the Trinity than the use of the plural term Elohim in v. 1," on which he remarks, "Elohim, is a very remarkable word, occurring for the most part in plural, and yet usually connected, as here, with a verb in the singular." He further says, there is a similar idiom in Hebrew in respect to words denoting rank, authority, eminence, majesty; that this idiom is by no means uncommon. He gives references to examples. The plural in these cases seems to be for the purpose of giving to the word greater fulness, emphasis, and intensity of meaning. New Testament writers copying the Septuagint uniformly translate this Hebrew plural word by theos singular, instead theoi plural. So the history of man's creation affords no proof of pre-existence. The fact that Abraham addressed one of the three angels that appeared to him as he sat in the door of his tent by the title, Lord, has been taken as proof of pre-existence by some writers. A title so common as applied to men and to angels will not bear the weight of the conclusion that Abraham on that occasion addressed God's Son. The other two were addressed by Lot as "My lords." There is no proof here of pre-existence. These were angelic beings employed by Jehovah to execute his purpose.

JOHN L. WINCE.

When Will the Change Take Place?

"Flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God." 1 Cor. xv. 50.

The question has been asked, When will the change take place? In a passage previously quoted, namely John vi. 54, we read, "Whoso eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life; and I will raise him up at the last day." So we learn by this passage of Scripture that the change will take place at the last day.

In regard to this last day and when the change will take place, it is more fully explained in 1 Thess iv. 16. The change is to take place when Jesus descends from heaven, not before he descends nor after he descends.

It reads, "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we which are alive and remain, shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall we ever be with the Lord."

When Jesus leaves his Father's throne, and descends, then will he call his waiting bride. The majority will be sleeping in their dusty beds, a few will be alive; the sleeping ones will be brought forth incorruptible, and they which are alive will be changed in the twinkling of an eye, and all will meet the Lord in the air.

These were judged worthy of eternal life when they believed and obeyed the gospel. Their names had been written in the Lamb's book of life, when they believed and were baptized for the remission of sins.

Who is it that comes into judgment? In Matt. v. 22 we read, "Whosoever is angry with his brother without a cause, shall be in danger of the judgment."

2 Peter ii. 9, "The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished."

2 Peter iii. 7 "But the heavens and the earth which are now, by the same word are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men."

So we see that it is the unjust and ungodly that come into judgment.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, MARCH 7.

Philip and the Ethiopian. Acts viii. 26-39.

Golden Text.—"Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they that testify of me," John v. 39.

We will first remark on the Golden Text. It is the sad experience of the few who do search the Scriptures, that they cannot induce, nor by any kindly means, get the religious professing people to search the Scriptures for themselves. A very energetic worker said he had visited—in his district—one hundred and eighteen families "church members," eleven read the Bible occasionally, three had family worship. This was told at a very important conference of so-called religious workers. Thousands of people, professing belief in the Bible for their salvation never even read it, let alone search it.

This lesson brings to our notice an angel of the Lord, Philip an evangelist, a man of Ethiopia, and the Holy Spirit.

Let us carefully notice that we have a clear case of conversion. The Ethiopian was converted by, and to the Word of God—the Scriptures. Observe the kind of people God can convert and bless.

First. This man of Ethiopia was pious—careful of his duty to God as far as he knew.

Second. He was devotional—had respect, and reverence for the Word of God, but did not understand it all.

Third. He had been at Jerusalem, a few hundred miles from home, worshiping as best he knew.

Fourth. He was reading—searching—the Scriptures—not a novel, nor even a first class magazine.

Fifth. He was reading aloud—was not afraid or ashamed of what he was doing.

Sixth. He was anxious to know what he was reading about.

Seventh. He was very glad to find one that could instruct him.

Eighth. He was great, but not proud.

Ninth. He was reading in the book of Isaiah—what we now know as Isa. liii. 7, 8. It was not then divided into chapters, and verse.

Tenth. He wanted to know if the prophet was writing—speaking—of himself, or some other man.

It was now Philip's opportunity. "He began at the same Scriptures and preached unto him Jesus." It is more than a good guess to think of some of the things Philip would say. He would tell him how that Scripture was fulfilled when Jesus was arrested, tried before Caiphas the high priest, a mock trial, and unjustly condemned, then standing before Pilate, and the priests and all their friends crying "Crucify him, crucify him." He would tell him of the shameful death on the cross,—of the wonderful and awful happening when Jesus died. Of his burial, but especially of his resurrection on the third day. Of the empty tomb, of Jesus appearing to the apostles and disciples. Of his instructions concerning the kingdom for forty days and his ascension from Bethany, Luke xxiv. and Acts i. Of his promise to come again and receive them to himself, John xiv. Of his coming to Zion as the Redeemer, Isa. lix. 20. Coming to create a new heavens and a new earth, to make Jerusalem a place of joy, and the inhabitants, the blessed seed of the blessed of the Lord. Isa. lxv. 17-25. This would be preaching the kingdom, and the name, as he preached in Samaria. Acts viii. 12.

Philip preached all—or equal to—what has been quoted. If he had not the Ethiopian could not have said, "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God." Let us take heed to another point in the lesson. He did not need to be urged by Philip to be baptised—immersed—he believed from the heart the Scriptures Philip preached. He saw salvation in them. He also saw clearly that he could not share in that salvation without being baptized for the remission of sins, Acts ii. 38. He could not be sinless—forgiven of God in any other way. Was it any wonder then that he said, "Here is water, what doth hinder me to be immersed?" There was nothing to hinder except his confession of faith, that was at once freely made. "For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation." Rom. x 8-15.

This lesson brings to view the love and goodness of God and the Lord Jesus. It shows plainly that the Lord knows those that are honest hearted, and who will if instructed, believe and obey his message of salvation. This is not the only case in which he performed a miracle to have the earnest inquirer informed of his will. He performed several wonders to get the Word of salvation—the gospel of Christ, Rom. i. 16, to Cornelius a Gentile, Acts x. Just think what the Lord did to have Samaritans, an Ethiopian and Cornelius led to a hope of eternal life. He is looking after, and bringing to a knowledge of the truth, all who, like the Ethiopian, with an honest heart will search the Scriptures.

Next Lesson,—

Eneas and Dorcas, Acts ix. 31-34.
To think about,
How many churches has God?
Did Peter heal Eneas?
Who raised Dorcas?
Who sent for Peter?

Good Generalship.

"Find out what the enemy does not want you to do, and then do it," is what the Duke of Wellington used to tell his subordinates. This is good generalship anywhere, in the Christian life, in the civic life also. The liquor manufactures and dealers are the enemies of the temperance cause. No matter what they say, their actions prove this. They make plain enough for any one to see that they don't want prohibition, nor the abolition of the saloon. Therefore those are the very things all temperance advocates ought to work for.

"All things are at the present moment rushing to a great crisis.....I believe that the morning twilight is near; I believe that the axles are heated by the accelerated revolutions of the wheels of time as they near their rest. But instead of that being a reason for our relaxing our exertions, it is the reverse; if the letter-paper is nearly full, let us crowd more writing into the space that remains; if the candle light is nearly extinguished, let us work the harder ere it go out. Let your loins be girt, and your lamps burning, as men waiting for their Lord."—John Cumming.

I will be silent and barren of discourse when I chance to hear a tale, rather than go with child therewith, till another's ears be my mid-wife, to deliver me of such a deformed monster. I may hear a tale of delight, and perhaps smile at an innocent jest. I will not jest or joy at a tale disgracing an innocent person.—Arthur Warwick.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

The Restitution.

A. R. UNDERWOOD, OFFICE EDITOR

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
J. H. WILLEY,
W. D. THOMPSON,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, FEB'Y 24. 1909.

WE are informed that Brother O. J. Allard closed his meetings at North Salem Church last Sunday evening, and began at South Bend on Monday evening. Will some one give us a report of the North Salem meeting.

BROTHER John L. Wince was with the Plymouth Church last Sunday, and gave two discourses. While both were good, the one in the forenoon on "Worship" was exceptionally fine Those who will listen and get the line of thought, are sure to get benefit when Brother Wince preaches. He reports Sister Wince in rather poor health.

THE people of Austria-Hungary are the most mixed of any country, it requires eight different languages when the parliament meets to administer oaths to the representatives. From this it can readily be understood how difficult it is to manage so many disturbing elements. Major General Edward Ritter von Schweitzer, a Jew, has been appointed by Emperor Francis Joseph to be field marshal, which is the highest military rank in the empire. Of course the Anti-Semites are very bitter, while on the other hand the liberals praise the emperor for his freedom from religious bias.

ON last Sunday morning after the service at the Plymouth Church, our Elder, Brother Washington Tuttle, who always occupies a seat in front at the right of the speaker, began to remove the wrapper from a package, at the same time stating he had some thing he wished to present the Church if they wished it. He finally held out to view a cabinet filled with photographs. Many of the friends scattered over the country know that Brother Tuttle was for many years engaged in the business of photographing, and these pictures were some he had kept for many years. Among them are to be seen Uncle Henry Logan, Richard Corbaley, Nathan Maxey, S. A. Chaplin, Ralph Carter, B. W. and M. A. Woodward, L. E. Conner, Phebe McDonald, Kate Cleveland, old Sister Petcher, and many others living and dead, ending with Brother Tuttle and his lately mourned wife. "Do you want it?" said Brother Tuttle. No need to ask the question, as a look at each face was enough without words. Yes, it will be a highly prized treasure, and be placed in a position where all may examine it at will.

Religion and Reason.

A short while ago a man who prides himself on his carefulness a business man, one who poses as a thinker of more than ordinary qualifications, said in our hearing "Religion is not the result of reason, but rather of intuition." His argument was that men do not become religious through any process of reasoning, but that religion came intuitively, instinctively, to the human mind.

Mr. Webster's dictionary says of "intuition" that it means "direct apprehension or cognition; immediate knowledge, as in perception or consciousness—distinguished from mediate knowledge, as in reasoning; as, the mind knows by intuition that black is not white, that a circle is not a square, that three are more than two, etc; quick or ready insight or apprehension. Any object or truth discerned by direct cognition." Again, "Instinct" means "natural inward impulse; unconscious, involuntary, or unreasoning prompting to any mode of action; without a distinct apprehension of the end or object to be accomplished."

The gentleman's idea was that religion was so a part of man's nature, so much a part of his make-up, that naturally, without any process of reasoning he was without thought religious.

The argument did not exactly appeal to our mind, and thinking over the subject we went to the dictionary again to ascertain the meaning of "religion," and found it to be "the outward act or form by which men indicate their recognition of the existence of a god or god having power over their destiny, to whom obedience service, and honor are due; the feeling or expression of human love, fear, or awe of some superhuman and overruling power, whether by profession of belief, by observance of rites and ceremonies, or by the conduct of life; a system of faith and worship; a manifestation of piety. Specifically, conformity in faith and life to the precepts inculcated in the Bible, respecting the conduct of life and duty toward God and man; the Christian faith and practice."

It seems to us that the gentleman had not lately looked up the definition of religion. Just how any one is going to show outwardly by his actions that he recognizes a God whom it is his duty to obey, serve and honor, never having studied and obtained a knowledge of such a being, and reasoned out why he should thus show homage, is more than we can comprehend. Can we love God, and manifest our devotion to him by words and by works never having reasoned on the subject? Can a man make sensible profession of belief in God, and observe the rites and ceremonies required by God for the proper conduct of life, and not have thought over the matter, and reasoned it all out? Will God accept unconscious, involuntary and unreasoning promptings to do him service, without any distinct comprehension of the matter whatever?

Let us look into God's Word—his communication to man—and see if he has expressed himself on this subject.

In Eccl. vii. 25 the author says "I applied mine heart to know, and to search, and to seek out wisdom, and the reason of things." We rather think God approved such action on his part, and if it was a good thing to do then, it is now.

In Isa. xli. 21 we find these words, "Produce your cause, saith the Lord; bring forth your strong reasons, saith the King of Jacob." Here is a demand that all the best reasoning powers be brought into play. Does God want less today?

After Job had listened to his friends attentively and with "patience," he proceeds to "give them a calling" as we say now-a-days, and starts in chapter xii saying "No doubt but ye are the people, and wisdom shall die with you. But I have understanding as well as you; I am not inferior to you; yea, who knoweth not such things as these?" and going on to the beginning of the next chapter he says, "Mine eye hath seen all this, mine ear hath heard and understood it. What ye know, the same do I know also. I am not inferior unto you." Then to show how he regarded their reasoning he says, "I would speak to the Almighty, and I desire to reason with God." We all know how the story of Job ended. He honored God, and God honored him; and no one will deny but what Job figured the whole matter out in a reasonable and sensible manner.

Then we have a plain declaration in Isa. i. 18, where the Lord says "Come now, and let us reason together." Here is a request, or a command, just as you like, requiring much more than intuition or instinct can give.

When Paul was before Felix "he reasoned of righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come," and because of the fair and impartial reasoning of the Apostle, appealing as it did to his understanding, it is written "Felix trembled." Dare we say that "unconscious, involuntary, and unreasoning promptings" caused Felix to tremble? Surely the very reverse is true.

Then take Peter's words (1 Pet. iii. 25) where he says "Sanctify the Lord God in your hearts; and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you, with meekness and fear." Rather hard to do this if we are prompted solely by intuition and instinct.

After "reasoning" on the subject, and taking the testimony of these writers in whom we have confidence, we shall demur from the statement of our friend. However, we will freely grant that very much of what passes for "religion" now-a-days fits his idea quite well, as it has no "reason" about it, and may come from "unconscious, involuntary, or unreasoning promptings," for certain it is that it was never prompted by God's Word. We are told to "Search the Scriptures" and the reason why it is necessary is clearly given—Life depends on our action in the case.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor

OUR offer of the next two months for 10 cents is meeting with response in some directions. Will all make a little effort and put our paper in several thousand new homes.

Obituary.

Andrew Goffin Brookover, son of George W. and Eliza Brookover, was born in Brown County, Ohio, Dec. 29, 1838, and died Feb. 12. 1909, aged 70 years, 1 month and 14 days. Was the oldest of ten children. When sixteen years old, came with his parents to Huntington County, Indiana, and in 1862 he was married to Cordelia A. Lewis, daughter of Thomas S. and Elizabeth Lewis, who came from Rush County, Indiana, in 1851.

To this union were born seven children—Eva O., Ulysses Grant, Ina May, Cora A., Dove, Jessie Inez, and Guy L.

Brother Brookover was baptized and united with the Church of God in 1859, and lived an earnest and consistent Christian life up to the time of his death. No one was more punctual in attending public services than he. He is survived by his faithful wife, his mother 88 years old living in the city of Huntington, Indiana, two brothers Aseal and Walter L. both of North Manchester, Indiana, and two sisters Mrs Blanch Spencer and Miss Mary A. Brookover both of Huntington. Three children, Grant, Ina and Jessie preceded him to the grave.

The funeral was conducted by the writer, on Monday, Feb. 15, and we laid him to rest in his narrow dwelling, to wait in unconsciousness until his Lord shall come to claim his own, to gather his jewels, the saints of all dispensations, from the dust of the earth.

Several months before his death he made the request that the writer read at his funeral 1 Cor. xv. remarking at the time "This chapter is the summing up of the gospel." The writer has read over and over this compend of Christian doctrine with unequaled satisfaction and delight. It never grows old nor monotonous. As long as life lasts and he has the ability to read and think he will turn to this chapter for an increase of faith, for a fresh anchorage of hope.

Brother Brookover died of cancer of the face and disease of the kidneys; this latter disease developing several months before his death and no doubt hurried on the event. Absolutely assured of the incurable nature of diseases such as these, and under constant and severe pain, who could refrain from giving expression to the thoughts of Job, or similar ones: "Wherefore is light given to him that is in misery, and life unto the bitter in soul; who long for death but it cometh not; and dig for it more than for hid treasure; who rejoice exceedingly, and are glad when they can find the grave."

How long, O Lord, must human nerves be tortured and human lives cut off prematurely? Faith joyfully sees, beyond this sad condition of things an age when the inhabitants of earth shall not say "I am sick." Isa. xxxiii. 24. No more pain to be relieved, no nights of watching by the bedside of the sick; no bending of love over the dying to catch the last uttered word from rapidly falling lips, as life ebbs away; no outbursts of grief from loving hearts when the last breath is expired; no sable hearse with nodding plumes, followed by the slow moving and solemn procession; no open tomb to swallow up and conceal from sight of loving eyes the cold and lifeless form; no sad accompaniments of death anywhere in the New Earth to remind us, as now, of our mortality.

In the closing vision of the Revelator, relating to the completion of God's beneficent plan, we read these enrapturing words "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying; neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passed away." Rev. xxi. 4.

Such is the entrancing scene on which Brother Brookover looked with the eye of faith, and to which he made frequent allusions, as I can bear witness. The coming of the Lord and his transforming power will be the panacea for all physical ills, mortality included.

My acquaintance with him began soon after his coming to the neighborhood of Claysville, and throughout his long Christian life of fifty years, our friendship was most congenial, nothing occurring to mar it in the least. I saw his children grow from infancy to manhood and womanhood; saw the land on which he founded his pleasant home pass from primitive forest into a fruitful farm with an abounding wealth of product. Shared his hospitality and enjoyed his genial company nearly fifty years.

He stood firmly and uncompromisingly for the Truth when others were deserting it. The Truth to him was of paramount importance, and he liked to hear it preached; and often said "Strange that people cannot see it so." The little Church has lost a valuable member, the community a good citizen, the poor a friend, and the bereaved family a kind and affectionate husband and father, and wise counsellor.

It is said no man is needed very long; meaning that when he dies or becomes disabled there is one ready to take his place and do the work as the one laid aside. This is not true in this case as far as it relates to the little church at Claysville. There is no one on whom his mantle can fall; so we meet with an irreparable loss, as far as our human vision can see. It remains for the rest of us to redouble our efforts, and keep the light trimmed and brightly burning.

I will say to the bereaved family, God's promises are sure. He has promised to be the widow's God, and father to the fatherless. Death does not thwart his purposes. A family reunion is in prospect for those in covenant relation.

Sister Brookover, continue to cherish the blessed hope of the gospel, the same that your husband held through all the years of his sore affliction. You shared his sufferings as far as it was possible for one person to share those of another, and bore your part of the burden uncomplainingly. Children, love your mother and your God. Keep loyal to him and duty. To the one out of Christ, I exhort, come into him through his appointed way.

JOHN L. WINCE.

Ella May McCarter Roberts was born May 6. 1864, in Fulton Co. Ind. Died Jan. 27, 1909, in Los Angeles, California.

Being the youngest daughter of a family of six children consisting of five daughters and one son. There remains to mourn their loss three sisters; Mrs. Hobbs, Mrs. Denton and Mrs. Lane of Chicago, and a brother, Alvah H. McCarter of Rochester, Ind. Besides these a devoted husband and many other relatives and friends. Mrs. Smith was called to rest about twelve years ago.

Mrs. Roberts' parents and grandparents were widely and favorably known for their integrity and upright Christian living. Her mother died when she was but a little girl; her father remaining to watch over his family with love and tender care until about five years ago when he too was called to his rest.

She was united in marriage to Andrew C. Roberts, Oct. 20, 1891, to whom she was a dear companion and devoted wife until her death.

When she became old enough to do so she felt it her duty to select some calling that she could provide for herself, and selected as an end to this the printers trade. She secured a position as compositor under the direction of Major Bittera (since deceased) who was editing the Rochester Republican. She remained there for awhile; but upon his advice she went to Chicago where she soon secured a position on the Journal of the American Medical Association. This, on account of the abbreviation of medical terms to which she was wholly unaccustomed was very difficult and discouraging and she thought to give it up; but being very careful and precise in her work they were loathe to let her go, and prevailed on her to remain which she did for a number of years, until she was married.

Being deprived of the influence of a loving mother's care she very early learned to look to her Heavenly Father for guidance and strength and became a member of his family in which she was a zealous worker.

She always had a word of cheer for every one, especially those who were unfortunate or down-hearted, and many are the heartfelt thanks she has secured from those whom she has uplifted by her kindly sympathy and pointing out the better way.

About fifteen years ago she became afflicted with bone trouble in one of her ankles. This remained with her the rest of her life.

Receiving no benefit from local treatment, three years ago we came to California in hope that she might be benefitted by the genial climate. It no doubt prolonged her life; but the ravages of the disease went on until the end.

For years this dear, heroic soul, has endured afflictions that seldom falls to the lot of mortals; but with a fortitude and submission that was an inspiration to all who knew her.

The pastor Rev. Dr. Jackson, who had visited and prayed with her so many times during the past two years and who said it was always an inspiration to him to converse with her, spoke in feeling terms of the beautiful character that had gone from among us and urged all the friends to emulate so noble a life.

At her request we laid her away among the beautiful hills and flowers, singing birds and bright sunshine which she so much loved, to rest until the Father's call.

ANDREW C. ROBERTS.

John Andrew Roose, son of Andrew and Martha Roose, was born in Bayard, Ohio, March 21, 1829, and died Feb. 17, 1909, aged 79 years, 10 months, and 26 days.

He was united in marriage to Rachel Ann Vink Feb. 11, 1854, and came to Indiana the same spring. They lived here two years, and returning to Ohio remained there six years. They then returned to Indiana, and have lived here ever since.

He leaves one daughter and two sons, twelve grandchildren, and five great grandchildren.

He has been a member of the church of God for more than forty years. He was also a soldier in the civil war.

Brother Roose has been an invalid for many years, and for three years just before his death almost constantly confined to the house. Although in poor health, he was patient and kind to those who ministered to his wants. He lived with his son Charles at Hamlet, Indiana. They will miss him, yet they sorrow not as those that have no hope. He died as he lived, trusting in Jesus for life when he shall come.

A large concourse of relatives and friends listened to comforting words from God's Inspired Book, after which we laid him to rest until the bright morning of earth's redemption.

No Cross no Crown.

Fear none of those things which thou shalt suffer. Behold, the devil shall cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried; and ye shall have tribulation ten days. Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life. Rev. ii. 10.

Blessed is the man that endureth temptation, for when he is tried he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him. James i. 12.

And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown, but we an incorruptible. I therefore so run not as uncertainly, so fight I not as one that beateth the air. 1 Cor. ix. 25-26.

I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but to all them also that love his appearing. 2 Tim. iv. 7-8.

Neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being ensampler of the flock. And when the Chief Shepherd shall appear ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away. 1 Pet. v. 3 4.

Jesus Savior, pilot me,
Over life's temp stuous sea;
Unknown waves before me roll,
Hidi ng rock and treacherous shoal.
Chart and compass come from thee,
Jesus Savior, pilot me.

Now and Then.

In our last we cited the reader to 2 Peter iii. where it speaks of three earths, worlds or ages of the world and earth. The words world and earth are frequently used interchangeably in the Bible, though strictly speaking they mean separately or two different things.

The word world is from the Greek (Cosmos) and means the furniture or things on the earth. The word earth, according to Young is land or the earth we live on. Peter, speaking of the old world includes the inhabitants of the earth till the flood or the anti-deluvian age, the one reserved by the same word to be destroyed by fire, covers the entire time from the flood till Christ comes the second time to judge the world in righteousness.

We are now living in what is called Gentile times, Luke xxi. 24, a time when nations are preparing for war, Joel iii. 9-11, a time when men run to and fro in the world, a time when direct murder and all kinds of corruption is rampant, Amos viii. 11, 12, a time of railroads, see Nahum ii. read the whole chapter and notice it is the day of preparation, the day when the old, once cursed earth is being prepared for the second coming of Christ.

The curse was the cause of man's disobedience and God's plan is to make man do all he can to restore it, hence the desert lands are being irrigated and made to blossom as the rose. All the present inventions are only instruments in God's hands to accomplish his plan of salvation. In Isaiah he says, "Behold, I will make thee a new, sharp threshing instrument having teeth. Thou shalt thresh the mountains and beat them small, and shalt make the hills as chaff. Thou shalt fan them and the wind shall carry them away." Isa. xli. 15.

The prophet saw in a vision the present day wind-stackers as they are called, the stacks of grain looked like hills which were being threshed and blown away like a whirlwind, and many other present day inventions are pictured out, which are in the times of the preparation or preparing for the coming of Christ to take and possess his kingdom, Rev. xi. 15. Then they will beat their swords into plowshares, Isa. ii. 4, harmony will take the place of strife, friendship will exist between man and beast or [illegible] the whole earth will speak one language, as they did before Babel, Gen. xi. 7.

Come Lord Jesus, and come quickly is my prayer.

Editor Restitution:

Please find enclosed $1 50 for my subscription for another year I find so many good pieces in it that I can not do without it. I have never yet heard a sermon preached by one that advocated the doctrine it teaches. I am very much pleased with several writers, especially P. Neill's pieces, they are all good.

I would like to give a few thoughts that come to me. If Adam had not transgressed there would have been no need of a Christ to come. Therefore the Christ came to redeem just what was lost by the fall. What was lost by the first Adam? He lost life, he lost his estate in the Garden of Eden, he lost his direct communion with God. He never lost heaven, and we have no account that Adam ever knew there was any heaven; so Christ never came to redeem us and take us to heaven.

The meek shall inherit the earth.

Editor Restitution:

I have been considerably interested in an article that appeared in a late number of THE RESTITUTION, written in answer to the question Is the Holy Spirit a person?

I would like to submit a few thoughts along this line for the consideration of those that may be interested.

Peter said Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. Jesus said, Upon this rock (this fundamental fact) will I build my Church. Jesus continually affirmed that God was his Father, and God on more than one occasion owned him as his Son. If the Holy Spirit be a person, then He (the Holy Spirit) is the father of Jesus, see Matt. i. 20; Luke i. 35. and if the Holy Spirit is the father of Jesus then of course God is not his Father. If God is not his Father, then Jesus must be an imposter, the Bible a fable and religion a farce.

Trinitarianism pulls out the foundation, and lets the whole Christian structure down. This doctrine was established by Constantine in A. D. 325, for the Catholic Church, and the protestants have stolen it, and appropriated it to their own use.

Yours for the Truth.

SAM L McGLOTHLAN.

Moral Courage.

Have the courage to speak to a friend in a "seedy" coat, even though you are in company with a rich one and richly attired.

Have the courage to own you are poor, and thus disarm poverty of its sharpest sting.

Have the courage to cut the most agreeable acquaintance you have whenever you are convinced he lacks principle. A friend should bear with a friend's infirmities, but not with his vices.

Have the courage to show your respect for honesty in whatever guise it appears, and your contempt for dishonesty, by whomsoever it may be exhibited.

Have the courage to acknowledge your ignorance rather than to seek knowledge under false pretense.

Have the courage to acknowledge your Maker at the risk of being ridiculed by man.

DO NOT forget to renew your subscription when it expires.

My Bible and I.

We've traveled together, my Bible and I,
Through all kinds of weather, with smile or with sigh,
In sorrow or sunshine, in tempest or calm,
True friendship unchanging, my lamp and my psalm.

We've traveled together, my Bible and I,
When life had grown weary and death even was nigh;
But all through the darkness of mists and of woe,
I found there a solace, a prayer or a song.

So now, who shall part me, my Bible and I?
Shall isms or scisms or new lights who try?
Shall shadow for substance, or stone for good bread,
Supplant it—mad wisdom, give folly instead?

Ah, no, my dear Bible, to ruler of light,
Thou Sword of the Spirit, put error to flight,
And still through life's journey, until my last sigh,
We'll travel together, my Bible and I.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

For about one year we have edited "Ebenezer," the third page of THE RESTITUTION. We have given our work free of charge, and have spent and are willing still to spend, for the sake of the truth, our driblet of finances and weak mental capabilities, in the difficult position of Editor. Primarily our aim has been and will continue to be, to teach the simple gospel, its fundamental doctrines and duties, for the salvation of the lost and dying; and in the second place we desire to give the brotherhood exhortation, to the end that they may be kept strong in the grace of God, for their spiritual well-being. Forensic, to defend error; strong, to strengthen the weak; prayerful, to comfort the afflicted: we hope to make our paper so useful to those "without the temple," and so helpful to those "within" it, that through the bringing in of the first, and the prayers and financial support of the second, we shall be blessed of God in preparing, and in keeping prepared, a people for the Lord's coming.

Such is the policy of our paper. But whether our design as Editor is to materialize, depends largely on our readers. If you are thoughtful and interested enough to send us strong, pungent articles for publication; if you will subscribe for it, and become an agent in your home church and induce others to take it, you will do a good and much neglected work. Many greedy brethren are piling up silver or gold, but are too poor (?) to take THE RESTITUTION. They can wear good clothes, "up to date" in fashion, spend twenty-five cents per week for tobacco, but cannot spare three cents per week for our only weekly paper! Mention it to them, and suggest that they should aid in sustaining the only official paper of the Church of God in America, and they will quote the Bible text "If any provide not for his own, and specially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel." 1 Tim. v. 8. They seem to think that when they have supplied their wife and children with shoes, clothing, and other physical necessities, they have exhausted the meaning of Paul's words.

Without denying that these "natural" things are included in his divine utterance, we are forced by the context and by categorical Scripture elsewhere, to interpret his statement as including "spiritual things" too. 1 Cor. xv 46.

A sufficiency of life's necessities is not enough. The mind must be provided for. Most parents recognize the duty in this respect in an educational way, and they poorly clothe the body oftentimes that the mind of their children may be properly cultivated. How much more obligatory is religion than education. What are we to think of the brother who has no literature of the Truth in his home; who does not take THE RESTITUTION; whose children grow up without a thing to feed of a spiritual nature? If a man fails to "provide for his own house" in a spiritual way, does he not deny the faith in as positive a way as if he was negligent in supplying their bodily needs? Is he not acting very much like an infidel?

In my pastoral visits among the brethren it makes my heart ache to find so many homes with children, and no RESTITUTION. The Lord bless such parents and open their eyes to see that they owe it to their "house" to provide spiritual food for the mind of their children.

Dear brother or sister, send for a few extra copies of this RESTITUTION, mark this article, and scatter them among the members of your Church, for the Truth's sake, and the sake of our negligent brethren.

Sin first delights, then stupefies, then destroys.

Give me, O Lord, a quiet, a peaceable, a meek and an humble spirit, that, remembering my faults, I may bear gently with those of others.

Do not harp forever upon your troubles to your friends. Do like Robert Southey, "pack them into as small a compass as possible for ourselves, and never allow them to annoy others."

Give me good work to do today, O Lord, that I may forget myself and find peace in doing it. I am poor, but send me to carry some gift to those who are poorer, some cheer to those who are more lonely.

"If I were you," said the brother with hatred in his heart, "I would not speak to Brother Jones; he is a bad man—not fit to speak to." "The question is not what kind of a man Brother Jones is," replied Brother Goodheart: "the real question," continued the brother, "is, Am I a gentleman and Christian?"

Brother P. Neill writes:—"Pardon me, dear brother, but what is your title? I know it is not D. D. nor L. D. D. In Salem, aside from Brother we all like Pastor. When I first went to Sisterville, W. Va., Brother Farley was much relieved because I used the word Pastor instead of Elder. He said the word Elder there made everybody think we were Mormons. Perhaps you will inform me on this point."

The word Elder, while it designates an office, is also applicable to any person advanced in years; for this reason it sounds odd when applied to a young minister. An Evangelist is one who travels with the message of life; while the minister who has charge of a flock of God's people organized into a church, and whose duty it is to feed them, is properly and Scripturally a pastor. As we anticipate expounding this subject ere long in our paper, we need not say more about it now.

GOD'S CONVERTING POWER—WHAT IS IT?

In these days of local religious excitement my mind has instinctively turned to the subject of converting power. Man has no converting power of himself. If he had he could convert himself. So it is God's converting power that we have to do with. The first view of the relation between God and all other beings is that of his being their Creator. The next view of the relation is that of a Law Giver; by the very nature of the case this is an essential part of the relation. No right to give laws can be so absolute as that of a creator. He has a perfect and exclusive property in what he has created. All created beings are entirely dependent on him, both for being and well-being. He alone can have a perfect understanding of what is the right state and the proper conduct of created beings. He knows why he made man, and of course made him to suit his purpose; and, therefore, he alone could devise competent laws and enforce them.

And can we conceive of the sovereign Creator of the universe as not appointing a law to his intelligent creatures? Can we think of him who through myriads of ages was exerting his creative energy in providing a permanent home for man? Can we think of him as the epicureans thought of their god—perfectly careless about the world and what may be done in it? Why no, the fact of law forbids it. As creatures they are entirely dependent upon the Creator, and he must necessarily have them under his authority as well as a will in regard to the disposition and actions of intelligent creatures, know what is right for them, prescribe a law of injunction and prohibition—a rule of discrimination and obligation. But law without a penalty is inoperative; it cannot be enforced. God did not thus imperfectly legislate. A penalty was attached to his law; it was death; a capital punishment—a punishment that completely unmakes man, turns him back to dust. It is universal in its application. Man had already stamped himself with mortality and corruption when he begat children in his own likeness. Death passed upon all men for that all had sinned in their federal head. The sentence in this way covered the whole race. I mean we have to die because we inherit mortal natures from our parents. For God to allow some to evade the sentence would at once dishonor his own law, and show partiality for all the rest; so death passed upon all men. Hence no remedial scheme that may be instituted can be allowed to interfere with the execution of this law. A system of means for saving man must apply to him after he has satisfied the law of sin and death. It must take hold of him in the death state. Man is dead after he has satisfied the law; he is alive in no sense whatever. Conscious existence after death would make the law and its penalty a perfect farce; and more than that, redemption would be a farce. Redemption means redemption from death or it means nothing. It means redemption from death if he dies; and if he does not die he needs no redemption. As redemption from death is offered to man he certainly dies as God said he should. As it is offered to man we see it is not a universal redemption; but contingent upon its acceptance, is a hearty compliance with the stated conditions.—M. Joblin.

THE SPIRIT OF PROPHECY.

John says, The testimony of [illegible] is the Spirit of prophecy. Whether this text alludes to this particular prophecy or not does not matter. It is true that it may have a general application. We are informed by James that, Faith without works is dead, as is the body without the Spirit (breath) is dead. How true it is that a prophecy without the testimony of Jesus is without life. The prophecies to the Jews were only one-half alive. They rejected that prophecy that spoke of him as a "Man of sorrow, and acquainted with grief."

When Jesus spoke of his death it proved to them a stumbling-block. The Spirit that vitalized their prophecies were only regarding the facts that related to the promise that he would in the future rule this world and they would constitute the only nation. As they saw it this is just one-half true. Today the sects have extracted the other half, and therefore prophecy becomes a dead body. A prophecy to have THE SPIRIT must contain the testimony of Jesus. When Philip preached to the eunuch he preached from the prophecy given by Isaiah liii. He preached Jesus humiliated. He was preached as the One upon whom the Lord "hath made the iniquity of us all to meet." He must have preached the other half for it delighted the eunuch so that he said, "Here is water, what doth hinder me to be baptized?"

Philip answered, "If thou believest with all thine heart thou mayest." The eunuch said, "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God." This testimony is the Spirit that makes prophecy truly alive.

When men understand as did the eunuch they have received the testimony which gives them the Spirit. To believe that Jesus is the Christ and the Son of God, is to receive the good confession made by Peter when he answered that question, "Whom say ye that I the Son of Man am?" "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." To be the Son of God is to be Israel's King. Through the Spirit which was given Jesus without measure, he gave the good confession before Pilate. "Art thou a king?" Jesus answered, "To this end was I born and for this cause came I into the world that I should bear witness unto the truth." This ended the farce of a trial and he was condemned to the death of the cross. This is the good confession that Peter says that Jesus made before Pilate.

Compare the above with the testimony made by the present religious world and you will find them entirely opposite. The Jews rejected the messenger and received only half of the message. The churches of today reject the whole of the message and only pretend to receive the Messenger, in believing in a Christ that cannot die they reject both the Messenger and the message. Jesus was careful to say that Moses spoke of me, and Abraham saw my day and rejoiced.

There is not a prophet who has not spoken of Jesus as the future Ruler of this habitable. So-called orthodoxy has ingeniously formulated a doctrine that promises man and woman a rest in heaven. I admonish you to take heed what you hear and how you hear. Jesus is the Christ of God.—D. C. Robison.

BASIC PRINCIPLES.

"For this is the message that ye have heard from the beginning, that ye should love one another." 1 John iii. 11.

If I should be asked to name the rock upon which the basic principles of Christianity are founded, I would name that rock LOVE; and as a Scripture authority for doing so, I would cite John iii. 16, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

It was the loving heart of a kind Father which devised the ways and means to rescue the fallen; love was the mainspring, which inspired his every thought, act in redemptive work. His great heart pitied poor sinners in their hopeless and lost condition, with no pity, and no arm to save. "No hope," was the dark storm-cloud which obscured their vision; not a vision; not a ray of light could penetrate its inky blackness, as they were tossed to and fro upon the roaring billows of a sin-cursed life. Hear them cry: "Lord, save us; we perish." The Prince of Peace hastens to the rescue, and "rebuked the winds and the sea; and there was a great calm."

It is the root-spirit of love, which gives inspiration to the grand old story of the Gospel of the Kingdom, as a sweet message of life. This root-principle is as eternal as the great [illegible] it never will end. It is also God's purpose to people the new earth with inhabitants in whose lives this root-principle has found a permanent home. It is this principle which finds a responsive harmony with that of the Divine.

This sweet message of love thrills the heart of devout believers as none other can. It is a herald of peace. It is sweet music to those who know the joyful sound. It makes people happy even now. It causes believers to love each other, and makes them anxious to publish glad tidings of good things to perishing sinners. They become God's messengers of peace, to those who need their ministration.

"Love never faileth." It is the gem which graces the brow of God's spotless Son,—the lustre of which can never fade, but will become intensified as the years roll by, having neither beginning nor end of days.—W. H. Witson.

Sketches of Church History. No. 4.

Leaving these early Reformers I come now to the divines who met in the Westminster Assembly, July 1, 1643, and find the most of them open and avowed Chiliasts, "Looking for and loving the appearing of him who is to change our vile bodies and fashion them like unto his own most glorious body."

Then, turning to the Baptists, "who trace themselves back to the apostles and to the churches they founded," we find many eminent men, who were prominent in setting forward the cause of the Reformation, among these Bunyan "the Prince of dreamers" (b. 1628, died 1688) John Milton, the poet, and John Gill the Commentator, all of whom believed that "Antichrist will be destroyed," that "Christ will reign personally on the earth" and that his kingdom will be bounded by two resurrections—by the first resurrection at which it begins, and by the second resurrection at which it will end." Milton was born in 1608 and died in 1674; Gill born in 1697, in England and died, 1771.

S. ROXANA WINCE.

"Under the Law."

What does Paul mean by the use of the phrase, "Under the Law?"

It would seem that the proper way to answer this question is by a careful examination of the texts where the phrase occurs. Rom. iii. 19, "We know that what things soever the law saith, it saith to them who are under the law, that every mouth may be stopped, and all the world may become guilty before God." The marginal reading is, "all the world may become subject to the Judgment of God;" Diaglott reading, "all the world may become amenable to God."

The law here spoken of is one whose principles are intended by Jehovah to be a rule of action for all mankind. For any one to be guilty before God, or as the margin reads, "Subject to the judgment of God," he is first to have a knowledge of the law. This seems to be Paul's idea, for he says a little further along in his letter, (iv. 15,) "Where no law is there is no transgression." He explains his meaning to be that "Sin is not imputed when there is no law," (v. 18.) All mankind are under the law, because all have violated its principles; but many had no knowledge of it, and sin is not imputed to them,—that is, it is not regarded as a sin liable to punishment. But lest the objection might arise that the law was local, Paul retraces his argument and says, "We have before proved both Jews and Gentiles that they are under sin." (iii. 9.) Sin is a transgression of the law. If, therefore, all are under sin, then all have transgressed the law; and it follows that the jurisdiction of the law covers the whole world.

While the transgression places all under the law's penalty, yet God in mercy does not impute sin to those who are ignorant. Nevertheless all the world is guilty and every mouth is stopped. No man can in justice be punished under a law of which he had no knowledge. But where a knowledge is had, men are held responsible, and become subject to the judgment of God. The principles of the law claim obedience; there are no exceptions. "What things soever the law saith," is a very accurate and a very broad statement of its claims. To whom does it speak? To those who are under the law or subject to its jurisdiction—so that none can find fault, for all are guilty.

Re-Immersion.

Brother Huggins:

Will you please give your reasons for stating that the twelve disciples of Acts xix. 1-7, were re-immersed?

As I read this I find that Paul in verse 4 repeats what John had previously declared, and goes on in verse 5 to describe "when they (the people of verse 4) heard this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus."

Please show why this verse should not be included and explained by the first clause of verse 4: "Then said Paul," etc. I regard it as an established principle of Bible exegesis, that the nearest antecedent is the one that should be adopted, unless a more remote one is necessitated by the context. Hence any departure from this rule may affect our study of other passages.

Will you pardon me in saying that in your reply to Brother Allard's question, you seem to miss the force of the figure, re—the Holy Spirit. The figure is that known as the metonymy (of the cause) where the Spirit is put for its gifts and operations. These twelve disciples must have heard of the "Spirit," for that, as you say, "was one of the elementary truths of John's ministry," and John as we know was by no means lax in his administration of baptism, but they evidently had not heard of these spiritual endowments such as they received in verse 6.

Yours in Hope.

JAMES BROWNING.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Our Lord, even before John was cast into prison, came into Judea, tarried there for some time, and baptized; in fact, while he did not himself administer the ordinance, his disciples did under his authority; and so numerous were the candidates they immersed, it is said that "Jesus made and baptized more disciples than John." John iii. 22; iv. 1-2. Later John was imprisoned, when his work entirely ceased. His work was entirely eclipsed by Christ's; and when the 19th chapter of Acts was written, nothing remained of it except the disciples that had survived John's tragic demise.

Among these are mentioned Apollos, of Alexandria, who, though "eloquent" as a speaker, and "mighty" as an expounder of the Scriptures, was nevertheless imperfectly instructed in the way of the Lord, and who knew only the baptism of John." Acts xviii. 24-26. Paul found twelve of John's disciples at Ephesus (x'x. 7); and knowing that in John's message the great prophet had preached the coming of One "mightier" than he was, and who would baptize John's converts with the Holy Spirit (Matt. iii. 11), he asked them at once if they had experienced the promised blessing, "Have ye received the Holy Spirit," the apostle naturally asked them, for that was the promise made by John, "since ye believed?" Their answer was, No; "we have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Spirit" (to be received). "Unto what then were ye baptized? And they said, Unto John's baptism." Acts xix. 2-4.

In 55 A. D. these converts of John said they had been baptized by John. Finding them confessedly ignorant about the reception of the Holy Spirit and the Christ of whom John was only the harbinger, Paul explained to them that John's baptism was one of repentance, and that the burden of his message to the people was that "they should believe on him which should come after him, that is, on "Christ Jesus" verse 4. Upon hearing this explanation, "they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus." 5. And this baptism "in the name of the Lord Jesus" was water baptism; for the gift of the Holy Spirit was communicated to them later by the imposition of Paul's hands, verse 6.

Here then are twelve men who were immersed in water two times. If re-immersion is a misnomer, who will send us a better term to describe immersing a man two times. We might multiply "reasons" for believing in the re-immersion of John's disciples, but forbear at present. The other points in Brother Browning's letter are very good, and we endorse them generally if not particularly.

They Wrote Letters.

Brother Huggins:

I send you a short article for your paper. I am desirous of making THE RESTITUTION a readable paper. You understand that an evangelist has some duties to perform. I returned from Pennsylvania last Monday, having delivered eleven discourses along the line of "The Great Salvation." I had good attendance and marked attention. There were a number who heard every discourse and seemed well pleased. They are A. C. people. I have planted and must wait for God to give the increase.

Your Brother in the faith.

Home Sweet Home.

Judge: "With what instrument or article did your wife inflict these wounds on your face and head?"

Micky: "Wid a motty, yer Anner."

Judge: "A what?"

Micky: "A motty—wan o' those frames wid 'God bliss our home' in it."

He Now Uses a Crutch.

A correspondent sends us the following extract from the pious petition of a good old colored brother in a Georgia settlement.

"Lawd, we wants a blessin' fer ever' one, 'cept one; en dat one is a yaller niggar, what boarded de railroad train, an runned off wid de whole collection, what was took up ter pay my salary wid! Lawd, please make de train jump de track—dont hurt de yuther passengers, but take off one leg from dat niggar!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Fresh!

Joaquin Miller, the poet, is fond of children. In Los Angeles one day Mr. Miller said to the little girl on his knee: "I suppose you say your prayers regularly?" "Yes," said the little girl. "I say them every night and morning." Then she wrinkled her brow in thought, and there was silence for a moment.

Finally she said, "Why wouldn't it do to pray for our bread once a week, or once a month, or even once a year? Why is it we must ask every day for our daily bread?"

"In order to have it fresh," replied the poet.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

THE RESTITUTION is only $1.50 per year. Try it a year.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

The Bereans Column.

Dear Bereans:

The prophet Jeremiah says, Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord is. For he shall be as a tree, planted by the waters, and that spreadeth out her roots by the river, and shall not see when heat cometh, but her leaf shall be green and shall not be careful in the year of drought, neither shall cease from yielding fruit. Jer xvii 7-8.

Christ is the living water, he is our hope, and in proportion as our hope reaches out to him, our thoughts, words, and deeds become purer and better. 1 Jno iii 3

Thus, receiving spiritual strength by partaking of the living water, to faith is added, virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness and charity. For if these things be in you and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Being made free from sin and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life. For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

LETITIA MURPHY.

HUMILITY.

"Humility, that low, sweet root from which all heavenly virtues shoot." If we humble ourselves to do God's will, we will possess those virtues which make us pure and acceptable to God. Rich blessings are in store for the humble. To them God has given his promises. "Humility and the fear of the Lord are riches, and honor and life." Prov xxii 4. Jesus lived a life of humility and obedience to God's will. "He humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross. Wherefore God hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name." Phil. ii. 8-9.

Such must our lives be, if we would be honored and exalted to a place with Christ in his kingdom.

"Before honor is humility." Prov. xv. 33. We must overcome the haughty spirit of pride which leads to destruction, and keep our bodies in subjection to God's will. We are so prone to evil that often these things seem hard, but if we would receive honor with Christ, we must suffer with him. Paul tells us that "the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us." Rom. viii. 18.

So let us determine to conquer self, and serve God. May humility, love and obedience reign in our hearts, that God's likeness may be reflected in our lives.

IDA ORENDUNG.

HELPING ONE ANOTHER.

When one comes to a knowledge of the truth, obeys from the heart, and starts out as near in harmony with God's will as it is possible for them to live, they will need help. Not only help from Above, but also from those that are older in the cause of Christ than they are. It may be in the way of a word of encouragement, or your explanation of a certain passage of the Scriptures, or for that matter there are many ways for us to help each an one.

The same may be applied to all the members of the body. "We are workers together." If a brother or sister requests to do a certain thing in the interest of truth, is it not our duty to respond? Certainly it is. If we are selected to lead a meeting, or asked to teach a class at Sunday School, or take part in a Social meeting, or to write a short article for the Berean Column, or let be what it may, if it is in the interest of truth, let us do our best, and thus strengthen and encourage each other.

In the words of Paul "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ."

J. W. COOPER

Dear Bereans:

I have been requested to write a few lines for the Berean Column, and as this is the last day of the old year, we look forward into the New Year with great hopes. The greatest of all our hopes is the Lord's coming, and how appropriate are the words of Paul in 2nd Cor. v. 17, "Therefore if any man be in Christ he is a new creature; old things are passed away, behold all things are become new."

Peter tells us we have been bought with a price, therefore glorify God in your bodies and spirits, which are his. Where we have made mistakes in the past year, let that be a stepping stone to us in the future, and trust him the more implicitly, for he has promised he will never leave us nor forsake us. Also he will keep what is committed unto him against that day. He that endureth to the end, the same shall be saved.

Let us then look to God for that enduring quality. Let us not become weary in well-doing, for we shall reap if we faint not. John, the beloved disciple, said nineteen hundred years ago, when Jesus said to him on the isle of Patmos, "Behold I come, and my reward is with me to give to every man as his works shall be," "Even so come, Lord Jesus."

Then brother and sister, let us see to it that our work is wrought in God.

With best wishes for the New Year for you all, in the service of our Redeemer, I remain

Your Brother in the blessed hope,
M. T. ARLANSEN.

Any Berean desiring Berean pins, address our treasurer, Wm. Hardesty Box 281, Oregon Ill. Also send all dues to Bro. Hardesty.

Any desiring Berean booklets, send to president Anna Drew, 629 N. Galena Ave, Dixon, Ill.

Those desiring tracts, make it known to the Tract Committe, Anna L. Adams, 608 Peoria Ave., Dixon, Ill., and the same shall be sent free of charge, but any free will offering will be gladly accepted by that committee.

AN EXPOSITION of Isa. vii 14 16.

A booklet by Robert G. Huggins, of 3502 Woodland ave, Cleveland, Ohio, and designed specially for the brethren. Plain, brief, true, thoughtful, logical. Price for those who want to pay 5cts, for those who want to pay the postage only, one two-cent stamp, for those too poor or who do not want to pay anything free. On such terms every brother and sister in the United States and Canada should read it. Send as above.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Our offer of the next two months for 10 cents is meeting with response in some directions. Will all make a little effort and put our paper in several thousand new homes.

"The Kingdom of God," is the title of a tract written by T J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom; second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist; third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ. Address T J Daniel, Magazine Ark

BROTHER John Foore of Parsons, Kansas, realizing that his preaching days are getting short, as he is nearly 76 years old, has issued a series of 10 tracts. They have cost him a considerable sum, and he offers to supply them to the brethren on most liberal terms. The average cost of these tracts is about 10 cents each, and he offers to send them at cost. Also he says that where people are too poor to pay for them he will send them to such free if they will send name and address. The subjects treated are as follows: The Great Divine Healer vs. last day healers, The stature of Christ The restitution, The kingdom of God, Law and testimony, The judgment, Is baptism essential to salvation, Life and death, Signs of the end, Through the second vail, Three days and three nights, Election and predestination. Let any one wishing these tracts send direct to John Foore, Parsons, Kan

The Elements of the Kingdom of God, is the title of an eighteen page tract by Brother T J Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He sets forth that a kingdom cannot exist without a King, his cabinet officers, territory, a capital city, subjects, laws. Brother Daniel will send this little tract to you at 10 cents each, or $1.00 a dozen. Send direct to him for them.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Address W. H. Wilson, 420 North Willow Ave, Austin Station, Chicago Illinois.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 366 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

There are many McCall Patterns sold in the United States clubs of any other make of pattern. This is an honest statement of their style, accuracy and simplicity.

Modern events in the Light of Prophecy.—By H. V. Reed, 5 cents each, or 30 for $1.00.

The Paternity of Jesus. A pamphlet of 122 pages, by M. Joblin, giving in detail all that can be said on this subject, and completely proving the Heir the Son of God, and not the natural son of Joseph. This work ought to be sold at 25 cents a copy, but the author was so anxious that price should not stand in the way of its being read, that he put the price at ten cents, so all can buy them. Send to this office for them.

Address, THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Ind.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;", and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10308 Somerset Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

A four-page tract in the German language, by Brother M. Joblin of Cleveland, O. Subject, "What Must I do to be Saved?" After getting the opinion of one who understands this language, we have no hesitation in recommending it as simply all right. Get some for your German friends. Send to Mrs. M. Joblin, 10308 Somerset Ave., N E Cleveland, O. Price 40 cts per 100.

Scriptures Searchers Assistant.

A very valuable help to all who are studying the Scriptures—a reprint of one of our beloved Brother Joblin's works. Treats of thirty different subjects, with about four hundred references. All should possess a copy for ready reference. Price by mail six cents, order from Mrs M Joblin, 10308 Somerset ave, N E Cleveland Ohio

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be examined to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

"Who Shall Roll Away the Stone?"

That which weeping ones were saying,
Eighteen hundred years ago,
We, the same weak faith betraying,
Say in our sad hearts of woe.
Looking at some trouble lying
In the dark and dread unknown,
We, too, often ask with sighing,
"Who shall roll away the stone?"

Thus with care our spirits crushing,
When they might from care be free
And, in joyous song out-gushing,
Rise in rapture, Lord, to Thee.
For, before the way was ended,
Oft we've had with joy to own
Angels have from heaven descended,
And have rolled away the stone.

Many a storm-cloud sweeping o'er us
Never pours on us its rain;
Many a grief we see before us
Never comes to cause us pain.
Oftimes in the feared "tomorrow"
Sunshine comes,—the cloud has flown!
Ask not then in foolish sorrow,
"Who shall roll away the stone?"

Burden not thy soul with sadness;
Make a wiser, better choice;
Drink the wine of life with gladness:
God doth bid thee, man, "rejoice!"
In to-day's bright sunlight basking,
Leave tomorrow's cares alone;
Spoil not present joys by asking,
"Who shall roll away the stone?"

The Visions of John.

A revelation of Jesus anointed which God gave to him to point out to his servants the things it is necessary to have done speedily and which he signified by his angel to his servant John. Rev i 1. The foregoing quotation makes known the object—design of the visions, viz. to inform his servants concerning events that would speedily be brought to pass, and by which they would be able to see the all controlling and guiding hand of the Deity preparing the way for the accomplishment of the things promised. This most assuredly was an exhibition of divine favor and goodness in behalf of those servants who are ambitious to please God in keeping his covenant, and diligently observing his precepts and commandments. In witnessing the predicted events as the history of human affairs unfolded every generation of his servants would be able to see the hand of the Almighty, preparing the way for the consumation of his purpose. This would certainly be encouraging and comforting to those waiting for the return of him who is the appointed heir of all things, imparting strength to endure hardness in patience, also stimulating an ever increasing interest in the things pertaining to the divine purpose. That his servants should be apprized of the things to be done speedily, shows very conclusively that his servants would be related thereto chronologically and circumstantially for weal or woe, both now and in the hour of judgment to come.

The visions of John are almost exclusively confined to the present dispensation and the "one hour" of conquest or the work of putting down all rule and authority. Subjugating the nations, and establishing righteousness and peace in the earth. It is to this work his servants are specially related and in which by virtue of their calling they are profoundly interested in that they cherish the faith and hope of co-operating with the Lord in the great and glorious work of blessing the nations of the world with the knowledge of God.

Righteousness and peace and good will among men can never be attained and enjoyed by the earth's inhabitants until divine authority is recognized and obeyed as supreme over all. God must be revered and sanctified in the people's minds,—they must come to know the Lord, and cheerfully submit to his requirements. Therefore it is written he must reign until he hath put all enemies under his feet. "Then cometh the end when he shall have put down all rule and authority," the kingdom is delivered up to God the Father and God shall be all in all. "Then cometh the end." What end? The end of the millennium of a thousand years says one. Not necessarily so. It is more in harmony with the testimony and the fitness of things to conclude that it is the end of all rule and authority, opposed to the will of God. It is more reasonable to infer that the end spoken of marks the beginning of the millennial reign rather than its ending.

The hour of judgment and subjugation of the nations is effected by the seven vials of wrath, which it is affirmed "fills up the wrath of God" in other places styled the "great day of his wrath." The end of that day will witness all nations submissive to the King of kings and Lord of lords.

While the vials of wrath are being executed the "Temple of God is closed so that no man can enter into it," until after the vials are exhausted and the judgments thereof have caused all nations to come and worship him who hath created all things for his own pleasure. There has never been a time in the past when the temple of God has been closed. It is still open to the honest hearted Jew and Gentile. The temple and tabernacle of God is the one body, his royal house of many mansions, or dwelling places still open to those who affectionately respond to the Spirit's invitation to come and drink of the water of life. It is therefore evident that the vials are indicative of a future work to be accomplished by the Lord and his saints. This work has its beginning with the Greek and Latin nations of the west, in the territory of the beast, the false prophet and the ten kings. The Lord having returned to Zion accompanied by his saints, and his military force of sealed ones of Israel tribes disturbs the balance of power and creates trouble among the European nations. Moreover the proclamation he sends forth, "Fear God and give glory to his name for the hour of his judgment is come, worship him that made heaven and earth, the sea and the fountains of waters" arouses the ire of the Greek and Latin world, and they naturally turn to their spiritual adviser, the Holy See of Rome, for aid and comfort. His counsel is make war on the new power, which speedily converts the Latin world into a symbolic lake of fire or lake of war. It is now a struggle for supremacy between the Lamb in Jerusalem and the image worshiping idolators of Europe under the leadership of the Beast and the ten kings, but it is written the Lamb shall overcome them. There will be no neutral ground, no compromise with idolators. God will be honored, his name revered, he demands it, and his requirements are reasonable and right. The nations must cease prostrating themselves before idols and the worship of heroes and saints. The vials of wrath will give them no rest day nor night who worship the beast. All must take sides either for or against the Lord. No opportunity to escape under the guise of hypocrisy and a pious attitude of assumed humility to deceive, as is often witnessed at the present time, even captivating the simple minded multitude. God's judgments are reformatory—to teach them repentance to save them from self delusion and degradation. In the hour of tribulation and judgment to come great numbers will see and avail themselves of the salutory affects of the judgments poured out upon the stubborn and rebellious nations. John writes, "After this I beheld a great multitude which no man could number of all nations and kindreds .....stood before the throne, and before the Lamb clothed with white robes and palms in their hands and cried with a loud voice, Salvation to our God, who sitteth upon the throne and unto the Lamb." Rev i 9, 10.

Here then we behold an innumerable company, blood washed robes standing before, but not on the throne, with palms of victory in their hands. These do not constitute the one body as many suppose, for the one body appear on the scene before these, and on the throne with the Lamb, besides this great multitude come out of great tribulation, such as is peculiar to the war going on between the Lamb and his enemies. It is moreover an elder of the one body who asks the question, Who are these and whence came they?

Again, it is said they washed their robes in the blood of the Lamb. They were not naked, but their robes were unclean, else washing would not have been necessary. They did the washing themselves of their own volition, such language is not applicable to the one body. In Rev. i. 5 it is said that the one body was washed not by their own hands, but by the Lamb. "Unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father, to him be glory and dominion forever and ever." No washing of robes is affirmed of the saints. Indeed they were robeless until they put on the righteousness of God, by induction into the name. The reader will perceive here the distinction of the two parties based upon, the difference of language employed in the description of both. It is very necessary in reading the apocalypse to note critically the wording of a text, and how words modify the meaning. The Holy Spirit has a design in the selection of words. Its purpose is to enable the reader to see clearly how one part is distinct from another, and to avoid confusion by recognising the same. Words are signs of ideas, if the words are inadvertently passed over clearness of perception is a failure. It would probably be interesting to inquire how this great multitude out of all kindreds and nations came into possession of robes, seeing that man in his natural state is spiritually naked and cannot come into the presence of God until he is properly clothed. The one body is divinely provided with clothing, and exhorted to keep the same, and more, to keep it clean, unspotted from the world. The reader who feels so inclined may answer the question for himself at present, as to where these robes that needed washing in blood came from?

I pass to notice next the future employment of this vast number who have cleansed their robes in blood. It is written of them that "they serve God day and night in his temple." Can the reader not see the difference between the tabernacle and those who serve therein? Let him call to mind the Mosaic order under the law, and he will see little difficulty in seeing the significance of what is affirmed here. They serve day and night in his temple, tabernacle, his royal house of many dwelling places, the glorified body of Christ. This robed washed multitude, who have decisively set them[illegible] right in cleansing their robes apparently constitute the civil service department of the kingdom.

They come from all nations and kindreds and tongues, and are qualified to fill the civil service, when all the nations annually come up to worship and keep the feast of tabernacles. Just think for a moment what a vast stream of human beings of every nation and tongue will be constantly flowing to and from the seat of empire. See what an innumerable army of civil officials will be required even to conduct public worship, in addition to all other duties pertaining to the civil service, that I will not attempt to enumerate. Some conception of the magnitude of this work can be had, by thinking for a moment of the vast army of civil service officials employed by our government, and other powers.

I conclude this article by noting the three grand divisions of Messiah's regal court:

1. The one body, the Bride, the Lamb's wife, the queen arrayed in "clothing of wrought gold," for beauty and glory. Symbolized by the four living creatures full of eyes, the standards of Israels encampment.

2. The 144,000 executive officials sealed out of Israel's tribes, the virgin companions of the queen, Psa. xlv. 14. Sealed by writing his Father's name in their foreheads—that is in their understanding.

In the day when he "endured such contradiction of sinners," they denied his birthright name, accusing him of blasphemy, and affirming that he was the son of Joseph, with no title to the Father's name, hence the work of sealing, mentally enlightening them, removing the "blindness that happened to Israel," both mentally and morally qualifying them for his purpose. In the 4th chapter they are seen with the Lamb on Mount Zion, and they sing a new song before the throne and before the four beasts, the one body, the bride, and no man could learn that song but the 144,000.

It is further said they were not defiled by apostate lewd women, the progeny of the old mother church. Redeemed from among men, being the "first fruits" of the increase of their own nation, for all Israel has not yet come to the full. They are also said to be free from guile, honest hearted "without fault," that is for the purpose, the work before them.

3. The innumerable multitude of civil service officials, who serve God in his tabernacle day and night, who will "hunger and thirst no more" as will undergoing tribulation, neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat, that is free from the flame of persecution, for the Lamb who is in the midst of the throne, shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of waters, and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, removing the cause of tears.

We discover here then three distinct and different companies on, around, and before the throne. Each company sing a song peculiar to itself as related to the past, present and future.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, MARCH 3, 1909. NUMBER 9.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the Real "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites for the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

The Bible and its Message. Number 6.

In our last article we spoke of the covenants that Jehovah made with the fleshly seed and with the spiritual and how each was ratified. Also the future covenant that he will ratify with Judah and Israel when he shall again gather them from among the nations where they were scattered. We wish in this article to speak of the covenant he has made with David. The covenants made with Abraham and David constitute the covenants of Promise. If we are strangers to these covenants, that is do not know them, we are without Christ and without God and hope in the world. We are as Paul says, Eph ii 11, Gentiles according to the flesh. In order that we may become fellow citizens of the household of God we must know the covenants of promise. So let us search for this covenant.

In 2 Sam vii 12 to 18 we find the language of the prophet Nathan. When thy (David's) days be fulfilled and thou shalt sleep with thy fathers, I will set up thy seed after thee which shall proceed out of thy bowels, and I will establish his kingdom. He shall build me an house for my name and I will stablish the throne of his kingdom forever. Thine house and thy kingdom shall be established forever before thee; thy throne shall be established forever. Thus spake Nathan the prophet to David, the king of Israel. This Seed is to occupy David's throne after he has slept with his fathers. This excludes Solomon from fulfilling this prophecy as he sat on David's throne before he slept. The angel said to Mary, Thou shalt bring forth a child, he shall be called the Son of the Highest, and he shall become great, and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David, and he shall rule over the house of Jacob forever, and unto his kingdom there shall be no end. This Son's name was called Jesus. These two prophecies, one by Nathan and the other by the angel relate to the same event. Now by referring to sacred history we find that David's throne was established in Jerusalem, for there he reigned over Israel for 40 years. This was the kingdom of God, and we find it was overturned in the days of Zedekiah, the wicked king of Judah. Ezek xii. In this prophecy it was promised to him whose right it is.

In Isa lv we read, I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David. This prophecy does not mark out with whom this covenant was made, but Paul in Acts xiii explains it by quoting this Scripture and applying it to Christ. As concerning him (Christ) that he raised him from the dead, now no more to return to corruption. He said on this wise, I will give you the sure mercies of David. This establishes the fact that in Isaiah he was speaking of Christ and not Solomon. The sure mercies are referred to as the holy and just things in contrast to the common things of David, which Solomon received. This covenant relates to a kingdom that is now overturned, but which the Eternal One has promised to restore.

In Amos we read of this restoration; In that day I will raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen down, and close up the breaches thereof; and I will raise up his ruins, and I will build it as in the days of old. In Acts xv 16 the apostle quotes this same Scripture and says it will take place after God has taken out of the nations a people for his name.

The building up of this kingdom is the work of Jesus and his saints. In Daniel ii 44 we read, In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people (as the four previous kingdoms had been) but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever. This kingdom is compared to the four kingdoms spoken of in this chapter. They were real literal kingdoms and were universal and were under the whole heavens. So will this kingdom which God has promised to set up be.

The prophet Daniel vii 13, 14, says, I saw in the night visions, and behold, one like the Son of Man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion and glory and a kingdom, that all people, nations and languages should serve him; his dominion is an everlasting dominion which shall not pass away, and his kingdom shall not be destroyed. In the 27th verse of this chapter the prophet says of this kingdom, It is under the whole heavens and not in heaven.

There are some very remarkable statements about this kingdom. 1st, It shall not pass away as all the four have. 2nd, It shall not be given to other people. 3rd, It shall stand forever. We are assured of these things because Jehovah has said them. The Psalmist (89th Psalm) has written, I have made a covenant with my chosen, I have sworn unto David my servant. Thy seed will I establish forever, and I will build up his throne to all generations. My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that has gone out of my lips. Once have I sworn by my holiness, that I will not lie unto David. His seed shall endure forever and his throne as the sun before me. It shall be established forever as the moon and as a faithful witness in heaven.

Again we read (Psa cxxxii), The Lord hath sworn in truth unto David. He will not turn from it. Of the fruit of thy body will I set upon thy throne forever. Here we find that Jehovah has sworn by his holiness, and he hath sworn in truth that he will accomplish this unto David and his seed after him. Under the influence of the Holy Spirit Peter said, Acts ii 30, God had sworn with an oath to him (David) that of the fruit of the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne. We have this assurance that for this purpose God has raised Jesus up. This is the kingdom about which Jesus preached and sent his apostles out to preach. They all preached the gospel of the kingdom of God. This gospel was and is yet good news. The good news relates to the restoration of this kingdom of David. John the Baptist preached that the royal Majesty of the heaven is at hand. Jesus is the promised one. The Jews as a nation rejected him and he is now taking out of the nations a people for his name. The heaven must retain this same Jesus until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began. Acts iii 21. In order to be taken out we must believe the gospel, reform our life and be baptized into his name. We have then put on Christ and are Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise. Your brother striving for the kingdom of God.

The German tract written by Bro. M Joblin is out of print, so do not send for more.

Brother S. J Lindsay, of Oregon, began a series of meetings at Fonthill Ontario on February 28, but was obliged to stop on account of an epidemic of diphtheria. He was at Niagara Falls on Sunday last.

Brother W. L. Skeels writes saying please publish the following: "I would like to correspond with those that desire to have evangelistic work done in their locality." Let all interested in this take notice. Address Brother Skeels at Tempe, Arizona.

Brother S. P. Renner of Lanark, Illinois, writes. The brethren here still meet every First Day. We also have preaching once a month now by Bro. Marsh. He is a young man, and takes well with his hearers. We expect him here for a meeting the first week in March.

Brother O. J. Allard is still holding meetings at South Bend. On Wednesday last he was called to Plymouth to administer baptism to one who has been closely associated with our church people at North Salem for several years, and is at this time living here. Years ago she had been immersed by the United Brethren people, but becoming acquainted with the truth of the gospel had accepted it, but like some others had held to her old baptism as sufficient. While Bro. Allard was holding meetings here, in some way he impressed her with the conviction that she was not yet just right, and her mind would not rest. She wants to be saved, and have part in the glory of the coming kingdom, so after mature consideration, and wishing to submit freely and willingly to God's will, asked Brother Allard to return and administer the ordinance of baptism, to which request he most gladly acceded. We deem it a pleasure to now introduce to the Household of Faith, Sister Rebecca A. Myers, of the Plymouth Church.

Brother P. H. Bonk sends us the following concerning the dedication of the new Church at Fonthill, Ontario: "The Church of God at Fonthill was dedicated on Sunday last, (Feb. 14.) when despite disagreeable weather, large congregations were present at the services which were conducted, in the morning and evening, by Brother L. F. Conner of Cleveland, Ohio, and in the afternoon by F. L. Austin, of Fonthill. Many were present from Niagara Falls and St. Catharines, and these stayed for all the services. Meals were served in the basement of the church at noon and at six o'clock and even after the evening service was over there were refreshments for those who were hungry. About 250 meals were served throughout the day. The cost of building the church was about $3.500, and most of this had been previously subscribed, but during the day between $700 and $800 was raised, so that the church is practically free from debt. The money Sunday was raised in about fifteen minutes, among the subscriptions being three of $100 each. In design and structure the new church has called forth many expressions of admiration, and the people of Fonthill are to be congratulated on having such a church in their midst."

Inquiry is made for more information regarding "Esperanto." Walter H. Fox, a writer in The Jewish Era, says, "Esperanto is an attempt to disseminate in the whole world an artificially constructed language which will not interfere or displace any existing language, but which will give to every person a means of intercommunication by a common language, and thus overcome the present difficulties among divers-tongued nations. Like music, it belongs to no nation; but every nation may make upon it the same impress that it imprints upon the musically printed page, readily understood by all musicians, and admired for its individuality." "The Whole of Esperanto" is the title of a little booklet of 40 pages containing the whole grammar of the language, and a dictionary extensive enough for almost any use. Brother Haupt says "The careful student, who has mastered this little book, will be able to read readily any Esperanto publication." The price of this book is only five cents, but Broter Haupt, who is interested in this study, and imported a number of them will send two for five cent, or three cents each. Send to J. G. Haupt, Crowley, Louisiana. Dr. L. L. Zamenhof, a Polish physician, a Jew, created this language. Born at Bialyostock, when but a schoolboy, he was forced to see difficulties arise because Russian, German, Polish and Hebrew were spoken, in the interest of peace, he conceived this "universal language." All who care to go into the subject more fully can subscribe for "Amerika Esperantisto," a monthly magazine published at 1289 Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Sunday School Lesson.

Lesson for Sunday, March 14.

Eneas and Dorcas. Acts ix 31-43.

Golden Text. And Peter said unto him, Eneas, Jesus Christ maketh thee whole; arise, and make thy bed And he arose immediately. Acts ix 34.

At the close of the last lesson the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip. The converted Ethiopian went on his way rejoicing. Philip was found, or found himself, at Azotus. From there he preached in all the cities till he came to Cesarea. Here we take good by of Philip, and find the wonderful story of the wonderful conversion of Saul passing that we again find the Apostle Peter at work. Saul had ceased his persecution of the Church of God, and it had rest because he had no successor. There were parts of the church in Judea, and Galilee and in Samaria. There is still the church of God in various places. Having peace at that time they were busy putting the church in order, instructing, refreshing, strengthening and establishing it. Walking in the fear of the Lord. John said, "I have no greater joy than to hear that my children walk in truth." 3 John iv. We have it in another way. "And they continuedly steadfastly in the apostles doctrine, and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers." Acts ii 42. This was walking in the fear of the Lord, and in the comfort of the Holy Spirit. The church was organized in other places, and the membership increased. The apostle Peter was very active in this work going from place to place till he reached Lydda. There he cured Eneas of the palsy that had made him helpless for eight years. Considering the many false claims of healing, it is nothing short of refreshing to read "Eneas, Jesus Christ maketh thee whole; arise, and make thy bed. And he arose immediately." This brings to mind the promise of the Lord Jesus, "in my name shall they cast out devils." "And went forth, and preached every where, the Lord working with them, and confirming the Word with signs following." Mark xvi 17 and 20. Notice there was no such thing as a process of healing. Eneas arose at once. Had there been any thing gradual in the healing there would have been no confirmation of the preaching of the gospel. The word all in verse 35 can be better understood by the word many. It is fair to believe that Lydda and Saron were small places. It rejoices the heart of all true believers to learn that the people there turned to the Lord. If we overcome to the end we will, in the kingdom, meet those from Lydda and Saron, and among them Eneas.

The scene changes to Joppa on the Mediterranean Sea, about twelve miles northwest from Lydda. Attention is called to a disciple named Tabitha—Dorcas who proved her faith by her works. She seems to have been a woman of some means. When she died they laid her in an upper chamber. This was very unusual. The dead were not kept in that hot climate, but the disciples in Joppa had an object in view. They could not raise the dead, but they had faith that Peter could, if the Lord was willing. They sent two men, urging him to come at once. There is no account that they told him what for, but the whole story would lead us to believe they did. The poor widows and others were bewailing their loss, perhaps more than the death of Dorcas. Their expressions of grief were doubtless noisy and causing some confusion. The apostle wanted to be left alone with the dead, while he prayed to his Lord. "And turning to the body said. Tabitha, arise." Time and again we have been, and still are, positively told that the body is not the person—the real person, only the shell, and therefore knows nothing. That is not the teaching of God, nor the Lord Jesus, and if Peter ever heard such theory, he did not believe it. He called the body Tabitha. And by the power and favor of the Lord she opened her eyes and sat up. This we will call the [illegible] the extreme of the power of the Holy Spirit as exhibited through the apostles. In the lessons of the last six weeks we can say we have seen the wonderful power of the Holy Spirit manifest through this honored apostle, from one extreme to the other. Ananias and Sapphira, his wife, dropped dead at his rebuke. Acts iv. And now at his command a dead Tabitha sat up. He called the saints and widows. The house of mourning became the house of joy. [illegible] at Joppa was the same as at [illegible] when Eneas was healed. "Many believed in the Lord." There is no such miracles now, and no need for them, we have the Word of revelation in full. It is signed and witnessed by the name of God and Christ, and sealed by the precious blood of Jesus.

Next Lesson, Review. Ins[illegible] To think about. What is a review? Is it a good thing? Is it necessary? Can it be made interesting?

P. X[illegible].

Nuggets of Gold.

The only bank where deposits are safe is the Bank of Heaven, "where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through, nor steal." We, may fail, but the Bank will never fail, nor close against its depositors. The beggar may have even greater riches than the millionaire when deposits are drawn.

Count neither riches nor poverty in this life. "But godliness with contentment is great gain." Contentment is the greatest wealth that we can acquire. It is the foundation of happiness, the essence of joy.

The conscience is the watchdog which the Creator placed on guard against the vultures and [illegible] beasts of the intellect. If the watchdog is killed, men and women become "as natural brute beasts made to be taken and destroyed, speaking evil of the things they understand not, and shall utterly perish in their own corruption."

People may be conscientious and not be Christians; but they cannot be Christians and not be conscientious. Paul was a conscientious Jew when he persecuted Christians. He was a conscientious Christian when with equal honesty he suffered persecution with Christians. What is the rule for the conscience? Both know and do right.

A man that is not honest is a hypocrite—a thing! The worst thing on earth, despised above all things that have the form of manhood—God did not make him. He is self made; by his own self will he made himself a "double minded man, unstable in all his ways." Both male and female created they them—creatures of lust, of self desires.

"Honesty is the best policy" now and now after.

The only higher plain of creation is to "abide as new creatures in Christ Jesus because he gave the only perfect philosophy of manhood. Man may fall below the Christian philosophy but it never falls below man.

Obituary.

Oliver Orval Orr was born in Forest Township, Clinton Co., Indiana, September 20, 1888. Died February 1, 1909, aged 20 years, 4 months, 11 days.

At the tender age of six years, Orval was bereft of the maternal love which is dearest of all to the child. Since the death of his mother he has lived with his grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Orr, who have assisted his father in rearing him and his sister. Orval was very dear to their hearts, even as their own child, and by their constant watch-care and kindness was made very happy, and, if ever a parent could be both father and mother, Orval's father surely has, for his entire life, since the death of his helpmeet has been devoted to the comfort and happiness of the two children left in his care. The dear grandmother has as nearly as possible taken the place of his mother and has never tired of doing her part. But all of them have been doubly repaid by his cheerful and loving disposition. Many times has he cheerfully assisted his grandmother with her household duties, not only lightening the burdens by his work, but by the willingness with which he did it; and oftimes when choice of work was given, took for himself the hardest, thus lightening the burdens of his grand-parents and father, until the fatal accident which caused his untimely death.

Orval was in perfect health. He had bright anticipations for the future, and only a few days before his death told his blood friends what a pleasant summer he expected to spend.

Orval is survived by a father, Austin Orr, and a sister, Mrs. Lela Jones, whom Orval loved, it seemed as his own life and would have sacrificed anything he possessed to make her happy. He is also survived by several aunts, uncles and cousins and many friends. It might fitly be said, that no young man of his age had more friends and fewer enemies, for he was not only a friend to the young but the elderly as well, always liberal and ready to speak a kind word.

Discourse at his funeral, conducted by the undersigned, was on the "Two Lives," past and future.

Wm. Plummer was born in Fayette County, Indiana, December 29, 1823. Died at the home of his son, William H. Plummer, February 19, 1909, aged 85 years, 1 month and 20 days.

He married Phoebe Friar in 1844, and came to this county 63 years ago. To this union eight children were born. Two sons, Calvin and William H. and one daughter, Mrs. C. E. Hatch, of California, ten grandchildren and a host of relatives and friends remain to mourn his loss.

He was a loving husband, a kind and affectionate father and an excellent neighbor. As a citizen he was above reproach, and respected and loved by all who knew him.

He united with the Church of God forty-one years ago, and has been an active member ever since. He always contributed liberally for the support of the church, and improved every opportunity to go to Sunday School, Social meeting and preaching services. In late years he always occupied a chair near the minister that he might hear the words of light and life.

In his sickness, which lasted from Monday until Friday evening, he found comfort in the Holy Scriptures, repeating passage after passage of the promises of God.

Our brother is dead but he shall live again; for the trumpet shall sound and "the dead in Christ" shall come forth to life everlasting, where there will be no more parting, no more sorrow, no more tears, but where all will be joy and peace.

Discourse, "Future Life," by the undersigned.

Editor Restitution:

I enclose you $1.50 for my subscription to The Restitution for another year. Thanking you for favors past, and looking forward with glad anticipation I await, but knowing but the kingdom of God may have come before this year's subscription expires. I do love to see the many articles coming into the paper, with the apostacy left out. "Is the Holy Spirit a person?" is one of them.

In the course of the year, we get many good articles, any of which is worth the price of the paper. Send out the glad tidings, the fields are already white for the harvest; the sowing time is nearly over; be of good courage and faithful, and we'll strike glad hands in the kingdom by and by. With love,

Walker Perrine.

Dear Restitution:

I feel it a pleasure as well as a duty to mention some of the many praiseworthy deeds and traits of a grand old soldier of the cross, Brother S. R. Clinkenbeard, of Bonham, Texas, who has been preaching the gospel of Christ and the things concerning the kingdom, for over half a century, and bless the Lord, he is here yet, going about and doing good, turning people from darkness to light, and from satan to God. He is like Philip of old, he was down in the country baptizing both men and women.

He is a man of generous and noble impulses. He is nearly 81 years old, he greets his many friends with a kind word and a cheering smile. He is now distributing tracts and good religious literature. Those who know him best love him most. The little children run after him, greeting him with smiles and kisses.

THE COVENANTS OF PROMISE.

Within the holy Bible we read of wondrous things,
The rise and fall of nations, the rule of priests and kings.
Upon its glowing pages His promises revealed,
But ope' the way to other truths, within its depths concealed.

Historical and sacred, we love to read them o'er,
And as we grasp their meaning, we love them more and more.
Rich gems that we must gather as God gives light to see,
The matchless beauty of His face, in wondrous symmetry.

We love to read His promises unbroken through the years.
From age to age He changes not, and tho' man dreads and fears,
He cares for, watches o'er him, with a power and love divine;
Through all man's sin and wondering, shines mercy and peace sublime.

We turn to the days of Noah, when God talked and communed with him,
Warned him of coming danger to the people dead in sin.
And how he himself might be rescued, and his family, too, 'tis said,
If he would trust in God and obey Him, and by His voice be led.

So he perished not with the wicked, but was saved in the ark he made,
Kept alive through that flood of waters, because he had faith and obeyed.
And God gave him a rainbow of promise, making his covenant more secure,
That there should be no more flood of waters as long as earth should endure.

Then the word of God came to Abram, in a vision, a deep dark sleep,
And He said, "Fear not I am with thee,"
And we know He hath power to keep.
As he dwelt in the land of Canaan, God's words to him were plain,
"Thy seed shall be as the dust of the earth and more than that thou shalt gain,

A vast and rich inheritance, my covenant is with thee;
Thy faith shall be accounted as righteousness, as the stars thy seed shall be.
A father of many nations and thou Abraham shalt be called,
My covenant is everlasting. Would we not stand appalled,

To be told of such great possessions, and such promises steadfast and sure?
Well might we seek to gain them, and in their sweet peace rest secure.
So Abraham obeyed and was faithful, and walked in God's way we are told;
Thus receiving unnumbered blessings, more and more as he grew old.

Again, God said unto Abraham, Sarah shalt bear thee a son,
And thou shalt call his name Isaac, thy covenant and his shall be one;
For I will establish it with him, and with his seed after him,
If he will live in my law and commandments and shun deeds of evil and sin.

Then we read the strange story of Jacob, near Haran, in a wonderful dream,
With naught but a stone for a pillow, how a ladder to heaven was seen,
With God's angels ascending and descending,—how the Lord stood above and looked down,
And his speech to Jacob was greater, than any of this world's renown.

Saying I give the land of Canaan, thine own, forever to hold,
And thy seed which shall be in number, as the dust of the earth we are told.
To the east and the west shall they scatter, and spread from the north to the south.
Then shall all families of the earth be blessed, through sunshine or tempest or drought.

And furthermore I will be with thee, and keep thee wherever thou art,
Then Jacob awoke and was startled; a great fear stole into his heart,
And he said, Surely the Lord is present, and I knew it not, and am afraid,
He said, How dreadful is this place, then he took his stone pillow and made

A pillar by standing it upright, poured on oil to anoint it and said,
The name of this place shall be Bethel; and me e—if the Lord gives me bread,
And abides with me in my wanderings, I'll return to my father's house in peace
A tenth shall be the Lord's of my substance, and of all my earthly increase.

Then He spake to his servant Moses, Hearken! Obey my voice,
Keep my covenant, law, and commandments and in my statutes rejoice.
Thou shalt be a peculiar treasure, a kingdom of priests, we are told.
I will make thee an holy nation, and thou to Israel these plans must unfold.

Again, God said unto Moses, write the words that I shall give,
'Tis my covenant with the Israelites and thee, to teach thee the way to live.
Then He gave him the Ten Commandments, which he wrote on the tables of stone,
There on the mountain of Sinai, he and the Lord, alone.

Forty days without food or water, forty nights to fasting were given,
While he wrote what the Lord commanded, As a law for God's law might have striven.
And when he came down from the mountain, with the tables of stone in his hand,
His shining face frightened the people, They could not understand,

Till he talked with Aaron and called them and told what the Lord had said.
But he veiled his face while they listened, still waiting there to be fed.
Then he went again to the Master, and communed for a little space,
While the murmuring people wondered at the glory of his face.

Then he gathered the congregation and the children of Israel again,
And spake what the Lord commanded, to teach them the duty of men.
How they should observe the Sabbath, keep it holy, not work therein.
Only six days shalt thou labor For not rest the seventh is sin.

But later, God had to rebuke them, when, wayward, they disobeyed.
Yet, when they returned He still blessed them. His anger against them assuaged
For He said, I will keep my covenant, put my law in thy inward parts,
Be your God and ye be my people, and I'll write my law in your hearts.

But time and space fail me to tell you, of Phineas and Joshua of old,
And David, the sweet singer of Israel, whom God covenanted with we are told.
But may we not claim His rich promise, and in faith still possess the land,
Till we gather in Christ's own Kingdom, a worthy, unbroken band?

Mrs. Hester V. Berry.

What Kind of Fruit They Bear.

We have a class of bright eyed, rosy-cheeked boys; we love them dearly, and cannot bear the idea that one of them should ever fall into the power of the rum fiend. One day, pointing to a tree in full bloom, we said: "What fruit will that tree bear this year?" "Apples," cried every voice. "And next year?" "Apples." "And the next, and the next?" "Apples, apples." "Right every time! But what makes you think it will always bear apples? Why not peaches or pears? They grow on trees, and have blossoms quite like these." "Oh, but this is an apple tree, and they always bear apples."

That is true. And those rum-shops; they bear idleness, drunkenness, shame, ruin and death; and they NEVER BEAR ANYTHING ELSE!—Bible Standard.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take The Restitution, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take The Restitution on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Do you want to go to College? If so we can help you. We have already put hundreds through college by the means of our plan. Write today for full information regarding our offer of a free scholarship in any school or college. Address Robert J. Sherlock, 29-31 East 22d st. New York.

Please don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Poore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Do not forget to renew your subscription when it expires.

Ebenezer. 1. Sam 7, 12

The copy for this department of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 3502 Woodland Ave. Cleveland, Ohio. Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

Let us Pray.

Oh God, our merciful Father. We thank Thee that when we come to Thee in Jesus' name we have the joyful confidence that we shall not be heard for our much speaking, that Thou lookest at the heart, and knowest all our wants before we ask, and if we ask amiss Thou art too good to bestow it to our hurt. We would come to Thee as Thy adopted children, and cast ourselves upon Thy mercy and Thy bounty and ask Thee to pardon all our trespasses for Jesus' sake and do with us and for us better than we can ask or think.

We would also ask Thee to be gracious to all Thy children—especially the sick and infirm ones, and those subjected to severe trials—Oh Father, be very near to such and grant them Thy heavenly favor, which is better than life.

And now, Lord, we ask Thee to bless us while together. We rejoice to know that another loved one has resolved to forsake all and follow Jesus. She has fallen in love with Thy plans and purposes as revealed by Thy great promises, and is anxious to put on the Anointed by burial with him in the waters of baptism. May she deeply realize the solemnity of the Act,—the momentous results that hang upon a death to sin and a rising to walk in newness of life and conduct till the Lift Giver shall come to impart the Divine nature. Oh God, we commend to Thy special care this lamb of the fold. May she be kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation, and we will give Thee all the glory through our Lord and Redeemer. And Father, we also pray for others who are beginning to love Thy precious truth—may they, too, soon become obedient,—separate from the world and set their faces Zionward and may Thy kingdom soon come and Thy will be done in earth. In Jesus' name.

Read Brother Stewart's article in this issue entitled, "Water baptism prior to Holy Spirit;" then think awhile.

Those sisters who are contributors to the "Sermon Gem" department will please take notice that we need one article from each of them per month.

At 1:30 in the afternoon, Feb'y 22nd, at Fort Monroe, Va., the American battleship fleet cast anchor. This is the first battleship fleet in the world that has ever circumnavigated the globe. The "mighty men" are waking up. Joel iii 10.

Brother Humphrey has settled the public prayer controversy by quoting Jno xi 41, 42: "Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me. And I knew that thou hearest me alway, but because of the people which stand by I said it." And when God answered Christ's prayer in Jno xii 28, it was "not because of me," said Jesus, "but for your sakes." (v. 30). There is no need of multiplying words—the question is settled.

January 28, scientific observatories all over the world where seismographs are installed, recorded a violent quake of the earth. The papers report earthquakes in Persia (in Luristan, western Persia, sixty villages were partially or wholly destroyed), London, Lisbon, Constantinople, Porto Rico, and Smyrna. Over 6,000 people lost their lives. The earthquakes in "divers places" spoken of by our Savior in prophecy, are surely being realized.

Advocates of woman's suffrage have recently been a very disturbing element in London. It required police interference to stop the confusion. The gentle sex should remember that as society is now constituted, they are bearing more than half the burdens of the world—are doing more than their share. Let them not aspire to do more. They are holding to the wrong end of the argument. Instead of pleading to be "equal with men," and thereby make man their superior in inference, and themselves only his "equal" if their highest aspirations are realized, let them get back to God's good Word that "the woman is the glory of the man." 1 Cor xi 7. Biblically they are superior to men; and when they condescend to the low standard of man's "equality," they vacate the throne of "glory" on which they should sit wreathed in queenly crowns.

Feb'y 19th the House of representatives passed an amendment to prevent shipments of liquor into "dry" territory. If the inhibition of the amendment is violated by railroads or express companies, they are liable to a fine of $5,000 and two years' imprisonment. Speaker Cannon, who has been much criticised for his supposed sympathy with liquor interests, voted with the temperance forces.

"The flesh lusteth against the spirit * * * so that ye cannot do the things that ye would." Gal v 17. We obey the "flesh" the moment we begin to do "the things that we would." The "flesh" is positively "against" the spirit. It is our most dangerous enemy. What is the flesh? The text suggests the answer to this query by the words, "Ye cannot do the things that ye would." By dropping the letter h, and by then spelling the word "flesh" backward, we have s-e-l-f. "Self lusteth against the spirit." That tells the whole story. Keep an open eye on self; he is your worst enemy.

A brother in Indiana sends us the following question, apparently for information, signed "A Reader." "To Brother A. J. Eychaner: 'There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh but after the spirit.' Rom viii. 1. 'The fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. Against such there is no law.' Gal v 22, 23. What law applies to those who are not under condemnation?—A Reader." Ebenezer is open to Brother Eychaner if he cares to answer the question propounded.

The Church of God in Cleveland had occasion for special joy Sunday, Feb'y 28th, when Viola and Georgia Gazely put on Christ in baptism. We have cause to rejoice that there are several other young people of our church who are much interested, and have already signified their desire to follow our two youngsters in the path of obedience. The Lord is signally blessing his church in this city, for which we are profoundly thankful.

The Dragon.

What is the dragon referred to in Rev xvi 13.—Eld. O. J. Allard.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

The 13th verse speaks of three mouths—the mouth of the dragon, beast, and false prophet. That the dragon, beast, and false prophet, stand for systems of political and religious organizations, all admit; and with this admission goes the necessary conclusion that the "mouth" of the system designated is apocalyptically a symbol of its government. This is made apparent in the 14th verse where "the kings of the earth" are equivalent to the "mouths" of the governments they represent. So the "mouth of the dragon," would be language used symbolically to represent the king and capital of the country intended. So interpreted, the mouth of the dragon polity, would be Constantinople; the mouth of the beast polity, Vienna; and the mouth of the false prophet polity, Rome. From these three political centres, three unclean spirits whose resemblance is like to frogs, go forth in sanguinary and warlike policies, so disturbing in nature and universal in extent, that the "Kings of the earth, and of the whole world" are brought together in deadly conflict in the "battle of that great day of God Almighty." v. 14. Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked, and they see his shame." v. 15.

Sermon Gems.

GOD'S CONVERTING POWER—WHAT IS IT?

Man by disobedience warped his moral organism; he could never start even after that. He of necessity would be predisposed to disobey again, and frequent repetitions would make them children of disobedience. To cause men to be obedient under these circumstances, his mind must be changed, and his affections transferred from one set of objects to another. To induce an intelligent creature to change his course of conduct, it is not enough to command him to do it; he will want to know why he should do it; motives must be set before him. No one but God could offer man inducements to change his mind and conduct. And the Creator of heaven and earth and all things would not wish to change man's mind without a purpose. He would have some beneficent end in view. His aim would be to ennoble and enrich man. He can neither be enriched nor ennobled by anything man can do. This being the case the God we speak of must be a God of love—love for man; this, and nothing else would cause him to employ means to change man. The unchanged man is out of harmony with God's purpose. The desired change would fit him for God's purpose. And whatever means God employs to change man's mind and conduct that means is his converting power. To convert is to change. As the change desired is of mental and moral character, the converting power must be of a mental and moral character. And here the question confronts us: "What is God's converting power?" It is a question of momentous importance. Eternal things depend upon it. What has God done to influence us to change our minds and conduct. What is he doing to bring about the change he desires? That is the great question before us! How does God influence us to change our minds? Does he exert some mysterious power over us and thus compel us to change our minds and conduct? Does he? Is it reasonable that he should act thus? Would he form reasonable and accountable creatures and then treat them as if they were not reasonable and accountable? Would he sentence a man to death because he was accountable for his disobedience, and then try to reclaim him by force? If he forcibly changed man would the change be a moral one? All can see that it would not. If he were obliged to change he would not be morally or religiously changed; he would be only outwardly changed, not changed in heart or mind or affection. It is great folly to think of a forcible change of the mind of an accountable creature; it would at once make him unaccountable. And this principle works both ways. If he is unaccountable for well-doing he is unaccountable for evil doing, and so he is on a level with all animal creation; he is not a religious, accountable creature at all. But he is religiously organized, and is religiously accountable and, therefore, can not be forcibly converted. A forcible conversion would not impress man religiously or morally. I have dwelt thus long on this point because we every day hear men pray for God to send or exert his converting power—pray him to convince and convert men by the power of the Holy Spirit. Now, while it is true that Jesus said the Spirit of truth would convince the world of sin and of righteousness and of judgment, he did not say that this was to be done by a direct and marvelous influence upon the sinners, but as he presently explains, "When the Spirit of truth is come, he will guide you into all truth. He shall glorify me, for he shall receive of mine, and shall show it unto you." And to prove the working of the Spirit all we have to do is to turn to Acts xviii. 28, and read: "For he, Paul, mightily convinced the Jews, and that publicly, showing by the Scriptures that Jesus was the Christ." The Spirit had come and done what Jesus said it should—guided them into all truth; and all they had to do was to speak out the truth to which the Spirit had guided them, and the truth thus spoken convinced them mightily.—M. Joblin.

THE UNKNOWN MAN.

The beloved apostle, John writing to the saints the members of the body of Christ says: "My little children, these things write I unto you, that ye sin not. And if any man sin we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous." 1 John ii. 1. And again to the same "little children," "Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God; therefore the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not." 1 John iii. 1. Those mentioned in this verse are the Father, and "us" the sons of God, and the "world." The world is composed of and includes all who have not believed the gospel,—the glad tidings of the kingdom, and have not been immersed in the name of the Lord Jesus. Those who have from the heart believed and obeyed these tidings are called the sons of God, and the world does not know them. Why? Because "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature, old things are passed away; behold all things are become new." 2 Cor. v. 17.

From these few words of God we learn that the world knows nothing of God, nor Christ, nor those that are Christ's; and therefore when a man becomes one of the new creation—he is an unknown man. Was it always so? Yes, Abel was not known by his own brother, Cain. We believe that Shem knew Noah his father. Japheth may have known his father; Ham did not. Noah was an unknown man. Who knew Abraham? The children of Heth—the Hittites—knew him as a power among them. Gen. xxiii., but as [illegible] God [illegible] xii. 8,) he was [illegible] to men. As the father of the faithful, and as the heir of the world, Rom. iv. 11-13, Abraham is known to the faithful, but to the millions of the world, he is still an unknown man.

Today Jesus is known to the world as a power, but as the Son of God, as the One who will descend from heaven to raise the dead and change the living saints; who will receive from God his Father, the throne of his father David, who will reign on Mt. Zion, King of the Jews, and finally fill the earth with the glory of God,—as such even the Lord Jesus Christ is to many unknown.

Brethren, beloved, "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." John xxii. 3. We who then know God, and Jesus Christ, have been buried with him by baptism into death, from which we rose to walk in a new life, Rom. vi. 4. No longer conformed to this world, but transformed by the renewing of our minds, and may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God, Rom. xii. 2. We have set our affections on things above, not on things on the earth. For we are dead and our life is hid with Christ in God, Col. iii. 2, 3. We have thus, beloved, come out from the world, disappeared from the ranks of the children of men, and are unknown to them, "Nevertheless, the foundation of God standeth sure having this seal, The Lord knoweth them that are his." 2 Tim. ii. 19. —P. Neill.

Sketches of Church History.

No one can estimate the importance and far reaching influence of the movement in Scotland, which pledged the congregation "to withdraw from all submission to the religion of the State. And to maintain in the face of the State, their liberty of conscience." Greene says, "It opened that vast series of struggles which ended in Germany with the peace of Westphalia and in England with the toleration act of William the Third."

The founder of the Presbyterian church in Scotland had wrought more wisely than he knew. The covenant was a bold defiance to Mary and her [illegible] followers. The Scotch nobles would have nothing of the mass, the book of common prayer must take its place in all their churches. And "while hundreds were going to the stake in England, they met the burning of their preachers by a threat of war." Both Knox and his fellow reformer Goodman, affirmed that "to keep the oath of allegiance (with the Bloody Mary) was nothing but plain rebellion against God." "She was," they said, "an open idolatress," "a Jezebel" "a merciless traitress to her own native country."

They could not obey her, for to obey her was to obey the Pope, so "Scotland's Protestantism was the first to draw the sword against earthly rulers."

Indeed the leading idea with all the reformers was to break away from Papacy and get back to the Word of God. It was the first step toward restoring to the people the doctrine of the primitive church. Men must be free; the Bible must be an unchained book.

Water Baptism Prior to Holy Spirit.

"Did the Gentiles receive the Holy Spirit before baptism in water? If so, what was the reason for reversing the order as recorded in Acts ii. 38?"

This question is asked in THE RESTITUTION bearing date Feb. 17, by Bro. O. J. Allard. About this question the writer wishes to say a few words, if permissible.

To our mind the Holy Spirit was not given to the household of Cornelius prior to baptism in water. Our first reason is contained in Acts x. 22, which says that Cornelius was of good report among all the nation of the Jews. Now to be held in good report by the Jews, it would be necessary for the one wishing to be thus held to comply with the laws or traditions governing the case. W. H. Smith's Bible Dictionary, pages 72 & 73, says "From the gospel history we learn that at that time ceremonial washings had been greatly multiplied by traditions of the doctors and elders, (see Mark vii. 3, 4). The most important and probably one of the earliest of these traditional customs was the baptizing of proselytes."

On page 553, "We find in the Talmud a distinction between proselytes of the gate and proselytes of righteousness." Cornelius was a proselyte at the gate. On same page we read, "We learn from the Talmud that, in addition to circumcision, baptism was also required to complete their admission to the faith."

Now if this be true, it can readily be seen that Cornelius had been baptized with water prior to Holy Spirit. He had doubtless been baptized unto John's baptism for the remission of sins. See Mark i. 4; Luke iii. 3. Again it seems to us a significant fact that John's baptism is mentioned in the connection chapter x. 37, and also in Peter's rehearsal chapter xi. 16. And again we read "And all the people that heard him, and the publicans, justified God, being baptized with the baptism of John. But the Pharisees and lawyers rejected the counsel of God against themselves, being not baptized of him." Luke vii. 29, 30.

Baby sprinkling cannot be proven by this Cornelius affair. In verse 2 it says that Cornelius was "a devout man and one that feared God with all his house." If they had mind to fear God, they could exercise faith in God, so it seems to us.

Brother Huggins, your remarks on Cornelius I don't think could be bettered, if he had not been baptized with water prior to Holy Spirit baptism. But I think the circumstances warrant a different conclusion.

Yours in hope,

W. H. STEWART.

Baptism "By the Spirit."

Brother Huggins:

If we are correct in our understanding of the Scripture there is only one baptism, and that is water baptism. How can we harmonize Paul's positive statement in Eph iv 5 with our belief, "One Lord, one faith, one baptism." And 1 Cor xii 12, 13, "By one spirit we are all baptized into one body". It would seem from this that the one baptism is spirit baptism—not water. Now fix this up without any quibbling. Just a few plain words should explain it for the ordinary individual.—Eld. O. J. Allard.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

It is a queer kind of logic that can associate together Eph iv 5 and 1 Cor xii 13, and then triumphantly conclude that spirit baptism is the "one baptism" of Paul's discourse. If there is one, and only one baptism, and if that "one baptism" is spirit baptism, then water baptism is out of date, and is as useless as the first almanac published by Benj. Franklin! How absurd then and foolish to see people thus believing holding on to and actually practicing this old obsolete water ordinance! By claiming that spirit baptism is the "one baptism", and yet baptising in water, they unwittingly belie Paul; for while he insisted there was but one baptism, they claim two!

But to go on (for I am to answer this question "without any quibbling"): Does 1 Cor xii 13 show that the one baptism is spirit baptism? Not if language means what it says. Paul does not say that we are baptized "in the spirit". Had he said this, God would have been the administrator of the ordinance, and the spirit would have been the element "in" which the baptism took place. The form of inspired words here reads: "By one spirit we are baptized into one body". Any "ordinary individual" can see a big difference between being baptized "in the spirit" and baptized "by the spirit". God has in the past and will no doubt in the future baptize people "in" the spirit. But that God should baptize people into himself is hardly among the probabilities, not to say possibilities. If the baptism "by the spirit" is the baptism "in" spirit, then we have the spirit, the administrator, baptizing into itself! In "just a few plain words": A baptism "by" John, apostles, Christ, spirit or God, must always be a baptism into some element distinct from the administrator or the one "by" whom immersion is performed. In illustration of this proposition: The baptism "by" John was not a baptism "in" John, but "in water"; the baptism "by" God was in the spirit; the baptism "by" the spirit was in water. For this reason: The spirit in Christ and the apostles commanded all repentant believers of the gospel to be baptized in water. Every time such an one is baptized "in water" he does so because he is commanded "by" the spirit to do it. People are baptized by the spirit in the same way they are baptized "by the Lord". "Though Jesus himself baptized not" (Jno iv 2), yet the apostles did by his authority, and the record reads that "Jesus made and baptized more disciples than John". v. 1. In precisely the same way we are said to be baptized "by the spirit" when we obey the commandment to be baptized in water, a mandate given to us "by" the authority of the Holy Spirit. This is reasonable, but who can believe the absurd proposition that we are baptized "by the spirit" into the Spirit? That we are baptized "in" what we are baptized "by"?

Comfort in Trial.

Many are willing to follow Christ in public, provided they receive the approbation of those who look on, but the testing of our loyalty to Christ is in every day life when his service is often against our desires and inclination, and when in some cases none but the Master himself would know how great an effort is required to submit to another, for his sake. But we must accustom ourselves to this kind of submission, one to another. If we would please Christ we must "consider one another to provoke unto love and good works." It is his service we are engaged in, and he has commanded us to "love our enemies; bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you and pray for them which despitefully use you." How different to the world's mode of action. With them it is considered a point of honor to resent an injury or slight. But it must not be so with us. We must bear patiently if we think we have been slighted, and overcome evil with good by returning good for evil and continuing in the way of right doing. This we will do if we are strong to please Christ; for we will remember that he said, "Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you." He commands us to, "Resist not evil." The grappling with the difficulties which we will experience in carrying out the work of Christ, will bring satisfaction with it. We will realize that we are on the right track and will be comforted when we remember that the family of God are treading and have trod the same path.

These trials will also be a help to us if we let them serve the purpose for which they are intended. They will make us seek a refuge, and we have the promise that if we come boldly to the throne of grace, we will find help and strength in the time of need. What folly to try to carry the many burdens which afflict us, when we are invited to cast our burden on the Lord, with the promise attached that "He will sustain us." And he does sustain; he does comfort us in trouble. You may think many thoughts about the trouble; how it might have been different, and fear that God has nothing to do with it, and fail to receive the help you need because you do not ask for it, and consequently think that God has nothing to do with it, but if you belong to God he knows all about it. He guides our affairs; he plans good for that which we may think is evil. Human nature requires to be chastened that it may be purified and made meet for the Master's use. Let us not be cast down when troubles come; it is God's fatherly dealing with us. Trust him when things look dark. "Who is there among you that feareth God and walketh in darkness and hath no light; let him trust in the name of the Lord and stay upon his God."

If we keep these things before our minds we will have a good hope through grace and our joy and rejoicing in the hope will be steadfast, and the thought that the Bridegroom is coming, will fill our heart with gladness. He desires to present us perfect at his coming, as a constituent of his Bride, without spot or wrinkle before the throne of his Father, with exceeding joy.

W. S. TOMLINSON.

They Wrote Letters.

Brother Huggins:

Your admonition about taking THE RESTITUTION is excellent. We should be ashamed to take every periodical, and then refuse to take our Church paper. When I go to a brother's home and see the Ladies' Home Journal, pattern periodicals, daily papers of all kinds—and no Church paper, it does not take long to see where the mind of that family is. I cannot bring myself to think they have as much interest in the world to come as they have in this one. It grates on my ears to hear them speak of the "precious faith."

I believe Jesus told the truth when he said "by their fruits ye shall know them." Every brother in the faith should and would take THE RESTITUTION if he kept in touch with the work and was really and truly interested in the truth.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 71.

As I am now through with the history of our Northern Indiana brethren, so far as obtainable, I will give one chapter descriptive of Auntie Willard's friends and contemporaries in the State of Michigan, two of whom—Bro. Ephraim Miller and Bro. E. Hoyt—were instrumental in planting the banner of truth in Marshall County, this State. The data for this chapter was sent me by Bro. E. W. Knapp, Grand View Farm, Laurel, Oregon.

Aug 20, 1858, the Grand River Quarterly Conference was held at Jamestown, Ottawa County, Michigan, and here steps were taken toward organizing a State Conference, Ephraim Miller Jr., being elected president, O. R. L. Crozier, vice president, Elder E. Hoyt, secretary and Elder Joel A Simonds, treasurer. While for evangelists Bro. Ephraim Miller Jr., and A. W. Seymour were appointed, both being logical, forcible and entertaining speakers. They were medium sized men, but were so well armed with weapons from the Arsenal of Truth, that the captains, and colonels of error's hosts found it the better part of valor to keep out of the way, else defeat was certain. I do not know their place of birth nor family history, yet I remember well their kindly faces, and the modesty of their bearing and even the look of Bro. Miller's eyes, who was a much prized friend of my father's and of the Willards. Both Bro. Miller and Bro. Seymour had wives who were helpmeets in the truest sense of the Word, Sister Amy Miller being still alive. Bro. E. Hoyt, I saw but once. He was a tall, spare man, a speaker of fair ability, and a very earnest worker. Bro. Crozier is a short, rather heavy set man, intelligent looking, and a pretty good sermonizer as well as writer; his wife is also well known in the world of letters, and has done much to "cheer up the pilgrims," with her happy strains of song. Two at least of Bro. Crozier's children are missionaries in far away India, helping to preach "this gospel of the kingdom in all the world" that the end may come.

Bro Simonds, I never met and cannot imagine how he looked, but think he must have had a somewhat stern, and positive countenance, judging from his writings. When he made up his mind that a certain theory was true, he would not let go, but held it fast despite all expostulation and argument. He would have "bearded" even the Pope of Rome in his palace on the Tiber, and gone to the stake cheerfully, rather than recant from his cherished opinions.

As evangelists Bro. Miller and Bro. Hoyt were publicly noticed in the Prophetic Expositor; published by Joseph Marsh at Rochester New York. On October 16th, 1858, a convention of believers was held in Leroy, Calhoun Co., Michigan, continuing over Sunday the 18th, where the brethren organized by electing for their officers the same men who had been chosen at the Quarterly Conference, namely, Bro. Miller of Mendon, as president, E. Hoyt, vice president and O. R. L. Crozier, Secretary, and J. A. Simonds, treasurer—the three latter all belonging to Grand Rapids, Michigan. The members of the executive board were William H. Knapp, H. Currier, Daniel Weaver and Martin Hadsel; while the evangelists chosen were as before, Ephraim Miller, Jr., and A. N. Seymour, with the addition of E. Hoyt and O. R. L. Crozier, the latter being also appointed to attend State Conferences in sister States, and E. Hoyt and E. Miller, Jr., to deliver annual sermons at the Annual meetings, these sermons being a special feature of these yearly gatherings that were looked forward to with pleasure.

Bro. E. W. Knapp's father, William H. Knapp, was baptized about 1855. He was living in a log house at that time. In 1860 this Bro. William Knapp built a new house. In planning it, the idea uppermost in the minds of himself and wife, had been to make room enough so they could have the Conference meetings there, and on May 24-26 of 1861, they had their wish gratified—the preachers in attendance being Brothers Miller, Hoyt, Simonds and Saber.

At this meeting Bro. and Sister Knapp had 22 guests, none of their neighbors taking any. That was much as Auntie Willard used to have it at Oswego, and as Bro. Wm. T. Giffin and wife had it at Claysville, Indiana. Both these houses were packed full of brethren and sisters when the annual meetings were held.

Sept 1 3, 1861, the Quarterly Conference was held at Leroy, the very place where the convention had been held in 1858. Bro. William Knapp and wife, both attended this meeting and greatly enjoyed it as they did also the Annual Conference held Sept 28-30th of the same year at Mendon. The Quarterly of Nov 8-10 of 1861, at Watson, Bro. Wm. E. Knapp gladdened by his presence and earnest exhortations.

The next time, June 28 30, 1862, the brethren met at Bro. Knapps' house, and listened with rapt attention as they drank in the words of life from the lips of God's consecrated servants—Miller, Hoyt and Chesebro, and doubtless some poor wanderers "out on the hills away, far off from the gates of gold," were brought into the Father's house.

The two quarterly Conferences following the one at Bro. Wm. H. Knapps, were held as follows, Feb 28, 1863, at Leroy; June 5 7 at Prairieville, and the Annual Conference at Watson, Oct 2-4, 1863. At all these Conferences Bro. and Sister Knapp were present.

The first Conference that their son, Bro. E. W. Knapp, attended away from home was held at Sister Scott's in Wakeshma, Aug 26 28, 1864; Miller, Hoyt, Simonds and Stephenson being the preachers. Here he was baptized, and became a willing bond servant of the Lord Jesus Christ, not for month or a year, but for life.

The Annual Conference for 1864, was held Dec 7 9, but Bro. E. W. Knapp does not know at what place, though his parents were both on hand as usual. The next Conference was at Bro. Ephraim Miller's in Mendon, Dec 10-11, 1864; Riley, Chesebrough and Miller being the preachers, and Bro. E. W. Knapp accompanying his parents to the meeting.

The Annual Conference was now changed, June 1-4, 1865, from October to June, this meeting being held at Bro. Wm. H. Knapp's with 48 guests staying over night. The preachers present were W. C. Hill, E Hoyt, E. Miller, Chesebrough, Simonds and Carter. The sermons were very instructive and effective, piercing the hearts of sinners and causing them to turn to the Lord. Five were baptized making glad the hearts of the brethren, June 30th to July 2nd, the quarterly meeting was held again at Leroy and Sister Scott had the happiness of seeing her three daughters go down into the liquid grave, to come forth, walking in newness of life, till the end of the race should be reached and the crown won. There was also another person baptized but no name is given. A Bro. Servis did most of the preaching here.

June 1-8, 1866, Bro. Wm. H. Knapp attended the ninth Annual Conference, it being held this year at Albion, Mich. The quarterly Conference, Feb 6 10, being again held at Bro. Miller's; Simonds, Stephenson and Miller being the preachers.

The tenth Annual Conference May 30th to June 2, 1867, was at Bro. Wm. H. Knapps, with 68 present, all entertained by Bro. Knapp and his son E W. Knapp, who was living near in a home of his own. Three were baptized, Simonds, Hoyt, Stephenson and Miller being the preachers.

In those early days the brethren nearly all came in conveyances of their own bringing their bedding and sometimes their provisions along, as at Little Wild Cat and Fairfield in Indiana. Bro. Knapp and his son in 1865 mowed some grass quite early, and filled the mow about 4 feet deep, so the brethren and other friends would have a good place to sleep; the horses were turned out to pasture, 18 head of them at that time—and 26 in 1867, straw ticks were brought and such a time as there was in filling ticks—ten besides those belonging to Bro. Knapp, being filled and carried up stairs, the sisters occupying these.

Bro. E. W. Knapp well remembers Bro. Stephenson and Bro. Simonds holding an earnest discussion on the blessing of the nations at his father's one evening after the meeting was out. How long they talked he never knew, for he fell asleep.

"At that time there had come no divisions in the flock and all were as one family, and it did not seem to be as much of an effort to attend five Conferences in a year as it is to attend one now. It seems they thought it their duty to attend and did not try to be excused. There is too much indifference now. "Will the Lord find faith on the earth when he comes?"

Those desiring tracts, make it known to the Tract Committe, Anna L. Adams, 603 Peoria Ave., Dixon, Ill., and the same shall be sent free of charge, but any free will offering will be gladly accepted by that committee.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

The Elements of the Kingdom of God, is the title of an eighteen page tract by Brother T J Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He sets forth that a kingdom cannot exist without a king, cabinet officers, territory, a capital city, subjects, laws. Brother Daniel will send this little tract to you at 10 cents each, or $1 00 a dozen. Send direct to him for them.

"The Kingdom of God," is the title of a tract written by T J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom; second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist; third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ. Address T J Daniel, Magazine Ark

BROTHER John Foore of Parsons, Kansas, realizing that his preaching days are getting short, as he is nearly 76 years old, has issued a series of 10 tracts. They have cost him a considerable sum, and he offers to supply them to the brethren on most liberal terms. The average cost of these tracts is about 10 cents each, and he offers to send them at cost. Also he says that where people are too poor to pay for them he will send them to such free if they will send name and address. The subjects treated are as follows: The Great Divine Healer vs. last day healers, The stature of Christ The restitution, The kingdom of God, Law and testimony, The judgment, Is baptism essential to salvation, Life and death, Signs of the end, Through the second vail, Three days and three nights, Election and predestination. Let any one wishing these tracts send direct to John Foore, Parsons, Kan

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore. A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Eve to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always give us your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband, George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say he was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the best issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put in his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

A Word about Words.

Ah me! these terrible tongues of ours.
Are we half aware of their mighty powers?
Do we ever tremble our hands at all
Where the jet may strike, or the hint may fall?
The latest chirp of that "little bird,"
That spicy story "you must have heard"—
We jerk them away in our gossip rush,
And somebody's glass, of course, goes to smash.
What lives have been blasted and broken,
What pet plant sinks been stirred,
By a word in lightness spoken,
By only an idle word.

A sneer—a shrug—a whisper low—
They are poisoned shafts from an unbended bow!
Hot by the coward, the fool, the knave,
They pierce the mail of the great and brave;
Aim at the heights of wisdom or pride
To turn the pitiless point aside;
The lip may curl with a careless smile,
But the heart drips blood—drips blood the while.
Ah me! what hearts have been broken,
What rivers of blood been stirred,
By a word in malice spoken,
By only a bitter word.

A kindly word and a tender tone—
To only God is their virtue known!
They can lift from the dust the abject head,
They can turn a foe to a friend instead;
The heart close barred with passion and pride
Will fling at their knock its portal wide,
And the hate that blights and the scorn that sears
Will melt in the fountain of childlike tears.
What fetter-bound griefs have been broken,
What rivers of love been stirred,
By a word in kindness spoken,
By only a gentle word.

"Ransom for All." 1 Tim ii 6.

WHAT IS THE SCRIPTURAL RANSOM?

Naturally, Christian minds are exercised upon the subject of what becomes of those who do not now believe on the Lord, who cannot now believe on him, because they fail to obtain a knowledge of the only "name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved"—the great world of mankind in general.

When our first parents fell, and thereby forfeited the right to probation, they had no claims upon God for any opportunity for another probation, either in this life or in a future life. They passed deservedly under the sentence to return to the dust from which they were taken. Justice could make no further claims in man's behalf, and if any plan of ransom was intended to be revealed, it would be by the love of God. He is no respecter of persons. Therefore he did not withhold his offer of ransom for a few who would call themselves the "little flock." He made known his plan of redemption in "due time," and that time was immediately upon its having become necessary, and the plaster was there and then put upon the wound, and was large enough to cover it; and the fact that the remedy was not effectual co-extensively with the race as men multiplied, is not due to any defect nor difficulty in the remedy, but to the degeneracy and apostasy of mankind.

Here are the parents of the race in a fallen state, needing redemption. The dimly revealed plan of redemption provides a "seed of the woman" who "shall bruise the serpent's head." That "Seed" was Christ. But he, personally and as an actual sacrifice, was not due for over four thousand years. To wait that length of time would be fatal to the millions who in the interval would go down under the sentence, "Dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return." Now is the time to set the redemptive plan in operation. Here are the sick patients, apply the remedy. How? By means of types of the "Lamb of God" who is to "take away the sin of the world." In this manner he can become the "Lamb from the foundation of the world" by means of the one faith being "once for all delivered to the saints." God did his part as an act of love—did it "once for all;" and he in no sense is responsible for the fact that a large part of mankind "wandered out of the way of understanding," and are fit only to "remain in the congregation of the dead." Prov xxi 16.

The "ransom for all" believed in by so many is an invented "ransom." It would force upon man a restitution of a physical condition without man performing any part in it. Man having fallen by sin, the wisdom of God is seen in requiring that he profit by the experience of trial under the evils he brought upon himself; it requires that to secure the physical redemption; man must be a voluntary and an active participant in the work, not a mere passive subject operated upon miraculously by resurrection.

The ransom, in the primary sense, was only the re-instating of man in the relation to God from which he fell. Before he fell, man was on probation, with the tree of life open to him; after the fall, he was not on probation, and the way to the tree of life was closed against him. The ransom, which was entirely an act of God's love, and in which, primarily, man did not participate, was a restoration to a probationary relationship, by which man could "work out his salvation," which would result ultimately in healing the physical sin-produced condition, and end in the "redemption of the body." The matter of the "ransom for all," therefore, may be stated thus, sin closed the door against all—Adam and his descendants; the ransom opened the door "for all"—Adam and his descendants. Taking this view of it the ransom is as truly "for all" as the effect of the fall was. It may also be expressed in this way: Adam closed the door against "all"; Christ opened the door "for all." While Christ personally and literally as a sacrifice was not there to effect the ransom, the wisdom of God provided that the efficacy of his predetermined sacrifice should be drawn on in advance by means of types of what would certainly become realities. The door which the ransom thus opened was never afterwards closed. That thousands have wandered away and lost it, does not change the fact in the least. The special revelations which have been made since the delivery of "the faith once for all to the saints" have not been new "ransoms," new gospels, new faiths; they have been a resounding of the same ransom, gospel, faith, etc. There have been changes in the means of induction into the one faith, necessarily, by reason of transitions from times of "shadow" to times of "substance," but the gospel has always been the same, because man's condition has always required a common salvation." Only those who have reached a state of self-consciousness and amenability are subjects of resurrection, according to the Scriptures. The worthy who have been faithful in their probation, "to a resurrection of life;" and the unworthy, who have been unfaithful in their probation, to a resurrection of damnation." Jno v 29. Instead of touching the resurrection of every human being; good, bad or indifferent that has ever lived, the Scriptures declare their utter annihilation, unless they become accountable to God through a knowledge of the gospel.

Now against the claims, against the presumption, against the audacity of the theory of "ransom for all" we submit the clear and unmistakable declarations of the Scriptures of truth as follows:

Psa xlix 12, 14, 20, "Man being in honor abideth not; he is like the beasts that perish.....Like sheep they are laid in the grave; death shall feed on them, and the upright shall have dominion over them in the morning; and their beauty shall consume in the grave from their dwelling.....Man that is in honor, and understandeth not, is like the beasts that perish."

Isa xxvi 13, 14, "O Lord our God, other lords beside thee have had dominion over us; but by thee only will we make mention of thy name. They are dead, they shall not live; they are deceased, they shall not rise; therefore hast thou visited and destroyed them and made all their memory to perish."

Prov xxi 16, "The man that wandereth out of the way of understanding shall remain in the congregation of the dead."

Jer l 39, 57, "In their heat I will make their feasts, and I will make them drunken, that they may rejoice and sleep a perpetual sleep, and not awake, saith the Lord. And I will make drunk her princes, and her wise men, her captains, and her rulers, and her mighty men; they shall sleep a perpetual sleep, and not awake, saith the King, whose name is the Lord of hosts."

Oba xvi, "For as ye have drunk upon my holy mountain, so shall all the heathen drink continually, yea they shall drink and they shall swallow down, and they shall be as though they had not been."

Rom ii 12, "For as many as have sinned without law shall perish without law; and as many as have sinned in the law shall be judged by the law."

These Scriptures allow of no evasions, no misunderstandings. Whatever theory may be held of "ransom" it is compelled to respect these divinely inspired declarations. They are directly and immovably opposed to the theory of "ransom for all," and therefore the question is, Shall we accept God's Word? or shall we accept the inventions of man-made doctrines? Those who understand the Scriptural ransom will have no difficulty in deciding; but where there is ignorance of this, victims will become a prey to the charms of delusion. The whole theory of "ransom for all" is based upon the delusion that flesh and blood is of great value in the sight of God. It teaches that if you do not accept "ransom" voluntarily in this life, and join the "little flock," it shall be forced upon you by resurrection power, in which you shall have no choice, and in which merit or demerit will count for nothing. You will awake from the sleep of death, and find yourselves a mixed multitude of savages of the woods and prairies, of thieves, murderers, and adulterers, of idiots, infants and philosophers, and of good well-meaning people,—all of you, whether you had any previous brains in your previous life or not; "ransomed;" notwithstanding that many of you lived your previous life in reckless sinfulness and total depravity.

All this folly is avoided by accepting the simplicity, consistency and truthfulness of the Scriptures, in declaring that the entire race fell in the federal head, and that as soon as the fall occurred free grace opened the door that sin had closed. In doing this no one was forced to enter the door. God's love and goodness opened it, and "once for all" delivered the one faith to the saints who had fallen and deserved to be condemned. The door was left open. It has never been closed. In this God did more than his part, viewed from the standpoint of justice. His act was an act of love and the open door throughout all ages has been a witness of his great love. But to enter the door required an act of man. He must act now. It is his turn; and his mental and moral action is the only means that will give him the fitness and adaptibility for eternity. If he enters in any other way "he is a thief and a robber," and if he were forced through the door by physical power, whether he had mental or moral powers or not, he would be worthless for eternity as he was for time, and more so.

There must be "fruit meet for repentance" before the door can be entered. This is a truth that commends itself to reason, justice and wisdom, while to force physical nature upon good, bad and indifferent alike, is to outrage every principle of that righteousness which is revealed in the Scriptures of truth.

From the time the door was opened and man ransomed to the opportunity be lost, the voice of God has been "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come." If many have wandered too far away to hear the voice of love, God is not to be held responsible for that. He delivered the "one faith" into the custody of man to start with. Those who forsook it and wandered into ways of idolatry, or ignorance or depravity, thereby give evidence of their unfitness for future life; if these conditions were transmitted to their posterity, and rendered worse by the hereditary transfer, then the inheritors were still more unfit for eternity, and for the glory and honor of God in the ages to come. Their existence within providentially limited bounds has been permitted in this life, and the purpose it has served has been as an object lesson for those whom God has been "taking out" as "a people for his name."

Apart from this, they have been fit only to be "turned into sheol with all nations that forget God;" "like sheep they are laid in the grave, and death (not resurrection or life) shall feed on them," Psalm xlix. 14. Reproof and correction have done them no good. "Their way is their folly, yet their posterity approve their sayings," vs. 13. "Nevertheless, man being in honor abideth not; he is like the beasts that perish," verse 12. "He shall go to the generation of his fathers; they shall never see light," verse 19. They are beyond redemption. Therefore the wisdom of God has decreed that they shall not "have any more a portion forever in anything that is done under the sun." They are of "the dead" who "know not anything, neither have they any more a reward; for the memory of them is forgotten," Eccl. ix. 5-6.

They were of the flesh and not of the Spirit, and therefore belong to those of whom it is said "For all flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away; but the word of the Lord endureth forever. And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you," 1 Peter i. 24-25.

Beware, dear reader, of "cunningly devised fables" and turn away from those "making the Word of God of none effect through their traditions." "Let us hold fast the form of sound words in faith and love which is in Christ Jesus." May God in his mercy bestow upon both reader and writer the inestimable boon of immortality and incorruption.

NOTICE.

Dear Sisters of Tithing Society of the Church of God in Michigan:

The time is near at hand when our yearly Conference convenes at Dutton. Let us as members of this Society, be present if possible, not only to receive benefit and cheer, but to give to others in return. We have done well financially in the past; may we not hope to do even better in the future. During the past year we have paid out for gospel work $110. This means the treasury is running low. Up to date there has not been as much as usual paid in to our treasurer, Sister Emma Jackman, Burton Ave. Grand Rapids, Michigan, but we hope with her address now before us that efforts will be made to contribute as the Lord has prospered us to this work.

Yours in a good cause.

Iva Hill Aldrich, Pres.
Jessie Hill Marston, Sec.

Editor Restitution:

I wish to say just here that I am the Treasurer of the Conference of the Church of God of Arkansas, Missouri, Texas, Kansas and Oklahoma, and as such Treasurer I am soliciting donations for the purpose of putting an Evangelist in the field another year, or just as soon as a sufficient amount is paid in to start the work. A complete record is kept of all monies received. I desire to solicit from all interested in sending the gospel to others who know nothing of these grand truths.

Address me at Sallisaw, Okla.

Your Brother waiting for the Second Coming of Christ and the establishing of his kingdom,

R. O. TURNER.

BROTHER John L. Wince is issuing a 44 page tract on the subject "Salvation" It is the series of articles that were printed in THE RESTITUTION some months ago. The subject of Salvation is a living question, in which every one should be interested. Brother Wince is not doing this to make money,—but with a desire to help some to see Salvation's way more clearly and induce them to walk in that way. The price is ten cents each postpaid, or 12 for one dollar. Any one who desires a copy and is not able to pay for it, will be supplied free on request. Order from the Author Pierceton, Ind., or from this office as is most convenient.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

The Bible School.

The Bible School will be held at Plymouth, beginning Monday immediately following the close of our annual June meeting at the old Antioch meeting house, which is held over the second Sunday in June.

As one of the teachers it is my place to select the lessons I expect to handle. The first lesson will be a review of the history of the flood, followed by lessons on the confusion of language, and the repeopling of the earth after the flood. The call of Abraham and the promises made to him. The sojourn in Egypt. The Exodus and sojourn in the wilderness. The conquest and settlement of Canaan. One lesson on the prophecies relating to Christ's first advent.

Brother S. J. Lindsay will give a series of lessons also, concerning which he will give notice in due time.

We ask for a large attendance, especially young folks. All are requested to read and familiarize themselves with the Scriptures bearing upon the several themes to be handled during the term. The scholar must be deeply interested, as well as the teacher, or no progress will be made in the knowledge of divine themes.

Brother Lindsay will beat the Bible School, held at Plymouth, and will base his lessons on the Acts of the Apostles. All who are arranging to attend should notify the Secretary, Mrs. Lydia Railsback, 621 S. Fellows St. South Bend, Ind.

Arrangements will be made for lodging and boarding all who may come.

JOHN L. WINCE,
Chairman Committee.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

A. R. UNDERWOOD.

Plymouth, Indiana, June 2, 1909.

We trust all who know their time has expired, will realize how important it is that they renew promptly. To make out and mail statements to each is quite expensive, and most all already know when their time runs out, so that it is not really necessary. Please take note of this, friends.

Let all Michigan brethren go to Dutton for the Annual Conference. A good meeting is assured if each will do his part. Remember the meeting at Old Antioch, Marshall County, Indiana, next week, and by your presence and encouraging words help to give courage to one another.

Now comes Mr. Andrew Carnegie with a proposition to make peace throughout the world, and limit the armaments of nations. He is now sounding the rulers of Europe with a view to learn how they would receive a call to a "peace conference." He finds a serious condition of affairs, which he describes as follows:—"I find Europe in a ferment. The nations have gone Dreadnought mad and Italy has just decided to spend on battleships many millions of pounds which she can ill spare. Austria has embarked on the same insane program. France has resolved on no less than thirty-eight sea monsters as necessary to her security. All this is caused by German and British rivalry. Now this is not merely a spectacle for us in America to marvel at. It has a direct vital interest for us in our country necessarily about to be drawn into the vortex. Now it has become a pertinent question whether it is permissible for any two nations to involve all the other chief nations." The proposition is that President Taft shall call this conference, and as it appears that the two nations that by their action in forcing the other nations to increase their expenditures, are disturbers, and therefore are criminal, they are to be dealt with in this new light. Of course criminals are punished. Just how Mr. Carnegie proposes to proceed in executing sentence that may be pronounced against two such powers as Germany and England, is not quite clear. However we can watch for the outcome of the effort.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, JUNE 13.

HEROES OF FAITH. HEB. XI. 1-40.

Golden Text. "Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Heb. xi. 1.

There is, as a matter of course much repetition in the Sunday School lesson notes, especially with regard to faith, the faith, and as it is impossible to please God without faith, it is necessary that faith, in some form, should be prominent in all lessons.

Verse 1. What is faith the substance of? What are the things hoped for? What are the things not seen?

2. For by it,—by what?

3. What do we understand through —or by—faith?

17. What induced Abraham to offer Isaac? Who received the promises? What was he promised? Gen. xiii. 15; xvii. 8; xxii. 17, 18. Did he receive what was promised? Acts vii. 1-5.—These references are all important as they contain "The things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ" Acts viii. 12, and therefore the foundation promises for the faith that pleases God.

18. What was said of Isaac?

19. By what did Abraham account that God was able to raise up Isaac from the dead? Had he ever seen any one raised? Did Abraham sacrifice Isaac?

20. How did Isaac bless his sons concerning things to come? How long was the blessing of Esau to last? Gen. xxvii. 39. How long were the blessings to Jacob to last? Gen. xxviii. 3, 4; xxxv. 9-12. Why did Jacob get a blessing different from that of Esau? What things were to come?

21. What caused Jacob to bless the sons of Joseph? What was the blessing? Gen. xlviii. 16-21.

We will not follow the heroes in this chapter further. The lesson would have been more complete if the verses 4 to 16 had not been left out. Let us try now to consider—Heroes of faith.

The brief or short way of describing a hero is "one who displays exceptional courage." It is one of the great facts, that we learn, or can learn, much from contrast,—comparison. Right here it is well to remember that there are two kinds of courage. One has great outward show. This is the kind of hero that men admire and idolize. Such wear a medal, sometimes many medals, and often an expensive monument is set up in honor of them. The other kind of courage has little or no show, no medals, no monument, and yet they require more and have more real courage than the popular hero. Was there ever a greater hero than Abel? Was there ever a greater hero than Noah? Why do they not have monuments? Because they are not the kind of heroes that men admire. Nay, some men despise such heroes, and ignore them, a few profess to admire them, but will have none of their courage—faith. Faith is just another name for the best, the highest, the noblest, and greatest courage. The heroes of this world have their names on the roll of honor among men. The heroes of faith have their names written in heaven, Luke x. 20. Does it require any great courage for a man to "join a church?" Does the world in general despise him? do they sneer at him? Do they talk, and laugh, and joke about him? Do they nicknname him? No, they do nothing of the kind. If he proves to be a good member he has the respect of the church he joins, and all other churches of the same kind, and if he will, and does make himself useful, he is advanced to a position of honor, and thousands do him honor. Is he a hero of faith? The faith of Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Moses, David and others? That is the kind of hero he professes to be, or the kind of hero the church,—his church lets him believe he is. Does this man talk to his fellow men about the kingdom that God will set up on the earth? Dan. ii. 44. Does he delight to talk about Jesus as the Christ, who will be King of the kingdom of God? Dan. vii. 13, 14. And does he expect to be one of the possessors of the kingdom? Dan. vii. 18. Does he, with joy, delight to be of the faith of Abraham? Gal. iii. 7-9. Does he rejoice to tell others of this faith—the promise to Abraham—the covenants of promise?—He does not, he dare not or he would be put out of "his church." Is he then, in any sense a hero of faith? He is not. Are there any heroes of faith now?—Yes. When a man has faith in the promises made to Abraham, concerning the kingdom of God, and his Abraham's seed, Christ, and faith in the promises made to David about his kingdom and his Seed, Christ, and faith in what Jesus preached about these promises, and is immersed in the name of the Lord Jesus, he is a hero of faith, and the Lord adds him to the church, Acts ii. 47. Is that all now? No. He now begins to fight the good fight of faith, to lay hold on eternal life. 1 Tim. iii. 15, he is debarred from "all other churches." He is "religiously" avoided, almost socially avoided by all "religious" people. He is talked about, joked about, his faith is laughed at, he is one of the sect that is everywhere spoken against. Acts xxviii. 22. Is he a hero of faith? Yes indeed. Amidst, and against all opposition he tells the story of the kingdom to come, and the coming of the Lord Jesus. His heart's desire is to instruct the unbelievers, so that he, his neighbor, also may become a hero of faith, and have his name written in the Lamb's Book of Life.

Next Lesson, Review.

Realities and Shams.

It is not easy to convert real sinners to a sham religion. There are abundance of shams in the world, and sinners grow sick of their emptiness, and hanker for reality. If you have anything real to offer, it appeals to their consciences; if you have nothing but shams, they have plenty of them already. They are accustomed to deception; their lives are hollow and heartless: they understand the art of using words to conceal ideas; and with a religion of this quality they have little patience. If there is something real, earnest, and genuine, it strikes an answering chord in many a sinner's heart; but if it is only an empty sound, the worldling has already a world full of emptiness and has no desire for more. Oh, that Christians would learn that to be useful they must be real, that nothing but simplicity and godly sincerity can give weight to their words, and make them effective workers for the salvation of men.

Selections.

[From Messenger]

"THE BLESSED HOPE."

With present conditions so obviously imperfect, and the natural outlook, from the Scriptural standpoint, so utterly hopeless, it might be readily assumed that God's message of life would be eagerly accepted, and the obligations he has imposed most loyally fulfilled. A message that is not only rich with the promise of the future, but confers on the recipient now the highest possible distinction, has in itself, one would think, a magnetic charm we could resist. Yet it is a melancholy fact that by a considerable and, it may be, a growing section of the people, it is esteemed hopelessly out of date; belonging to a system of thought that has outlived its usefulness, just as the Athenians thought it was to the aesthetic Greek, "folly to the Gentile mind. Christ crucified" was to the Jew "a stumbling-block" (1 Cor. i. 23). Christ delivered for our offences and raised again for our justification (Rom. iv. 25), and so precious a centre is this to faith in this evangelical truth is pronounced absurd, completely out of harmony with the modern conception of the universe and man's place therein. This is an age of liberty, and men claim liberty of judgment and of action: liberty to accept and reject what they please; liberty to frame their own system of truth, untrammelled by any external authority. Moreover, there is a spirit of credulity abroad that, notwithstanding its boast it plays with all moral standards, seeks to unite the most diverse elements, and to place all mankind on the same plane, thus we are told that "all life is one," and that "there is no difference between the heathen and the Christian, between the sinner and the saint." Away with all restrictions! away with all narrow exclusiveness! The difference, if any, is not in kind, but in degree. All are one, "bound up in the sacred unity of life," and must eventually reach the same condition. This is a hope, be it noted, that rests on no moral or spiritual basis, and has no ground-work of grace: a hope that alters the fundamental relationship between God and man, and finds its sufficiency in flesh alone.

Here, as elsewhere, the principle of evolution has been supreme. At first, when this expression was given to the world, it was advanced in a hesitating and tentative manner, as though the writer were conscious that he was treading an uncertain path, and knew not whither it might lead. Tennyson, in "In Memoriam," not only used the words, "the larger hope," but he clearly indicated the nebulous and unconfirmed thought it suggested.

> Oh yet we trust that somehow good
> Will be the final goal of ill,
> To pangs of nature, sins of will,
> Defects of doubt, and taints of blood.
>
> That nothing walks with aimless feet;
> That not one life shall be destroyed,
> Or cast as rubbish to the void,
> When God hath made the pile complete.
>
> I stretch lame hands of faith, and grope,
> And gather dust and chaff, and call
> To what I feel is Lord of all,
> And faintly trust the larger hope.

These expressions "lame hands of faith," "faintly trust," and "grope" are suggestive only of some indistinct, ill-defined thought, begotten more of desire than of conscious knowledge, and this vague and unsatisfying condition is still true of that type of mind which, if strictly scientific, has wistful longings after some of the consoling beliefs of the Christian faith. Precision and definiteness regarding the future are, of course, deprecated. Such are deemed outside the region of demonstrable fact, and, therefore, unscientific. But with a philosophy that admits their possibility, they, in their saner moods, would even hope and trust that "Somehow" it may be that

> Good shall fall
> At last—far off—at last, to all
> And every Winter change to Spring.

But if scientific findings are still unpretentious and uncertain, the latest development in religious thought—the New Theology—is not so. There has been a wonderful advance in certitude and assurance since "In Memoriam" was written. What was before taught as a vague possibility is now boldly and aggressively asserted. The greatest discovery of modern times, we are told, is the discovery of man in his relation to the Universe. He is no longer "a frail creature of dust," but a spiritual being, a child of God, part of the great universal Soul or Self, from whose Being he never was and never can be separated. His life is the life of God; his years are the years of the Eternal; his being and personal consciousness mingle with, and are part of, the great Over-soul that is immanent in everything; so that God and man are united in one vast indivisible unity: and so on! There seems no limit to his monstrous claims, when man is self-invested with all his powers of imaginary greatness. As a strenuous advocate of this "larger faith" said recently: "Let man realize the greatness of his own being. He is the crown and glory of nature's handwork. Let him stand upon his feet like a young god, and there is no limit to the possibilities of his being; for all power in heaven and earth is his."

This is the "larger hope" of today: "the Gospel of the humanity of God and the divinity of man,"—a message "charged with infinite possibilities for the emancipation and higher development of the race." But what is the value of it all? There never was a system of belief more diametrically opposed to the obvious facts of life. Fair sounding phrases will not soften hard and unpalatable truths, neither will presumptuous claims nor imaginary results modify the eternal verities. Not a particle of positive evidence can be adduced in its support. It consists of nothing but unproved and unprovable assertions, which are so often at variance with common sense, and stultify reason itself in the process of advancement, that the marvel is that men of intelligence and judgment could ever bring their minds to accept it. The basis of all is the two fold error of believing (1) that man, by nature, is a Son of God, and (2) the serpent's lie, uttered at the beginning, "Thou shalt not surely die" (Gen. iii. 4). In these twin propositions the whole system of error is contained. The first, we have already seen, is opposed to the teaching of Jesus, and no belief can have validity if left without His support. The second is equally erroneous and is condemned by the unanimous voice of Scripture. This condemnation, it is true, will have little weight, for those so believing have ceased to regard the Bible as the Word of God. But when they voluntarily cut themselves adrift from every external guide or authority, what remains? The limit of the possible becomes the measure of man's knowledge; and who, from the depths of his experience, can testify to the truth of these things? Where is the advantage of believing that man's life is but an endless succession of cycles, like worlds moving in their orbits, when conscious knowledge ceases on the verge of the tomb? and where is the advantage of believing that man is but a unit in a larger Self, that is one with God to all eternity, when nothing exists eternally to demonstrate its truth? As every pulsation of the heart sends the life-blood to every part of the body, so every attribute of existence, and the collective dicta of experience falsify these airy pretentions, and limit man's cosmic place to the capabilities of his organic frame. It is a misnomer to speak of such conceptions as "the larger hope." They are but an infinity of speculative guess work, that means the negation of all hope. Hope demans confidence and assurance, the clear light of conviction, and the certainty of fulfilment, not "lame hands of faith," nor the monstrous presumption that claims for man the status and power of God. And the "One Hope" of the Gospel, which is alone fulfils these conditions. It is "an anchor of the soul, both sure and stead fast, and entereth into that within the vail (Heb. vi. 19), the one and only hope which has as its basis and authority the Word of God.

What is it? In what does this "blessed hope" consist? Coming with such lofty credentials, what does it presage and provide? Needless to say, it centres in Him by whom the page of memory is gilded—the Lord Jesus Christ. He, and He alone can brighten the days to come with the golden rays of promise. In his letter to Titus the apostle describes this hope, in both its present and future aspects, with a clearness and a minuteness that leave nothing to be desired. "For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men, teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world; looking for that blessed hope, the appearing of the glory of the great God, and our Saviour Jesus Christ" (Titus ii. 11-13). This the true Christian attitude. These words contain the measure and fulness of the Christian's hope, —the hope which is corroborated and confirmed by every authority to which credence can be attached, in which confidence can repose. The Second Coming of the Lord Jesus Christ is the central theme of New Testament teaching. It was as the breath of life to the early Church the vital power that enabled them to maintain their enthusiasm in the Master's cause, and gave them strength to endure. And the Lord Jesus Himself was the inspiration of all. This seed of promise, which blossomed out into the perennial flower of apostolic hope, Jesus planted deep in the hearts of His disciples. Oftimes it was the thought expressly elucidated in the parables which had such a heart-searching application. "Watch, therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come." "Be ye also ready: for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh." "Blessed is that servant whom his Lord when He cometh shall find watching" (Matt. xxiv. 42, 44, 46). It was, moreover, the comfort they received when Jesus told them of His approaching departure: "If I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also" (John xiv. 3). Later, with almost dramatic intensity, as if expressly designed to emphasise its truth, they were reminded of this precious promise. As they watched with wistful eyes their Master's retreating form, two men in white apparel—doubtless angels—said unto them, "Why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, who is taken from you into heaven shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go into heaven" (Acts i. 10-11). How inexpressibly dear, in such an hour, must have been this grand assurance. No wonder that a hope so inspired, and so strikingly confirmed, should occupy the premier place, be the supreme desire of their hearts, and the object of constant prayer. All the apostles speak of it in terms of intense conviction and glowing assurance. Thus Peter: "God shall send Jesus Christ, who before was preached unto you: whom the heavens must receive until the times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His Holy angels since the world began" (Acts iii. 20, 21). Paul: "The Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel and the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first" (1 Thess. iv. 16). James: "Be patient, therefore, brethren unto the coming of the Lord. Behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the early and latter rain. Be ye also patient: stablish your hearts; for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh" (James v. 7, 8). And John, closing the Book of Revelation, and with it the volume of God's Word, says: "He which testifieth these things saith, Surely, I come quickly;" to which he responds with his fervent "Amen. Even so, come Lord Jesus" (Rev. xxii. 20). Thus the range of apostolic testimony is complete. Its unity is unbroken. All believed in, and testified to, the reality of "the blessed hope." For the Coming of the Lord they waited with patience, and prepared with diligence, knowing that "unto them that look for Him shall He appear the second time, without sin, unto salvation." (Heb. ix. 28).

Nor is this hope "the blessed hope" merely because of the certainty of its fulfilment. Undoubtedly, certitude with respect to the future is a glorious boon, but the privilege is immeasurably increased when combined therewith are the varied elements that give substance and reality to faith. The Second Coming of Christ is a blessed hope, because it will bring to the Christian every aspiration his regenerated heart can desire. Now, in Christ Jesus he has many blessings. He has obtained justification by faith; the unspeakable blessing of forgiveness; peace with God: all those spiritual blessings in heavenly places which have their scope and fulness in the present life, and which comes as the riches of God's grace in Christ Jesus. But, withal, its physical nature is left untouched. He is still subject to the weakness, infirmity and privations of this moral state. Death is still unconquered; morality has not been swallowed up of life; this present evil world is still supreme. For these and kindred evils "the blessed hope" is the grand solvent. When Jesus comes again, He will appear as the Resurrection and the Life, and He will raise from the dust of death His sleeping saints, gather the living, change all into the likeness of His own glorious body, and, like Himself, fashion them "after the power of an endless life." Moreover, as "King of Kings and Lord of Lords," Jesus is coming to establish a new order, to make "the kingdoms of this world the kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ," and to bear rule over all the earth. His glorified saints, he shall dignify with a share of the regal honors of His Kingdom, for they are to be "kings and priests unto God, and shall reign on the earth" (Rev. v. 10). Having a part in the first resurrection they shall be "blessed and holy," and shall "reign with Christ a thousand years" (Rev. xx. 6). All these blessings—life, glory, honour, immortality—faith's richest heritage, all come with the Coming of the King. Yea, with His coming shall begin the golden age of universal blessing, when He shall judge the world with righteousness and the people with His truth: when "men shall be blessed in Him, and all nations shall call Him blessed: when even nature itself shall rejoice with joy and singing, and the glory of the Lord shall not only "appear" as the apostle declared, but, according to the larger thought of the prophet, "cover the earth, as the waters cover the sea."

Such world-wonders as these, so strong in their personal appeal, rich in their promise of blessing are with singular aptness, designated "the blessed hope." It gathers within its ample folds the whole scheme of truth embodied by all who have spoken in the name of the Lord. Looked at from whatever standpoint we please—from the narrow circle of personal need, or the wider range of future glory, as the time of individual blessing, or the harbinger of world-wide good, it is "the blessed hope," blessed in its certainty, as in the glorious person in whom all centres: blessed equally in its nature, as it will be in its universal results. Hope, as the staple ingredient of life, is only efficacious when it is based on the rock of truth, when it has as its sponsor and surety the God of heaven. There have been many false hopes, the world is surfeit with them; but "the blessed hope" alone is of God, and in grandeur and in glory, in all that speaks to and comes from the heart, there is nothing within the entire range of human thought to which it can be compared.

> Thou art coming, O my Savior,
> Thou art coming, O my King,
> In Thy beauty, all-resplendent,
> In Thy glory, all-transcendent,
> Well may we rejoice and sing.
>
> Time appointed may be long,
> But the vision must be sure;
> Certainty shall make us strong;
> Joyful patience can endure,
>
> O the joy to see Thee reigning,
> Thee, my own beloved Lord!
> Every tongue Thy name confessing,
> Worship, honor, glory, blessing,
> Brought to Thee with glad accord—
> Thee, my Master and my Friend,
> Vindicated and enthroned,
> Unto earth's remotest end
> Glorified, adored, and owned.

He who has this hope is doubly blest: it brings to the discipline of life the one power that engenders a willing mind and faithful spirit, that instils the principles of obedience and ensures the victor's crown. For "he that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as Christ is pure" (1 John iii. 3).—D. Young.

Hindu Literature.

This book of over 400 pages is of special value to the young people in order to enable them to meet the attacks upon Christianity from Theosophists and others. It has been fully endorsed by the most eminent Oriental scholars of Europe as being authentic, and the historic facts here presented are unimpeachable. A few copies of this standard $1 50 book may now be had for $1.00 a copy post paid. It is used in colleges and universities. Send all orders to Mrs. Elizabeth A Reed, 1811 Balmoral av, Chicago, Illinois.

"In life," says J. R. Miller, "there are higher or lower currents. Too many of us use only the lower sails, and catch only the winds blowing along earthly levels. But there are also winds which blow down from the mountains of God, and it would be an unspeakable gain to us if all were to let our life fall under the influence of these upper currents."

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

The less we are accustomed to the less danger we have of suffering deprivations.

We are able to report this week two more additions to our ecclesia in Brother and Sister David Russell.

It is a great blessing to have that which we desire; but it is a greater blessing not to desire anything except that which we have or can get.

Absence from home occasioned by our Canadian tour has prevented us writing for Ebenezer and getting contributed articles ready for publication.

Desires are like small children; restless, and always asking mother for this and that—they are never satisfied. So with desires; the more we yield to them the more they annoy us.

The moth flies into the flames of the lamp, and the fish swallows the worm on the fishing line, because they know not the danger; but poor man! He gives not up sensual pleasures although he knows full well the dangerous consequences.

Eld. F. L. Austin, Pastor of the Church at Fonthill, Ontario.

Brother Austin, pastor of the church at Fonthill for five or six years, is excellently represented in the above cut. It is to his credit that the new church has been built under his ministry, and a growing congregation speaks well for his intelligence and industry in promulgating the truth. This year was the fifth annual May meeting at Fonthill. In the points of attendance and interest it excelled all past meetings. Brethren and sisters together with friends of different denominations whom our people had interested in private talks, came from various places in the province of Ontario, and the States of New York and Pennsylvania. The brethren wish me to explain that Fonthill is only twelve miles from Niagara Falls. In visiting the Falls, as many of our people do it occasionally at least sometime in their life, be sure not fail to run over and see the Fonthill brethren. You go on a trolley. Write Brother A. Railton, and he will entertain you royally. Our people are just beginning to realize that Fonthill is near the Falls, and as many of them are desirous to see this wonder of America, they plan the trip at the time of the May meeting in Canada. For this reason and many others I do not pause to name, the Fonthill annual meeting is growing in attendance from year to year, and we predict that ere long it will hold the largest meetings in America.

The thrifty condition of the church is due largely to the interest the brethren take in the children. They gather up the children tenderly like little lambs, and while their minds and hearts are tender and susceptible of pure and divine impressions, they prayerfully plant the seed of truth in their affections. The result is that before they "sow their wild oats," they enlist under the banner of the King, and begin in the morning of their life to "sow to the spirit." Little John Railton, aged 13, who by the way is Bro. John Railton, efficiently played the organ during the series of meetings. A good Sunday School is sustained. The children are required to write compositions on the lessons—a plan I wish more of our schools would follow. Elsewhere is an article by Blanch Guylor, age 9, which will be of interest to our readers:

Church of God, Fonthill, Ontario. Dedicated Feb. 14, 1909, and Brother P. H. Bouk, Leader for half a century.

On the 20th of May we bid the brethren in Cleveland good by and departed from the city in the "City of Erie" for Buffalo, N. Y. We left Buffalo the 21st for Fonthill on the trolley, and arrived there at noon. We went at once to the home of Brother and Sister A. Railton, whose home was my home during the series of meetings in the little village. At the head of this article is an excellent cut of the new church which the brethren had dedicated Feb. 14, 1909. It is made of cement blocks, has a seating capacity of 200, and cost about $3,500. Centrally located in the town, it is the best church in the hamlet. In the upper left hand corner of the cut is brother P. H. Bouk, now past 85 years old, who is the father of the church literally and spiritually. He has 6 daughters and as many sons-in-law, all of whom are in the truth. He has been the leading spirit in the Church for half a century; and still he labors on, encouraged from time to time by seeing fruits of his labor in the obedience to the truth of friends and neighbors.

LIFE OF DAVID.

David was the son of Jesse. David had seven brothers. Samuel came to a feast in Bethlehem. God had picked out a man to be king, and sent Samuel to anoint him. When Samuel went seven of Jesse's sons came before him, but David did not come, for he was looking after his father's sheep. Samuel said they were not to be king, so they sent for David, and Samuel knew he was the chosen king and anointed him with oil. David went back to take care of the sheep. He killed a lion and a bear with the help of God. He could play on a harp; he used to play it to King Saul, when he was cross and ugly. One day his father sent him with some bread and parched corn to his brothers who were soldiers in Saul's army. The army was going to fight the Philistines when David came to the camp. The great giant Goliath was waiting to fight him. David said he would fight him. He took some smooth stones from the brook to fight Goliath. He slung a stone and hit Goliath in the forehead and killed him. Then every one sung praises of David. Saul said that David must come and live with him. Jonathan, Saul's son, loved David and gave him his cloak, sword, belt and bow. When David went along the road people sang and played on instruments. They said David was greater than King Saul. This made Saul angry, and he tried to kill David. Jonathan tried to keep David safe from danger. One day David hid in a field near a rock to wait till Jonathan came back. Jonathan and his father were eating dinner. There Jonathan found out that Saul wanted to find David to do him harm. He left the table and went out to the field where David was hidden. He took his bow and arrows. A boy went with him. Jonathan began to shoot his arrows. The boy ran to find them and pick them up. "Is not the arrow beyond thee?" shouted Jonathan. David could hear these words and he knew they meant that he was in danger. They promised to always be friends. David had to wait many years before he was king.

After a while Saul died and Jonathan became king over part of the people; David was king over the other part. One day a man came running to David with a very sad story: he said that Saul and his son had been killed in battle. Then David wrote a song about them. He called it the "Song of the Bow." David had done something wrong and was very sorry for it. God forgave him, and he played on the harp and sang praises. When David was on the throne he helped a poor lame boy. He was the son of Jonathan. When his father was killed his mother ran with the little boy in her arms to a safe place, and let the boy drop, which made him lame.

David had a son named Absalom, he was a beautiful boy with beauty hair. He wanted to be king and tried to get people to like him. Besides disobeying his father he deceived him. He told David that he had promised to go to Hebron to worship God. When he went he made plans to gather the people around him and have them crown him king. He was made king and David went to another place. Then Absalom and his army followed in a forest. Their armies fought a great battle. There Absalom was killed. His hair caught in a tree and his enemies shot at him till he died. David did not go to fight Absalom; but waited at the gate to hear about it. Two men came to carry news. He asked about his son Absalom. The messengers told him he was dead. Then David went away to weep and mourn. He said, "O my son, my son, Absalom; would God I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son."

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 5.

Bro. R. Willard must have some part in this story, for his life, as well as that of Auntie Willard's, was a happy Christian life. I do not mean that they had no trials; that they never felt blue, or discouraged; that there were no pricking thorns or briers in their path; no cloudy weather; no tempests or floods to pass through. They had all of these in full measure. But they had grace from God to live above their trials and to be happy in spite of the thorns and the clouds. And this was what made the lives of all of whom I have been writing—happy lives. It seems paradoxical to be sorrowing, yet always rejoicing, but that is just what the Christian does. He can have his goods all taken away, his friends put to death for Christ's sake, and be himself tortured and tied to the stake and yet rejoice, because looking away to a city whose maker and builder is God. The sun of the Christian never sets; there is always sunlight on the hills.

It may be interesting to the readers of my story to note how much progress the brethren had been making in their search for truth from the time they started out in 1843, up to April 15, 1860. This will be shown in a letter of Bro. Willard's to my father, written from Summit Grove, Hamonton, Pa., on above date. In the East the "Crisis" brethren, and the "Age to Come" people seem not yet to have come to the separating point, and even in the west, a little before this, in 64 or 65. Bro. Stephenson was hoping that the breach might be healed—not by giving up "Age to Come," views, but by bringing the friends of the other side over. Those who had read Bro. Marsh's tract, written in 1858 or 59, on "the Age to Come" were too firmly fixed in their faith to go back; Dr. Field and Bros. Mansfield and Hines could not turn them, nor could Bros. Gresham, Stephenson and Reed, in the efforts they made in Dr. Field's church at Jeffersonville—though they brought a large part of the Church over to their way of thinking—succeed in convincing all, and so the final division came, more slowly however in some parts of the United States than in others; one church in Philadelphia as late as 1878 having both classes of believers in its membership,—if the statement of its pastor—George W. Brown made at that time to my father, was to be credited. He believed Age to Come doctrines but did not preach them. Hesaid "We had to go slow about such things."

But now for the letter. Bro. Willard says,

"Dear Bro. Chaplin:

Yours of the 5th of April, (1860) came duly to hand; thank you kindly. It is even so, the memorable year, so long anticipated as the jubilee of earth has come, and is gliding away like all its predecessors with but little indication of events so important as we would naturally look for in order to trouble the powers that be, and introduce that kingdom which is to stand forever. What the preparations anterior to the second advent by way of distracting and dissolving earthly governments, we are not fully informed other than vernal indications of a harvest which must succeed in due time.

We may be apathetic in reference to the matter, but it does not strike us convincingly that the day is at hand, and yet we have no valid argument against [illegible] Thurman's theory—I suppose you [illegible] W. reject to). We had thought that a partial gathering of God's ancient people to Jerusalem would take place anterior thereto, yet we may be mistaken.

In reference to the nature of the event I find there is some discrepancy of belief among our brethren. If I understand the "Crisis" they have the 1,000 years in the past, and that at the coming of the Lord, the fiery penalty will be executed on Satan and sinners. I confess that I do not so understand the word, to me two resurrections are set forth in the 20th of Rev., and those of the first resurrection are to reign with Christ a thousand years prior to the second resurrection and final destruction. Now if the 1,000 years are in the past, according to Rev xx 6, all saints have reigned during the period of papal persecution. Have we any evidence of that fact? Do we not look for a better time when Satan is bound, who now goeth about as a roaring lion seeking whom he may devour?

To me it is passing strange that our brethren should be right in so many things, and wrong, as I conceive, in the 1,000 year theory. But God's great programme is written out and will not be revoked or changed for any one. As I have been in the habit of looking at the second advent, it will be preceded by Armageddon wars, destruction of portions of the nations, while those left will be required to keep the feast of tabernacles as set forth in Zech xiv and if so, will there not be probation during the 1,000 years if still in the future? So it seems to me.

But one thing we are assured of, it will be just right; God has made no mistakes and the work is committed to the Prince of Peace, whom he has endowed with all power in heaven and in earth. I desire to look unto him as the Author and finisher of my faith. May the Lord keep us unspotted from the world and glorify himself in our final, eternal salvation."

Not many such letters are written in these days, yet I think Bro. and Sister Willard must have grasped Age to Come views, long before going to Hammonton, for Bro. Marsh presented them to the churches in Elkhart and Laporte Counties when he visited them in the early fifties and Sister Miller, in one of her letters, said the brethren were inclined to accept them.

Bro. Willard's family was smaller at this time. The great tailor shop had of course been given up, for peace had come and there was no more need of army coats. Bro. Willard, his wife, son Rowland, another foster daughter named Ella Benton, who had been with them a year, a colored boy of 10 or 12, and two young men from Pittsburg constituted the circle. Lyman was teaching at Medford, and Nelson practicing dentistry at Titusville, Pa. Where the other two foster daughters Carrie Moulton and Amy S. Whiting—were at this time, I do not know.

Three welcome Visitors.

Last Sunday we had another visit from our young brother Ashford Lehman. When he took on him the name of the Lord Jesus, he began to hold up the light, and the result is he has been busy in the Master's vineyard, and another result is he called upon for a reason for his faith by those who believe "another gospel, which is not another." If he continues to grow he will always be welcomed in Salem.

Sunday May 16, we were made glad by the coming of Bro. and Sister Heacock of Canton. They came Sunday morning just before Sunday school, and stayed until after the evening service. We had the edifying pleasure of listening to an excellent address by Bro. Heacock on the ever interesting topic, "Prophecy Concerning the Jew." All present thoroughly enjoyed the sermon. It was—to—a strong proof that our brother is "sound in the faith." Our earnest, heartfelt prayer is that he may continue so, and not be moved by any wind of unsound doctrine, but if the Lord should seem to delay his coming, we further pray that our brother Heacock may soon use his talents as a public instructor in the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ. There are few women—Sisters in the faith—of the age of Sister Heacock who have a better understanding of the Scriptures. It is a joy to record that Bro. and Sister Heacock are "steadfast in the apostles' doctrine" and as such will also be always welcomed to Salem.

Bro. Heacock has kindly granted me his paper. The contents will be sent to THE RESTITUTION in three [illegible] the "Prophets, with us, may [illegible] Concerning the Jew.

Report.

By request of the brethren here at Moorefield, Nebraska, Brother Joseph Williams of St. Paul, Nebraska, came to Moorefield on May 1, and began a meeting at a country School house where the interest and attendance was very good, and eight became obedient to the faith. After continuing the meeting there for two weeks, we decided to change to another School house. So, after resting for a few nights began meeting there and continued over Sunday, when four more accepted the gospel. Those baptized were, Mr. and Mrs. Tandy Stinnette and Wesley Stephenson. Five young men, Vernie Todd, Melvin Schultz, Maurice Stephenson, John Steadman, Roy Worley. Four young ladies, Esther Lapp, Vella Todd, Myrtle Worley, Edna Earhart.

We had an extra good meeting, organized a Sunday School to meet every Sunday afternoon and now have a very promising outlook for future work. Come again, Brother Williams. The brethren here are planning to build a church in the near future if possible.

Obituary.

Susan Eagleburger was born in Chester County, Pa., Sept 11th, 1818. Her family soon moved to Ohio where they lived in Delaware and Marion Counties. Her mother died in 1824. She married Amon Hipsher at Caledonia, Ohio, Oct. 4th, 1846 and to them were born seven children, three of whom survive her; Mrs. Elias Cochran, of Boulder, Colo., Mrs. John Shearer and Mrs. J. C. Adams, of Mont Belvieu, Texas. In 1855 she accompanied her husband to Story Co., Iowa, near Ames, where the greatest portion of her life was spent. In 1879 Mr. and Mrs. Hipsher removed to Furnas Co., Neb., where they lived five years; returning to Iowa in 1884, living near Irving, in Tama Co., until 1888, when they came back to Ames. In 1907 they came south to visit relatives and it was here she fell asleep on April 29th at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Shearer, in the 91st year of her life. A long life, well spent; the influence of which shall never die. She possessed to a marked degrees those virtues that blend together in the character of true womanhood; Simple, thoughtful, earnest, devoted, tender and true was she in life. A kind and affectionate wife and mother, always ready to help the poor and needy; she was a true type of Christian Discipleship. Loyal to her God and faithful to her vows until death. A consistent follower of our blessed Lord. She lived well, therefore she died well, for "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

Wm. S. Kent was born June 23rd, 1828 in Whitby, Canada, and died May 20, 1909, in Watson, Allegan Co., Mich., at the old home. Brother and Sister Kent moved to this County from Lenawee Co., in 1847, where their children were born and reared, Maurice, Schuyler, Francis D., George and an adopted daughter Alice. George, the youngest son, died in infancy. Schuyler lived to the age of 51, and died in the old home nine years ago. The dear faithful mother fell asleep in Jesus the same year. There remains now to miss the welcome of the parents, Maurice, Francis and Mrs. Alice Yakey, with a host of other relatives and friends. Bro. Kent has been an invalid nearly ever since Sister Kent died, but no one could have had more tender care than he has enjoyed through the eldest son Maurice, his niece Sister Alice Holme and her son Roy, who patiently, and unceasingly administered to every want.

Brother and Sister Kent embraced the faith during a revival meeting held by Elder B. W. Woodward 29 years ago, and that faith sustained him through his affliction and pain of years. He sleeps in Jesus. May we meet him in the time of the harvest of the first fruits unto God. Elder Woodward was not able to attend the funeral. Sister Woodward attended and spoke from Job xiv. 14.

M. A. WOODWARD.

Keep At It

Genius has been described as "a capacity for hard work;" and the reason why so many people can accomplish nothing is they do not persist and persevere. It is said that John Sebastian Bach, who united with his distinguished talents and science a singular and praiseworthy modesty, being one day asked how he had contrived to make himself so great an organist, he answered, "I was industrious. Whoever is equally sedulous, will be equally successful." And one of his pupils, complaining that the exercise he had set him was too difficult, he smiled and said, "Only practice it diligently, and you will play it extremely well. You have five as good fingers on each hand as I have, and nature has given me no endowment that she has not as freely bestowed upon you. Judging by myself, application is everything."

It is true there are persons who do difficult things easily, and who speedily distance their competitors; but it is also true that most of these persons fail to attain eminence. Things are so easy to them that they will not waste time to learn them thoroughly. They can do in a day what another may require a week to accomplish; but they will not give the day to the work, and so they are perfect in nothing; while the plodding drudge persists and learns in time to do what they never can do. They could do things if they would try, but they will not try, and so the tortoise outruns the greyhound, the dull boy outstrips the brilliant one, and the man of genius proves a failure, while the man of hard work is a success.—Christian.

God's Plowing.

I was walking, once in the early spring, along the country road. Just over the stone fence yonder there was a broad field, smooth as a floor, and most exquisitely arrayed in the fresh spring greenness of its grass. It seemed to me my eyes had rarely fallen on a sight so lovely. But ripping right through that smooth and pleasant greenness there was being dragged a plow, and the fresh beauty of the fair sward was being turned under from the sun and air, and only the ugly brown soil was being turned outward, and all the fair and radiant scene was being turned under and scarred. "Why?" I asked myself. I do not have to wait long for an answer. The "chastisement" of the fair field was in order that the autumn might find it golden with the more precious harvest of the wheat. Well, God's plowshare cuts; but never for the simple sake of cutting; always for the sake of results of character—fairer, sweeter, nobler. There is benign design behind our chastisement. "Wherefore lift up the hands which hang down, and the feeble knees."—Wayland Hoyt.

The Sin Which Hardens.

To know the truth and then refuse to obey it; to hear the message, assent to its accuracy, bow in the presence of its great demand intellectually, and yet not answer its claim—that is the sin which hardens a man. When a man so disobeys he becomes hardened by the very truth that might have softened him; he becomes enslaved and debased by the very message that ought to have made him free indeed. In that sense the gospel is a savor of life unto life, or death unto death.—G. Campbell Morgan.

Have we ever noted what kind of words the Bible uses to describe God's heart? It speaks not only of the grace that is in it, but the riches of grace, and exceeding riches of grace; not only of the kindness that is in it, but of the loving kindness; not only of the mercies that are in it, but of the tender mercies.

"Be doubly watchful in prosperity."

Order of President,

J. H. Willey.

The Nebraska State Conference of the Church of God will be held in St Paul, August 28 to September 5 inclusive. Programme will be published later.

Minnie Rogers Sec.

Time flies so fast for we mortals that we hardly realize the approaching needs, but it is upon us again, dearly beloved in the Lord. The time for us to prepare for another Conference, the days of spiritual communion, of growing in the knowledge of God and the name of our Life-giver Jesus our Lord.

June the 3d, 1909, is the date of the gathering together, and Dutton again the place of meeting. We are led to rejoice that death has not removed any of the workers here, and we welcome and urge all who can to come to the meeting. Accommodations are better this year than ever before, and we wish every believer in Michigan would make a special effort to attend.

The Conference proper will begin on Thursday evening, June 3d, lasting over Sunday, and Monday morning June 7, at 10:00 a. m. Brother Lindsay will open the Bible School, remaining through the week, with two Bible School sessions each day, and an evening lecture.

What is all this for? Instruction on Bible themes. A better knowledge of God's Word. Who is it for? Not the old war horses, grown old in the King's service; they do not need this instruction, but the middle aged, and young, who have the truth at heart, and are anxious to learn more perfectly the Word of God. Come at the beginning of the meeting if possible, and remain all through. You want an outing, take it then.

A tent will be pitched close by the church for meals, and a rest place for the aged and sickly. We are aiming to make it as comfortable as possible for all.

Do not forget Bibles, tablets and pencils, and above all, do not forget to come. The programme will be announced later. The Michigan Central train leaves Grand Rapids for Dutton at 7 a m, 4 p m, and 11:30 p m. Bro. Lindsay and other preaching brethren will be present through the Conference and Bible School.

An effort must be made in Michigan to secure an Evangelist, and that means that we all will have to put forth an extra effort to raise money for his support. We believe the plan adopted by the Committee at our last conference a good one, and lest some may have forgotten just what it was we request Brother Underwood to print it during this month.

Mary A. Woodward, Sec.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE.

To the Michigan Yearly Conference of the Church of God, assembled in Dutton, greeting:

Whereas: We all seeing the great need of more urgent work being done in the field than is being done, this Committee believes the first act toward that end should be a better financial system. Therefore, we hereby present to the Conference and isolated brethren the following plan:

1, That every member or believer in the Gospel of the Kingdom of God, set apart for this work one dollar each year, and also pay one dollar on each one thousand dollars assessed valuation of their property, this to be paid semi-annually to the State Treasurer, A. K. Richardson, R F D, Hastings, Mich.

2, That each church or company of believers appoint one of their members to collect this money from their church and send to the State Treasurer semi-annually. All isolated members to do the same, or send to the church nearest them, if more convenient. If all will co-operate in this plan it will create a fund which will enable us to keep an Evangelist in the field the most, if not all the time, and will make the burden very light for all, and the result will be surprising.

Accepted and adopted unanimously by the Conference assembled.

Committee:
R Lake,
A K Richardson,
H Hammond,
Wm Moses,
Wm McCrodan.

This programme will be subject to change, as Brother Joseph Williams, of St. Paul, Nebraska, contemplates a trip through Iowa, Illinois and Indiana, and may reach here in time to be at this meeting. Also, Brother N. H. Geiselman, who has been in Florida a number of years, may come north for a visit and be at the June meeting again. Should either, or both these brethren be with us of course all will be anxious to hear them, which will necessitate changes being made in the programme.

By Order of Committee.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

There are some among you who have not paid their subscriptions and still others that have not subscribed who would be glad to help send the gospel of the kingdom to those who are in darkness. As our funds are nearly exhausted, and this work cannot be carried on without money, I am asking each of you to give of your means as God has prospered you. There has been good work done by our preaching brethren this year, and many have been brought to a knowledge of the truth.

Those who are isolated and love the blessed truths and feel they can spare something, even it is only a small amount, send it to the writer. Let us each do our duty that we may hear the Master say, Well done thou good and faithful servant. Let us each one feel that we have a personal interest in this matter. Give and it shall be given unto you, good measure, pressed down and shaken together, and running over, shall men give unto your bosom, for with the same measure that you mete withal, it shall be measured to you again. Luke vi. 38.

With much love for each of you, in my heart I am your Sister in the Christ.

Address me at St. Paul, Neb.

Minnie Rogers,
Sec. Nebraska Conference.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

Please don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

THE MESSENGER

Is the name of a religious monthly magazine advocating the coming of the Kingdom of God, the return of the Lord Jesus, and the hope of Eternal Life. Published in Glasgow, Scotland. Subscriptions received by the American agent, William G. Rothe, 1301 Park Place, Brooklyn, N. Y. 1 copy 37 cts, 2 copies 69 cts, 3 copies 97 cts, 5 or more copies 25 cts each copy per year. Sample copy on application.

Notice To Bereans.

For nearly eight years, our President, Miss Anna Drew, has been working faithfully at the helm, in the meantime doing a vast amount of letter writing. It is absolutely necessary that she take a rest, in order that she may be built up physically.

There is no need for you to do less writing, for a committee has been appointed to attend to the correspondence for the present. The quarterly reports may be sent to Miss Mabel Drummond, Chana, Illinois. Sec'y., and any information regarding the work of the Bereans, their lesson outlines, etc., will be promptly answered by writing to Miss Almeda Mitchell, Lanark, Illinois.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

"The Kingdom of God," is the title of a tract written by T J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom; second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist; third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ. Address T J Daniel, Magazine Ark

Brother, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to The Restitution for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

Brother John Foore of Parsons, Kansas, realizing that his preaching days are getting short, as he is nearly 76 years old, has issued a series of 10 tracts. They have cost him a considerable sum, and he offers to supply them to the brethren on most liberal terms. The average cost of these tracts is about 10 cents each, and he offers to send them at cost. Also he says that where people are too poor to pay for them he will send them to such free if they will send name and address. The subjects treated are as follows: The Great Divine Healer vs. last day healers, The stature of Christ The restitution, The kingdom of God, Law and testimony, The judgment, Is baptism essential to salvation, Life and death, Signs of the end, Through the second vail, Three days and three nights, Election and predestination. Let any one wishing these tracts send direct to John Foore, Parsons, Kan

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

Twelve Words, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

The Gospel of the Kingdom, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 80 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in The Restitution some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Address W. H. Wilson, 420 North Willow Ave, Austin Station, Chicago Illinois.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 866 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10643 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Scripture Searchers Assistant.

A very valuable help to all who are studying the Scriptures—a reprint of one of our beloved Brother Joblin's works. Treats of thirty different subjects, with about four hundred references. All should possess a copy for ready reference. Price by mail six cents, order from Mrs M Joblin, 10643 Ashbury ave, N E Cleveland Ohio

The Elements of the Kingdom of God, is the title of an eighteen page tract by Brother T J Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He sets forth that a kingdom cannot exist without a King, his cabinet officers, territory, a capital city, subjects, laws. Brother Daniel will send this little tract to you at 10 cents each, or $1.00 a dozen. Send direct to him for them.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their names, post office, and state, plainly and distinct. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the owner of the lost clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

How we examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind, not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Thy Will Be Done

We see not, know not. All our way
Is night. With thee alone is day.
From out the torrent's troubled drift,
Above the storm our prayers we lift—
Thy will be done!

Though all we dare may fail, the heart may resist,
But who are we to make complaint,
Or dare to plead in times like these
The weakness of our love of ease?
Thy will be done!

We take with solemn thankfulness
Our burden up, nor ask it less;
And count it joy that even we
May suffer, serve, or wait for thee,
Whose will be done!

"Ransom for All." 1 Tim ii 6. No. 2.

A CONSIDERATION OF THE OPPOSITE VIEW.

Now, it is very probable that, after reading what we have written, and the many Scripture proofs given, you will probably say to yourself, "Well, this appears clear enough and it seems to be well sustained by testimony from the Scriptures, but there are some passages that occur to me that seem to teach the opposite view. What is to be done with these?" Now come let us reason together a little further.

You cannot help but see from the numerous texts we have given that the general tenor of Scripture is set forth in what we have placed before you. This being the case, if there are a few texts that seem to you to contradict the evident teaching of the many texts given, what would be a wise course for you to pursue? Of course you are not prepared to believe that the Bible contradicts itself. If it has the appearance of doing so, you may depend upon it the reason is to be found in taking a wrong view of the few passages that seem to oppose the many. In solving the difficulty it would be very unwise to ignore the general tenor of Scripture teaching and risk your eternal destiny upon a superficial view of a few texts.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JUNE 9, 1909. NUMBER 22.

Now just pause and think and ask yourself the question, How many passages are there that seem to oppose the multitude of testimonies which we have given? To which, remember, many more might be added. You will find that they are few indeed. Now when you come to examine these just as they are you will be surprised to find how far they are from teaching the theory of "ransom or resurrection for all." But even if they were as strongly in favor of this theory as some think them to be it would not do to risk our eternal destiny upon these cases in an utter disregard of the general tenor of the Bible. Let us therefore examine the few texts that are supposed to teach opposite views from those we have set forth, and really see what they do teach upon this subject.

OBJECTIONS ANSWERED.

1. "Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation." Jno v 28, 29.

Does the word "all" include all who ever inhabited this earth, or who shall ever live upon it? This is what is claimed by the advocates of the system against which we are contending. If it does, how do we know that this is its scope? Why, then, should not this word, when found in other connections, embrace the entire human family? Paul was at one time said to be teaching "all men everywhere." Acts xxi 28. According to the logic employed by the advocates of this system, this text says Paul was then and there teaching all men who would ever have existence. Who cannot see at a glance that "all men" were those who came within the sphere of Paul's influence at that time? So also, in our text, the "all" are only those who come within the sphere of the gospel's influence throughout all ages. In our text we are told that there is a class that do evil that are raised to condemnation. Who are they? and what is the basis or ground of their condemnation? We quote Christ's own words on this subject (Jno iii 16-19), "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved. He that believeth on him is not condemned; but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God. And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil. If I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had sin; but now they have no cloak (excuse) for their sin." Jno xv 22. If ye were blind, ye should have no sin; but now ye say, We see; therefore your sin remaineth." Jno ix 41. So we find that knowledge makes men responsible to God. Without a knowledge of God and his Word of truth they are not responsible. In other words, knowledge is the basis of responsibility. Now we are told (Rom v 12) that "sin is not imputed when there is no law, for where no law is, there is no transgression, (Rom iv 15) for sin is the transgression of the law." 1 Jno iii 4. There must therefore be a law in the case. What law is it that makes men accountable to God? It can be no other than the one under which they are judged and condemned. Paul (Rom viii 2) declares that "The law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death." Men and women who reject or willfully disobey this divine law comprise the class who do evil, and are raised to condemnation. For it plainly declares, (Rom ii 12) that "As many as have sinned without (this) law shall also perish without (this) law; and as many as have sinned in (this) law shall be judged by (this) law." Without a knowledge of the law of "the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus" men remain under "the law of sin and death." Therefore they must know this law before they can be governed by it, or become subjects of a resurrection through its power. And "shall come forth"—those having obeyed the commands of the divine law—(they that have done good) unto the resurrection of life; and—those having obeyed the commands of this law—(they that have done evil) unto the resurrection of damnation."

Again, when Jesus says, All that are in the graves shall hear my voice," he does not consider the class "laid away like sheep" and "perishing like beasts" to be anywhere at all, seeing that they have "utterly perished," the "memory of them is forgotten" and "they shall be as though they had not been."

2. "There shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust." Acts xxiv 15.

In support of who the unjust are, the advocates of "ransom for all" quote the following: (Matt v 45) "He maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust." Now, they reason that, as the sun shines and the rain falls upon every one upon the earth, these two classes, just and unjust, embrace all mankind, and therefore all will have a resurrection.

Mankind according to the Scriptures are divided into three classes; the just, the unjust, and those who perish without law (Rom ii 12), being those who do not know the law, and merely die a natural death; that is, die because they are mortal; and are mortal because their parents were. The unjust or wicked, are those who sinned knowingly and deliberately rejected the offer of another life through faith and obedience, and are raised to condemnation (Jno v 28, 29) and die the second death. Rev xx 6, 14.

All men are sinners (Rom v 12) and millions of men and women, good, bad and indifferent, live and die, and God takes no notice of them, unless they give attention to his gospel revealed in the Scriptures. This simplifies the whole proposition, and simmers down the problem of the just and unjust ones to those who become accountable to God through a knowledge of his gospel; and the rain can easily fall on both the just and unjust, and not contradict the above statement.

3. "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." 1 Cor xv 22.

It is argued with apparently a great deal of assurance by advocates of the system under review, that when "all" are said to be the subjects of God's gracious operations, none of the race will fail of ransom.

God assures us that as condemnation passed upon all in Adam, so he has arranged for a new head, father, or life-giver for the race, into whom all may be transferred by faith; and that as all in Adam shared the curse of death, so all in Christ will share the blessing of life, being justified by faith in his blood. Rom v 12, 18, 19. The declaration of our common version Bible, that "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive," is evidently a mistranslation. Standing in that form it is in conflict with other Scriptures, which distinctly limit the number of those who shall be made alive through Christ. The mistranslation favors the doctrine of universal salvation, in that it seems to imply that God's favor and blessing through Christ will not in any sense of the word take into consideration the characters of those to whom life shall be given. Other Scriptures, however, make very clear that not all shall "enter into life," but only those who "do the will of the Father which is in heaven." A plain statement on the subject is found in the words, "He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life." 1 John v 12.

We translate this text properly when we render it, "As all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive." All those connected with Adam die because of his sin. The Apostle's point is that Adam was the father or life-giver of a race, and that by disobedience he, and the race which was in his loins as well, inherited death conditions which hurry them to the tomb more or less rapidly. Now, then, as all who were in Adam shared his sentence and condemnation, even so all in Christ will share divine favor through him. Adam's race was in him actually and legally, without any choice or volition—in him by nature. Those in Christ come into him by grace—individually and on condition, and it is only those who avail themselves of this privilege, and come into Christ, that will be made alive.

4. "It shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment than for that city." Matt x 15.

To advocates of the theory under consideration, this means a promise of restoration for those wicked inhabitants of Sodom and Gomorrha.

The land of Sodom had received its judgment; in fire and brimstone rained from heaven, which "destroyed them all." The dreadful fact was kept in memory all the way down the ages, and it became an example. To describe the wickedness of any particular people, it was compared with that of Sodom. To describe the punishment inflicted or to be inflicted, that of Sodom was brought down, and thrown forward to any coming event of fire punishment, for comparison and to cause a realization of the intensity of the sin and to emphasize the degree of judgment to be poured out for such sin. This is what Jesus did in the words of the Scriptures under consideration. Woe to that city which shall refuse to hear you; for when its day of judgment for this shall come, it shall be worse than that of Sodom. Bring the judgment of Sodom down in your memory and compare it with the judgment that shall overtake the cities in question, and the comparison will show that the latter shall be worse than the former, dreadful to human memory though the former be.

This view is objected to by some because the future tense is used—"shall be more tolerable." But in view of the fact that the "woes" or judgments were future in relation to the cities denounced, what other tense could have been used? Sodom's dire punishment was a past thing, as a matter of literal fact, but it was a present thing in thought with subsequent generations; and since Jesus was making it a matter of comparison with future events, it became a future thing in thought—to be thought of in comparison with an actual judgment to be poured out in the future. It is the thing in question, therefore, that governs the tense, the things compared with it being subordinate to that which was being emphasized, namely, the coming "woes" upon those denounced. It was because "mighty works" had been done and were to be done, in some instances by "signs and wonders, and divers miracles," without effect, that Jesus denounced those in question. They were given opportunities which had not been given to many others. They were, therefore without excuse.

5. "Man lieth down, and riseth not till the heavens be no more, they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep." Job xiv 12.

Advocates of "ransom for all" say this teaches that when the political heavens (the present order of things) are no more, then will men be raised out of their sleep.

In contrasting the hopeless destiny of some men with the hopeful future that shone before him, the good, old patriarch Job uses the above words. What have we here but a declaration based upon the stability and perpetuity of "the heavens"? This is not a reference to political heavens; for the fact of their instability would give no force to the comparison Job is making. His reference is to the "heavens that declare the glory of God," whose ordinances can no more fail than can God's covenant be broken. Therefore of these heavens he says, "till these be no more, they shall not awake." Now let us contrast these statements for comparison. When the heavens are no more, the men I am speaking of shall awake, etc. When will the heavens be no more? Never. Therefore these men will never awake, nor be raised out of their sleep.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, JUNE 20.

REVIEW.

Golden Text. "With great power gave the apostles witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus." Acts iv. 33.

In the lessons of the past quarter we had a partial, but excellent, and intensely interesting account of how the apostle and disciples acted under the combined influence of the teachings of Jesus Christ, and the inspiration and power of the Holy Spirit.

We have now the teachings of Moses and the prophets, of Jesus Christ, and the apostles. This makes the full and complete preparation. The full and complete work of the Holy Spirit. Did you ever notice that all deeply earnest people who do not believe Moses, nor Christ, nor the apostles, in short do not believe in God, claim to have "the Holy Ghost" while none of those who have, from the heart believed and been immersed ever claim anything but a sincere and joyous faith in God's Word. This is a great and strange fact.

Lesson 1, April 4. Peter and Cornelius. Acts x.

What did Peter do at the home of Cornelius? Acts x. 34-43.

What took place when Peter preached? Verse 44.

What was done after the Holy Spirit fell on them? Verses 47, 48.

Lesson 2, April 11. Peter Delivered from Prison. Acts xii.

Who put Peter in prison? Acts xii. 1-4.

Who delivered him from prison? Verses 7 and 17.

What did Peter do when he found himself free? Verse 12 and 17.

Lesson 3, April 18. The Conversion of Saul. Acts ix. 1-30.

What did Paul do before he was converted? Acts xxvi, 9-11.

What did he do after he was converted? Acts ix. 20-22.

What converted him? Rom. i. 15-17.

Lesson 4, April 25. The Gospel in Antioch. Act xi. 19-30.

What is the gospel? Acts viii. 12.

Who carried the gospel to Antioch? Acts xi. 19 20.

What was the result? Verse 21.

Lesson 5, May 2. Paul's First Missionary Journey. Acts xiii. 1-12.

From where did Paul begin his journey? and where to?

Who sent them on this journey? Verse 2.

What did they do as they went from place to place? Verse 5.

Lesson 6, May 9. Paul's First Missionary Journey Continued. Acts xiii. 13-52.

What places are mentioned in this lesson?

In what part of the Bible did Paul begin his sermon? and where did he end?

Did he preach the gospel—glad tidings?

How did it affect the Jews? Verse 45.

How did it affect the Gentiles. Verse 48.

Lesson 7, May 16. Paul's First Missionary Journey Continued. Acts xiv. 1-28.

What part of the journey is in this lesson?

What did they do at Iconium? Verse 3.

Tell some of the important events in this lesson.

What did they do when they got back to Antioch? Verse 27.

Lesson 8, May 28. The Council at Jerusalem. Acts xv. 1-29.

What was the reason of the council? Verses 1 and 5.

Did the council—the church, and apostles, and elders, Verse 4—agree, or say, that the "certain men" were right? Verse 24.

Was the church at Antioch satisfied? Verses 30, 31.

Lesson 9, May 30. Believing and Doing. James ii. 14-25.

Can a person believe without doing? Verse 19.

Can a person have real faith in God without doing? Heb. xi.

What is the first work of faith? Acts ii. 41.

Lesson 10, June 6. The Power of the Tongue. James iii. 1-12.

How Powerful is the tongue? Verse 8.

Can God tame the tongue? Acts ix. 1. 1 Cor. xv. 16, 24.

For a good example of the power of the tongue see Acts xxiv. 25.

Lesson 11, June 13. Heroes of Faith. Heb. xi. 1-40.

Who was the first hero of faith? Verse 4.

Who is named as the greatest hero of faith? Rom. iv. 20; Heb. xi. 17-19.

Who is the last hero mentioned? Rev. xxi. 2.

Lesson 12, June 20. Review.

In the first eight lessons we have an account of how the apostles acted under the gospel and the power of the Holy Spirit. What was it they said that brought on them the wrath of both Jews and Gentiles?

Next Lesson, Temperance, Rom. xiii. 8-14.

To All Concerned:

The undersigned members of the Board of Management of the Bible School Association of the Church of God, having failed to devise any practical plan for the furthering of systematic effort for Bible school work, have with the consent of the most liberal donors, transferred the funds that were placed in our hands, over to Mrs Harriet Boice for use in above named work according to her best judgment. The Visitor, a most commendable production in many respects, is the result of said transfer. Further monies should be sent her direct.

To the end that opportunity may be open for others to undertake what we as a Board have failed in accomplishing, we hereby declare our places vacant from the date of publishing this notice.

Obituary.

Mrs. Emily F. Wood died at her home in Newberg, Oregon, May 26, 1909, of heart disease. The remains were taken to Portland for burial. She was a sister of W. L. Skeels. She leaves three children to mourn her loss—Harvey W. and Elmer E. Brown and a daughter Ella M. Wilson.

ELLA M. WILSON.

Daniel Faye Fisher was born at Levy, Iowa, Jan'y 8, 1894, and died at DesMoines, Iowa, May 16, 1909.

When six years of age he suffered a severe attack of spinal menegetis that left him subject to periodical attacks of epilepsy.

At the Iowa Conference in 1907 he was baptized into the faith and lived a consistent Christian until death.

Words of comfort were spoken by the writer from 1 Thess. iv. 13-14, at which we laid him away to await the call of him who said "I am the resurrection and the life."

Hindu Literature.

This book of over 400 pages is of special value to the young people in order to enable them to meet the attacks upon Christianity from Theosophists and others. It has been fully endorsed by the most eminent Oriental scholars of Europe as being authentic, and the historic facts here presented are unimpeachable. A few copies of this standard $1.50 book may now be had for $1.00 a copy post paid. It is used in colleges and universities. Send all orders to Mrs. Elizabeth A Reed, 1811 Belmoral av, Chicago, Illinois.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

We trust all who know their time has expired, will realize how important it is that they renew promptly. To make out and mail statements to each is quite expensive, and most all already know when their time runs out, so that it is not really necessary. Please take note of this, friends.

We are busy with preparations for Conference. Those who have had experience can realize what house cleaning, etc. has to be done. Telling it simply—we have been, and are now, busy. However, we look forward to a grand good meeting.

The outlook for the Indiana Conference and Bible School is bright. Word direct from Brother Williams tells his intention to be here, and a card from Brother Lindsay says he will also be with us. Reports show that a goodly number are planning to be at the School.

We are requested to say that Sister Gertrude M. Logan, late of St. Louis, Missouri, is now at Salt Lake City, Utah, General Delivery. All interested please make note of the change. She would like to get acquainted with any of the brotherhood near there, so asks such to communicate with her at this address.

At a conference of Baptist ministers held in Chicago, George Burman Foster was asked to withdraw from the Baptist ministry, from the Baptist church, and from the University of Chicago in which he is professor of the History of Religion. Professor Foster will be remembered as the man who some time ago published a book in which he assailed the authenticity of the Bible, and gave offense to many of the denomination to which he belonged.

Brother John L. Wines has issued a 44 page tract on the subject "Salvation" It is the series of articles that were printed in The Restitution some months ago. The subject of Salvation is a living question, in which every one should be interested. Brother Wines is not doing this to make money,—but with a desire to help some to see Salvation's way more clearly and induce them to walk in that way. The price is ten cents each post-paid, or 12 for one dollar. Any one who desires a copy and is not able to pay for it, will be supplied free on request. Order from the Author Pierceton, Ind., or from this office as is most convenient.

Is My Name Written There?

Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another; and the Lord hearkened and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon his name. And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels; and I will spare them, as a man spareth his own son that serveth him. Then shall he return, and discern between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serveth God and him that serveth him not, Mal. iii. 16-18.

Yet now, if thou wilt forgive their sin—; and if not, blot me, I pray thee, out of thy book which thou hast written. And the Lord said unto Moses, Whosoever hath sinned against me, him will I blot out of my book, Ex. xxxii. 32-33

Let them be blotted out of the book of the living, and not be written with the righteous, Psalm lxix. 28.

And at that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth for the children of thy people; and there shall be a time of trouble, such a never was since there was a nation even to that same time; and at that time thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book, Daniel xii. 1.

Notwithstanding in this rejoice not, that the spirits are subject unto you; but rather rejoice, because your names are written in heaven, Luke x. 20.

I intreat thee also, true yoke-fellow, help those women which labored with me in the gospel, with Clement also, and with other my fellow-laborers, whose names are in the book of life, Phil. iv. 3.

He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels, Revelations iii. 5.

And all that dwell upon the earth shall worship him, whose names are not written in the book of life of the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world, Revelations xiii. 8.

The beast that thou sawest was, and is not, and shall ascend out of the bottomless pit, and go into perdition; and they that dwell on the earth shall wonder, whose names were not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world, when they behold the beast that was, and is not, and yet is, Revelations xvii. 8.

And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God, and the books were opened; and another book was opened, which is the book of life; and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works, Rev. xx. 12. See also Revelations xxi. 27; and xxii 18-19.

From the foregoing passages of Scripture it is clear that a record is kept in Heaven of our actions here. It is plain that those acts must be pure and holy, and according to the Divine will. It is evident that in order to a favorable record, we must have complied with the Divine will, and be found among the "overcomers" when Jesus comes, Revelations iii. 5.

How, when, and by what process do we get our names enrolled on the Heavenly Record? By forsaking our sins, accepting Jesus Christ as our Savior, and complying with the requirements of God's holy will, by immersion into the name of Jesus.

I say unto you, that likewise joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons, which need no repentance, Luke xv. 7.

Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones; for I say unto you, That in heaven their angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in heaven, Matthew xviii. 10.

And now I exhort you to be of good cheer; for there shall be no loss of any man's life among you, but of the ship. For there stood by me this night the angel of God, whose I am, and whom I serve, Acts xii. 22-23.

In our business transactions we make deposits in the banks for both safety and convenience, and thus our names become enrolled in the bank's books; we draw checks, so long as we have a surplus there our checks are honored, but not if overdrawn, though our names may still be on the books, there is nothing to our credit. So in our Heavenly account, as stated before, our names are enrolled there when we have complied with the requirements of God's Holy Word. Unlike our earthly accounts however, there is no checking out; our deposits do not consist of gold and silver, but of obedience to the Divine requirements, of a holy consecrated life, of deeds of kindness, love and mercy, of faithfulness in God's service, and of overcoming the wiles of the enemy. Revelations iii. 21, To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in in his throne.

Thus we see, if we wish to be among God's "jewels" (Mal. iii. 17) we must not only become obedient to his requirements, but must not become "weary in well-doing." Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city, Rev. xxii. 14.

I cannot more fittingly close my article than by quoting Mrs. Mary A. Kidder's poem in Songs of the Kingdom

Lord, I ask not for riches, neither silver nor gold;
I would come to the Shepherd, I would enter the fold.
In the book of thy kingdom, with its pages so fair,
Tell me Jesus my Savior, is my name written there?

Chorus:
Is my name written there, on the page white and fair?
In the book of thy kingdom, is my name written there?

Lord, my sins they are many, like the sands of the sea;
But thy life, O my Savior, is sufficient for me.
For thy promise is written, in bright letters that glow,
"Though thy sins be as scarlet, I will make them like snow."

Chorus:

Yes, my name is written there, etc.—

Oh! that beautiful city, with its mansions of light;
With its glorified beings, in pure garments of white,
Where no evil thing cometh, to despoil what is fair;
Where the saints are immortal, yes my name's written there.

The Pale Horse.

J. M. Fyle enumerates recent wars and pestilence, and asks the question, "Is it the work of the pale horse and its rider"?

To that question I would say no. In all the generations since the vision given to John on Patmos, more or less wars and pestilence has been the lot of the human race. Our age cannot be the time of the pale horse because he is preceded by a black horse. Our age and the preceding one is noted for the increase of knowledge; the very opposite of darkness symbolized by the black horse. The key, and rod to the understanding of the symbolism of the four horses seen by John is found in Zech vi 1-5. In reference to the horses it is written, "these are the four spirits of the heavens," Ignore this testimony of the spirit as to the meaning of the horses and you will never understand the symbolism in Rev vi. Adopt it and the vision is plain. White horse period is from the accession of Nerva A. D. 98 to Commodus A. D. 180. Red horse war period, and killing one another from Commodus to the rise of the papacy including the persecutions of the Christians by the Pagans, the wars of Constantine, and of the northern barbarians whose long and bloody wars caused the fall of the Roman empire A. D. 490. Then came the period of the black horse: the reign of the papacy during the period of the dark ages, very aptly symbolized by the black horse. Now add to this dark, dismal period of superstition, the preaching of Peter the hermit aided by the pope, who induced Europe to commence the crusades that lasted about 300 years and bled Europe pale of men and money. Read the history of the Crusades, and you will find every item of the pale horse and his rider fulfilled in the horrors of the crusades. The fifth seal lifts the darkness and exposes the persons of the martyrs pagan and papal, they are dead but like the blood of Abel cry for vengeance on their murderers. We are now in the waiting period until the martyrs yet to be slain shall be accomplished.

The sixth seal open with the great earthquake, and who among us cannot discern the signs of our times? Events indicative of the return of the Master crowd each other, they are the sound of his chariot wheels in the distance.

Geo. Fyle.

The Revelation of Jesus Christ. Act 4th, xiv. 13.

Time of Harvest.

In this act Jesus Christ is revealed as the Lamb, the passover Lamb, who died "that the whole nation perish not," the "greater than Jonah," Matt xii 39-41, who, after his resurrection, Jonah ii 10, preached to Nineveh and they repented. Being a good Israelite he must fulfil the law and bring his first fruits before the harvest. Lev xxiii 14. Continuing the war of the "enmity" Jesus Christ advances and takes position on "the holy hill of Zion." Psa ii 7: cxxii 13-19; Jer iii 12-19; Ezek xliii 7; Luke i 32; Isa lix 16-21. He "declares the decree" "fear God and give glory to him—worship him that made heaven and earth." "The dispensation of the fulness of times" has come. The Mount Zion system is being established. Heb xii 22-28; Solomon Songs ii 10-13.

The great wrath of the enemy has slain the witness, caused many to "die in the Lord" and brought the "great tribulation." "Babylon is fallen" details in xvii and xviii; Isa xiv, xlvii; Type, 2 Kings ix 30-37. "If any man worship the beast—he shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God," details in the vials, most of which are poured out on the worshipers of the beast. These plagues also are "after the manner of Egypt."

When Israel entered the land, a new leader was in command, Joshua, and Jericho fell, so now when Israel enters the land it is not Michael, but the Lamb that commands the campaign, he is "able to make war" with the beast, "Blessed are the dead, that die in the Lord from henceforth."

Jesus the Living Bread.

"And Jesus said unto them, I am the Bread of Life. He that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst." John vi. 35.

Who is Jesus? "Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him, and he in God." 1 John iv. 15.

"Philip answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God." Acts viii. 37.

When Jesus was thirty years old he came from Galilee to Jordan unto John to be baptized of him. And lo, a voice from heaven saying, This is is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

At the transfiguration a voice out of the cloud said, This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him."

One reason the Jews sought to kill him was because he said that God was his Father. John v. 18.

"At that day ye shall ask in my name: and I say not unto you, that I will pray the Father for you: for the Father himself loveth you because ye have loved me, and have believed that I came out from God. I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world; again I leave the world, and go to the Father" John xvi 23, 28.

Bread? Food in general; sustenance, is called the staff of life, and as bread sustains this mortal life, so Christ sustains the spiritual life, and in him we have the promise of eternal life; "for the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." Rom. vi. 23. Jesus Christ is the living bread, and whosoever partakes of this living bread (Jesus) shall live forever, "and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world. Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you. Whoso eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life, and I will raise him up at the last day." John vi. 51-54.

How can we partake of this living bread? By obeying the commands of the One who gives this living bread. He commanded, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel, he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." Mark xvi. 15, 16.

The gospel is good news of the kingdom of God. Then, if we believe the gospel, and obey, by being baptized, what relation does it make us unto God, the One that gives us eternal life through Jesus Christ? It makes us the children of God. "For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ, have put on Christ, ye are all one in Christ Jesus, and if ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to promise." Gal. iii. 26, 29, and that promise gives eternal life, and no eternal life only through Christ.

At the passover feast Christ instituted what is called "The Lord's Supper," and commanded his disciples to eat of the bread as his body, and drink of the wine as his blood, and it is a grievous sin for one to eat or drink unworthily, and as no one is entitled to partake of the emblems of his body and blood, unless they belong to his body, so, no one can expect to receive eternal life and the benefits of the living bread. But by living this present life, in strict obedience to the commands of the Life Giver, Christ Jesus.

Yours in hope.

In a Minute.

"Well, well, don't fret; I'll be there in a minute."

My friend, a minute means a good deal, notwithstanding you affect to hold it of no consequence. Did you ever stop to think what may happen in a minute? No. Well, while you are murdering a minute for yourself and one for me, before you get ready to sit down to the business we have in hand, I will amuse you by telling you some things that will happen meantime.

In a minute we shall be whirled around on the outside of the earth by its diurnal motion a distance of thirteen miles. At the same time we shall have gone along with the earth, in its grand journey around the sun, 1,080 miles. Pretty quick traveling, you say? Why that is slow work compared with the rate of travel of the light which just now reflected from that mirror, made you wink. A minute ago that ray was 11,160,000 miles away.

In a minute, all over the world, about eighty new-born infants have each raised a wail of protest at the fates for thrusting existence upon them, while as many more human beings, weary with the struggles of life, have opened their lips to utter their last sigh.

In a minute the lowest sound your ear can catch has been made by 900 vibrations, while the highest tone reached you after making 2,228,000 vibrations.

In a minute an express train goes a mile, and a street car 82 rods; the fastest trotting horse 147 9-13, and an average walker has gotten over sixteen rods.

In each minute in the United States, night and day, all the year around, twenty four barrels of beer have to go down 12,006 throats, and 4,880 bushels of grain have come to bin.—Cleveland Press.

The generous heart should scorn a pleasure that gives others pain. Talents are matured best in solitude, but character in tempestuousness. Learning without thought is labor lost, thought without learning is perilous. Strength is like gunpowder, to be effective it needs concentration and aim. Happiness is a ball, after which we run, and we push it with our feet when it stops. Most people would succeed in small things if they were not troubled with great ambitions. Make it the interest of others to be your friends. Command honors as well as bestow them. Men are born with two eyes and one tongue, in order that they should see twice as much as they say. Keep out of the saloon, and you will keep out of the lock-up. The road to prosperity passes directly by the rum shop, without stopping. Life is too short for quarreling. As long as the devil can keep Christians disputing he is sure that no work is being done for God. The man who is hopeless of a home is a ruined man. Character, good or bad, has a tendency to perpetuate itself. Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap.—Christian.

Report.

During the month of May the brethren and sisters of the Household of Faith in Virginia, were favored by a series of meetings conducted by Bro. S. J. Lindsay of Oregon, Illinois. Our brother came to us via Washington City to Front Royal, Virginia, thence to Browntown where he held a week's meetings. As a result of his good efforts there Captain Cook, the husband of our esteemed Sister M. F. Cook was baptized.

Brother Lindsay then came to Manertown where he held another week's meetings at Immanuel Church. The last half of the month he spent at Slate Hill. Here Charlotte Boyer, the wife of Brother S. E. Boyer and A. Jackson Ritenour were immersed into the all-saving name of Jesus to walk in newness of life, and rejoice in hope firm unto the end. We gladly welcome into the fold these dear ones, feeling sure that we have gained substantial soldiers for the Anointed-One.

Brother Lindsay was with the brethren at Immanuel over the fifth Sunday, and left the home of Brother A. J. Boyer on Monday morning, May 31 for the Michigan Conference.

The meetings were well attended and we feel that much good has been done in the name of our Savior and King.

Our brother possesses tact, and above all the true spirit of Christ-like love. He presents truth without any harsh criticism or fun-making sarcasm so offensive to those who disagree, and thus by mild and gentle persuasion reaches the finer qualities in men and women. He made many friends in Virginia, and all hope to have him visit us again in the not far distant future.

May God's blessing rest with all till we come in the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Jesus Christ.

Virginia E. Ritenour.

Have you ever risen in the morning depressed and discouraged, without heart or courage for the hours to come? The treatment for this vague feeling of being unequal to the task before you must be quick and heroic. Give your mind a cold bath by dashing right into whatever work there is to be done without fear or trembling. You will be surprised to see how much and what good work you will accomplish. We have only to approach the mountain, which at a distance seemed veiled in mist, to find that the vapor has vanished, that the view is clear.

Plant trees, plant flowers, plant roses, plant smiles, plant good deeds every day, and, above all, plant the feet in the way of right doing.

It is more noble by silence to avoid an injury, than by argument to overcome it.

Prove that there is no devil, and the saloon keeper will be your friend.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10009 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

Married

Corbaley—Farmer. At the home of the bride's mother, at 2090 North Griffin Avenue, Los Angeles, California, April 28, 1909, at 8 o'clock p. m. Clarence Elmo Corbaley and Mary Louise Farmer, the writer officiating.

The bride is one of the noblest of our young women of the Los Angeles Advent Christian Church. She was assistant Superintendent of our Sunday school, and teacher of a class of girls, and much of the prosperity of the school depended upon her faithful interest and wise planning to oversee the best accomplished.

The bridegroom is a fine Christian young man of sterling worth, and was also a helper in our church work. Both sang in the choir, and were faithful to all services.

The wedding was a pretty home affair with relatives and a few of their close friends present. They will make their home in Imperial for a time at least, where Mr. Corbaley has a position with a mercantile firm. After a time we hope to have them back in Los Angeles. Many prayers and best wishes attend them.

To the Church of God:

Our annual meeting at Bosworth, Missouri, comes off June 19-20, being the third Sunday at or near Bosworth at the Brown school house.

Our programme for the meeting song and praise service, with a general lecture Saturday the 19th at 8 p. m. Sunday at 11 o'clock the subject is Fear not, for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people, Luke ii. 10.

At 12 noon, basket dinner, good shady grove for man and beast, and one of the best wells of fresh cold nice water. Adam's ale, so those who are given to drinking can get all they want to drink and that that is the best. All that can come are invited to come; we have good brethren and sisters at this place, and those who are only related to us in the first Adam are just the same, a good class of people.

At 2:30 The one body, 1 Cor. xii; and Eph. iv. 1-18.

Sunday evening at 8 Promises to Abraham.

All are invited.

Uncle John.

P. S.—Remember Uncle John Foore of Parsons, Kansas has 18 different kinds of religious tracts, cost over three hundred dollars; he put in sixty years of hard study and searching the Bible and other men's writings, such men as George Storrs, Jacob Blain, J. M. Stephenson, S. A. Chaplin, and the prophets Christ and the apostles, and evangelized for 47 years mostly at his own expense. Now dear ones is it asking too much of you to ask you to help me, bear one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ.

I have donated one thousand of my tracts to the Parsons Library free. You see I have sent out about five hundred tracts, over half of them I never heard from, and I have not sold enough to pay postage on what I sent out. I have got six thousand tracts on hand but don't need all of them, but I need the money, and you need the tracts. You have convicted me and my tracts without a trial. Yet I have many faithful brethren who give me help.

Well send me stamps and let me mail you some tracts. Address me at 2012 West Coruing ave, Parsons, Kan.

"Go to Prepare a Place For You." John xiv. 3.

Sister Esther Richardson, of Spring Hill, Ore., has requested us to write an exposition of John xiv. 3. We cannot do more in this article than give a brief, but we trust a satisfactory, explanation of the words. "I go to prepare a place for you." Where is the "place" Christ is preparing for his people? "Heaven" is the usual answer given to this question; but it must be to us that heaven needs no preparation. We can understand how a dilapidated house, having stood for a long time without occupants, needs "fixing up," to use a common phrase which is well understood, before a family moves into it. By papering, cleaning etc., the house would be "prepared" for habitation. You cannot convince of heaven being in a dilapidated condition; for our orthodox friends claim that all the good people from Abel to Christ went to heaven when they died. So all the saints who were "done enough to die, the holy angels and the Almighty himself, were in heaven before Christ "prepared" it for them. Did Abel find heaven on keeper of when he "got there?" If heaven was good enough for "right-minded Abel" "the angels" and the Lord, prepared, was it not good enough for the apostles without any preparation? Surely there was no defect in heaven; surely it was all right, as per-fect as God himself.

In the second verse we read, "In my Father's house are many mansions, I go to prepare a place for you." From this statement it is evident that the "place" Christ went to prepare for us is in the "Father's house." The word "mone," here translated mansion, means a room, an abode, a house. The "place" prepared, the "mansions" for God's people, are undoubtedly in the "Father's house." In order to ascertain where these mansions are, it is essential to find out where and what the Father's house is; who are in it. With the question thus applied, note carefully this Scripture: "And it shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established (or, prepared) in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. And many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob, and he will teach us of his ways." Isa. ii. 3. With such lucid information about the Lord's house as is supplied by this passage of Scripture, we must not fail to learn: 1. When it will be established: "In the last days." Where it will be "prepared:" "in the top of the mountain." 3. And what it is: "the house of the God of Jacob."

Thus it is clear that the Father's house will be upon the earth, where "nations flow unto it;" and the saints will have mansions, or places to abode, in it, as "the wheat gathered into the garner." Matt. iii. 12.

The Spirits in Prison.

"For it is better if the will of God be so will, that ye suffer for well-doing than evil-doing. Because Christ also suffered for sins once, the right-eous for the unrighteous, that he might bring us to God; being put to death in the flesh, but made alive in the spirit; in which also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison."

While it is true that we have "One God and Father of all, who is over all, and through all, and in all"; the question which has puzzled so many minds is, What are these spirits in prison, and what means or agency did God employ to accomplish his purpose? We believe that Peter intended to convey to the minds of all who read this Scripture, that Noah preached to wicked, unbelieving men, while they lived, — as he said, "While the ark was a preparing," "in the spirit of Christ." That being a prophet, he also prophesied of the sufferings of Christ, and the glories that should follow. All these glories are made possible by the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ: of which baptism is a figure, and which doth now save us.

"Holy men of old spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit." Of this matter Peter spake in 1 Peter i 11. "The prophets, * * * searching what manner of time, the spirit of Christ which was in them did point unto, when it testified beforehand of the sufferings of Christ, and the glories that should follow them." Then "the Spirit of Christ" or Word of God, (a title of Christ,) is the agency which God used, because "The testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophesy."

But how came they to be called "spirits in prison"? for when Noah in "the spirit of Christ" proclaimed God's Word to them, by sign of the ark and word of mouth, they were very live men, because the preaching was done "while the ark was a preparing." The condition they were in was because of their disobedience; for said God, "My spirit shall not always strive with man." For this cause God gave them up unto vile passions, even as they refused to have God in their knowledge God gave them up unto a reprobate mind (or spirit of man bearing the same relationship to the mind as the blood does to the body) to do those things which are not fitting, and they became worthy of death, and were drown in the waters of the flood. But, said Peter, "Christ also suffered for sins once, the righteous for the unrighteous: for unto this (because of judgment) was the gospel preached even to the end, that they might be judged indeed according to men in the flesh, but live according to God in the Spirit. In Isa xli 7, it is written, I will give thee for a light to the Gentiles; to open the blind eyes, to bring out the prisoners from the dungeon, and them that sit darkness out of the prison house." —M.

Baptism

Before we find when and for what purpose a person is baptized, we must find what the word "baptism" means. To do this we must go to the Greek and Latin word it is derived from. The Greek word "bapto" means dip or plunge. The word primarily came from the Latin, "baptizo" or "mergo," meaning I dip or I plunge or I sink. Thus we see baptism is a dipping or plunging and not sprinkling, as the word "sprinkle" has an entirely different root.

We must next find who is commanded to be baptized. In Mark xvi. 15, 16, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be condemned." Therefore a person must believe to be baptized. Acts ii. 38, "Repent and be baptized." So believing alone is not sufficient, but past sins must be repented of. Thus we see a little child would not be a fit subject for baptism, for it would not be capable of understanding or believing the Word of God, or repenting for past sins. Furthermore it would be impossible for a little, innocent child to repent of past sins for it has no sins. Acts viii. 12, says, "When they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized both men and women." It says nothing about children being baptized; but men and women after they have heard and believed the truth concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ. Now taking the verse, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved," what must be believed? In Acts viii. 37 Philip said to the eunuch, "If thou believest with all thine heart thou mayest (be baptized) and he answered and said, "I believe Jesus Christ is the Son of God." And Philip then baptized him. Thus a perfect belief in Jesus Christ after hearing and believing his message, and how he gave his life that we might be saved was what he was required to believe. But after baptism we must not think that all has been done that is necessary for salvation; for our work is only begun. 2 Peter i. 5 9. "And beside this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness, charity. For if these things be in you and abound they make you that ye shall neither be barren or unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. But he that lacketh these things is blind and cannot see afar off, and has forgotten that he was purged from his old sins."

Now in the second place for what purpose is a person to be baptized?

We know there is but one baptism, for Paul says, Eph. iv. 5, "One Lord, one faith, one baptism." We also know this one baptism is to be in water; for Peter says, "Can any man forbid water that these should not be baptized?" Acts x 37.

That this one baptism in water is a burial we know from Rom. vi. 4, "Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death; that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life." In 1 Peter iii. 18, 21, we read, "Christ also hath once suffered for our sins the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God: being put to death in the flesh but quickened by the Spirit. The like figure whereunto even baptism doth now save us, not the putting away the filth of the flesh but the answer of a good conscience toward God, by the resurrection of Jesus Christ." Therefore it is surely proven that baptism is a saving ordinance. It is one of the commandments of God. We read in John xiv. 15, "If ye love me keep my commandments." Baptism then is a saving ordinance; so we cannot become one of God's children unless we have obeyed his commandments. But "as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." "And now why tarriest thou? arise, and be baptized and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord." Acts ii. 16.

HABITS.

Brethren and Sisters:

My theme for a five minute address is "Habits." This term seems to comprehend the whole character, and if I were to say we were so many bundles of habits I should not be far astray. If we were compelled to wear through life iron collars about our necks, or a chain upon our ankles, would it not be an intolerable burden? We would lie down at night as prisoners, and rise up in the morning as prisoners; but the thought that we could never shake them off would make us groan deepest of all. But all this would not be half so intolerable as many habits of men, nor so difficult to shake off. Habits are easily formed, especially bad ones; and it is a serious fact that habits which today may seem a trivial affair may soon hold us with the strength of a cable. Cables are formed by spinning and twisting one thread at a time, but when completed the proudest ships bow to it, and habits soon control men in the same way.

Every one forms habits. Every one has a particular course for his time, his employment, his thoughts and feelings to run. Be they good or bad these habits soon become a part of oneself—a kind of second nature, and so strong that I read of a prisoner who had long been confined, on gaining his liberty found himself sinking under the attempt to break up habits formed in confinement and begged that he might be returned to his old quarters.

And dear young friends, it is a serious reflection that you can scarcely find any one who has not habits which mar his or her usefulness, but which are so interwoven with their very being, that they cannot rid themselves of them. As you are sure to form habits, it is of the first importance that you form good ones—habits that every day and hour will add to your happiness and usefulness. It is a serious matter when we reflect that the effect of habits extend not only through time, but through eternity, so it is of the greatest importance that you watch closely that you form no habits that will be a source of grief hereafter. Suppose you had to select a tool which you must use all through life—how carefully you would examine its shape, its size, its temper, etc., but it is a far more important business we are talking about—suppose you were obliged to select a suit of clothes that you must wear through life, what an important matter it would appear—I expect you would spend sleepless nights over it. But it is of infinitely more importance to select good habits early in life. Do not be afraid to undertake to form good habits now, even if they have to take the place of bad ones. It can be done! But never so easily as now, early in life. Yes; it can be done,—and although irksome at first, perseverance will make it pleasant after awhile.

I expect my time is out, but I will just add that my remarks are of universal application—they apply to every circumstance and phase of life—study, behavior, labor, trade and religion—and as many of you have named the name of Christ, you are forming habits that will keep you lean and stunt your growth, so that if saved at all it will be so as by fire, or on the other hand, cause you to shine as stars of the firmament forever and ever. I trust you will consider well what the habitual study of the Word of God will do for you what watchfulness and prayer will do for you. And what habitual attendance upon all the means of grace will do for you—in a word make it your meat and your drink to do the will of God and finally bring you crowns of unfading glory.—M. Johiin.

Gold Dust.

What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God. Micah vi. 8.

What a man gives out, not what he keeps, determines his appearance in the eyes of the world.

Unless your faith and your lives speak equally to declare you followers of Christ, your religion is of little worth.

You must love in order to understand love. One act of charity will teach us more of the love of God than a thousand sermons.

"He shall sustain thee." The promise is definite, it is full and covers all our need. There is but one condition, a condition possible to every one: "Cast thy burden upon the Lord." That is all, it is everything.

ANNA DREW.

Correcting Errors.

In the Divine plan embracing us, helpless, erring creatures are set to guide those only a little more helpless and a little more liable to err than themselves. It often happens that in trying to teach others the way of life one most surely finds it himself. Many a parent is amazed to see how much he learns about the Divine government while trying to administer wisely family government; many a teacher, teaching well, learns far more by his teaching than any pupil he may have under his instruction. This rule holds good in the matter of correcting errors and ministering chastisement. No one can hold the law in higher esteem than does the upright judge; his rulings reflexively compel his own obedience to his decisions.

The ultimate end to be attained by the correction of errors and the discipline of the erring is not the suffering of the erring one, but his forbearance and establishment in right ways; the rooting out of evil tendencies; the implanting of a genuine love for the right; and a conviction of the necessity of obedience to law to lasting and complete happiness. The dower of love the child brings with it is the surest pledge that this work will be done in the best spirit. (Alas for the little waifs that bring no love with them! When will such charity reach all such?) This wise parent through love withholds whatever would be hurtful to the child, however much he may cry for it. When love and wisdom go hand in hand, whom the parent loveth he chasteneth, by little and little instilling right principles, correcting tendencies to evil, and guiding the tender feet in the paths of virtue. However hard and long and difficult or hopeless may seem this task, the child should never be allowed for a moment to feel that he is not loved; nay, he should feel that love itself is at the bottom of all the discipline he is called on to undergo. But there are a great many children who do not feel this. For there are many parents trained in a school whose theology has made them rigid, frigid, inflexible, and anything but tender and gentle and forbearing and kindly. To these parents their children seem to them conceived in iniquity, born in sin, and exposed to the wrath of an angry God. The terrors of the law thunder in their ears and drown the song of the angels at the advent of Christ, the song proclaiming "Peace, good will toward men." It not unfrequently happens that the children of such parents, driven to extremes by over-strictness and harsh discipline, abandon their parents, their early training and themselves, and become indeed hardened reprobates. Their faults treated as crimes, no allowance made for youthful indiscretion, hasty temper, or even for inherited obliquity, they have no recourse but to reckon themselves among the outcasts, since they are treated as such. There is no readier or surer way of destroying a child or an adult than by destroying his self-respect, convincing him that no one for love's sake cares for his soul. Conscious that he is cut off and that he has nothing more to lose, what reason has he for attempting to save anything?

Christ came to make of reprobates, saints; of thieves, citizens of Paradise; of the lost, inheritors of the kingdom of God. Lazarus was carried by angels to Abraham's bosom. The woman who washed the Savior's feet with her tears and wiped them with her hair, and anointed them with ointment and kissed them, though she was "a sinner," and her touch was pollution to a Pharisee, was forgiven and sent away in peace. The time must come when our penitentiaries will be reformatories, and be whom God permits still to live, however degraded and debased, will not be deemed lost as I without hope.

The careful observer must have noted that generally those are most severe in correcting a fault who have themselves but just overcome or outgrown it. Elder brothers and sisters are far less lenient to the errors of the younger ones than the parents are, and these far less lenient than the grandparents are. These last know that in the nature of things mere childish follies and indiscretions time will cure, and if the foundations are right and the structure in the important parts going up well, details will be taken care of in due time, and fretting about them is useless. Their greater fear is that the tender twig may be injured by too vigorous handling, pruned too closely, trimmed into an artificial shape, chilled by undue exposure, or deprived of its full measure of nutriment.

If love and patience are necessary when we endeavor to correct faults in others, not less are they necessary when we strive to correct them in ourselves. We have no right to be severer with ourselves than we would wish another in the same circumstances. The tenderness and forbearance we show to others we may certainly show to ourselves, and no sooner despair of our own salvation than of theirs. God is no respecter of persons. To him all souls are equally dear; Christ died for all; all have in them saintly possibilities, and he can wait till these possibilities become actualities.

Concerning Self-Respect.

Respect for one's self is the only basis of respect for others. Hence those who place the highest estimate upon the ideal self to which they aspire are most careful not to wound the self-respect of their associates. Hence, too, those who are conscious of unworthy motives in themselves are quickest to impute unworthy motives to others; while those who feel themselves above meanness are slow to believe in reports of meanness in their neighbors. Any person who is quick and ready to accuse another of dishonorable intentions, of lying, of fraud, of theft, of impurity, may be unhesitatingly set down as certainly guilty of that which he is quickest and readiest to impute to his neighbor. In rescuing the inebriate, the fallen, the depraved, the first point to be made is the creation of a belief in the possibility of a restoration of self-respect. Until this belief has been established, reformation is impossible. In enticing a man to his ruin, the tempter seeks first, unconsciously, it may be, to his victim, to loosen the foundations of his self-respect and to familiarize him with the contemplation of the possibility of his wrong-doing. If he succeeds in this, the rest is easy. If Eve had not stopped to dally with the serpent, and to discuss the question of obedience to the divine mandate, she would never have eaten the fatal apple.

Now the aim of this little essay is not so much to hint at what may be done for grown people, as to suggest something that should be done for children. That they should be taught such a love of truth, such an abhorrence of lying, such a love for honesty, such an abhorrence of dishonesty, such a love for that which is pure and high and noble, such a hatred of that which is impure, low and base, as shall make them incapable of knowingly doing what is dishonorable and unworthy of the ideal man and the ideal woman. Perhaps nothing would sooner reform an imperfectly vicious man than his voluntary endeavor to teach his child something of the beauty of a noble life, and to train him, if this were possible, in ways of virtue. There are a great many parents, who, in consequence of imperfect training in youth, or of some inherited taint, are unable to realize in themselves what they would like to realize; there is a "trick" in their moral or intellectual nature which plays them false, and keeps them from actually grasping the good to which they aspire. Such parents often desire above all other things that their children may attain what they themselves have failed to command. Like Wolsey, they would find a sure and safe way for their children, and all the more because they themselves have missed it. For the help of such parents it may not be amiss to suggest some of the methods by which self-respect may be cultivated in a child.

A child that is uniformly treated with courtesy, with consideration, with justice, will unconsciously deem himself worthy of such treatment, and will become worthy of it, unless he is by nature wholly base; and he will unconsciously treat others as he is treated. It is a fearful thing to give a child the lie, to accuse him of stealing, to accustom him to unexpected and unmerited cuffs and blows. He may have been guilty of an untruth and of theft, he may merit punishment, but the wise parent will never admit into the household vocabulary the terrible words thief and liar, and will never permit in himself or others the hasty blow, the bitter taunt, the stinging epithet; the refined and intelligent parent never can tolerate language such as we have indicated. Bitter words are more cruel than blows, and inflict more lasting injuries. Care in the choice of associates will do much to foster proper self-respect in a child. Some mothers think their sons and daughters can go where they choose and play with whom they please and come out well enough in the end. There never was a greater mistake. As well might one think it makes no difference what air we breath. Children are quicker than we to catch the tone of associates, to pick up slang words, bad grammar, vulgar ideas;—these often seem to be taken in through the very pores, as typhoid poison is, when least suspected, and later, like it, to show themselves when least expected. Care in the choice of reading will do much to foster due self-respect in a child. The boy who grows up with a familiar knowledge of Washington, of Franklin, of Lincoln, and other men who have been the glory of the nations in which they were conspicuous, will be far more likely to find his mind filled with noble images, with high ideals, with lofty ambitions, than one who reads sensational newspapers, dime novels and the comic almanac. Any soil that yields abundantly must contain in itself elements of fertility, and barren soils may have these elements artificially supplied to them.

The Secret of Good Work.

Some years ago I was brought in contact with a colored man. He was nothing but a cobbler. He said himself he was not a decent shoe-maker, and I can testify to that from some experience of his work. But if not elegantly done, it was thoroughly done; and that was the point. He told me that when he became too old and crippled to work in the field and house he took to cobbling. I said to him:

"My friend, after this cobbling on earth is done, how about that other world? Have you any hope for a better world?"

"Ah, master," said he, "I am nothing, as I told you, but a poor cobbler; but I feel, when I sit here and work at my stool, that the good Master is looking at me, and when I take a stitch it is a stitch, and when I put on a heel-tap it is not paper, but good leather."

It is not the work we do upon earth that makes the whole of life, but it is the way in which we do that work—it is the motive. "Thou God seest me." —Christian at Work.

If you want to know whether a coat will fit you, put it on. The only test you can apply to Christianity is the test of use. Do your Master's will and you shall know of the doctrine, not merely by the shining of an inner light, but by the solid persuasion which grows out of a happy and useful life.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Announcement.

The Southern Illinois Conference will be held at the Restitution Church eight miles south of Casey, from Sep. 25 to Oct. 3 inclusive. Names of the preachers and programme will appear later.

B. J. WILLIS, Sec.

Also, Brother N. H. Geiselman, who has been in Florida a number of years, may come north for a visit and be at the June meeting again. Should either, or both these brethren be with us of course all will be anxious to hear them, which will necessitate changes being made in the programme.

BY ORDER OF COMMITTEE.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

The Bible School.

The Bible School will be held at Plymouth, beginning Monday immediately following the close of our annual June meeting at the old Antioch meeting house, which is held over the second Sunday in June.

As one of the teachers it is my place to select the lessons I expect to handle. The first lesson will be a review of the history of the flood, followed by lessons on the confusion of language, and the repeopling of the earth after the flood. The call of Abraham and the promises made to him. The sojourn in Egypt. The Exodus and sojourn in the wilderness. The conquest and settlement of Canaan. One lesson on the prophecies relating to Christ's first advent.

Brother S. J. Lindsay will give a series of lessons also, concerning which he will give notice in due time.

We ask for a large attendance, especially young folks. All are requested to read and familiarize themselves with the Scriptures bearing upon the several themes to be handled during the term. The scholar must be deeply interested, as well as the teacher, or no progress will be made in the knowledge of divine themes.

Brother Lindsay will beat the Bible School, held at Plymouth, and will base his lessons on the Acts of the Apostles. All who are arranging to attend should notify the Secretary, Mrs. Lydia Railsback, 621 S. Fellows St. South Bend, Ind.

Arrangements will be made for lodging and boarding all who may come.

JOHN L. WINCE,
Chairman Committee.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

There are some among you who have not paid their subscriptions and still others that have not subscribed who would be glad to help send the gospel of the kingdom to those who are in darkness. As our funds are nearly exhausted, and this work cannot be carried on without money, I am asking each of you to give of your means as God has prospered you. There has been good work done by our preaching brethren this year, and many have been brought to a knowledge of the truth.

Those who are isolated and love the blessed truths and feel they can spare something, even it is only a small amount, send it to the writer. Let us each do our duty that we may hear the Master say, Well done thou good and faithful servant. Let us each one feel that we have a personal interest in this matter. Give and it shall be given unto you, good measure, pressed down and shaken together, and running over, shall men give unto your bosom, for with the same measure that you mete withal, it shall be measured to you again. Luke vi. 38.

With much love for each of you, in my heart I am your Sister in the Christ.

Address me at St. Paul, Neb.

MINNIE ROGERS,
Sec. Nebraska Conference.

Editor Restitution:

I wish to say just here that I am the Treasurer of the Conference of the Church of God of Arkansas, Missouri, Texas, Kansas and Oklahoma, and as such Treasurer I am soliciting donations for the purpose of putting an Evangelist in the field another year, or just as soon as a sufficient amount is paid in to start the work. A complete record is kept of all monies received. I desire to solicit from all interested in sending the gospel to others who know nothing of these grand truths.

Address me at Sallisaw, Okla.

Your Brother waiting for the Second Coming of Christ and the establishing of his kingdom,

R. O. TURNER.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

THE MESSENGER

is the name of a religious monthly magazine advocating the coming of the Kingdom of God, the return of the Lord Jesus, and the hope of Eternal Life. Published in Glasgow, Scotland. Subscriptions received by the American agent, William G. Rothe, 1301 Park Place, Brooklyn, N. Y. 1 copy 37 cts, 2 copies 60 cts, 3 copies 97 cts, 5 or more copies 25 cts each copy per year. Sample copy on application.

Notice To Bereans.

For nearly eight years, our President, Miss Anna Drew, has been working faithfully at the helm, in the meantime doing a vast amount of letter writing. It is absolutely necessary that she take a rest, in order that she may be built up physically.

There is no need for you to do less writing, for a committee has been appointed to attend to the correspondence for the present. The quarterly reports may be sent to Miss Mabel Drummond, Chana, Illinois, Sec'y., and any information regarding the work of the Bereans, their lesson outlines, etc., will be promptly answered by writing to Miss Almeda Mitchell, Lanark, Illinois.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

"The Kingdom of God," is the title of a tract written by T J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom; second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist; third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ. Address T J Daniel, Magazine Ark

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

BROTHER John Foore of Parsons, Kansas, realizing that his preaching days are getting short, as he is nearly 76 years old, has issued a series of 10 tracts. They have cost him a considerable sum, and he offers to supply them to the brethren on most liberal terms. The average cost of these tracts is about 10 cents each, and he offers to send them at cost. Also he says that where people are too poor to pay for them he will send them to such free if they will send name and address. The subjects treated are as follows: The Great Divine Healer vs. last day healers, The stature of Christ The restitution, The kingdom of God, Law and testimony, The judgment, Is baptism essential to salvation, Life and death. Signs of the end, Through the second vail, Three days and three nights, Election and predestination. Let any one wishing these tracts send direct to John Foore, Parsons, Kan

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Address W. H. Wilson, 420 North Willow Ave, Austin Station, Chicago Illinois.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 866 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10648 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Scripture Searchers Assistant.

A very valuable help to all who are studying the Scriptures—a reprint of one of our beloved Brother Joblin's works. Treats of thirty different subjects, with about four hundred references. All should possess a copy for ready reference. Price by mail six cents, order from Mrs M Joblin, 10648 Ashbury ave, N E Cleveland Ohio

The Elements of the Kingdom of God, is the title of an eighteen page tract by Brother T J Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He sets forth that a kingdom cannot exist without a King, his cabinet officers, territory, a capital city, subjects, laws. Brother Daniel will send this little tract to you at 10 cents each, or $1.00 a dozen. Send direct to him for them.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a lot of many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Ft. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, pays a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the p Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid it is—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be stamped to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Wondrously. Joel II. 26.

Wondrously
The Lord hath dealt with thee!
Wondrous mercy all the way,
Wondrous patience every day,
Wondrous pardon, wondrous healing,
Wondrous help and wondrous leading.

Wondrously
The Lord shall deal with thee!
Wondrous tenderness and grace,
Wondrous shining of His face,
Wondrous faithfulness and power,
Wondrous love unto Love's hour.

Prophecy Concerning the Jews. No. 2.

The two tribes—Judah and Benjamin—existed as a kingdom for about 130 years after the overthrow of the ten tribes, having existed as a kingdom for over 500 years, and been ruled over by 21 kings. Saul the first, and 20 of David's seed. The two tribes were not so continually corrupt as Israel but had periods of righteous rule, but they gradually became less inclined to God's laws, so that in the days of Jehoikin they were besieged by the king of Babylon and 3000 of their chief persons taken captive; some few years later 10,800 were taken captive and in the following reign of Zedekiah, Jerusalem was besieged by Nebuchadnezzar. Its walls were thrown down. Its temple was destroyed and its subjects and king were taken captive and carried to Babylon and from that time to this day Jerusalem has been without a king, thus fulfilling Ezekiel's prophecy where he says, (Ezek xxi 25, 26, 27), "And thou profane and wicked prince of Israel, whose day is come, when iniquity shall have an end. Thus saith the Lord God, Remove the diadem, take off the crown; this shall not be the same: exalt him that is low, and abase him that is high. I will overturn, overturn, overturn it, and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is, and I will give it him." .... Zedekiah was persuaded by false prophets to act as he did, they using as argument a seeming confliction in prophecy between Jeremiah and Ezekiel. Jeremiah (xxxii 4) said, "And Zedekiah, king of Judah, shall not escape out of the hand of the Chaldeans, but shall surely be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon, and shall speak with him mouth to mouth and thine eyes shall behold his eyes (xxxiv 3) and thou shall go to Babylon and Ezekiel said that he should not see Babylon. We are told Zedekiah was taken to Nebuchadnezzar at Riblah where he talked with him mouth to mouth and saw him eye to eye, but never saw Babylon as Ezekiel had said because Nebuchadnezzar had his eyes put out, after which he was taken to Babylon as Jeremiah had prophesied.

In the books of Ezra and Nehemiah we find the record of the rebuilding of the temple and walls of Jerusalem in the days of Cyrus and Darius just 70 years after their overthrow, thus again fulfilling Jeremiah's prophecy where he says (Jer xxix 10), "For thus saith the Lord, That after 70 years be accomplished at Babylon, I will visit you, and perform my good Word toward you in causing you to return to this place." They were, however, a stiff-necked and rebellious people walking in evil ways before God, refusing to give ear to his prophets, so 639 years later the temple was destroyed for the last time by Titus under the reign of Vespacian, his father. Titus did his best not to destroy the temple, begged the Jews to fight from some other point but to no avail, and even after the temple was set on fire he took a body of men and endangered himself in a vain endeavor to try to save it. Afterwards he said he took no credit to himself for the overthrow of Jerusalem, but that it was the work of God. And so it was, for the Lord by Moses had said in Deut xxviii 49, "The Lord shall bring a nation against thee from afar, from the end of the earth, as swift as the eagle flieth; a nation whose tongue thou shalt not understand. A nation of fierce countenance, which shall not regard the person of the old nor show favor to the young. And he shall besiege thee in all thy gates, until thy high and fenced walls come down, wherein thou trustedst throughout all thy land which the Lord thy God hath given thee. And thou shalt eat the fruit of thine own body, the flesh of thy sons and thy daughters, which the Lord thy God hath given thee, in the siege and in the straitness, wherewith thine enemies shall distress thee." Josephus records just such conditions. Jerusalem was besieged by a far nation—the Romans, and on the inside there were three factions fighting among themselves. They murdered each other in large numbers, pestilences broke out among them, food became very scarce, so that they searched for herbs and even ate leather shoes and belts, parents forgot natural instinct and took the last morsel from their starving children. Things that in time of plenty would be loathsome, at this time sold for fabulous prices. Six hundred years before in the siege of Samaria an ass's head sold for 80 pieces of silver, but here if possible, they were put to surer straits. God said in Deut xxviii 56, 57, "The tender and delicate woman among you, which would not adventure to set the sole of her foot upon the ground for delicateness and tenderness, her eye shall be evil toward the husband of her bosom and toward her son and toward her daughter for she shall eat them for want of things secretly in the siege, and straitness, wherewith thine enemy shall distress thee in thy gates."

Josephus records a certain noble lady, by name Mary, slew her son, roasted him, ate one-half and concealed the other half for future use. He further records, "that neither did any other city ever suffer such miseries, nor did any other age ever breed a generation more fruitful in wickedness then this was, from the beginning of the world." Deut xxviii 52, "And he shall besiege thee in all thy gates until all thy high and fenced walls come down wherein thou trustedst." Josephus p 807. History records as follows: "And truly the very view itself of the country was a melancholy thing, for those places which were before adorned with trees and pleasant gardens were become a desolate country every way, and its trees were all cut down, nor could any foreigner that had formerly seen Jerusalem and the most beautiful suburbs of the city, and now saw it a desert, but lament and mourn sadly at such a change, for the war had hid all the signs of beauty quite waste; nor if any one that had known the place before, had come on a sudden to it now, would he have known it again? but though he were at the city itself yet would he have inquired for it notwithstanding."

Jeremiah (xxxi 18) said Zion shall be plowed over like a field," and Josephus tells us this was fulfilled by Terantius Rufus .....In five months eleven hundred thousand human beings perished and 97,000 were led into captivity, where still they remain as we are all able to see, thus fulfilling the prophecy (Deut xxviii 62-64) "And ye shall be left few in number, whereas ye were as the stars of heaven for multitude; because thou would not obey the voice of the Lord. "And the Lord shall scatter thee among all people, from one end of the earth even unto the other, and there shall thou serve other gods, which neither thou nor thy fathers have known, even wood and stone." We are told that there is no known habitation in which the Jew is not found. (Keith p 70). "They were sold for slaves and were so despised and disesteemed, that many remained unpurchased." Lev xxvi 33. "And I will scatter you among the heathen, and will draw out a sword after you and your land shall be desolate and your cities waste." Deut xxviii 65. "And among these nations shall thou find no ease, neither shall the sole of thy foot have rest, but the Lord shall give thee there a trembling heart, and failing of eyes, and sorrow of mind, and thy life shall hang in doubt before thee; and thou shalt fear day and night, and shall have no assurance of thy life. In the morning thou shalt say, Would God it were even, and at even thou shalt say, Would God it were morning, for the fear of thine heart wherewith thou shalt fear, and for the sight of thine eyes which thou shalt see." At one time Titus sacrificed 2500 Jews in fights with wild beasts in honor of his father and brother's birthday, and many other ways and times destroyed great numbers. The nations have been very hostile to them, banishing, murdering, and imprisoning. In the first crusade 1500 were massacred at Strasburg—1300 at Mayence—1200 at Batavia. In 1189 multitudes were put to death in England under Richard I. Some of the archbishops and bishops forbade any selling them provisions under penalty of excommunication.

Again in 1262, 700 were massacred in London. In 1287 they were ordered imprisoned and 280 executed, and in 1290 orders were given to banish them from the kingdom and they were not allowed to return for 350 years. In France 2500 were tortured to death in 1238 under Louis IX. In 1472 Ferdinand and Isabella banished 800,000 in four months. At Mentz, in Germany 12,000 were killed—Louis, king of Hungary banished them from his kingdom. In Persia in 1666, a general massacre prevailed for three years regardless of age or sex. And so it has been one long story of banishment, murders and persecutions. The massacres of recent years in Russia are fresh in our memory. "Would God it were even and would God it were morning," no doubt has been their cry. Driven from place to place with no assurance of their life has been their portion even to this present day.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JUNE 23, 1909. NUMBER 24.

Professor Foster Turns up Again.

Between two and three years ago Dr. Foster gave to the reading public his first volume, entitled, "The Finality of the Christian Religion." This work raised a storm of criticism, a thing no doubt he expected in view of what he set forth in opposition to the popular belief. He is about to issue from the press a second volume, equally with the first, subversive of faith in the divine inspiration of the Bible. These books written by a Professor of the Philosophy of Religion, in the great University of Chicago, will be read by thousands of young men and young women; and others older but equally ignorant of the proofs of the divine authorship of the Christian's Bible. Foster doubtless is a scholarly man and this fact will carry with it great weight.

He is reported as delivering a sermon in the Third Unitarian church, March 28th, in which sermon he gave in substance the views of one of the chapters of his forthcoming book. His subject was, "The Place of Jesus in the Religion of Modern Man." He spoke of Christianity as a religion which in time to come may die as other religions have, and yet the world at that time, he said will be more Christian than it is now. Mr. Foster believes that Jesus, the Founder of Christianity is dead. The great wonder is that his religion did not die with him; and doubtless such would have been its fate if his apostles and evangelists had been Fosters, with no faith in miracles. The apostles of our Lord proclaimed a risen Savior whom they had heard, seen with their eyes, looked upon, and whose hands had handled frequently during forty days, the interval between his resurrection and ascension. 1 John 1: 1, Acts 1: iii.

The destructive critics of whom Foster is a fair sample, by bold assertion and boast of scholarship, set aside the testimony of credible witnesses to the great fact of our Lord's resurrection. To be consistent and logical they ought to reject all testimony concerning the history or ordinary occurrences. Miracles are the stumbling blocks over which Dr. Foster falls, as though these could not be established by the testimony of competent witnesses. A fact is a fact whether occurring according to the operation of the known laws of nature, or taking place according to the direct will and power of God. I can not see why the miraculous fact could not be established as certainly as the other, and this without varying the testimony. Nor has any infidel ever undertaken to show why, in case a miracle should occur the fact could not be established by testimony as well as any ordinary fact. In truth infidels have admitted that testimony would establish the fact in case a miracle should occur: but say they, "A miracle is impossible, none ever took place," and of course they would affirm that none will ever occur in the long stretches of eternity. In their view Jehovah absolutely tied himself up by laws of his own ordaining, so that he can not interpose for a beneficent end, that end human redemption.

Mr. Mansel (Aids to Faith, pp 16) says, "If it once be granted that testimony is admissable in the case, it is scarcely possible to conceive a stronger testimony than that which the Christian miracles can claim."

Strauss and Renan assume that a miracle is impossible. Mr. Hume places the matter expressly on that ground. Infidels entertain no hope of Salvation: Mr. Foster does, and holds out this hope to others; but on what ground? He has no faith in the miracles of the Bible. He does not believe that Jesus was raised from the dead as the firstfruit of them that sleep. So he cuts the cable that holds the anchor of hope to the future. His hope is groundless. Redemption involves a miracle, and this must come between the man as he is now and what he hopes to be. "In hope of eternal life, which God, who can not lie promised before the world began." Ti 1 2 To endow with eternal life necessitates a miracle.

Mr. Foster, I presume, holds the notion of the immortality of the human soul, but on what ground does he so hold? If he and all the rest of us are immortal this must be made known by an inspired Revelation, as nature does not reveal the supposed fact. If Revelation discloses the doctrine of inherent immortality then this University Professor is up against another miracle of wisdom; and of course, he to be logical, must reject it. But putting the doctrine on a Bible basis, as everyone ought to do, we find that immortality is to be sought for by patient continuance in well doing: and to such as do this God will render eternal life. Romans ii 7. This involves a miracle which the Christian accepts in full faith. Rejecting all miracles, Mr. Foster holds in his hand a human Bible.

The open and avowed infidels have always rejected miracles. Mr. Foster does the same; where then is the difference between him and them? He will not avow himself an infidel nor does he wish to be so entitled, although worthy of the name.

"Jesus faced forward." True; but he faced what Mr. Foster does not believe: his own resurrection on the third day after his entombment. He predicted his own ascension to the right hand of the Father; his second coming and the establishment of a universal empire on the earth, following the overthrow of all human governments. These prophetic facts Jesus faced in his forward look. Mr. Foster has no faith in the imposing claims Jesus put forth, to be wrought out by his own power and wisdom. He promised to share his future kingdom with his faithful disciples. Mr. Foster cannot reasonably nor scripturally indulge in the hope of apostolic Christians. There is too much of the miraculous in front of him. Whatever he may think the future holds of good in reserve for him, must be a matter of merest conjecture on his part, seeing he will not admit the fact of prophetic disclosure. Mr. Foster is obliged to face miracle, or face nothing.

Mr. Foster's assertions do not invalidate the testimony of the witnesses to the fact of our Lord's resurrection. Let him set himself fairly and honestly to the task of examining the witnesses in the light of reason, before pronouncing the story of the Evangelists a forgery. What satisfaction can he take in sowing the seeds of doubt and infidelity? He can not hope to do more than his predecessors had done in the line of demolishing the Bible. The Old Book is like the cube with always the right side up. No arguments hitherto have shaken its claim to divine authorship. It is not at all likely that the late or latest scholarship can do more than rehash the old arguments of former generations. No one can frame a better or stronger argument than Mr. Hume framed by which to unsettle the faith of the Christian world in the reality of Bible miracles. His argument was in his estimation the only one that could be logically employed to dispose of the Christian miracles. He utterly failed. So must all others who set themselves to this task.

JOHN L. WINCE.

A Mastered Will is a Conquered Life.

"A mastered will is a conquered life." This is but putting Bible language under the cover of our every-day speech; it is simply saying in another form that "He that ruleth his spirit is better than he that taketh a city." For "he that hath no rule over his own spirit is like a city that is broken down and without walls;" he has no defence against the arch enemy of souls, but is open to attack on every side. Obedience to God, submission to his will, that is the grand lesson taught.

If we master not our wills, we can never be Christians. No one who can not rule himself, is fit to rule over others. The lawless one, cannot constrain others to obey law.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

"He that heareth and doeth not, is like a man that without a foundation built an house upon the earth; against which the stream beat vehemently, and immediately it fell; and the ruin of that house was great."

He who does not obey has no foundation for his house, it will not stand in the judgment. We are not to bear thorns and briars, lest we be rejected, but are to strive for the masteries, keeping our bodies in subjection, that we "may be more than conquerors through him that hath loved us."

"Not my will but thine", not my way but God's way: not what I want to do but what God wants me to do, must be the foundation stone of Christian character.

"Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness."

To him that overcometh—to him that masters his will, will the white stone with the new name be given.

Remember the motto, dear young friends—that a "mastered will is a conquered life" and God grant that you may "come off more than conquerors through him that hath loved you."

Light Wanted.

Does the last eight chapters of Ezekiel teach conclusively that the old Jewish priesthood is to be renewed in the age with its ceremonies, sacrifices, sabbaths etc? Shall rivers of blood continue to flow from the altar throughout the age? If so what can be the object? Can the type extend beyond the antitype? If countless thousands of innocent animals must be slaughtered and continue to breathe out their lives from day to day on gilded altars how shall we interpret such Scriptures as this, "They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain, saith the Lord, for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea." Will Brother D. C. Robison please answer.

Obituary.

Little Loren Frederic, son of Wm. and Maggie Fuqua, died May 12, 1909, at their home two and one-half miles south of Ripley, Ill. Loren was born September 6, 1906. He was an unusually bright little fellow, and will be sadly missed in the home. Brief services were held at the Cemetery in Cooperstown conducted by the writer. May the time soon come, when "God shall wipe away all tears"—and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passing away.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JUNE 23, 1909.

We trust all who know their time has expired, will realize how important it is that they renew promptly. To make out and mail statements to each is quite expensive, and most all already know when their time runs out, so that it is not really necessary. Please take note of this, friends.

As there are five Wednesdays in the month of June, there will be no paper dated June 30. Our next issue will be July 7.

BROTHER T. J. Daniel writes to say that his tract on the "Kingdom of God" is all sold out, and no more can be had. Do not order any more.

BROTHER Joseph Williams spent a few days in Argos visiting, returning to Plymouth Thursday evening, and started Friday morning for Warren County, where he was to speak on Sunday.

BROTHER S. J. Lindsay wishes us to say that the Illinois Bible School will commence August 9, and continue for ten days until the Conference is called. A full notice will be given in our next issue.

BROTHER W. H. Wilson says to inform correspondents that his number is changed from 420 North Willow avenue to 625 North Willow avenue. His house is not moved, only the city officials have re-numbered the houses, thus making the change. Let all who are interested make note of this.

ON June 24 and 25, the 40th annual Convention of the Northern Indiana Editorial Association was held in this city, and it became our pleasurable duty to entertain at our home Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Willis of the Waterloo Press, and their son, Mr. R. E. Willis of Angola, publisher of the Steuben County Republican. We enjoyed having these people with us, and shall ever remember their visit with pleasant recollections, assuring them that our latch-string is out for them should it be their lot to again visit our little city.

BRETHREN, the tract recently issued by Brother Wince warrants your consideration. This work is written in good readable style, with no harsh or bitter words. It is a most excellent tract to put in the hands of one who is in any degree interested in the most vital of questions—What must I do to be saved? If you knew you could bring that friend or neighbor of yours to a knowledge of the gospel by the expenditure of one paltry dollar, how long would you squeeze the dollar? Make a list of twelve persons whom you are interested in getting into the kingdom of God, sent your list with a dollar, and we will send the tracts to them.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, JULY 4.

PAUL'S SECOND MISSIONARY JOURNEY. ACTS XVI. 6-15.

Golden Text—Come over into Macedonia and help us. Acts xvi. 9.

Paul's first missionary journey ended where it began, at Antioch. Acts xiii. 1-4; xiv. 26. Here they found men disturbing the church by urging circumcision and the law of Moses. Acts xv. 1. After much discussion the question was referred to the church at Jerusalem. There it was definitely settled that those converted by the gospel, are justified by faith and not by the works of the law, Romans iii. 28, and that the disturbers had no authority to teach the law. Acts xv. 24. Paul and Barnabas, with others, were sent back to Antioch with the decision of the council, Acts xv. 25-29.

The object of the first journey was mainly to preach the gospel to the Jews. At Antioch in Pisidia the unbelieving Jews raised such a storm of opposition, that Paul and Barnabas turned to the Gentiles, Acts xiii. 45-46.

The lesson verses do not give the proper start on the second journey. This, like the first, began from Antioch in Syria. Paul chose Silas and departed going through Syria and Cilicia, Acts xv. 40-41. Then they came to Derbe and Lystra, and as they went through the cities they delivered to the church the decision of the council at Jerusalem. "And so were the churches established in the faith, and increased in number daily" Acts xvi. 1-5. Properly the word is not "churches"—the Church is one—there are parts of the Church in various places.

Verse 6, Now when they had gone through. Who had gone through? Where did they go through? What did the Holy Spirit forbid them do?

7, Where did they come to? Where did they want to go? What kept them from going?

8, Where did they pass by? Where did they come to?

9, What appeared to Paul? What form had the vision? What did he say? Here follows the Golden text. This may, and likely does, account for the action, or restriction, of the Holy Spirit in not permitting Paul to go into Asia—or a part of it—nor into Bithynia. Inference is not often safe, nay, it is generally dangerous, but in this case we may infer that there was a "present" and good opportunity to preach the gospel in Macedonia, and that it would be gladly received as it was by about three thousand in Jerusalem at the time of Pentecost. Acts ii. 41.

"Come over into Macedonia, and help us." These few words are often quoted and misquoted—that is misapplied. They have been used as an excuse for sending missionaries to the "heathen." Judging from the reports of the "heathen" abusing and killing missionaries, we would say they do not want help of that kind. The question has been asked Does the Church of God not believe in sending missionaries to China? The answer was—There are no objections to such action, but there are thousands in America, even in Ohio, who have not heard the gospel of the kingdom.

10, What did Paul do after he had seen the vision? Whom did he say caused the vision? What were they to do in Macedonia? What did Paul preach? Did he tell them if they were good Jews would take them to heaven when they died? Acts xxviii. 23-31 tells just what they preached.

11, Where did the vision appear to Paul? Where did they go next? Did they go by land or water? What was their next stopping place?

12, From Neapolis where to? Tell what kind of a city Philippi was.

13, What did they do on the Sabbath? What was often done at the river side? Who did Paul speak to?

This mention of the Sabbath has been offered as a proof that Paul "kept" the Sabbath, and we should "keep" it also. Paul and his company went there on Sabbath because he would find people gathered there on that day. Why speak to the women? He did as he was moved by the Holy Spirit.

14, What was the result of Paul's talk with the women? What was the woman's name? What did she do? Where did she get the purple? What else did she do? Was that as good, or better than selling purple? What did the Lord do? Why did he not open the hearts of all the women? There can only be one answer, Because they were not anxious to have them opened, and the Lord will not force the gospel on any one.

What did Lydia do when the Lord opened her heart? Can any one have a promise of salvation that does not "attend" to the things of the gospel?

15, What was done to her? Any one else? What did she say? Did Paul judge her faithful? What did she prove by her actions? That she had "faith and works." For doing this what promise did she have from the Lord Jesus Christ? Mark xvi. 16

What regions or provinces are mentioned in this journey? There are eight—find them. How many towns? Seven—find them. In what direction is Philippi from Antioch? About how many miles? Contrasted by the present ideas of success, Was Paul's journey to Philippi a success?

Next lesson—Paul's second journey continued, Acts xvi. 25-40.

P. NEILL.

Notes by the Way.

June 1st arrived, the time which was set for my departure to southern Texas. It was a beautiful morning, the breath of early spring was upon the air, the sun shone forth in splendor upon the landscape newly robed in its fresh garment of green, and the air was laden with the rich perfume of sweet flowers. It seemed to me to be almost typical of another spring time, which will be more glorious still, when the blight and curse of death will be forever buried in the oblivion of the past. I love to read in God's Holy Book of this lovely spring time, that will never more yield to the cold icy embrace of the winter of death. Let me quote you a few beautiful passages from the sacred page.

"For lo the winter is past, the rain is over and gone; the flowers appear on the earth; the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in the land; the fig tree putteth forth her green figs, and the vines with the tender grape give a good smell." "Arise my love, my fair one, (the Bride) come away." (Gathers his elect bride). Her beloved, who is "the Rose of Sharon, and the Lily of the Valley," "the Bright and Morning Star," says, "The day breaks (the glad morn of Zion's glory), the shadows flee away." "He brought me to the banqueting house, and his banner over me was love. Listen to "the voice of my beloved! behold, he cometh leaping upon the mountains, skipping upon the hills." He meets his Bride, and says, "Thou art all fair my love; there is no spot in thee," ("without fault before the throne of God.") "Who is this that cometh up from the wilderness, leaning upon her Beloved?" She says to her Beloved. "Set me as a seal upon thine heart, as a seal upon thine arm: for love is strong as death."

Others in the distant south, had learned this glad love message (which is the gospel of the kingdom) and of the "love that is strong as death," and desired to be of those that will yet "come up from the wilderness, leaning upon her beloved;" and as they sent the message, "Come over and help us."

Having bid my family good by I started upon this errand of love. The distance between Gonzales and Chicago was over nineteen hundred miles, requiring three days and two nights to make the trip.

I arrived somewhat wearied from so long a trip, but I received a hearty welcome, and was soon given comfortable quarters in which I could rest.

On the trip I met a prominent business man, from Illinois, who took a seat by my side, and said to me, "I have heard you preach." I did not remember him. He remained with me as far as Kansas City, Mo. He said to me, "Your calling is the grandest, noblest and greatest there is in the world." He said, "I have always had an ambition to engage in that work, but somehow, it has never fallen to my lot. He asked me a number of questions, which I answered. I found that he was a Congregationalist, but he had Biblical light in advance of his denomination.

I also met at Gonzales, an aged brother named W. E. Lipp (85 years old), the father of some whom I have baptized. He himself was baptized into the faith, some eighteen years ago. He was greatly rejoiced because some of his daughters were going to obey the gospel of the kingdom.

At about four o'clock on Sunday afternoon, his daughter, Sister A. J. Martin of Brownwood, Texas, was to arrive. He had not seen her for years. He was then visiting his granddaughter Sister Rose, and when the time for the train to come had arrived Sister Rose went with a carriage, to meet Sister Martin, at the depot. He took a seat upon the porch anxiously watching for the return of the carriage. He said to me, "I have prayed for years that I might see her again." Soon they arrived, the scene was so affecting, to see them embrace each other, crying for joy. He said to me afterward, "Bro. Wilson, this is a God-given privilege." These things are pleasant to contemplate, but in this frail life, it is not all sweet, it is best described by the phrase, "bitter sweet." This I soon realized, when I came to perform the errand, for which I had taken this long trip.

The husband of one of the ladies whom I was to baptize, was a man of the world, a politician, the sheriff of the county, and wanted nothing of religion or anything else, unless it was on the popular wing. He objected to his wife uniting with anything but a popular church, and wants her to be a society woman, and get popular with the people. It happened that she had no taste for either a popular church, or society, and had just left the Christian church that she might become obedient to the faith.

On Sunday morning I received the following note written by her to her sister, Mrs. Crawford:

"Dear Sister:

I won't be able to come, as Will, (her husband) objects very much, and says that he will kill Bro. Wilson, if he baptized me; so you need not look for me.

As ever,

Your Sister."

I replied: "Tell her, that if she will present herself for baptism, that I will baptize her in spite of all his threats to kill me. I will take the risk of being killed upon myself; no threat of death, will deter me from performing my duty in God's service." She was afraid that he might carry out his threat, and she would not endanger my life.

Plans are being perfected by which I might baptize her next winter, unknown to him, while I am on my annual southwestern trip.

Her husband had business in another city, but he declared that he would not leave Gonzales, as long as I remained in the city. He was standing guard to prevent me from baptizing her. The husband of Sister Crawford objected to her being baptized also, but was unable to intimidate her. He says, "What are you fussing so much about being baptized for, do you want to get some one killed?"

Has it really come to pass, that some wives have no rights that their husbands are bound to respect? Has she no rights to her religious convictions, and sense of duty to God and man; but must ask her husband (a worldly man,) what she may believe, and take his dictation as to how she must obey God, and must never for one moment presume that she has brains enough to learn these things herself, from God's Holy Book, but must take the dictation of a husband who is himself as ignorant of the real teachings of God's Word, as an untaught Pagan, I say shame to such men! they are a disgrace to true manhood.

Intolerance did not stop there, however. Sisters Crawford, Rose and her aunt Mrs. Johnson, had learned the life-giving message—the gospel of the kingdom of God, and they soon saw that it would be inconsistent for them to remain in fellowship with the so-called Christian Church, of which they were members, and so withdrew from the church. No consistent believer of the gospel of the kingdom, can ever have fellowship, with those who have not obeyed the gospel of the kingdom, any more than the seven thousand who had not bowed the knee to Baal, could fellowship with the worshippers of Baal.

The believers of the lie of the Satanic Adversary of the Garden of Eden, are equivalent to the worshippers of Baal. We are exhorted: "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers; for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness? What concord hath Christ with Belial (or with believers of the Satanic lie)? or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel? Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing (unclean in not being washed from their sins, as all are, who have not obeyed the gospel of the kingdom, and are thus unclean) and I will receive you, and I will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty."

These believers concluded to immediately separate themselves from the "unclean," and claim the Fatherhood of God, according to his promise. These believers were in the past, prominent leaders in that church, and so their separation, still further increased the flame of prejudice. Sister Rose did not have the least idea but what she could get the Christian church for me to preach in, as they were never known to refuse it to any one, but when she went to ask for it, she found that they had decided in advance of being asked, that, if they were asked, they would refuse it. This caused Sister Rose to feel rather hard about it, as she had put considerable money in the Church. I told her to never mind, but as she had spacious parlors in her home, to use them. She did so, but under the circumstances the attendance was not large, but I had some attentive listeners, and have reason to believe some seed was sown to stay.

Before baptism took place, a Christian church minister made Sister Rose a visit, to try and persuade her to go back to the Church, and help to build it up.

She said, "I can't do it."

He asked, "Why not?"

She replied, "Because I have changed my faith, I don't believe as you do, any more," and besides she felt that they had been very ungenerous in refusing her the use of the church. He wanted to know in what their faith differed from the Christian Church. She told him in plain Bible language. He attempted to discuss it. It happened, however, that Sister A. J. Martin, Brownwood, Texas, was present, and I tell you, she is an expert with the Word of God in her hands, and he very soon got tangled up, and met his Waterloo, and took his departure, but said he would "call again." I tell you, there are two women here who don't need a permit from their husbands, as to what they may believe, and how he will permit them to serve God; and the others don't either, but one was simply ruled by brute force, and fear of personal harm to me.

Friday afternoon was the time set for the baptism to take place. We drove to the beautiful Gaudalupe river, about a mile and a quarter from Sister Rose's home. It was truly a beautiful fast flowing stream, both banks lined with thick wood land, and trees peculiar to the semi-tropical climate of the far South. But to me more beautiful still was the obedience of faith of these godly women, bent on obeying God, according to his revealed will. But I felt sad that one was retained at home by the brute force of a worldly man.

After a few introductory remarks I led Sister Rose and Crawford into the stream, and buried them with Christ in baptism.

> Buried with Christ! yes, thus we lie
> Immersed beneath the wave;
> So lay the Savior from on high,
> Found on this earth his grave.

The readers of THE RESTITUTION will perhaps remember that another lady in the far southern Texas, had also learned the truth, principally through THE RESTITUTION, and called for baptism, but as yet, had had no opportunity. Sister Martin, knowing that I was at Gonzales, wrote to her, and told her that I was there. Her name was Mrs. W. J. Denson, living at Hochheim, Texas. Brother Underwood wrote to me about her, just previous to my last winter's trip to the southwest.

After getting Sister Martin's letter, she packed her dressing case, and accompanied by her husband, and sister-in law, immediately started for Gonzales, and arrived on Friday night. In conversation with her, she told me the history of her learning the truth. She said she was a member of the Baptist Church, but after learning the gospel of the kingdom, she concluded that it would be improper for her to remain in communion with them, and so withdrew about one year ago. That was right, God never did approve of a mongrel people, he required them to be straight cut, and separate.

On Friday afternoon, a goodly company, again started for the Guadalupe river, when I baptized Mrs. Denson, that she might bear the royal sin-covering name.

As there is joy in heaven over every sinner that repenteth, why should not God's children

> Sing aloud a joyful anthem,
> Wake earth's purest minstrelsy,
> Let it sound from hill to valley,
> And be echoed through the sky.
> Loud thanksgiving
> To the God who rules on high.

These dear sisters, I am assured, will not be drones in the hive, but busy workers. This is doubtless a starting point for the introduction of the gospel of the kingdom in southern Texas. Sister Rose, who is in the prime of life, being thirty-three years old, will make an active worker in the Berean cause, and should be enlisted in that blessed work, along with Sister Martin, another zealous worker. Persecution cannot dampen their ardor. Those who work in that part of the State must expect opposition. I tell you, the churches they left knew their value, and miss them so much. They are now gain for Christ, and must be used in his service. I hope to meet them again on my southwestern trip next winter. I want to say to those who contributed money to aid in this work, your money has not been contributed in vain, besides the baptism of these believers, seed has been sown in other minds, and those having been baptized are workers and they are already letting this light shine, that others may be blessed as they have been. A point has been established as a center from which the Gospel light can shine, and no one knows where the good will end.

Liberal and hearty were the contributions. Besides paying car fare, incidental expenses and something for my own services, I have a surplus of eighty-four dollars and fifty-one cents on hand.

I have put this money away to be used only for emergency calls that I may receive, where the parties are too poor to pay the expenses. This money will not be used for the ordinary evangelical work, but for urgent calls only.

The Evangelical work will have to be supported by contributions for that purpose. When any money is used for special calls, I will report it through THE RESTITUTION.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

Married.

At the home of the bride's parents, Brother and Sister Marshall Logan, five miles north of Plymouth, Ind., Tuesday evening, June 22, 1909, Mr. J. Leroy Austin and Sister Maude A. Logan.

Sister Maude is a member of the North Salem Church north of Plymouth. She followed the profession of teaching until obliged to give it up because of ill health. Mr. Austin is a school man well reported by those who are acquainted with him. He is now a student at the Indiana State University, located at Bloomington, Indiana, at which place they will make their home until he has finished his preparation for life's work.

Only near relatives and close friends were present at the marriage, and these together with the many beautiful presents and hearty congratulations, show the esteem in which these young people are held. They go into married life with all necessary equipment to make success, and the blessings of a host of friends go with them.

May God's richest blessing attend them.

Obituary.

Charles H. Richardson died at his home in Shelby, Michigan, on Friday, May 21, 1909, after an illness of four weeks.

Mr. Richardson was born in Liberty Lenawee County, February 28, 1838. In 1847 the family moved to Jamestown, in Ottawa County, there being but two white families in the township at that time.

In 1860 he married Mrs. Mary E. Bowen. To them was born a daughter, Cora, who perished in the Galveston flood. In 1895 he married Miss Elsie Winchester, who survives him.

Besides his wife, four brothers, one sister, and a step-daughter survive. They are J. F. Richardson of Jamestown, George F. of Kennewick, Wash. J. H. of Traverse City, A. K. of Hastings, and Mrs. A. J. Coats of Coat's Grove.

The funeral services were held Sunday. The remains were [illegible] taken to Oak Hill Cemetery for interment, where his first wife is buried.

Mr. Richardson was early connected with the Church of God, being converted under the preaching of Elders Crosier, Miller, Hoyt and Simonds. He lived and died firm in the gospel hope.

Announcement.

The next Annual Conference of the Churches of God in the State of Illinois will be held at Oregon, beginning August 18, and continue over the following Sunday. The programme will appear later.

Let us begin now to plan for this meeting, and to be present with the purpose of doing all in our power for the work in Illinois in the year that is to come.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Let Us Pray.

Unto Thee, oh Lord, belongeth mercy; for Thou renderest to every man according to his work. It is of Thy great mercy that we live this morning—that we have comparative soundness of body and mind—that we can meet with Thy saints, and unitedly supplicate the throne of favor through Thy dear Son.

The Lord in mercy forgive all we have done amiss during the week. Thou hast said Thou art faithful and just to forgive Thy children; oh suit Thy blessing to the sick and infirm and tried ones, grant them Thy heavenly support—forgive us in Jesus' name. Are any of our number so absorbed with themselves, and the business or pleasures of life that they neglect Thee and the cause of truth? Are any shrinking from the reproach attaching to the truth as it is in Jesus, and hiding their light behind traditions that nullify the gospel? Are any careless of their example before the many hands of the fold—are any forgetting or neglecting to assemble together? Oh God, may they call a halt today; may they realize that they will come into judgment if not found doing Thy will.

Especially would we pray for all who have recently named the name of Christ. Help them to take heed to their ways, that they sin not with their tongues; and keep their mouth as with a bridle while the wicked are before them.

Great God, Thou hast said the name of the Lord is a strong tower; the righteous runneth into it and are safe. Oh God, our hearts ache to direct some poor soul to the shelter of that saving name today. Help this unworthy dust to speak from the heart to the heart, and lead some to the Lamb of God.

In Jesus' name.

Engagement and Wedding Announcement

Sister Catherine Cowell wishes to announce the engagement of her daughter, Sister Edna May, to Brother Robert G. Huggins; the ceremony to take place August 31st, 1909, at the family residence, 10703 Hampden Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

A Holy Life, an Essential for Final Salvation.

"A holy life." Holy means "separate, set apart." That from which saints, holy ones, are separated is sin. He to whom they are "set apart" is God. Sin is unholy, and as long as it adheres to persons they are separated from God, (Isa lix 2), and can not please him for he is holy. When we wish to know what a holy life is, we must look to Jesus, who was "holy, harmless, and undefiled, separate from sinners." (Heb vii 26.) He not only suffered for us, but also left us an example that we should follow in his steps. (1 Peter ii 21). We are not naturally fit for the Kingdom of God (Luke ix 62), but must be fitted for it by a course of training which requires the closest attention to the lessons to be inculcated in the school of suffering.

Saints, holy ones, are not made on short notice or in a few minutes. True saints are made in the crucible of suffering where their faith is tried and their patience put to the test, and only when they come to be approved shall they receive the crown of life, which the Lord has promised to those who love him. Jas i 12. Having endured the trial, and being thus approved, they shall be found "unto praise, and honor, and glory, at the appearing of Jesus Christ". 1 Pet i 7.

Our final Salvation is not a matter of present enjoyment, but of hope, and depends on a manner of life or conduct which is "holy." We are saved by hope, but hope that is seen is not hope; for what a man seeth, why doth he yet hope for? But if we hope for that we see not, then do we with patience wait for it. (Rom viii 24, 25.) Elsewhere (ch xiii 11.) the Brethren were told that now it is high time to awake out of sleep, "for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed." That salvation approached or came near when they believed; but now, later on, after some years of experience, it was "nearer" than at first. Though "nearer" it had even then not fully arrived. They were still preparing and waiting for it.

Paul wrote to the Philippian "saints" to work out their own salvation with fear and trembling. Phil ii 12. These persons had, as had the Roman brethren, accepted the "call" to be "saints". Rom i 7. Yet it was necessary for these saints to "work out their own salvation," and this was to be accompanied by "fear and trembling": all of which would be useless if persons obtain "final salvation" as soon as they become "saints" by obedience to the gospel. It is certainly true that this salvation must be begun in this life; the preparatory steps must be taken; the conditions must be understood and complied with; but if at any time the saints neglect so great salvation, (Heb ii 3) their final salvation goes by default. This shows how "essential" a holy life is to final salvation.

Peter wrote to the scattered strangers, that having been begotten to a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an incorruptible and undefiled and unfading inheritance reserved in heaven for them, they were being kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation," and this salvation he says is ready to be "revealed in the last time." Pet i 3 5. This last time is the event which believers are so constantly admonished to look out for. "Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many, and to those who look for him will he appear the second time without sin unto salvation." Heb ix 28.

It was announced at the Lord's birth that he would be called Jesus, "for he will save his people from their sins." Matt i 21. What undesired quality attaches to "sins" from which salvation should be desired? "The wages of sin is death." Romans vi 23. Jesus came to save men from their sins—save them from death and the darkness and gloom of the grave.

He will raise the sleeping ones who have fallen "asleep in Christ" (1 Cor xv 18), "the dead in Christ" (1 Thess iv 16), and clothe them with incorruption (1 Cor xv 53, 54) changing the living saints from mortality to immortality, (xv 52); (1 Thess iv 17). This salvation when once accomplished will be so "final", that those so saved, will, like Jesus, be no more subject to death or corruption. (Rom vi 9; Acts xiii 34); they will be like the glorious body of "the Savior, Jesus Christ," for whom they have been looking with anxious desire. Phil iii 20, 21; 1 Thess i 9, 10. Everlasting life, exemption from death and all its attendant evils, an entrance into the Everlasting Kingdom of Jesus Christ, and the unbroken companionship of the Savior as the ages roll—this is the final Salvation for which a holy life is essential.

The signs of his coming fairly stream upon us daily. Let us set our house in order,—watch and pray, and dwell upon the love of God and Christ and the exceeding riches stored up in him for those who endure to the end. There is one qualification for readiness necessary. It is a hope of glory when Jesus comes. What is that? It is Christ in you, the hope of glory. He is the link that binds the here and now to the hereafter. This brings us into the innermost sanctuary and near to the throne of God who sees every one of us in the face of Jesus Christ. This leads to life, life parallel with the life of God. Life shoreless as eternity and as eternity rolls on, and new soundings of his love are taken the saints will shout, "O the depths of his riches."

And tried ones, we shall hunger no more, nor thirst any more, for the lamb in the midst of his throne shall feed us and lead us to fountains of living water, and God shall wipe away all tears, for God is love.

HAZLE MCLELAND.

Did Christ Pre-Exist as Creator?

As showing that Christ personally pre-existed we need nothing more than the assurance of the apostle Paul that he not only existed "before all things" (Col i 17), but that "by him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth:..... all things were created by him and for him." Verse 16.

WALTER GOODYEAR.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

The texts quoted by our friend (Col i 16, 17), are regarded as proof that Christ personally pre-existed; their "assurances" are looked upon as point blank proof of that dogma. When the absurdities of Christ's pre-existence are in danger of being exposed, its advocates generally use Col i 16, 17 for a portiere to hide the "Skeleton in the closet." To say that Christ was "before all things," sounds well for the theory of pre-existence if not examined too critically: and to say that "all things were created by him and for him" is really triumphant proof of that view, if not scanned too closely. The trouble with our friends who hold to this view of our Savior is they have a few texts of scripture learned by memory, and these passages they can glibly quote. Casually read they apparently favor Christ's pre-existence. Believers in the pre-existence of Christ (which is a remnant of immortal Soulism), do not understand the scriptures they quote, and they do not see the result of their interpretation of the Bible. If they did; if they declined to accept the position until they had a look at results which follow premises: if they knew where they would land, nobody would believe or advocate the pre-existence of Christ. We can illustrate these remarks by the texts quoted by Mr. Goodyear. Suppose that Christ existed "before" the creation spoken of in Genesis; and further suppose that "by him" all things were created; that he was creator of all things: Suppose that all this is true: What about results? What becomes of God? "Thus saith the Lord that created the heavens; God himself that formed the earth and made it." Who is the speaker in this text of Scripture? The Creator of heaven and earth. Who is he? "God himself." But our friend, Mr. Goodyear, by trying to apply Col i 16, 17 to the creation recorded in Genesis, and to Christ as the "God himself" who formed all things, makes Christ the Speaker, as well as the Creator in Isa xlv 18. So he understands "Thus saith Jesus Christ;" and "God himself that formed the earth" to mean "Jesus himself that formed," etc. Therefore the same speaker and same person says, "I am the Lord, and there is none else." If Jesus is the "Lord" speaking here, then since He says, "I am the Lord, and there is none else," what becomes of God? If Jesus is Lord and there is "none else," "God himself" cannot be Lord! I solemnly avow it as my earnest conviction that there cannot be even a pinch of truth in a theory which is so derogatory to the Almighty. Not only does the pre-existence of Christ ignore God, and belittle him to a secondary consideration, but it so magnifies Jesus as Lord, Creator, etc., under the "assurances" of perverted texts, that the very existence of God, apart from Christ is denied—"there is no one else."

That this conclusion was not my friend's desideratum I know; that he meant to glide along to the goal of Skepticism, I do not believe; but that he is snuffling the murky atmosphere of an unbeliever, is painfully evident. Whether he intended it or not, he is face to face with the logical upshot of his view that Christ pre-existed as Creator, that there is no God but Christ—"none else." The fact is, our Father is the "only true God" (John xvii 3); Jesus is only his Son whom he has sent. And when we read Col i with docility we find all of Paul's "assurances" there in perfect accord with this principle of sound doctrine.

I verily believe that Christ was "before" and Creator of "all things;" that he is the "Head of the Body, the church: who is the beginning, the first born from the dead, that in all things he might have pre-eminence" (verse 18). Instead of Paul giving us "assurances" about Christ being "before" and creating heaven and earth as reported in Genesis, we find he is talking about "thrones," "dominions," "principalities," and "powers" (verse 16); about the "church", its "Head," "Beginning," etc. Paul knew that it is an inevitable law which says, "First the natural, afterwards the spiritual." 1 Cor xv 46. "Behold I make all things new," says Jesus. Rev xxi 5. Every man in Christ is a "new creature." 2 Cor v 17. Here then we have "assurances" that Jesus is a Creator most truly, but Creator of a "new creature" (creation)—"new heavens and new earth." Isa lxv 17. Now Col i affirms that Jesus is "head" and "beginning" of this creation; and that He is the "first born" of this creation; and that he is to hold a position of "pre-eminence" in it, all of which I accept. But when this scripture—these "assurances"—are blindly applied to the "first heaven and earth" (Rev xvi 1), the "natural" (1 Cor xv 46) ones (Gen i 1) and not to the Head and Beginning of the New Creation—"the church"—God's word is perverted and handled "deceitfully." 2 Cor iv 2. The doctrine of Christ's pre existence is a fragment of the immortality of the soul, and the Bible is against it negatively, constructively and positively.

God's Revelation is Progressive.

In consulting the Scriptures there are certain rules to govern us in applying what we find in them. We must remember that the Word of God is a revelation progressive in development. We need frequently to remember that its sixty-three books, written by forty different authors, cover a period of 1600 years in their composition. We need also to call in mind the fact that this wonderful Book was developing during all those 16 centuries as a revelation, and unfolding itself upon every point on which Man needs enlightenment.

In order that we may better understand this progressive principle of God's revelations of himself let us first reflect upon the different kinds of revelation God has made to man. These different steps or degrees in the work of revealing God and his plans to his creatures are known as his works; his Word and his Son—or Nature, the Law, and the Gospel.

The first, a silent material universe, but nevertheless speaking eloquently to the mind which is seeking to know God. The Second, an inspired Book, making known to man his origin, limitations and possibilities. The third revelation, so to speak—the greatest of all, is that of his Son—the living Word—the Immanuel or God with us—the living revelation of God in the person of Jesus, the Christ.

These are the three great steps which were from the beginning designed by God to lift mankind from the darkness and ignorance of sin to the knowledge of the true God—"which is eternal life." They first reveal a God and Creator, then a Law Giver and Judge, and then a King and Father.

A still fuller and more complete revelation of God and his purposes will yet be made. We might say that all the past and present ages have been but preparatory to the grand development of God's purpose to fully reveal himself to mankind. Then will the earth be filled with the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea, and all that have breath shall praise Him.

But it is the progressive feature of these several revelations which I seek to impress upon our minds at this time. The saying is often heard that "order is heaven's first law"—system was in all the Creator did.

Progressiveness shown out in every order of creation from the beginning and each day of the grand creative week developed a higher order of things than did the preceding one. And this, we find is the principle upon which God has ever dealt with mankind. On no one subject do the scriptures give full information at the beginning. In the beginning there is only a seed or germ of truth, and in the passing centuries an unfolding by degrees.

Adam had but a brief sentence prophetic of future hope. Enoch added but another sentence, but it was the same future hope that Adam had which was given a grand additional feature in those few words. Noah, Abraham, Moses, each had further light given him, and so we might continue the list up to Our Lord and his Apostles, who opened up subjects previously veiled in mystery and threw a flood of light upon every subject of both present and future.

The fullness, clearness and positiveness of their words cannot therefore be compressed into the limitations of the earlier writers. They must be given their fullest value in accordance with the progressive principle of God's Word. They are additional revelations to what was given either prophets or Psalmist and often explanatory of them.

They were often unable to fathom the depth of meaning contained in the words they had penned, or to comprehend the breadth of their fulfillment. An illustration of this is noted in the words of Peter where he speaks of the opening of the door of Salvation to the strangers scattered throughout the Roman provinces as recorded in 1 Peter i. Peter says; "Of which salvation the prophets have inquired and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you."

Did the Prophets have to inquire and search thus "diligently", brothers and sisters, for knowledge and can we expect to get the truth without effort upon our part? Just sit down and be fed like helpless babes? No—we are taught to search for truth as for hidden treasure—that must mean with more than a listless interest in a tale well told, which serves to while away an idle hour. Dig, delve, labor, and the reward of your labor will be strength, confidence and power of conviction which no winds of doctrine can shake or shatter.

CHARLES GOSS.

Sketches of Church History. No. 13.

After the death of Cromwell there had been a reaction against the Puritanism that had sought by force to make of the English people "A people of God," and of the kingdom "a kingdom of God" and unbelief, cynicism, and the grossest immorality took the place of religious fervor. The foulest of French plays were placed on the stage and Charles II—a Catholic at heart—set the nation an example of lifelong licentiousness. And yet, "Nothing that was really worthy in the work of Puritanism was undone, the revels of Whitehall, the skepticism and debauchery of courtiers, the corruption of statesmen, left the mass of Englishmen what Puritanism had made them." Says Greene,—"Serious, earnest, sober in life and conduct, firm in love of Protestism and Freedom," they cast the idols out of their churches, overturned the papal altars, and there was to be no future compromise. Neither Charles II. nor James I. were to be suffered to enchain them again to the papacy. "Puritanism in the revolution of 1688, (when William and Mary became King and Queen of England)—was to do what it had failed to do in 1642—in forwarding the cause of civil liberty, and to bring about through Wesley and the revival of the eighteenth century the work of religious reform which its earlier efforts had thrown back a hundred years." Catholicism no longer ruled England in the person of her kings but slowly and surely a religious deadness was creeping over the the land, and "there were no signs of improvement during the reigns of George I, and George II. Sneering scepticism was universal."

Licentiousness, as in the reign of Charles II, was openly avowed and practiced, and "in the midst of this wholesale wickedness the churches were asleep." But God was preparing instruments to change all this. Hidden away from the eyes of the world was a lad, in a country inn at Gloucestershire, whose name was George Whitefield, born Dec. 16, 1714, died in Newburyport, Mass., Sept. 30th, 1770, and in a country parsonage in Lincolnshire two little lads, whose father was so poor that they often had to go without supper or shoes. They were John Wesley, born at Epworth June 17, 1703, died at London March 2, 1791, and Charles Wesley, born 1708, died in London in March, 1788.

All three had been taught to revere God and his holy Word, and when sent to school at Oxford, "were untouched by the moral pollution about them, and refused to swear, get into debt or neglect their studies."

Gold Dust.

Manifesting truth by a holy life is the best ministry.

The children and servants of God look not so much to danger as to duty.

Our daily business is not a hinderance to the gospel but is the means of contact with other men, by means of which we can preach the gospel to them.—Peloubet.

It is rare when injustice or slights patiently borne do not leave the heart at the close of the day filled with marvelous joy and peace.

To be a strong hand in the dark to another in the time of need, to be a cup of strength to a human soul in a crisis of weakness, is to know the glory of life.

ANNA DREW.

At Breaking of Bread.

JAMES i. 5 7.

If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him. But let him ask in faith nothing wavering. He that wavereth is like a wave of the sea, driven with the wind and tossed, for let not that man think that he shall receive anything of the Lord.

What we ask of the Lord we should ask in faith, for without faith it is impossible to please God. We should ask in faith, nothing wavering, but be steadfast, holding fast the profession of our faith without wavering, for he is faithful that promised.

Jesus said no man having put his hand to the plow and looking back is fit for the kingdom of God. Let us look forward to the kingdom, and let us not be carried about with strange doctrine, for it is a good thing that the heart be established with grace. The eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers. Let us be faithful to the end, that we may receive a crown of life that fadeth not away.

ESTHER BURTON.

Sister Burton was not present. Her short, but interesting, exhortation was read, then several of the members took part in exhorting one another. Heb x 25. The morning sermon was on "Ministering Spirits." Heb i 13, 14. Sister Ella Knowles called attention to the blessing of Joseph by his father Jacob—Israel, and Joseph's sons, Ephriam and Manasseh. Gen xlviii 15, 16.

Sister Robison gave some good thoughts on the Sunday School lesson, "Heroes of Faith". Heb xi. And that as we "are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses..... let us run with patience the race set before us. Looking into Jesus the author and finisher of our faith." Heb xii 1, 2. Keeping ourselves in the way of the covenant, and God will never forsake us.

Brother Buckman referred to James i. 5 6, where he exhorts the brethren to ask God for wisdom, and it shall be given liberally, if the asking is done in faith. If the prayer be not of faith, nothing is granted.

Brother Pottorf quoted, My brethren, count it all joy when ye fall into diverse temptations. Because the trying of faith works patience. The man that stands trial is happy, for he is promised a crown of life. James i. 2-12.

Sister McCave read Of his own will begat he us with the Word of Truth, that we should be a kind of first-fruit of his creatures, James i. 18, then referred to the joy of Peter because I was begotten again to a lively ho by the resurrection of Jesus Chr from the dead, I Peter i. 3.

Sister Neill said God tries, man tempts. God tries us by the gospel. If we hold up the light, we will b often tried—opposed by unbelievers. That is the trying of our faith, every one is tried.

Brother Barber read the beautiful exhortation of Paul the apostle of Jesus Christ to the saints and faithful brethren at Colosse—If ye be ri with Christ, seek those things wh are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. Colossians i. 1-3; ii. 1.

Brother Morrow is a traveling salesman, had been away for a month, during which time he had heard ver many things contrary to the doctrin which is according to godliness, 1 Ti vi. 3. The speakers had good word and fair speeches, Rom. xvi. 18, bu when the "masterly sermon" wa tried by the standard of the gospel the product was "husks". The speakers were of the class that Paul so earnestly and kindly warned Timothy against. "Desiring to be teachers... understanding neither what they said, nor whereof they affirmed." 1 Tim i 7.

P. NEILL.

The great cause of social crime is drink. The great cause of poverty is drink. When I hear of a family broken up and ask the cause—drink. If I go to the gallows and ask its victim the cause, the answer—drink. Then I ask myself in perfect wonderment, Why do not men put a stop to this thing.—Ireland.

An Englishman who has spent a year in America, asserts that as a rule children get no training in the United States. The only place where they are put in restraint is in school, and consequently the schools are shaping the characters of the coming generation in America.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D.C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Announcement.

The Southern Illinois Conference will be held at the Restitution Church eight miles south of Casey, from Sep. 25 to Oct. 3 inclusive. Names of the preachers and programme will appear later.

B. J. WOODS, Sec.

Bro. Allard desires us to announce that the Iowa State Conference will be held at Waterloo, August 21 to 29 inclusive. Regular notice and the proper gramme will appear later.

The Northwest Conference of the Church of God will be held at Corvallis Oregon, on June 25-27.

LEWIS MONTGOMERY.

The Nebraska State Conference of the Church of God will be held in St. Paul, August 28 to September 5 inclusive. Programme will be published later.

ALTA KING.

The Conference of the Church of God in the State of Ohio will be held at Springfield, beginning on Wednesday evening, August 25, and continuing over the following Sunday. The brethren have secured the use of the Fair Grounds, and there is every indication of having perfect convenience and comfort. An earnest invitation is extended to all those of like precious faith.

A complete programme will appear in this paper as soon as it is made up.

To All Concerned:

The undersigned members of the Board of Management of the Bible School Association of the Church of God, having failed to devise any practical plan for the furthering of systematic effort for Bible school work, have with the consent of the most liberal donors, transferred the funds that were placed in our hands, over to Mrs Harriet Boice for use in above named work according to her best judgment. The Visitor, a most commendable production in many respects, is the result of said transfer. Further monies should be sent her direct.

To the end that opportunity may be open for others to undertake what we as a Board have failed in accomplishing, we hereby declare our places vacant from the date of publishing this notice.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Hindu Literature.

This book of over 400 pages is of special value to the young people in order to enable them to meet the attacks upon Christianity from Theosophists and others. It has been fully endorsed by the most eminent Oriental scholars of Europe as being authentic, and the historic facts here presented are unimpeachable. A few copies of this standard $1.50 book may now be had for $1.00 a copy post paid. It is used in colleges and universities. Send all orders to Mrs. Elizabeth A Reed, 1311 Balmoral av, Chicago, Illinois.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

There are some among you who have not paid their subscriptions and still others that have not subscribed who would be glad to help send the gospel of the kingdom to those who are in darkness. As our funds are nearly exhausted, and this work cannot be carried on without money, I am asking each of you to give of your means as God has prospered you. There has been good work done by our preaching brethren this year, and many have been brought to a knowledge of the truth.

Those who are isolated and love the blessed truths and feel they can spare something, even it is only a small amount, send it to the writer. Let us each do our duty that we may hear the Master say, Well done thou good and faithful servant. Let us each one feel that we have a personal interest in this matter. Give and it shall be given unto you, good measure, pressed down and shaken together, and running over, shall men give unto your bosom, for with the same measure that you mete withal, it shall be measured to you again. Luke vi. 38.

With much love for each of you, in my heart I am your Sister in the Christ.

Address me at St. Paul, Neb.

ALTA KING Sec.
Sec. Nebraska Conference.

Brother Underwood,

Please say in THE RESTITUTION that on account of the resignation of Sister Minnie Rogers as Secretary of the Nebraska State Conference, Sister Alta King has been appointed and her address is St. Paul, Neb.

M. D. NEWELL,
President of Conference.

Owing to Sister Rogers leaving us for California all communications, money orders, etc., must be sent to Alta King of Palmer, Neb., who will act as secretary until Conference. We would like all isolated members to notify the acting secretary if they intend coming to Conference and the secretaries of the different churches to send notice of the number from their respective churches who intend to come. This will be necessary so arrangements for entertaining may be made.

ALTA KING.

[There is a little confusion here, as Brother Newell says St. Paul, and Sister King says Palmer. We presume letters sent to either place will be forwarded to her.—ED.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will unable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Notice To Bereans.

For nearly eight years, our President, Miss Anna Drew, has been working faithfully at the helm, in the meantime doing a vast amount of letter writing. It is absolutely necessary that she take a rest, in order that she may be built up physically.

There is no need for you to do less writing, for a committee has been appointed to attend to the correspondence for the present. The quarterly reports may be sent to Miss Mabel Drummond, Chana, Illinois, Sec'y., and any information regarding the work of the Bereans, their lesson outlines, etc., will be promptly answered by writing to Miss Almeda Mitchell, Lanark, Illinois.

BROTHER John Foore of Parsons, Kansas, realizing that his preaching days are getting short, as he is nearly 76 years old, has issued a series of 10 tracts. They have cost him a considerable sum, and he offers to supply them to the brethren on most liberal terms. The average cost of these tracts is about 10 cents each, and he offers to send them at cost. Also he says that where people are too poor to pay for them he will send them to such free if they will send name and address. The subjects treated are as follows: The Great Divine Healer vs. last day healers, The stature of Christ The restitution, The kingdom of God, Law and testimony, The judgment, Is baptism essential to salvation, Life and death. Signs of the end, Through the second vail, Three days and three nights, Election and predestination. Let any one wishing these tracts send direct to John Foore, Parsons, Kan

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think that sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's benevolent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10643 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 429 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Scripture Searchers Assistant.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind., not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper gets delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when he is ready picks up an envelope that has to be purchased to hold it, addresses it, puts on the necessary stamps, and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, has neglected large important points—he did not provide himself an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

He Shall Send His Angels.

Angels come, O come away:
Waiting spirits do not stay;
Bear, O bear us to our home.
For the harvest time has come.

Clouds of glory linger ring,
Hasten our blessed Jesus bring;
Gleams no longer upon afar,
Like a dim uncertain star.

Speed thy coming, blessed One!
We are fainting sad and lone;
Why doth yet the star of day
Its bright rising thus delay?

Whirlwinds struggling still roar,
With the mighty conqueror's car.
Speed along like tempests driven,
From the bursting gates of heaven.

Meek and humble trusting ones,
Zion's suffering trodden sons,
"Day and night," prevail in prayer,
Till the kingdom ye shall share.

Let Creation's prayer arise,
Filling all the exalted skies,
Rise as incense to His hand,
Who doth by the altar stand.

Voice of God! awake the dead!
Now descend with earthquake dread!
Trump of judgment sound the tone,
That shall end Creation's groan!

John's Visions.

It is worthy of notice that the saints, the one body of Christ, are seen in vision participating with the Lord before the resurrection of the dead is stated or in vision referred to.

The return of Jesus to the earth, his visible presence made manifest means life to his servants, with honor and glory to the worthy.

The resurrection of the dead, and the bestowments of reward, stands foremost of all events pertaining to the coming age.

Not until we come to the 11th chapter do we meet with a statement involving the resurrection, but on reaching the 20th chapter we are favored with a detailed description of what is briefly announced in the 11th.

In the first instance it is declared as the "time of the dead" introduced by

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JULY 14, 1909. NUMBER 26.

the sounding of the seventh trumpet: that is a time predetermined when "the dead should be judged and thou shouldst give reward unto the prophets and unto the saints, and them that fear thy name small and great, and shouldst destroy them that destroy the earth."

The prophets are all saints, but the saints are not all prophets, but both revere the name of God, but the unrighteous corrupt the earth—people.

In the 20th chapter of Revelations there is first an outline view of what transpires at the beginning and at the end of the thousand years, the kingdom age proper, and at the same time incidentally stating that the saints, the one body, and the martyrs slain by the beast whose name and mark they refused also lived and reigned with Christ the thousand years.

I venture the remark here, that the Apocalypse is almost absolutely silent as to what occurs during the millenial age, and still more so as to the order of things obtaining in the unknown beyond.

Curiosity never content with what can be known is always on the alert to enquire into the unknowable, but enlightened reason will dictate silence, where God has not spoken. It is folly to open the door to vain speculation. Secret things belong to God, but what he has revealed is for us, and we should be content therewith. When we begin to philosophize as to what will transpire in the unexplored beyond, we trespass on forbidden ground outside of the scope and design of John's visions as made known in the opening chapters of the book.

Returning to the further consideration of the resurrection in "the time of the dead," we notice first two classes brought to view, the righteous and the wicked; their being judged and rewarded certainly implies coming forth from the death state, although it is not directly affirmed in chapter 11. They must necessarily awake and stand before the Judge, previous to any declaration of approval, and before there can be any bestowment of reward. This is clearly set forth in every illustration that Christ has given, and also in all the epistles of the apostles. Moreover when we come to consider the vision as recorded in Rev xx 11-15 all doubt in the matter vanishes away. And I saw a great white throne, and him that sat on it, from whose face the heaven (world rulers) and earth (peoples ruled) fled away, and there was found no place for them, that is in the presence of the Judge, and the general assembly of the living and dead under law to Christ. And I saw the dead small and great stand before God, and the books were opened, and another book was opened, which is the book of life, and the dead were judged out of those things written in the books according to their works, and the sea gave up the dead which were in it, and death and the grave delivered up the dead which were in them, and they were judged every man according to their works, and death and hades were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death, and whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire."

In the above testimony the following points are clearly set forth:

1. The dead are represented as standing.

2. The sea, death and the grave deliver up the dead, which are in them. This occurs before the opening of the books takes place, and before any judicial verdict of approval or disapproval is rendered, which proves that the dead are neither judged nor rewarded until after they come forth from the state of death. Both just and unjust come forth simultaneously and stand before God, the Judge of all.

Doubtless some one will say to me, the resurrection spoken of in Rev xx 10 15, does not occur until the end of the millennial reign, I am aware this view is entertained by many, but to my mind it is untenable for various reasons.

1. Because they are related to the book of life, styled the Lamb's book of life in Rev xxi 27. None are parties of record in this book, but those related to Christ by faith and obedience. The Lamb's book of life dates back to the foundation of the world. Rev xiii 8. Moses alludes to it when in a moment of depression he fell on his face and called upon God, saying, "blot me out of thy book," which then first written, while in the next verse it is said, "Whosoever hath sinned against me, him will I blot out of my book." Ex xxxii 32-33, this accords nicely with Rev iii 5. David in Spirit speaks prophetically of the book of life as related to those who persecuted and crucified Jesus, "Let them be blotted out of the book of living, and not be written with the righteous." Psa lxix 28. And Daniel also in vision was favored with a view of the judgment scene, when many thousands were assembled, and the books were opened. Dan vii corresponding with Rev xx 10-15, contemplating the same general assembly of the living and dead related to Christ as under law to God and amenable to his tribunal also in accord with Paul's words, "Ye are approaching unto Mount Zion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels, to the general assembly or congregation of first borns, having been enrolled in heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and the consciences of just men made perfect." Heb xii.

The fact that the dead ones of Rev xx 11-15 together with the living constitute the general assembly contemplated in the foregoing testimony shows conclusively that the event of the dead standing before God, the Judge of all, occurs at the sounding of the seventh trumpet in the "time of the dead" spoken of in chapter 11, and therefore not at the end of the thousand years.

Again those whose names are written in the Lamb's book of life become the constituent elements of the antitypical tabernacle, also the Holy City coming down from heaven prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. The Holy City, New Jerusalem, is symbolical of the one body, in contradistinction to the Mystical Babylon, that has become the "hold of every foul spirit, and the cage of every unclean and hateful bird, whose sins have reached unto heaven" represented in vision as a drunken prostitute intoxicated with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus, and guilty of spiritual fornication with the kings of the earth. This ecclesiastical hierarchy at the present time arrogantly claims to be the kingdom of God, and within the past few weeks its spiritual mouth has affirmed the right to dominate over the nations of the earth on the ground that the Roman church is the wife of Christ. The symbolic Babylon proud and vain in her pretensions together with all her progeny is styled the "mother of harlots and the abominations of the earth," who have made all "nations drunk with the wine of her fornication" is neither the wife nor the bride of the Lamb. The prospective bride is made up of a people, "Zealous of good works," having purified their hearts by faith and obedience. A people called out from the world by the gospel of the kingdom for the honor of Jehovah's name, and the manifestation of his glory in all the earth—a royal house, a holy nation who have been justified and redeemed from sin and death by the blood of the Lamb.

At the present time most of them are sleeping in the dust of death, but in the time of the dead now near at hand, they will awake and come forth from their dusty beds, to render an account of their stewardship and receive their reward in fulfilment of the promise, as written "behold I come quickly, and my reward is with me to give every man according as his work shall be." Rev xxii 12. The basis of reward is character built up and tested during their probationary life time.

Having voluntarily come into covenant relationship with Christ, as his prospective bride, they cannot break that covenant with impunity, the wedding garment he has provided is clean and white, and it is required that they keep it lest they walk naked, spiritually in a nude state, and expose their shame in the day of their gathering together unto the Lord. John saw them in vision standing before the Judge when the books were opened, and he also saw them afterward as God's tabernacle and the Holy City, having been separated from the unclean by the righteous Judge.

Sometimes I am told the righteous do not come into judgment condemnation. No one affirms that they do. Paul affirms that we must all stand before the judgment (condemnation seat) of Christ." Rom xiv. The reader will see that the word judgment does not always mean condemnation. That all the candidates on probation for eternal life and the kingdom, will give an account of their stewardship while their Lord was absent in the far country is so abundantly and emphatically taught in the Scriptures, it is folly to dispute it, or try to evade the testimony. I have little patience with the sophistry that seeks to make a plaything out of the words Judge and judgment, it may be all amusing but in no way edifying. The primary meaning of the word judge in the original Greek, signifies to divide, to separate, and this is what transpires when the responsible living and dead, appear before the Judge of all.

GEO. MOYER.

Pine Woods Bible Class.

Teacher. As by previous arrangement, our subject for tonight will be:

SEED SOWING.

What is the object of sowing seed?

Albert. That a crop may be produced of the same nature as the seed sown. See Gal vi 7, 8: "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting."

Q. To reap life everlasting as the result of the seed previously sown, what kind of seed will it be necessary to sow?

A. Why seed of the same nature, of course.

Q. What is that?

A. See 1 Pet i 23: "Being begotten again not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the Word of God, which liveth and abideth forever." The Seed is the Word, and the nature of the Seed is expressed in the phrase: "which liveth and abideth forever."

Q. Well, the next thing to be ascertained is what is the Word spoken of here?

A. See verse 25: "But the Word of the Lord endureth forever. And this is the Word which by the gospel is preached unto you."

Well, then; the gospel is the incorruptible seed, which will produce a harvest like the seed sown.

Q. The next thing is, what is the gospel?

A. The gospel Christ preached. See Mark i 14: "Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God."

Q. Is the Word of the kingdom called the good seed?

A. See Matt xiii 18, 19: "Hear ye therefore the parable of the sower. When any one heareth the Word of the kingdom, and understandeth it not, then cometh the wicked, and catcheth away that which was sown in his heart."

Q. Well, the Word of the kingdom must be "understood," before it as seed will produce a crop like itself?

A. Yes, sir; see verse 23: "He that received seed into the good ground, is he that heareth the Word and understandeth it; which also beareth fruit, and bringeth forth some an hundred fold, some sixty, some thirty."

Q. Well, if a person is begotten again by "incorruptible seed," what does such an one become?

A. See Matt xiii 38: "The good seed are the children of the kingdom." They become God's seed, like our children are our seed; and being God's seed, they are heirs of the kingdom—the children of the kingdom.

Q. Well, if the "children of the kingdom," should die, when will they "reap life everlasting," or the Spirit nature?

A. See 1 Cor xv 44: "It is sown in corruption, it is raised in incorruption."

Q. But will they not have to be examined at the judgment seat first?

A. See John v. 24: "He that heareth my Word, (the Word of the kingdom—the good seed) and believeth on him that sent me hath everlasting life (in the Son) and shall not come into condemnation (judgment) but is passed (judicially) from death unto life."

Q. What is the significance of the word "sow" in the phrase: "sown in corruption?"

A. The context plainly shows it to be the passing into the state of death.

Q. Does any one have a different idea?

A. Yes, sir; Mr. Williams, a Christadelphian, in his debate with another Christadelphian says; it means the casting out of the earth of the dead in mortal bodies. See page 8, of his debate, where he says: "It is sown or cast out, a living body, or a natural body," and on page 9, he says: "having passed the ordeal of judgment, it is raised into the immortal, or incorruptible," which he calls the "quickening."

Lud. I would like to put Mr. Williams' idea of sowing, in connection with another Scripture. See 1 Cor xv. 36: "Thou fool, that which thou sowest is not quickened, except it die."

Now, then, if sowing means to "cast out a natural body," from the earth, for the ordeal of judgment, then it will have to die again before it can be quickened into immortal life, after the judgment, because Paul says, "that which thou sowest, is not quickened, except it die." Any one ought to see the point, that if the Christadelphian view of sowing is correct, the one cast out of the earth alive has to die again before eternal life is conferred upon the victor. This ought to brand the theory as false.

George. Christ is given as a pattern as to how the saints will be raised. Does Mr. Williams teach that Christ was raised mortal?

Teacher. Yes, sir; see page 28, of his debate; he says: "I want to prove two points here, first that Christ emerged from the grave mortal (did a sinless man need judging?) and was quickened afterwards; and secondly, that those to whom Paul wrote will emerge from the grave mortal, and will be quickened into immortality afterwards."

Ella. Please read Rom v. 9: "Knowing that Christ being raised from the dead, dieth no more." The word "raised," signifies the act of raising completed.

George. When was the act completed?

A. See Matt xxviii 1-7: "In the end of the Sabbath, (Saturday night) as it began to dawn toward the first of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre. * * * The angel answered and said unto the women, fear not ye; for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here; for he is risen. * * * Go quickly and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead." Therefore "knowing that Christ being raised from the dead dieth no more." Why? because "he is risen from the dead," and that act was completed "in the end of the Sabbath." With regard to this point Mr. Williams' opponent said: "Says Paul, 'he was declared to be the Son of God with power, (it is sown in weakness; it is raised in power) according to the Spirit of holiness by the resurrection from the dead? What more do we need to prove that Christ was raised immortal? To be declared the Son of God with power according to the Spirit of holiness was to be made a quickening Spirit; as God is a Spirit, so he was made in the impress of the incorruptible God by the resurrection from the dead. Some one is perhaps ready to say, 'Yes, we believe all that,

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

but we believe this resurrection was not completed when he was made alive, not until he ascended to the Father." It is amazingly strange, as to what extent men will corrupt the Scriptures who have fleshly theories to sustain. The Scripture still stands. "It is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body." A labored theory to break its force, must of necessity, be false.

We will now adjourn.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.
W. H. WILSON.

Free Thinking.

The boasted free thinker is usually only a loose thinker. One who refuses to be toggled down to any of the ordinary rules that hamper logical reasoning, starts off at a tangent to every thing, and like the little boy who seeing that he was losing the game, shuffled all the pieces on the checker board and wanted to start all over again. Free thinking is impossible in any line of thought whatever. All knowledge acquired by humanity has been acquired, and must continue to be acquired by patient application of sequences and consequences along set lines. The mathematician must follow the multiplication table, the mechanic must go by the square and rule, the navigator by the compass and sextant, the merchant, the farmer the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker, have all distinct laws of procedure, along which they must carry forward their plans and purposes.

Even in the animal races each kind has its distinct line of action along which it proceeds to accomplish the end of its being. So must it be with the race of man, even to his highest and most spiritual thought and purpose "precept must be upon precept, precept upon precept, line upon line, line upon line; here a little—there a little"—gather it in, fit and add it on, and as human knowledge widens and human experience deepens, we may follow wider lines and dig with deeper purpose, to build for higher motives, but the fundamental principles, and the "eternal verities" may never be disturbed, or the whole structure of reason would crumble.

The wrecks of antique philosophy and creeds, as well as societies, civilizations and empires, was caused by the fact that they were "out of plumb" with the "eternal verities." None of the founders of these old "systems" were careful to trouble about bottom facts, and most of them had the most supercilious contempt for "material things," and so they turned their imagination adrift on "old wives fables" and "fairy tales" of spirits and demons and gods of hells and purgatories, and such like that had no manner of connection or continuity with the things of daily life that appeal by their presence to the five senses; made no pretence of such connection, and in fact boasted that there was none—cut loose from "the things of time and space"—they were "free thinkers."

Gentle reader, never mind about thinking freely, practice the art of thinking correctly.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

Plymouth, Indiana, July 14, 1909.

We trust all who know their time has expired, will realize how important it is that they renew promptly. To make out and mail statements to each is quite expensive, and most all already know when their time runs out, so that it is not really necessary. Please take note of this, friends.

Our space is given over to correspondents this week.

We expect Brother Wince will visit the Plymouth Church next Sunday.

Brother Joseph Williams reported interesting meetings at the Hillisburg Church last week, and was announced for Pleasant View, Warren County on July 11. We hope he will give us full account soon.

We have received a letter from a Sister who signs only initials, giving no other clue to her identity. The letter cannot be answered because we know no one by these initials, and it cannot be published because the author does not give her name. As a matter of good faith to us the name of an author must be given. If one does not want his name signed he can have only initials published, but for our protection we must know who the author is. Tell who you are, then we can answer.

The Bible and its Message. Number 12.

Pilate asked a very important question of Jesus the night of his trial. "What is Truth?" has sounded down through the centuries of the past and has been answered by but few of the race. A very large percent of the people have rejected it through the traditions of their fathers. The answer to this question is not given through the theological schools of the past nor present. It can be answered by giving heed to the written word. In John xx 31 we read, These things are written, that ye might believe that Jesus in the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name. Again we read, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." Jesus in his prayer, recorded in John xvii prays that his apostles may be sanctified through thy truth. Thy word is truth. In view of these statements we will venture to answer the question by referring to the word of truth. Paul in writing to Timothy states that Jesus witnessed a good confession before Pontius Pilate. Let us then seek for this confession. In John xviii 33, Pilate asks of Jesus, "Art thou the king of the Jews?" Please note the answer. "To this end was I born and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth." The truth here spoken of was in connection with the kingdom of God. Jesus answered and said, My kingdom is not of this world (political arraugment): If my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight that I should not be delivered to the Jews. Now is my kingdom not far from hence (this age).

Jesus plainly taught that his kingdom is of the future. In Luke xix he speaks a parable unto them and teaches this same truth. As they heard these things he added and spake a parable because he was nigh to Jerusalem, and because they, (the apostles) thought that the kingdom of God would immediately appear. A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom and to return. He called his servants and delivered them ten pounds, and said unto them occupy till I come. This nobleman was Jesus and he has gone into heaven to receive kingly authority (a kingdom) and return. When he returns, his servants will assist in establishing this kingdom. See Rev ii 26, 27. He that overcometh and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers; even as I received of my Father. And I will give him the morning star. The Psalmist testifies to the same. Psalm cxlix. Let the saints be joyful in glory: let them sing aloud upon their beds. Let the high praises of God be in their mouth and a two-edged sword in their hand; to execute vengeance upon the heathen and punishment upon the people; to bind their kings with chains and their nobles with fetters of iron; to execute upon them the judgment written. This honor have all the saints.

The saints here spoken of are yet in the dust and will be until Jesus comes and gives them immortality through the resurrection. The truth to which Jesus confessed before Pilate was that his kingdom is yet future. Many more texts could be given bearing on the same subject, but we consider the above sufficient. Permit us to call your attention to testimony found in other parts of the inspired writing. In Hebrew i Paul says that God in sundry times and in divers manners spake in times past unto the fathers by the prophets, Hath in these last days spoken unto us by Sisson whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by (for) whom also he made or arranged the worlds (ages) Therefore (chapter ii 1-4) we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip (run out). For if the word spoken by angels was steadfast, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense of reward; how shall we escape if we neglect so great a salvation; which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him. God also bearing them witness, both with signs and wonders and with divers miracles and gifts of the Holy Spirit according to his own will. I wish to call your attention to the fact that this great salvation (the truth) was spoken by the Lord at the first and that it was confirmed by those who heard him. Also that God witnessed the things preached both by signs and wonders and miracles and gifts of the Holy Spirit. God has always employed agents to deliver his message and recognized them in some special manner. In Luke iv we read that Jesus entered into a synagogue on the Sabbath day and read from the prophet Isaiah. The spirit of the Lord is upon me because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the broken hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised. This was the message of the spirit to Jesus. He was sent to preach the gospel. In Matt iv 23 it is written that Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues and preaching the gospel of the kingdom and healing all manner of sickness and diseases among the people. Note that God witnessed the preaching by giving Jesus power to heal sickness and disease.

The great salvation spoken of by Paul and preached by the Lord will be accomplished through preaching the gospel of the kingdom. By this preaching, God is taking out of the nations a people for his name. To them he will give power over the nations. Another New Testament writer testifies that after that John was put in prison Jesus came into Galilee preaching the Gospel of the kingdom of God, and saying, "The time is fulfilled and the kingdom of God is at hand; repent and believe the gospel." Jesus during his ministry preached this gospel. The evidence that he preached the true message is that the Father gave him power to open the eyes of the blind and to raise the dead. These he did on several occasions. He raised the son of the widow of Nain and Lazarus, the brother of Mary and Martha. These are the evidences of the truthfulness of the gospel he preached. Those who preach another gospel will bring upon them the curse written.

It is also written that this preaching was confirmed by those who heard him. They, the apostles, confirmed by preaching the same message. Then he called his twelve disciples together and gave them power and authority over all devils and to cure diseases. And he sent them to preach the kingdom of God and to heal the sick. And they departed and went through the towns, preaching the gospel and healing everywhere.

The question as asked by Pilate is answered in the above. Jesus was the messenger who proclaimed the great salvation. His apostles confirmed, by preaching, the same message. God witness the preaching of both by giving them power to perform miracles. In our next we will, the Lord willing, speak more fully of this kingdom. Showing that it is to be a literal kingdom.

Your Brother, looking for the blessed hope and the glorious appearing of our Christ.

Sunday School Lesson.

Lesson for Sunday, July 18.

Paul's Second Missionary Journey. Acts xvii. 1-15.

Golden Text.—Thy Word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee. Psa cxix 11.

After the wonderful events recorded in the last lesson, Paul and his company left Philippi.

Lesson verse 1. What towns did they pass through. Where did they come to? Amphipolis was formerly the capital of eastern Macedonia. It is now an obscure place called by the Turks Emboli. Apollonia, a city of Macedonia at the head of the Aegean Sea. Thessalonica, the capital of one of the districts of Macedonia, at the northern end of the gulf of Saloniki, second in commercial importance to Constantinople.

What was it Thessalonica? There are said to be now about seventy-six synagogues, and twenty-six Greek churches, population about 70,000. The Jews are the principal business men.

2. What was Paul's manner. What did he do for three Sabbath days? What is meant by reasoning out of the Scriptures? The interest and importance of Paul's journeys does not lie in the number of places he visited, nor the many miles he traveled, but in what he said and did, and accomplished. His chief mission was to preach the gospel to the Gentiles, "To turn them from darkness to light, from the power of Satan unto God." Acts xxvi 17-23 He was to do this by "reasoning out of the Scriptures." A fine sample of this reasoning is found in Acts xiii 16-49. Paul reasoned out of the Scriptures. The world's preachers of the present day try to reason things into the Scriptures.

3. What is "opening and alleging"? It is gathering expression from various prophets, comparing and combining these expressions and assertively proving that they are concerning Jesus Christ—the Messias, which is, being interpreted, the Christ,—the Anointed. John i 41. Where in the Scriptures do we find the suffering of Christ? Isa liii. And where about the rising from the dead? Psa xvi 10; Acts ii 31.

The world's preachers pretend to believe that Jesus suffered—died and was buried and rose from the dead. They positively deny this by saying he went from the cross to heaven—Paradise—and took the thief with him. They try to harmonize their opposite statements by saying "his body."

4. Why did they not all believe? Many "professing Christians" try to evade this question by saying, "We do not all see alike." The writer of the Acts does not talk about seeing, but believing. Some of a certain class believed, and a great many of another. Who were the two classes, or nations, or peoples.

5. Were "the Jews which believed not" prevented from believing? Why were they envious and angry? Were Paul and Silas to blame? Did not the Jews all profess to believe the Scriptures? They certainly did, and claimed to be the children of Abraham. John viii 33. But Jesus said their father was the devil. John viii 44. That was why they "set all the city on an uproar." What did they want to do?

6. Did they find them? What did they do? What did they accuse them of?

7. Who was Jason? One of the faithful believing brethren who entertained Paul during his stay in Thessalonica. And who was willing to suffer for the kingdom of God's sake, Luke xviii 29, and the name of Jesus. Acts v 41. They were charged with doing "contrary to the decrees of Cesar." Was the charge true or false? Did Paul and Silas say that Jesus was a king? Is Jesus a king? John xviii 37. Did they say Jesus wanted to be king of Rome?

8. Were the people and the rulers disturbed? Did they take pains to find out if the charges were true?

9. Just what is meant by "security" is not quite clear, but the authorities did not find them guilty.

10. What did the brethren do with Paul and Silas? What did they do when they reached Berea?

11. What was the difference between some in Thessalonica and some in Berea? Was "the Word" the same as mentioned in verse 3? Does "searching the Scriptures" mean reading a chapter, or a few chapters? How often did they search the Scriptures? Was the New Testament part of the Scriptures? What were the Bereans searching the Scriptures for? When people hear "sermons" now do they search the Scriptures daily? If not, why not?

12. What was the result of the preaching and searching?

13. Did Paul have any trouble at Berea?

14. What was done with Paul?

15. Where did they take Paul to? Why is there no such trouble now when the same Word of God is preached? Do all the people now hear it gladly? And if not, why not?

Next Lesson. Paul's second missionary journey continued. Acts xvii 22-34.

Lesson for Sunday, July 25.

Paul's Second Missionary Journey continued. Acts xvii. 22-34.

Golden Text. "God is a Spirit; and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth." John iv. 24.

At the close of the last lesson the brethren had to get Paul out of Berea because the unbelievers had followed him from Thessalonica and made trouble. He was conducted to Athens about one hundred and twenty miles south of Thessalonica. He waited there for Silas and Timothy. While waiting for them he looked round the city. He was grieved to find it given over to idolatry—full of idols—he went to the synagogue and reasoned with the Jews, and in the public meeting places with those he found there.

The very wise (?) men of Athens called him a babbler—one who has picked up scraps of information. They said he preached strange gods because he preached Jesus and the resurrection. Thousands now profess to believe on Jesus and in the resurrection, but if they heard—could hear—Paul preaching the very important doctrine, they—like the wise men of Athens—would be ready to call him a babbler.

The learned Athenians took Paul to the supreme council hall to hear what he had to say. They made it their daily business to find some thing new. People still greeet each other with "What's new?"

Verse 22, Where did Paul stand?—In the middle of the assembly room. What did he mean by "too superstitious?"—The sincere worship of many gods, Acts xiv. 11, 12.

23, What did Paul find? Do the "wise and prudent" know any more about the true God and Jesus and the resurrection now than they did then? Matt. xi. 25, 26.

24, How many gods does Paul mention in this verse? What would the Athenians have done if they had believed Paul?—They would have torn down or abandoned their many temples to their many gods. Did God ever dwell in a temple made by hands? Exo. xxv. 8 22.

25, How should, and how must God be worshipped?—see golden text. What is worship in spirit and in truth? —Having full faith in what God promised Abraham, Gal. iii. 8, 9, and saying, What hinders me to be baptized? Acts viii. 35-38.

26, As God only made one man, and one woman, how is it that there are nations? Gen. xi. 9.

27, Does God force people to seek after him?—No. When any one with an honest and good heart hears the gospel, Luke viii. 15. The good news impresses "the honest and good heart" the love of God and Christ become apparent, and the Scriptures are searched daily, Acts xvii. 11. When faith is established in the mind, baptism in the name of the Lord Jesus follows. Such a one worships God in spirit and in truth.

28, And such a one not only knows that he lives and moves in God, but through a resurrection when Jesus comes, he knows he will have eternal life in the kingdom of God.

29, Because civilized people do not now worship graven images are they much better and acceptable to God? For answer read 2 Tim. iii.

30, What were people ignorant of before Jesus and his apostles preached?—That the Gentiles were to be invited to God's kingdom and glory. Eph. iii. 5, 6. Why now command all men everywhere to repent?—Because the gospel was then being preached to "every creature" Mark xvi. 15, 16.

31, What is the day called? The day of the Lord, 2 Peter iii. 10. The Son of Man shall come in his glory and judge the nations, Matt. xxv. 31-34. All that truly believe that Jesus really rose from the dead, just as truly believe he will come again and judge the world in righteousness. Where is the assurance that Jesus rose? 1 Cor. xv. 1 f.

32, What did the wise and learned men of Athens do when they heard of the resurrection? Do all that profess to believe in the resurrection of Christ fully expect eternal life by or at the resurrection when the Lord himself descends from heaven? 1 Thess. iv. 16, 17. How do those who are religious who belong to a church expect to be saved? What is their hope?

33, What did Paul do?

34, Was there any in Athens that believed? Did Jesus send word to Paul that he would have great success in converting men when he preached the glad tidings of salvation? "I will show him how great things he must suffer for my name's sake," Acts ix. 16. To all the apostles Jesus said "The time cometh, that whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God service" John xvi. 2, "Yea, and all that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution" 2 Tim. iii. 12. From these words we can all decide whether or not we are "in Christ."

Lost Opportunities.

If we could only call them back again—lost opportunities!
And hold them as we held them
For evil or for good, within our power
What would we do?
If some bright messenger from yonder realms of peace
Should bring us back our past lives, like an open book;
No writing on it, nothing blotted, but every page
Unsullied, white and pure as snowdrift;
What would we write? If we could write it all again.
Of our lost lives, we call you back once more
From out the shadowy land of half-forgotten memories,
And as you stand before us, how can we bear to look on you,
Reproachful, grave and still.
Some kindly deed we might have done, but did not.
Some loving words we might have said, but said not.
Gladness to aching heart we might have given but gave not.
Tell us, what have we done, what have we left undone?
Or have we shared some weak one's sorrow,
And pointed to the Man of Sorrows all forsaken
In his last long hours of agony, and have we
In another's brightened life made bright our own?
O! thou all-loving One who holds the Book of Life,
Wherein so many names are written—just and good,
Are our names written there?
Have we a place prepared in some one
Of those many mansions in our Father's house,
Where we shall go out no more? In that dear home
Where never shall the light of sun go down,
Beyond the reach of sorrow, death or tears;
Where time shall be one long eternity
Of rest, and peace, and joy.
Teach us dear Lord, to live as thou hast lived.
Teach us to suffer, teach us to die,
And in the likeness of thy resurrection, rise
To meet thee in the morning of that sunlight
Which shall go down in darkness never more.

Forgotten Workers.

Little men do work for which great men get credit. Unseen men, unknown men, lay foundations, upon which others erect monuments and establish their own fame.

The nurse instructing a little child, the mother forming the mind of her offspring, the teacher communicating the first elements of truth or the first principles of righteousness, these are the persons who if they do their work well ensure the purity of the family, the prosperity of the community, the blessing of God upon the generation to come.

O lowly, lonely worker, toil on. Let your little work for God be done faithfully, and done well. Others may take the credit of the work you wrought, and boast of great results and great success, but God knows the beginning and the end of our labors; and the day is coming when he shall bring to light all hidden things, and give to every man according as his work shall be. What revelation shall then astonish the holders, when great things shall be made small, and little things shall shine forth in grandeur, when many that are now first shall be last, and many that are now last shall be first. Selected by Ada A. Drew.

Dear Bereans:

Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. Heb xi 1.

In Paul's letter to the Romans he shows where Abraham was justified by faith. Abraham believed God and it was counted unto him for righteousness. Rom iv 3.

In verse 20, He staggered not at the promise through unbelief, but was strong in faith, giving glory to God.

In Hebrews eleventh chapter Paul shows the worthy fruits of faith in the Fathers of old. Let us be as strong in the faith as were our Fathers.

Elizabeth Hutchings.

Dear Bereans:

"I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Phil iii 14. These are words of the Apostle Paul. Going on he admonishes us to press toward the same mark. This must be the aim of every child of God who would gain a place of citizenship in his kingdom. Whatever we do, we must do all to the glory of God with a pure heart and clean hands.

First we must hear, believe, repent and obey. With this as a starting point, we must press onward continually, striving to develop a more God like character. Adding to our "faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity. For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. But he that lacketh these things is blind, and cannot see afar off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins. Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure; for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall; for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." 2 Pet i 5-11.

With this purpose in view we will find many obstacles in our pathway, but will conquer and make them stepping stones by which to build a God-like character. "And let us not be weary in well doing; for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not." Gal vi 9. Thus if we put forth all our energy with an untiring effort, with God's help, we will gain the victory to eternal life when Jesus comes.

Twenty per cent of all the insane in the United States, or 30,000, owe their condition to alcohol. Their cost to the nation for support is eighteen million annually, and on the low estimate that the productive worth of an individual is $400 a year, there is an additional loss of twelve million more.

The Restitution is only $1.50 per year. Try it a year.

The Love of God in Christ.

Rom v 8, God commendeth his love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.

In the fifth chapter of Paul's epistle to the Romans the reader may notice that it begins with a "therefore;" showing that what follows is dependent upon the truth of that which precedes it. The clearest comprehension of Paul's conclusions must then, depend upon our first gaining a thorough knowledge of those statements of his upon which they are predicated.

With this idea in mind let us go back to the 3rd chapter, where we find that his purpose is to show both Jews and Gentiles that "Faith" is superior to the works of "the law," since none are justified by the latter and none without the former. To quote his own words: "Therefore by the deeds of the law there shall no flesh be justified in the sight of God, for by the law is the knowledge of sin. But now the righteousness of God without the law is manifested, being witnessed by the law and the prophets." What, say some, is this right-eousness of God? The answer, "Even the righteousness of God which is by faith of Jesus Christ unto all and upon all them that believe: (the "all" embraces both Jews and Gentiles alike) for there is no difference. For all have sinned and come short of the glory of God." Verses 20-23.

Then we find here that one work or purpose of the law was to bring the sinner to a knowledge of his sin—to cause him to see himself as an offender and enemy of God and righteousness. As he says in vii 7, "I had not known sin but by the law." He could not have recognized what was sin, but by the teaching of the law. If the law awakened in the sinner a consciousness of sin it accomplished the first step toward his repentance, forgiveness and the peace with God which follows. The law is therefore pronounced holy, just and good. vii 12, being a school master to bring us to Christ—that is the Jews. The Gentiles are justified freely by his grace without coming under the law of Moses, under which the Jews already were. But after that he had come and his gospel message had been heard by them there was no longer a place for the law. All alike came to God through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus, whom God hath set forth (or foreordained. Margin) to be a propitiation through faith in his blood to declare his righteousness for the remission of sins that are past, through the forbearance of God. Paul here points out that God has shown or declared his righteousness, that he might be just and the justifier of him that believeth in Jesus. Putting the matter upon the basis of faith Paul concludes that a man is justified by faith without the deeds of the law, and God is the God of the Gentiles as of the Jews—"Seeing it is one God which shall justify the circumcision by faith, and uncircumcision through faith."

Having thus stated his argument the Apostle proceeds to show its correctness from the Scriptures.

First, he shows how that Abraham believed God and his faith was imputed to him for righteousness. (2) That it was by or on account of his faith that he and his seed received the promises. (3) Having shown that it is by faith he shows the reason, that it might be of grace to the end that the promise might be sure to all the seed, not to that only which is of the law, but to that also which is of the faith of Abraham, who is the father of us all" (all believers).

Having shown that righteousness was imputed or reckoned to Abraham for his faith, and not actual, the Apostle now declares that the same rule also is in force for all who believe. "Therefore being justified by faith we have peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ."

It may be well in passing for us to notice one or two other passages in the 3rd and 4th chapters. The first is the 25th verse of 3rd chapter, and by giving the margin reading we read as follows: "Whom God hath foreordained to be a propitiation through faith in his blood to declare his righteousness, for the passing over of sins that are past, through the forebearance of God."

By this we learn that Jesus was foreordained or appointed beforehand to be a propitiation or place offering on behalf of all who through faith in his blood receive remission of their sins, or as the marginal reading has it—"the passing-over of sins that are past."

First, we notice that it is God who has foreordained Jesus to bring about the reconciliation between himself and man.

Second, We see that it was not without the shedding of blood that this was accomplished, for the Divine order was from the beginning that "without the shedding of blood" there was no remission or passing over of sins.

Third, the remission only operates to cancel or wipe out such sins as are past—and therefore the sinner who becomes justified by or through faith must forsake sin, and live under the spiritual law instead of the natural law, for the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are as foolishness unto him, neither can he know them because they are spiritually discerned. 1 Cor ii 14.

The second passage in the preceding chapters to which I wish to draw your attention is the 16th verse of 4th chapter, and reads, "Therefore it is of faith, that it might be of grace to the end the promise might be sure to all the seed."

The Apostle was talking about the promise that Abraham should be the heir of the world, says it was not to Abraham or to his seed through the law, but through the righteousness of righteousness of faith. It was this foundation promise upon which rests the hope of eternal life for every one who has a hope through faith—for If ye be Christ's ye are Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise. The thought I wished to emphasize in the 16th verse just read is that contained in those six words "that it might be of grace."

God has not made our hope of eternal life to rest upon our own deserts or merits. Paul confessed himself as utterly without merit and quotes from the words of David, "There is none righteous, no not one." The man whose hope of eternal life rests upon the work he has done is as much an alien and stranger from the covenants of promise as though he had never heard the gospel. Does not Paul tell the Ephesians that "Even when we are dead in sins, God hath quickened us together with Christ by whose grace ye are saved." Eph ii 5.

The believer is justified freely by his grace and "the just shall live by faith" —covers the whole ground—"for God commendeth his love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.

Two parties are involved in this statement, God and the sinner. Now let us consider how wonderful, how grand and awful becomes the name of God when we seek to comprehend him. Can we speak reverently enough of God? The keener our realization of our inability to comprehend him the greater our desire to know him. Yet it is absolutely impossible for us to think of God as though we comprehended his infinite attributes. But while we know that his Omnipotence controls the universe, and his glory fills the heavens and earth, and that his wisdom and power are unsearchable and his ways past finding out. We are not asked to find a limit to these unlimited attributes of God. We find our feeble powers taxed in trying to comprehend some of the things wherein he has fully revealed himself. We had better remain on the safe ground of love and fellowship and try to comprehend the things of God for our good, listening again to the words of revelation with the single thought of getting behind the wonderful manifestations of his power to the infinite fact of his being.

How much nearer we seem to come to knowing him when we reflect upon the simple words in the writings of John, "God is love," "God is light," "God is life." How it illuminates our text to put these words in relation to it—thinking of God as life, as light, as love, who commendeth his love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners; Christ died for us. With that impression upon our minds, we turn to the other end of our text and we find the word "Sinners." I would not discuss at length the question of how men became sinners. We know they were created in the divine image and were given a world-wide dominion. The dominion is shattered, wrecked and ruined, and deep in his own consciousness man knows himself to have fallen from that God-like purity and uprightness which was his. He is a sinner and he knows he is a sinner whether he acknowledges it or not. But it is to this fallen one that God reaches down with his infinite love and invites him to accept his loving offer of life and blessedness in his kingdom. Yes, he sends him urgent appeals to accept a joint-heirship with Christ as King. When we pause along here and reflect that God was under no obligation, so far as justice was concerned, to make the offer of eternal life to man; that the sinner has absolutely no right to existence in the presence of his Creator, then we in some degree comprehend the quality which commends his act in so doing to mankind—that is his free grace.

To comprehend the wonderful love of God in this manner of dealing with mankind we must know ourselves as we are in his sight. The measure of our comprehension of God will be reflected in our lives. Looking into the perfect law of liberty and continuing therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, shall be blessed of God. Jas i 24. It is a fixed law that by the measure of our hatred of impurity, of dishonesty, of sin in all its forms is the measure in which we have turned away from sin. The measure in which we have come to see anything of right is the measure in which we have already turned our backs on the thing that is wrong. Our deepest conviction, our highest ideal, our conception of what is right puts us at war with every thing that is impure, ignoble, and unholy.

How, then must all sin appear in the sight of God who is infinitely pure and holy? And what then must be the measure of that love which prompted God to spare a race of sinners who were worthy of death and to offer them while yet sinners a life of unending blessedness and glory even beyond their mortal powers to measure or comprehend.

That "unspeakable gift" has God given us in his Son who died that we might have life—for while we were yet sinners Christ died for us.

"Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins." 1 Jno iv 10. That, dear ones, is the love of God in Christ. That is the subject we were to consider this morning and the subject which Paul was trying to impress upon his brethren and hearers at Rome nineteen centuries ago, and it is still the motive power of the gospel. We may only partly realize something of God's love to us a race of sinners by looking at it as manifested in his Son.

Jesus said, Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends. Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you. John xv 13-14. But it was not simply Jesus of Nazareth who was willing to die and did die for us. It was the Christ—the Anointed of God, foreordained to suffer death for fallen man. His title reveals him as God manifest in the flesh, for God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself. If you were there on Calvary all that day of suffering and death—and if you had seen the agony and anguish of Spirit and the final end of it all when death had claimed him as its victim. If you had seen all this and had only recognized him as Jesus of Nazareth; your heart wrung with pity and sorrow for the Man of Sorrows had missed the great Truth, the saving, life-giving Truth that he is the Christ. Paul says, It is Christ that died, yea, that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us. Rom viii 34.

The purely human emotions of pity and sorrow for the sufferer, however deep or sincere would not have grasped the truth of the One-ness of God with Christ—the realization of God in Christ reconciling the world of sinners to himself.

And what does the death of Christ prove? If we are ever asked that question, there is but one answer that fully and completely answers it, and that is the one which is furnished by our text, that is God's love. John says: "In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him.

What then is the deepest truth revealed in the Christ? The Scriptures describe his holiness and his righteousness, they reveal his power. But they do something infinitely more. They reveal his love. In the cross of Jesus we can hear God saying to all men what he said by the mouth of his ancient prophet to Israel: "O Ephraim, how can I give thee up?" It is the supreme act of love and the cry of a father for his wayward and disobedient son to return and be forgiven.

Finally and supremely the cross is God's answer to every objection, to every appeal that the mind of man can offer. And what is John's answer to this wonderful display of God's love? It is this, that we love him because he first loved us." If this is our answer too we must not forget Jesus' words: "If ye love me keep my commandments." The "forgetful hearer" had better not have heard at all.

CHAS. A. GOSS.

Bible Years and Days.

In the Bible and among ourselves, accuracy of expression is often wanting in speaking of time. With us, if a laborer hires to a farmer for a month, he expects his pay after he has worked 26 days, although there are four days more in the month. A month's labor is only 26 days. If a father decides to send his son to school for six months, beginning the first of March, the full term would be 24 weeks and six days, ending in July. But 20 weeks are six months of school, short of full time two weeks. Even from the 20 weeks you have to deduct two days each week—Saturday and Sunday—leaving only 14 weeks and two days. Six months of school, then, is really only 14 weeks and two days—short of full time just one hundred days! Now if a month is called a month, although it is short of full time four days; and if six months are called six months, although one hundred days deducted from the time, then may not, "three days and three nights," (Matt xii 40) in the accommodative language of parlance, be equivalent to a part of one day, all of the next, and part of the third? It makes no difference how verbally inaccurate the statement may be, or how inadequate it is to express full time, or how strangely it may seem to us. If such usage of language prevailed among the Hebrews, and finds illustrations in the inspired writings, its strangeness cannot nullify it. We do not assume the existence of this Hebrew peculiarity of counting time. We will demonstrate it by the word of the Lord. "To the law and to the testimony" (Isa viii 20), we appeal. Now as to Bible time expressed in years and days, we affirm that:

I. It was customary with Bible writers to count a fraction a year, either at the beginning or end of a series, as each a year. The Hebrew scriptures abound with examples of this kind. Thus in the third year of Asa's reign, Baasha began to reign, and reigned 24 years; yet he died in 26th year of Asa, one year too soon for full time. 1 Kings xv 33; xvi 6, 8. In the second year of Asa, Nadab began to reign, and reigned two years, yet died in the third year of Asa, (xv 25). Abijam began his reign over Judah in the eighteenth year of Jeroboam; he reigned three years and died in the 20th year of Jeroboam (xv 1, 2, 8, 9). Here three years are made up by counting a part of Jeroboam's eighteenth, all of his nineteenth and part of his twentieth. By reading parallel texts in the book of Kings, we learn that this method of computing was invariably adhered to until the fall of the Northern Kingdom. One consequence of this is, in counting the duration of the kingdoms of Israel and Judah, by the regnal years of their kings, we have to subtract half a year from the number given of every one who reigned more than one year. The result obtained is more or less uncertain; for we are not able to tell what part of a year is counted in individual cases, as a year. Hebrew chronology, for this reason cannot be depended upon. God's munificent design in this was doubtless to hide from us the "day and hour" (Matt xxiv 36) of Christ's coming, that his people might be kept in constant expectancy, and in "watching" and "waiting" for him. He has given us "signs" (Luke xxi 25-31), not figures, to indicate the Master's coming. In our next proposition we affirm that;

II. It was a custom with Bible writers to count a fraction of a day, either at the beginning or end of a series, as each a day. This may be seen in Gen xlii 17, 18, when Joseph put his brothers "into ward three days," and yet released them "the third day." But especially in the New Testament does this method of counting prevail. One illustration must suffice: "Four days ago," says Cornelius, "I was fasting until this hour." Acts x 30. Now let us count the time, beginning at Acts x 3, where we find he was praying at the ninth hour in the afternoon. He immediately started the soldiers and servants for Peter (vii, viii). This was the first day. They reached Peter's home "on the morrow," (9) at noon (10). Not quite one day after his vision yet. They remained with Peter that night, and "on the morrow" (23), that is, the next day, they all started for Caesarea. So far two days. "And the morrow after they entered into Caesarea" (24). This is the third day. And on this day Cornelius said, "Four days ago," etc. Acts x 30. In these four days, he counted less than three hours of the first day, the whole of the second and third, and nine hours of the fourth—in all, short of full time expressed, twenty-four hours. We must recognize facts; specious pleading cannot change them one iota.

That we are right in regard to our position on Bible time, we feel certain, confirmed as we are by the fact that when God's Holy Spirit designed to express definite time by years, months, days, etc., the inspired penmen used the qualifying terms "full" and "whole" before the substantive. Under the Levitical law the owner of a house might redeem it "within a full year.....for a full year shall he make the right of redemption." Lev xxv 29. The vessels of the Lord's house were to be returned within "two full years" Jer xxvii 3. Absalom looked upon his father's face after "two full years" had expired. 2 Sam xiv 28. Paul preached in Rome "two whole years." Acts xxviii 30. It has been said, "If, in the mouth of Jesus, three days and three nights do not mean three days and three nights.....what then can we depend on?" Certainly, he means what he says, three days and three nights. But while Jesus said three days and nights, some well meaning, but mistaken, brethren are insisting he meant so many minutes and seconds!

Had Jesus been an exact critic, striving to exhibit himself to his followers as an adept mathematician; if he meant to measure time by the tick of the clock, instead of saying he was to be in the earth "three days and three nights," he should have said three full days and nights, or three whole days and nights. But he said nothing of the kind. Let no one then presume to change the words of Him who spake as never man spake.

Our Lord meant what he said and said what he meant. If the qualifying terms "full" or "whole" had been needed in the text, he would have used them. They are significantly omitted. Why? "Command, therefore, that the sepulchre be made sure until the third day." Matt. xxvii. 64. Why say "until the third day" If he was not to rise until after three days? The words, "until the third day" show that the words, "after three days" (v 63) terminated the third day. He was raised "the third day according to the Scripture." 1 Cor. xv. 4. But if Christ was dead three "full" days, as some insist, and came to life on the fourth day, he was raised "the fourth day according to their theory." If Jesus rose "the third day" he must have emerged from the tomb before the third day expired. Hence sometimes our Lord said he would rise on the third day; at other times, after three days. Mark viii. 31; ix. 31; x. 34; xvi. 21; xvii. 22; xx. 19; Luke ix. 22; xviii. 33; xxxiv. 7, 46. "After three days" and "on the third day" are therefore, equivalents with our Lord.

"After three days" (not after three whole days) really means after three days and nights. If you begin to count on Monday morning, say "after" one day would bring you to Tuesday morning; after two days would bring you to Wednesday morning, and after three days brings you to Thursday morning. In counting three days in this way you have also counted three nights: Monday night, Tuesday night and Wednesday night. Then if Jesus could say in harmony with Jewish phraseology that after three days he would rise, he could with legitimate meaning and good propriety say that he would be in the earth three days and nights.

Editor Restitution:

I write to inform you of a most harmonious and excellent meeting in Conference of the brethren of the Church of God at Corvallis, Oregon, June 25th, 26th and 27th. Such meetings as this, where harmony prevails throughout, is a great benefit to the spiritual interest of our cause.

We had Brother Adams, from Omaha, Nebraska, with us and he delivered some splendid discourses on subjects pertaining to our belief. We had some splendid essays, written by a number of our brothers and sisters, and several discourses by three of the brethren, Brother Darby, of Corvallis, Brother Prosser, of Scholls, Oregon, and Brother Adams, of Omaha, Nebraska.

It was unanimously voted by the members present to confine our evangelistic work to Oregon and Washington. Our dear Brother Skeels, on account of feeble health, was not present with us. Brother Skeels has taken up work in Arizona, parts of California and is contemplating doing some work in Wyoming. The brethren voted Brother Skeels recommendations for his work in those localities and expressed a deep feeling and kindest wishes that his health may soon recover to allow him to go ahead with the work in those localities.

The board of directors at the Northwest Conference are authorized, by a unanimous vote of the members, to use their best judgment and efforts to select a man or men for the field outlined above. There was a subscription taken up at one meeting of the Conference, for funds to carry on the the evangelistic work in Oregon, and Washington, which resulted in a subscription of $300.00. We are very much in need of strong, able-bodied, competent men for the work in this Northwest, and if such men can be found I feel confident that financial support will easily be obtained.

The last evening of our Conference at Corvallis the writer suggested that Brother Darby and Brother Adams should make a trip to Felida, and hold meetings there Saturday night and Sunday, July 3-4. This request was complied with, Brother Darby preaching Saturday evening and Bro. Adams Sunday. Saturday there being such short notice there were only a few out. On Sunday after Sunday school services Brother Adams preached a splendid discourse on the spiritual interest of our cause. Afterwards he gave a short talk on financial interests and a collection was taken for the purpose of paying the balance of indebtedness against the church, resulting in getting $113. It is gratifying to see religion is reaching down as far as our pockets, and if we prosper as a people the finances of our church have got to be more considered.

Our people depend too much on the idea that Salvation is free, and overlook the command that one-tenth of all our accumulations belong to the Lord. Whenever we can get this spirit introduced into our cause, then our lights, which have been under a bushel for so many years will commence to shine. I am more than pleased to see our people here in the Northwest are waking up to this realization.

We cannot expect intelligent, competent and resourceful young men, such as we need in our work, to lay down their lives entirely for this work with not sufficient financial support to at least keep the wolf from the door and clothe them in a manner that they may make a decent appearance in their field of work.

I will say for our Sunday School at Felida, with Brother J. E. McIrvin as Superintendent, that we have a splendid school, and this gives encouragement to the writer for what he has done for the erection of the church at this place.

The brethren saw fit to again elect me as President of the Northwest Conference for the coming year, and I will use my best efforts for the promotion of our cause.

My prayer is that all our brethren will awake to the realization of their duty along the lines I have mentioned. I remain,

As ever your brother in the hope,
LEWIS MONTGOMERY.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

The angels had two great gala days: the first when creation was finished (Job xxxviii 1-7); the next when Christ was born; and they are to have a third, when he shall come again in the clouds of heaven. None on earth have heard the angels except humble shepherds at Bethlehem; none will hear them sing hereafter except those who meekly receive the testimony concerning Jesus, and are not offended at his being born in a stall, or that all heaven should be moved exultingly on his account.—A. C. Thompson.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Announcement.

The Southern Illinois Conference will be held at the Restitution Church eight miles south of Casey, from Sep. 25 to Oct. 3 inclusive. Names of the preachers and programme will appear later.

B. J. WOODS, Sec.

Bro. Allard desires us to announce that the Iowa State Conference will be held at Waterloo, August 21 to 29 inclusive. Regular notice and the programme will appear later.

The Northwest Conference of the Church of God will be held at Corvallis Oregon, on June 25-27.

LEWIS MONTGOMERY.

The Nebraska State Conference of the Church of God will be held in St. Paul, August 28 to September 5 inclusive. Programme will be published later.

ALTA KING.

The Conference of the Church of God in the State of Ohio will be held at Springfield, beginning on Wednesday evening, August 25, and continuing over the following Sunday. The brethren have secured the use of the Fair Grounds, and there is every indication of having perfect convenience and comfort. An earnest invitation is extended to all those of like precious faith.

A complete programme will appear in this paper as soon as it is made up.

STANLEY A. SANFORD, Sec.

The next Annual Conference of the Churches of God in the State of Illinois will be held at Oregon, beginning August 18, and continue over the following Sunday. The programme will appear later.

Let us begin now to plan for this meeting, and to be present with the purpose of doing all in our power for the work in Illinois in the year that is to come.

JAS. W. WILSON, Pres.
EMMA L. SMITH, Sec.

The next Missouri Conference of the Church of God will convene at Moreo Mills, Mo. August 25 and continue over Sunday, August 28. Program and directions will appear later.

SADIE B. MORSE, Sec.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

Illinois Bible School.

The Illinois Bible School for the year 1909 will convene in Oregon on Monday morning, August 9th, to last until the 18th, at which time the Illinois State Conference will convene to last over the following Sunday. Please write that you are coming. Those who are obliged to pass through Chicago will find two trains leaving Chicago over the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, leaving Union Depot each day that are through trains, making only two stops between Chicago and Oregon. One of them leaves Chicago at 9:20 in the morning and the other at 6:30 in the evening. There are other trains but these are the best.

The work of the school is being carefully prepared, and your time will be pleasantly and profitably spent. Bring Bible, pencil and note book. Plan to arrive in Oregon on Saturday before the school opens. Board and lodging are free. Write me the addresses of any persons who may be induced to attend. A good program for evenings of the first week is in preparation. Brother Marsh will assist in the work this year. His work will probably be on the book of Daniel, while the other part will consist of New Testament work, the nature of which will largely depend upon the personel of the school.

We need not advertize the scenic surroundings of Oregon to those who have been here. Come and spend two weeks at the school and conference, and be convinced. Please write me whether you come or not.

S. J. LINDSAY,
Oregon, Illinois.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

There are some among you who have not paid their subscriptions and still others that have not subscribed who would be glad to help send the gospel of the kingdom to those who are in darkness. As our funds are nearly exhausted, and this work cannot be carried on without money, I am asking each of you to give of your means as God has prospered you. There has been good work done by our preaching brethren this year, and many have been brought to a knowledge of the truth.

Those who are isolated and love the blessed truths and feel they can spare something, even it is only a small amount, send it to the writer. Let us each do our duty that we may hear the Master say, Well done thou good and faithful servant. Let us each one feel that we have a personal interest in this matter. Give and it shall be given unto you, good measure, pressed down and shaken together, and running over, shall men give unto your bosom, for with the same measure that you mete withal, it shall be measured to you again. Luke vi. 38.

With much love for each of you, in my heart I am your Sister in the Christ.

Address me at St. Paul, Neb.

ALTA KING Sec.
Sec. Nebraska Conference.

Brother Underwood,

Please say in THE RESTITUTION that on account of the resignation of Sister Minnie Rogers as Secretary of the Nebraska State Conference, Sister Alta King has been appointed and her address is St. Paul, Neb.

M. D. NEWELL,
President of Conference.

Owing to Sister Rogers leaving us for California all communications, money orders, etc., must be sent to Alta King of Palmer, Neb., who will act as secretary until Conference. We would like all isolated members to notify the acting secretary if they intend coming to Conference and the secretaries of the different churches to send notice of the number from their respective churches who intend to come. This will be necessary so arrangements for entertaining may be made.

ALTA KING.

[There is a little confusion here, as Brother Newell says St. Paul, and Sister King says Palmer. We presume letters sent to either place will be forwarded to her.—ED.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Pennsylvania Lines, $1 25 Chicago Excursion.

Tickets sold for trains leaving Plymouth 5:02 and 9:07 a m, 1:30, 1:38, 5:52 and 6:20 p m, Saturday July 17, and 5:02 and 6:20 a m Sunday, July 18, good returning until July 19, inclusive.

Hindu Literature.

This book of over 400 pages is of special value to the young people in order to enable them to meet the attacks upon Christianity from Theosophists and others. It has been fully endorsed by the most eminent Oriental scholars of Europe as being authentic, and the historic facts here presented are unimpeachable. A few copies of this standard $1.50 book may now be had for $1.00 a copy post paid. It is used in colleges and universities. Send all orders to Mrs. Elizabeth A Reed, 1311 Belmoral av, Chicago, Illinois.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

THE MESSENGER

Is the name of a religious monthly magazine advocating the coming of the Kingdom of God, the return of the Lord Jesus, and the hope of Eternal Life. Published in Glasgow, Scotland. Subscriptions received by the American agent, William G. Rothe, 1301 Park Place, Brooklyn, N. Y. 1 copy 37 cts, 2 copies 69 cts, 3 copies 97 cts, 5 or more copies 25 cts each copy per year. Sample copy on application.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Notice To Bereans.

For nearly eight years, our President, Miss Anna Drew, has been working faithfully at the helm, in the meantime doing a vast amount of letter writing. It is absolutely necessary that she take a rest, in order that she may be built up physically.

There is no need for you to do less writing, for a committee has been appointed to attend to the correspondence for the present. The quarterly reports may be sent to Miss Mabel Drummond, Chana, Illinois, Sec'y., and any information regarding the work of the Bereans, their lesson outlines, etc., will be promptly answered by writing to Miss Almeda Mitchell, Lanark, Illinois.

BROTHER John Foore of Parsons, Kansas, realizing that his preaching days are getting short, as he is nearly 76 years old, has issued a series of 10 tracts. They have cost him a considerable sum, and he offers to supply them to the brethren on most liberal terms. The average cost of these tracts is about 10 cents each, and he offers to send them at cost. Also he says that where people are too poor to pay for them he will send them to such free if they will send name and address. The subjects treated are as follows: The Great Divine Healer vs. last day healers, The stature of Christ The restitution, The kingdom of God, Law and testimony, The judgment, Is baptism essential to salvation, Life and death, Signs of the end, Through the second veil, Three days and three nights, Election and predestination. Let any one wishing these tracts send direct to John Foore, Parsons, Kan

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matte printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Address W. H. Wilson, 625 North Willow Ave, Austin Station, Chicago Illinois.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 866 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintance with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10643 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Scripture Searchers Assistant.

A very valuable help to all who are studying the Scriptures—a reprint of one of our beloved Brother Joblin's works. Treats of thirty different subjects, with about four hundred references. All should possess a copy for ready reference. Price by mail six cents, order from Mrs M Joblin, 10643 Ashbury ave, N E Cleveland Ohio

The Elements of the Kingdom of God, is the title of an eighteen page tract by Brother T J Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He sets forth that a kingdom cannot exist without a King, his cabinet officers, territory, a capital city, subjects, laws. Brother Daniel will send this little tract to you at 10 cents each, or $1.00 a dozen. Send direct to him for them.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is sadly detested and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

The Way it Seems to Me.

I believe that the Lord is coming,
I think that I hear just now
The roll of the chariot thunder—
That a light from around his brow
Breaks over the gloom and darkness,
Like the light from a vessel's prow.

I can read it in mottoes blazoned
On the banners that lead the fray
Of the world, in its mad commotion,
As it writhes and threatens today,
Like a hurt and unbossed lion,
Kept long by the dogs at bay!

I think that the hearts of the fathers
He will turn to the children quite;
And hatred, and deadly rancor,
Clean out of all hearts will smite;
and scatter all sin before him,
As morning disperses the night.

I think if you pause and listen,
You, too, the voices may hear
That tell in a cadence of sweetness,
How very, how very near
Draws his presence of loving splendor,
And how soon he must appear.

I think I can hear the marching
Of a million angelic feet;
'Tis the roar and van of an army
That shall never know defeat,
Who march with the Lord in his warfare
In garments most white and sweet.

My soul, be still from your murmurs!
Let all but his praise be dumb;
And unto the homeless and weary,
Like the Spirit and Bride, say "Come.
You shall find in his arms a refuge—
Of life its glory and sum!"

The Bible and its Message. Number 13.

In our article on "What Is Truth?" we promised to continue the subject, showing what is meant by the phrase, "the gospel of the kingdom of God." The Bible is the only guide in settling this question. "To the law and to the testimony; if they speak not according to these it is because there is no light in them." Isa vii 20. The word gospel is the base of this phrase and means good news or glad tidings. The word is modified by the two phrases "of the kingdom of God."

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JULY 28, 1909. NUMBER 28.

Good news must always bear a message that produces joy and gladness. When the Lord began to deliver this message we find that the kingdom that God had was on the earth, and that it was ruled over by David and was called the kingdom of Israel. The name was called the kingdom of the Lord.

In 1 Chron xxix 23, we read that Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as king instead of David his father, and prospered, and all Israel obeyed him. We find that this kingdom continued until the days of Zedekiah that wicked prince when it was overturned. Ezek xxi 27. I will overturn, overturn, overturn it (the kingdom); and it shall be no more until he comes whose right (to reign) it is and I will give it him. This was the condition of this kingdom when Jesus began to preach the gospel. Therefore the good news concerning this kingdom was and is, that it will again be restored and placed in the hands of Jesus and the immortalized saints. This is proved by many plain Scriptures. We find that Jehovah made a covenant with David concerning his kingdom.

We find in 2 Sam vii 12 that God through Nathan, the prophet, promised David that he would set up his seed after him, and establish his throne forever. The seed here spoken of must mean Jesus the Christ, as he was to receive the kingdom after David had fallen asleep. It cannot refer to Solomon as he ruled over Israel before David's death. See 1 Chron xxviii 5; xxix 23. Again this seed was promised the sure mercies of David. Isa lv 3. I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David. Paul in Acts xiii 34 applies this text to Christ. This should forever settle this question. However we will give the testimony of the angel to Mary, the mother of Jesus. It is recorded that she would bear a son and call his name Jesus, and the Lord Jehovah would give unto him (Jesus) the throne of his father David, and he should rule over the house of Jacob forever, and unto his kingdom there should be no end. In Isa ix 6, 7, the same truth is expressed in the following language, Unto us a child is born and a son is given; the government shall be upon his shoulders; his name shall be called Wonderful Counsellor, The Mighty God, The everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David and upon his kingdom to order it and establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even forever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this.

With these testimonies before us we must conclude that the kingdom that Jehovah has promised his Son is yet future. We wish to call our reader's attention to the truth that God is now taking out of the nations a people for his name. Simeon hath declared how that God is taking or choosing those whom he will make kings and priests in that kingdom. The gospel is preached and men and women are required to believe it and obey it. This is the "how" or manner in which Jehovah is calling men and women to become his adopted sons and daughters. When the Samaritans believe the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ they were baptized both men and women. Jesus sent his apostles out to preach the gospel to every creature, and he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, but that believeth not shall be condemned. Every instance where the gospel was preached and believed we find that immersion followed. We are often asked, "Will this kingdom be a real literal kingdom"? From Scriptural testimony we can think of no other kind. Was not the kingdom that was overturned a real literal kingdom? It certainly was. If God's promise is fulfilled the kingdom promised to the saints must be literal, or else he could not again establish it.

After his resurrection Luke states that Jesus remained with his apostles forty days speaking of things concerning the kingdom of God. Just before he was taken away the apostles asked him if he would at that time restore again the kingdom to Israel. The Israelitish kingdom was the one that had been overturned, and according to the promise it could only be restored. Those who look for a kingdom beyond the skies will look in vain. That is another gospel and carries with it a curse. Gal i 6, 7. Daniel in his interpretation of the old king's vision speaks of five kingdoms. The Babylonian, Medo-Persian, Macedo-Grecian, Roman and the kingdom of God. Both profane and sacred history proves that the first four named were real and literal kingdoms. In the days of these kings the God of heaven will set up a kingdom. It shall not pass to other people as did the four preceding, but it will last forever. The fact that the four were literal is a proof that the fifth must be the same. If we spiritualize language of the prophet concerning this kingdom we destroy it. There are five elements that are required to make up a kingdom. The kingdom of God must contain these elements, viz., a king, associate rulers, territory, subjects and laws. We have proven that Jesus will be that king. Those chosen out of the nations now, the associate rulers. The earth will be the territory. Matt v 5; Isa xiv 18; 2 Pet iii 13, and many other texts. The nations will be the subjects. Psa ii 8; Matt xxv 31 to 34; Rev ii 26, 27. The laws will go forth from Zion and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem. The result of this law will be to judge among the nations and rebuke many people. Teaching them to beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks. Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. Isa ii 2, 3, 4. This will be the fulfilment of Jehovah's promise, that as surely as he lives he will fill the earth with his glory. It is the earth and not heaven that Jehovah has promised to fill with his glory. The kingdom of God will be the instrument that Jehovah will use to accomplish this purpose. Only those whom God has accounted righteous as he did Abraham will assist in this great work. If you become the child of God and prove yourself worthy by living the Christ life you will receive immortality when Christ comes. No merely half way living will make you an overcomer. You must have your trials and overcome them. We are told by Daniel vii 27 that, the kingdom and the dominion and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom and all dominions shall serve and obey him.

These texts cannot be spiritualized without destroying them. David in his prayer in Psa lxxii speaks of this same blessing. He shall judge thy people with righteousness and thy poor with judgment. He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth. This means that that government will be administered in the interest of the poor. For it is written, He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of the Lord.

We will close by admonishing all who have taken the name of Christ to live an upright life, as Jehovah will only acknowledge such in that day when he makes up his treasures.

Your brother struggling for that prize,

D. C. ROBISON.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES, NUMBER 8.

There is always something new and fresh and cheering in the experience of the faithful child of God. I never tire of reading the biographies of Christian workers, nor do the seemingly small happenings of their daily lives grow monotonous to me, because, while I am reading I seem to be living their life, lifting up my voice in the same prayers, taking "home to my heart the same comforting words, and rejoicing in the same exultant strains, I learn to be more patient, noting their patience, and to "lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help," because I find them constantly leaning upon God.

Jan 1, 1869, Auntie Willard writing to my mother says, "A happy new year to you and yours in the Lord, for only in him have I learned that happiness can be found, and this I think you have learned equally with me. We are still holding on our way to the heavenly Canaan. Clark Gilbert and wife have been with us since last June, and may be here for a year to come from April next, having engaged to take the farm at that time. He has been baptized, and is giving himself to the Lord's service, much to our joy and that of his faithful wife. (This Bro. Clark Gilbert is the man who once kept a saloon in Warsaw, Ind., and whose wife would not live with him until he quit the business.)

Auntie Willard then speaks of having heard that my Sister Henriette S. Chaplin was married, and living near Columbus, Ohio, of how much my mother must miss her, and of her gladness, that myself and husband still remained with my parents in the dear old home, because some one had given her to understand that he filled the place of the faithful dead, referring to my brother Byron. "O," she goes on to say, "how I long to see Jesus come to open those graves near you, and loose the loved sleepers, and let them come forth to die no more."

Then she speaks of being in correspondence with Bro. Pike and his oldest daughter, Mrs. Narcissa Ashton, formerly of Oswego, Ind., but at that time, residents of Villajo, Solano Co., Cal. Bro. Pike was thinking of coming east if the Lord should so will, but I think he never came.

Auntie Willard's next letter is dated April 1, 1869, some of her journals are missing and I can only fill up the gap by the letters still in my possession—few as they are—those addressed to me having for the most part gone up in the flames.

My mother had been sick some three or four months previous to this time, but was recovering and had evidently been able to write, as Auntie Willard speaks of having "just received good, long, precious letters from each of us," she had learned of mother's severe and dangerous illness through "The Voice," and had taken it to the Lord in prayer, and had been comforted. My brother, Virgil M. Chaplin, was just then returning from a somewhat prolonged stay at Dr. Trall's Sanitarium at Florence Heights, N. J., and Auntie Willard speaks of having had a very pleasant visit with him, he having stopped there, and gone to Washington, D. C., in company with Bro. Willard and from thence to Richmond, Va., before coming home. She said, that "Virgil realized most keenly the desolation it would make in our home should mother be removed, and she hoped she would be spared, if it were the Lord's will, and she knew he would spare her if it were best for us all," and added, "It is safe to say, 'Not as I will, but as thou wilt.' What a comfort that we have 'the God of all comfort,' to decide for us under all circumstances, even down to old age. And what a comfort that he never calls in two directions at once; that we are as acceptable to him in one employment as in another, if that is the thing he has set us about. I had an experience like this while Bro. Hudson lay here sick so long, (from Jan 1st until May 26, 1867, when he died). A new family, with a large number of children, had moved near us, and I was so anxious to gather them in and have a Sunday School at our house, and also to go out and hold meetings with the colored people living near.

But one Lord's day as I was busy caring for our brother, and yet carrying this other burden, it came to me with power, "This is all the Lord requires of you now, leave the rest with him," and in a moment my burden was gone and I was at peace.

O how good it was, 'The God of peace,' loves to give just such peace to his burdened ones, and how it pleases him to have them appropriate it! If Jesus in person had been lying all winter at your house, Bro. Chaplin, and you had bent over him day and night and ministered to his wants, you would not feel when spring came, that your winter had been lost, because you could not be out preaching the gospel. Nay, verily. Now remember his words, 'Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me.' O how precious this is! Sister Chaplin, may also find comfort here."

Just at this juncture Auntie Willard was taken ill, and not until the 10th of April did she take up her pen again. She then said, "I was brought low and he helped me: Return unto thy rest, O my soul: for the Lord hath dealt bountifully with thee. For thou hast delivered my soul from death, mine eyes from tears and my feet from falling." (Psa cxvi: 6, 7, 8.) She had risen the morning after receiving our letters, had eaten a little gruel—not having felt well for a week—had attended worship and was assisting Sister Clark Gilbert about some light work when she was suddenly seized with cramp of the stomach, and was hurried upstairs by Sister Gilbert—and throwing herself on the bed, told Monte, to call her husband. But there was no need, for the heavy groan she gave startled both him and Brother Gilbert and brought them at once to her bedside. "With that groan," she says, "had fled for a few moments both life and pulse." She knew nothing until she felt a cold cloth being passed over her face, and heard the sound of a human voice, which she soon recognised as that of her husband in great agitation at the shock he had received on finding her in so piteous a condition and the joy he felt to see her again open her eyes on earth's scenes.

"Truly," she says, "I could say as I came too, The dead know not anything, if they are as dead as I have been! The rush upstairs, the entreaty of affection that I breathe again, fell upon my lifeless ear, as upon the bedstead on which I lay. What lumps of clay are we when respiration ceases! Yet we are made in the image of God, and when quickened into immortal life by the Spirit of God in the resurrection, shall be equal unto the angels to die no more."

Benevolence.

My mind was turned toward the subject of benevolence so much during the eight weeks of my stay in the Arizona Sanitarium at Phoenix, that I am disposed to write concerning it with the strength gained and to be used for the Master's cause.

We will often hear those of worldly minds say that the secret orders that have become so prevalent in the world practice more benevolence and display more charity than the churches, and we have had difficulty to meet the argument. But I can now meet it with confidence (by the experience of recent weeks.) I was a member of a secret benevolent organization in my early manhood, spent quite an amount to pay for initiation, and to keep up dues, of course much of this went towards keeping up the expense of the organization, and though I was a poor man I never reaped a dollar of benefit. During my stay at the sanitarium the expense for room, meals and treatment at $15 a week amounted to $120. This was met in full by members of the Church of God, and a surplus is left over to be used toward establishing their system of truth, and best of all it has eternal life in view. When the Church of God was first established benevolence stood so prominently in the minds of its members that the rich with the poor put their means in a common fund, "they had all things common." But covetousness got among them and wrought its evil in and to Ananias and his wife. The method of holding things in common was discontinued, but the work of benevolence was kept up in retaining the deacons that were appointed to see after the needs of the brotherhood, for the apostles had said, "It is not reason that we should leave the Word of God and serve tables." Acts vi 2. And it is because of the responsibility of the officers in a benevolent organization that Paul gave the instructions concerning the qualifications of the officials "not greedy, filthy lucre, not covetous." The church was designed for the most benevolent organization that was ever organized by man or God. If it has lost part of its work, its systematic work, it has also degenerated on other lines of truth, work and usefulness. While in this condition they are saying, "I am rich and increased with goods and have need of nothing," the words are hurled back from the Lord in heaven "and knowest not that thou art wretched, and poor, and blind, and naked." And the exhortation, "I counsel of thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich: and white raiment that thou mayest be clothed, and that the shame of thy nakedness do not appear; and anoint thine eyes with eyesalve, that thou mayest see. As many as I love I rebuke and chasten; be zealous therefore and repent." How will this matter stand in the great day if we spend thousands in erecting palaces for the priests of error, and leave the cause of the coming King to beg?

My reflections on benevolence have caused me to go to the richest mine of the universe, and dig up the following nuggets of gold.

I have showed you all things, how that so laboring ye ought to support the weak and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive." —Paul.

"Go too now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your misery that shall come upon you. Your riches are corrupted and your garments are moth-eaten. Your gold and silver is cankered and the rust of them shall witness against you, and shall eat your flesh as it were with fire, ye have heaped treasures together for the last days."

"What doth it profit my brethren, though a man may say he hath faith and hath not works? Can faith save him? If a brother or a sister be naked and destitute of daily food; and one of you say unto them, Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled; notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needful to the body: what doth it profit?—James.

"Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning."—James.

"Distributing to the necessity of the saints, given to hospitality.—Paul.

Just Three Things.

"I once met a thoughtful scholar," says Bishop Whipple, "who told me that for years he had read every book he could which assailed the religion of Jesus Christ, and he said he would have become an infidel, but for three things.

"First, I am a man. I am going somewhere. To-night I am a day nearer the grave than I was last night. I have read all such books can tell me. They shed not one solitary ray upon the darkness. They take away the only guide and leave me stone blind.

"Second, I had a mother. I saw her go down into the dark valley where I am going, and she leaned upon an unseen arm, as a child goes to sleep on the breast of its mother. I know that was not a dream.

"Third, I have three motherless daughters. They have no protector but myself. I would rather kill them than to leave them in this sinful world, if you blot out from it all the teachings of the gospel."

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

We trust all who know their time has expired, will realize how important it is that they renew promptly. To make out and mail statements to each is quite expensive, and most all already know when their time runs out, so that it is not really necessary. Please take note of this, friends.

Brother Joseph Williams called on us last Thursday on his way from Michigan, and reported having a very pleasant visit at Dutton and other points. He stopped in South Bend, and gave them two discourses. He left us for a visit with the Church at Roll over last Sunday. Most of the coming month will be taken in work at Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska Conferences, after which he will do regular work with a circuit of Churches in Indiana.

Correspondents should write articles in such a manner as to avoid personalities. If a few special cases it is not harmful to refer directly and by name to what a brother has written, but in very many cases it is decidedly so, and a very good rule is to be safe and avoid personalities entirely. In writing your article make it so distinct that it will stand alone. If your readers are not sharp enough to make the application, they are not worth much any way. Often an article well gotten up, is rejected because of its tone of censure toward a brother who may differ in a matter of "opinion" merely. Write your views, backed by Scripture, say nothing about your brother, and your article will be acceptable. Fill it with personalities and no matter how well written it is always questionable.

On July 27, was the Hebrew "Fast of Ab," and on that day all over the world orthodox Jews pray for the rebuilding of the Temple and the restoration of the Holy Land. This Fast was instituted to commemorate the destruction of the Temple and the final dispersion of the Hebrew race. On the 9th day of the Hebrew month Ab, in 586 B. C. N. nchadnezzar razed and burned the first temple built by Solomon in 990 B. C. After the return from captivity the temple was rebuilt under King Ezra, and strange as it may be, this second temple was destroyed by the Romans under Titus on the same day, the 9th of Ab, 70 A. D. During all the centuries since that time the Jews have been denied admittance to the to them sacred spot. The nearest they could approach to it was the outside wall where some of the old bevelled stones still remained, and has become known as the "Jews' Wailing Place," because many devout Hebrews assemble there and mourn for the departed glory of ancient Israel, and pray for their restoration to their former estate. By the new constitution granted by the Young Turks party which is now in power in Turkey, which now controls Palestine and Jerusalem, the Jews are privileged to enter the grounds where now stands the Mosque of Omar on the Temple site, and worship unmolested the God of Israel as pleases them. This Fast of Ab has been the saddest of all days for the Jews, with the exception of the day of Atonement, but with this new concession there will be a tinge of joy, for this year "there will be a note of rejoicing in the plaintive song of sorrow and lamentation sung by the Hebrews in the Holy Land." This may be taken as an indication of the breaking away of the dark clouds that have so long surrounded the Jews, and a sign that the time for the Lord to favor Zion is nearing. Let us watch and wait, ever praying for the peace of Jerusalem.

Sunday School Lesson.

Lesson for Sunday, Aug 8.

Paul's Instructions to the Thessalonians. 1 Thess. v. 12-24.

Golden Text. "See that none render evil for evil unto any man; but ever follow that which is good." 1 Thess. 5. 15.

The last lesson left Paul at Corinth. After a year and a half the Jews brought charges against him before Gallio, who on hearing the nature of the case, would have nothing to do with it, and put them out of the court room. Paul continued there for some time longer, then left for Syria, stopping at Ephesus where he went into the synagogue and reasoned with the Jews. The unusual happened here, they urged him to stay, he could not then, but promised—God willing—to come again. He sailed to Cesarea, saluted the church there, and passed on to Antioch in Syria. This ended his second missionary journey.

Lesson. We are again constrained to call attention to the serious mistake in the title of this lesson. Paul's instructions were not to the Thessalonians, but unto the Church of the Thessalonians which is in God the Father, and in the Lord Jesus Christ, and the letter is from Paul and Silvanus and Timotheus. 1 Thess. i. 1. That is very different from being—to the Thessalonians.

12. What was Paul to do?—He did not lord it over God's people, 1 Peter v. 3. He was an example to the church, exhorting and entreating by the love of God and Christ.

What does he mean by "to know them?"—The main thought is to acknowledge their value, and see that they are properly cared for. The man that labors in the Lord's vineyard—among the Lord's people, the church, and admonishes according to the gospel, fills the most important office on the earth. This should not "puff him up;" on the contrary he should—from the heart exhibit "the meekness and gentleness of Christ." 2 Cor. x. 1.

13, What are the brethren asked to do in this verse?—Two very important things,—First, to highly esteem the laborers, in love, for their work's sake,—not for their own sake,—not for any advantage of appearance, or talent: but because they teach "sound doctrine" and do it humbly in the name of the Lord. The second admonition is of equal importance, for unless the brethren are at peace among themselves, the most godly instruction, the most earnest exhortations, the most loving entreaties would be but useless effort and spent breath.

14, What is enjoined on the brethren in this verse?—The first is a very uncomfortable duty, often considered an impertinence. This warning is seldom quietly tolerated by the unruly. Why?—Because they are unruly, disorderly. The rest is a work of loving kindness, encouraging the timid, by sympathetic liberality assisting the feeble,—seeing that the faithful, weak in body, have common comforts. Be patient,—self restraining, a noble quality, that makes a man a manly man. Not only patient with those we love, or respect, or with kind neighbors, but with all.

15, It is one of the common pleasures of common people to "get even" with those who do them wrong. To pay them back in their own coin. Many who belong to "a church" will do that. Those who are disciples of Jesus, at heart, will not; for he said, "resist not evil," "do good to them that hate you." Matt. v. 39 and 44. "Ever follow that which is good." These instructions call for the best there is in man, and those who strive to follow them,—work them out in daily life, will be approved of God and Christ, will have a "good conscience towards God" will have self respect, and even what we call good neighbors will commend such.

16, Can this be done?—Yes, by those who have "turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God; and to wait for his Son from heaven." 1 Thess. i. 9, 10.

17, Does this mean all day and night?—Do not pray Sunday and neglect it Monday. A "spiritual mind" is a prayerful mind.

18, Does Paul really mean "everything"?—A sincere believer never fails to do that.

19, Does the Spirit always prompt—teach—to do right? If we do not do the right thing, when we know it to be right, and the will of God, do we not quench the Spirit?

20, Why not? Because "prophecy came not by the will of man, but by the will of God." 2 Peter i. 21.

21, How many try to do this? This requires searching the Scriptures daily.

22, This should be strictly observed by all who are more than babes in Christ.

23, This is the result of doing according to the foregoing instructions.

24, Is an assurance that God will do his part.

25, Brethren receive much mental joy in praying for others.

26, With a warm, loving greeting.

There are a number of instructions in this lesson that would require at least a short essay to properly explain. Short answers merely point the way. These instructions are for the Church of God.

Next Lesson. Paul's Third Missionary Journey, Acts xix. 8-20.

At Breaking of Bread.

I have chosen the 6th and 7th verses of 1 Peter v. for my lesson. They read, "Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time. Casting all your care upon him for he careth for you." "Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God." What is the meaning of humble? It means make yourself low or meek: and we see how we have to make ourselves so that God can exalt us; for if we were already exalted this would not have any meaning to us.

In Job xxii. 29, we find these comforting words, "When men are cast down, then thou shalt say, There is lifting up; and he shall save the humble person, or the margin says, Him that hath low eyes."

In Psalm ix. 12, it says, "When he maketh inquisition for blood, he remembereth them, he forgetteth not the cry of the humble or afflicted." Let us all humble ourselves unto God, for we know that he will exalt us in due time.

The other verse of my lesson says, "Casting all your care upon him, for he careth for you." In Psalms xxxvii 5, we find, "Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in him; and he shall bring it to pass. Just think how much he will do for us if we only trust him and leave things in his care. Heb. xiii. 5, says, "Let your conversation be without covetousness; and be content with such things as ye have; for he hath said: I will never leave thee nor forsake thee."

May we all put our trust in him is my prayer.

42 Months, Not 43 or 44.

In The Restitution of May 12th was published a short article by Bro. Clough, on "The Revelation of Jesus Christ."

I do not understand God's time, as revealed through the prophets and apostles, to be lunar—Hebrew time. Upon careful and long study of the cycles of time, or the divisions of times to be reckoned on lunar time—not in a single time-table of Holy Writ; and I find no instance where three and one-half times say 42 months; but I do find where three and one-half times are less than 43 months. God says they are 42 months, no more—no less.

Neither can I find where 1260 days are 1260 days. My Bible says differently. When Daniel heard the angel ask, "How long the end of the wonders," he also heard the other angel, upon the waters of the river answer that "it should be for a time, times and a half," three and one-half years—1260 days. Did the angel make a mistake, saying one thing and meaning another? Daniel did not ask for further information in regard to the time mentioned, but asks in verse 8 "O my Lord, what the end of these? or what about the end of these days—things. 9th verse closes the information—the 11th verse introduces a new line of time—whose beginning dates back three and one-half years, from the beginning of the time, times and a half time. In the 7th verse, these 1290 begin with the taking away of the daily sacrifice in the middle of the 70th week, and end 30 days after the 1260 days begin—reaching to the event of the anti-christ, setting up the image of the beast. Rev xiii 15; Hab ii 18, 19. Think you for a moment, that the angel of the Lord would make such a blunder that he would have to correct his mistake? The end of all events shown to Daniel was to take place at the time of the end, which according to undisputable testimony will be just 10 years and six months. Daniel had been shown the wonders that would occur during the time of the end, and was a listener to the question of one angel of another, "How long the end of these wonders?" There was to be an end, and this was 1260 days—three and one-half years—a time, times and a half time. (How readest thou?)

God's cycle of time, from Adam and Eve, the 1st to Adam and Eve, the 2nd is reckoned by neither lunar nor solar time, but by 360 days to the year and 30 days to the month, never deviating from this rule, which is given to all his prophets and apostles. The time stretching and time changing theories of men have got the Christian world into a sad muddle. Prof. Dimbleby of London has so confounded the chronology of the Bible with the science of astronomy that the beauty and harmony of God's order of time is lost to the earnest student of the Divine Word, if he becomes a follower of the said Dimbleby in his cutting off and stretching process to fit his science.

The prophet says, "By measure hath he measured the times, and by number hath he numbered the times, and he doth not move or stir them until the said measure be fulfilled." This same prophet was told to "measure the time diligently in itself, then shalt thou understand." How could he do this without the key of time. Did God furnish him with this key? Yes, he was told that the world was divided into twelve parts, and that ten and one-half of these parts were already gone, and that there remaineth the one and a half part." When did this prophet live? 461 years before the birth of Jesus. We find by measuring the time diligently that 505 years yet remained to fill the full measure of the whole time. One-twelfth of this measure of time was 336 years and 8 months, multiply this by 12, and we have 4010 years. The gospel age as a total blank in this measurement of time, or times. Ten years and six months of this 4010 years was cut off at the crucifixion of Christ, and the end, ushering in on time the second Adam and Eve to bless all the nations and families of the earth—4010 years from the beginning of the unfolding of God's wonders.

Rich Toward God.

So is he that layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God. Luke xii: 13, 21. Hath not God chosen the poor of this world rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he hath promised to them that love him? James ii: 5. Who is rich toward God? All those that love and obey him. For such God hath chosen, and whosever God hath chosen, will obtain the greatest riches that any mortal can obtain, it will be on everlasting life of happiness; and being made a brother of Christ. The wise man said, a good man said, a good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor than silver or gold. Then the one that gains a good name, is rich toward God. Paul in writing to the Thessalonians said. "We are bound to give thanks always to God for you brethren, beloved of the Lord, because, God hath from the beginning chosen you to salvation, through sanctification of the Spirit, and belief of the truth. So believing the truth is one way of being rich toward God. God hath chosen the poor of the world, rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom to those that love and obey him. Paul, in writing to Timothy, says, "Charge them that are rich in this world that they be not highminded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy; that they do good, that they be rich in good works, laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life, and this is the reward for being rich toward God. The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord. He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life; and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life.

Will you do God's will, become rich toward him, and gain the everlasting reward, eternal life.

Yours in Hope.

Plan New Home for Jewish People.

London, July 3.—Of course the Zionists at their convention in New York didn't take kindly to the plans of the Jewish Territorial organization as enunciated by its prophet-in-chief, Israel Zangwell, the novelist and playwright. But apparently Zangwill's faith is unshaken in his big plan for making the reputed Garden of Eden bloom again like the rose. Two difficulties only stand in the way—one being the slight chance that further investigation may not uphold the optimistic accounts of Mesopotamia as a land of colonization, the second being that negotiations now in progress between the "Ito"—as Zangwill has christened the organization—and the new Government of Turkey for the acquisition and redemption of the swamp land and desert that is ancient Assyria may come to nothing.

There is uncommonly good reason to believe that this land—the birthplace of Abraham, the Assyria which is described in Isaiah as "the work of my hands"—will receive the strongest of recommendations to the descendants of the prophet. Although at present this region through which flows the Euphrates, one of the four rivers mentioned in the Bible as watering the Garden of Eden, now lies a desert, the greatest authorities on the subject in the world are unanimous in the opinion that it veritably can be made to "blossom like the rose."

Nor will this be more than a return to its ancient condition, all writers from Herodotus down having described Mesopotamia as the most fertile and fruitful country on earth. Like its great neighbor, Egypt, the country fell into decay for lack of irrigation, and, like the land of the Pharaohs, by irrigation it is to be redeemed. If anything, in fact, the prospects for its reclamation are brighter than were those of Egypt.

For information regarding these prospects Zangwill turned to th writing of two great authorities, the renowned Orientalist, Dr. Paul Haupt of Baltimore, and Sir William Willcocks, the engineer who irrigated Egypt. It proved to be the opinion of both of these that a region in Mesopotamia the size of Palestine could be irrigated and turned again into a granary to support a population of millions. Even the country around it was said to be thinly populated, so there was apparently room for indefinite extension of the Jewish area with the growth of population.

The original scheme for the reclamation of this country and the founding of a Jewish colony there was formulated some two years ago by Israel Zangwill and Sir Andrew Wingate, who has had an extensive experience in irrigation in the Punjab. This scheme provided for both railways and irrigation works, with Jewish laborers employed on both. The cost of the irrigation works, in this initial scheme was $40,000,000 and the value of the land after reclamation was estimated at $150,000,000. Financial support being forthcoming it was believed that there would be comparatively little difficulty in obtaining the necessary charter from the late Turkish Government.

In thus laying their plans, however, the leaders reckoned without a certain even shrewder financier than the Jewish bankers upon whom they reckoned for aid. This was the then Sultan Abdul Hamid. He also had been dipping into the works of Sir William Willcocks. Mesopotamia, of course, is Turkish territory and, no little impressed by what he had read, the ex-Sultan sent for Sir William Willcocks who has traveled over Mesopotamia and made a report, even more favorable than his early ideas, and showing how "for an expenditure of $37,000,000 more than 8,000,000 acres in ancient Chaldea can be made available for settlement and to produce a revenue of nearly $5,000,000 a year."

Sir William Willcocks has entered into a five years' agreement with the Turkish Government, with a credit of $500,000 and already has begun work. Under the Turkish constitution, the scheme now has passed into the hands of the Minister of Public Works, in Constantinople, who has just presented Sir William's report to the Grand Vizer.

"The question, therefore, is," says Zangwill, "whether the Jewish people should not seize the opportunity of doing this particular piece of work, and by a contract with Turkey provide the capital, the labor and the population for the regeneration of Mesoptamia.

The Jewish leaders have entered into negotiations with the Turkish Government, but up to date no agreement has been arrived at. Nothing the "Ito" leaders declare, will satisfy them but a definite grant of territory.

In an uncommonly interesting paper, Sir Andrew Wingate, who was associated with Israel Zangwill in the formulation of the Mesopotamia scheme, examines with some detail the opportunities for Jewish colonization in the country of Nebuchadnezzar. After dwelling on the truly marvelous results achieved in Egypt, he quotes Sir William Willcocks on a point of contrast between that land and Mesopotamia. The Nile is in flood from August to October, so that for thousands of years its annual inundation has more or less permitted cultivation to continue, despite revolution and neglect. Whereas the Euphrates and Tigris are in flood from March to May and from June to August there is no rain. Hence Mesopotamia became a desert as soon as the weirs and canals were destroyed or fell in disrepair. But the land and water are still there and it only needs to bring them together by the construction of dams and canals to restore the ancient fertility and prosperity.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Obituary.

Elizabeth J., wife of the late Thomas S. Lewis, died at her home in Warren Township, Huntington Co., Ind., July 13, 1909, aged 84 years, 9 months and 20 days. The deceased was a daughter of Charles W. and Amelia Summers, and was born in Bath Co., Kentucky, Sept. 23rd, 1824. When eleven years of age she removed with her parents to Rush Co., Ind., where, Jan 12th, 1843, she was united in marriage to Thomas S. Lewis. To this union eight children were born, three of whom are dead, viz., Sanford W., Laura B. and Elden D. The surviving children are Cordelia A. Brookover of Warren Tp., Caroline M. Wince of Whitley Co., William R. of Warren Tp., Huntington., Nancy M. Colvin of Montana and Frederic G. Lewis of Mishawaka, Ind. Another pioneer is gone. Under the preaching of the gospel by the Hulls, father and son, the deceased with her husband believed and obeyed the truth and along with several others were organized into what has since been known as the Church of God at Clayville, or Bracken. The preaching at this point by the Hulls was done in 1853 and '54, and the organization of the church followed immediately. Funeral on the 16th conducted by the writer.

Illinois Bible School.

The Illinois Bible School for the year 1909 will convene in Oregon on Monday morning, August 9th, to last until the 18th, at which time the Illinois State Conference will convene to last over the following Sunday. Please write that you are coming. Those who are obliged to pass through Chicago will find two trains leaving Chicago over the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, leaving Union Depot each day that are through trains, making only two stops between Chicago and Oregon. One of them leaves Chicago at 9:20 in the morning and the other at 6:30 in the evening. There are other trains but these are the best.

The work of the school is being carefully prepared, and your time will be pleasantly and profitably spent. Bring Bible, pencil and note book. Plan to arrive in Oregon on Saturday before the school opens. Board and lodging are free. Write me the addresses of any persons who may be induced to attend. A good program for evenings of the first week is in preparation. Brother Marsh will assist in the work this year. His work will probably be on the book of Daniel, while the other part will consist of New Testament work, the nature of which will largely depend upon the personel of the school.

We need not advertize the scenic surroundings of Oregon to those who have been here. Come and spend two weeks at the school and conference, and be convinced. Please write me whether you come or not.

S. J. Lindsay,
Oregon, Illinois.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

The copy for this department of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 10827 Orville Ave. Cleveland, Ohio. Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

Three Days and Nights.

I fully sympathize with any and all Bible students who stumble on the tradition that Jesus was only in the heart of the earth less than three days of twelve hours and less than two nights of the same length. It makes the prophet like unto Moses to be a false prophet, and that is to me terribly unsatisfactory. It is but one of the libels on the truth, stupidly or otherwise invented against it by "the mouth speaking very great things," who annually celebrate Good Friday in their superstitious worship. Now the fact is that according to the New Testament record correctly rendered, Jesus was crucified Thursday and buried Thursday, and not on Friday. John xix 31 says, "The Jews therefore, because it was the preparation, that the bodies should not remain on the cross on the Sabbath day, (for that Sabbath day was an high day), besought Pilate that their legs might be broken and that they might be taken away." Now the high Sabbath day the remnant was not the regular weekly Sabbath, but the yearly Passover Sabbath, coming that year the day before the weekly Sabbath. Concerning it read Ex xii 16; Lev xxiii 4-8; Num xxviii 16, etc. It began at six o'clock Thursday evening, the 14th of the month Abib. At the same hour on Friday began the weekly Sabbath, and at the same hour on Saturday ended the weekly Sabbath. As you well say, Jesus is still in the grave and remains there all night, which is his third full night in the heart of the earth.

Five times these dual Sabbaths are mentioned in the Greek, viz, Matt xxviii 1; Mark xvi 2; Luke xxiv 1, and John xx 1 and 19. The word used is "ton Sabbaton" (Sabbaths), the genitive plural. Where the King James and revised versions read, "in the end of the Sabbath;" and "on the first day of the week," the Greek reads, "After the Sabbaths"—opse ton Sabbaton. That Matt xxviii 1, should read, "Now after the Sabbaths, as it began to dawn toward the first day after the Sabbaths, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary, to see the sepulchre."

Thus is Jesus completely relieved of the stigma of being a false prophet and the Word of God remains unbroken.

G. A. WHITFORD.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

The above article is written as a criticism of our article on the same subject which appeared in THE RESTITUTION of June the 16th. Our argument was designed to show that the three days and nights of Christ's entombment was a general statement; and in THE RESTITUTION of July the 14th we further showed in an article under the caption, "Bible years and days", that instead of such an interpretation of Christ's words making him out a "false prophet", as our correspondent avers in the communication now before us, it only follows Bible usage and inspired example. We may splutter about the Greek and talk learnedly about "ton sabbaton" (genitive plural), but pedantry does not shake facts. The controversy is as to whether three days and three nights mean so many minutes and seconds—and we deny that any living man can prove by Greek, English, or the Bible, that full time is meant by the words under consideration. Mr. Whitford says that unless full time is meant the prophet like unto Moses is a "false prophet," that the claim is a "libel on the truth, stupidly or otherwise invented", and lends support to "superstitious worship," etc. Had as he makes out our contention, flabbergasting as his remarks are, written in the spirit of a fratricide, yet the moment a practical test touches his pompous letter, his "ton sabbaton" fall on the mat. His best effort results in this conclusion: "According to the New Testament record correctly rendered, Jesus was crucified on Thursday and buried Thursday, and not on Friday!" Suppose the force of this innuendo should convince the judgment. Mr. Whitford, will you solve a little problem in mathematics for us? Can you get three days and nights full time from Christ's burial on Thursday till his resurrection on Sunday? Thursday night, Friday night, Saturday night—there are the three nights, you say. Good, count on. Friday, one day; Saturday, the second day; Sunday—but wait a moment, please. Christ was raised from the dead early Sunday morning, and so your claim backed up with "ton sabbaton", only allows Christ to remain in the tomb two days!! After all, Mr. Whitford is as flagitious as we are! His claim, like ours, is short of full time. And if this makes Christ a "false prophet" in our case, it is a "libel on the truth, stupidly or other wise invented" in his! People who live in glass houses must learn not to throw stones.

Gold Dust.

There is no surer sign of a noble character than the spirit of forgiveness. "To err is human; to forgive, divine."

It is well to preach Christ in our words, but far better to preach Him in our example, and by all the influences that flow out of a character formed upon the model of His divine manhood.

Do to-day's duty, fight to-day's temptations. Do not weaken and distract yourself looking forward to things you cannot see, and could not understand if you saw.

Do not keep the alabaster boxes of your love and tenderness sealed up until your friends are dead. Fill their lives with sweetness. Speak approving, cheering words while their ears can hear them and while their hearts can be thrilled by them.—Talmage.

The truly good and useful arouse the helpful interest of others.

Sketches of Church History. No. 15.

Leaving these reformers we turn to Thomas Coke, the first Methodist Bishop of America, and find him preaching and writing to warn that sinful generation in a strain like this. "Near at the door is the great day of judgment. The period of time which yet remains we know is short, how short, who can tell? We ought to be in constant and hourly expectation of it. At the coming of Christ to avenge and deliver his faithful people, chronological calculation and the general appearance of the world, all conspire to tell us that the events of the latter days are even come upon us, and that the time of God's controversy with the earth is at hand. It is already on the wing. If these things are insufficient to alarm the guilty, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead."

Brother Huggins:

I send you a brief article for your page. I have been very busy since my last sent you. I wish we might have more of the "Gems," as I think this plan helps your page and makes THE RESTITUTION more interesting. If you think this article too radical, please return and I will send postage.

The Second Death.

The fact that God has made revelations concerning the second death proves it is a subject for our study, for if God had not desired us to know something about it all allusion to such a possibility would doubtless have been left out of the Book.

The second death! Is it not remarkable—even a very significant fact that these words only occur in the latest Scriptures—the Book of Revelations. They occur in four places, which I will quote:

Rev. ii. 11. "He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death.

Rev. xx. 6. "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection; on such the second death hath no power."

Rev. xx. 14. "And death and hell (Margin, the grave) were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death."

Rev. xxi. 8. "But the fearful, the unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, etc., shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone; which is the second death."

There is no room for argument as to the time or epoch of the second death.

In the first place, those who have part in the first resurrection are not to be hurt by it—on them it "hath no power." Now as the Age to come is ushered in by the first resurrection, and as they who are subjects of it are declared to be exempt from the second death, it is seen that it can take place only during that Age of judgment yet future when the dead not included in the first resurrection are said to to be judged.

As to what the second death is: All texts bearing upon the subject show that it is the result of judgment—the execution of the righteous sentence upon the incorrigible sinners, never coming about as death does now—possible at all times to all, both "just and unjust."

The language is almost too plain and dogmatic to permit of any spiritualizing and I can not bring my mind to conceive that it is metaphorically used. I could just as easily conceive that the resurrection itself was only a figure of speech as that the fiery destruction of the abominable, the murderers, and the fearful and unbelieving who are classed with them, was not literally what the Revelator describes it—a real fire which will consume and destroy.

Does any one doubt the truth of the destruction of Sodom by fire rained down upon it, Gen. xiii. 2 Peter ii. 6 Peter ii. 6. Peter says God turned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrha into ashes condemning with an overthrow, making them an example unto those that should after live ungodly. And 9th verse, "The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished."

Peter then goes on to specify the deeds of such and we see such a similarity of terms as leaves no room for any other conclusion than that he and the Revelator are in perfect accord, and even talking of the same things.

CHAR. GOSS.

Do the Saints go to Heaven When They Die?

What a question! Does any one doubt the doctrine?

Yes: thousands doubt it; and their number is increasing every day.

But have they any good reasons for doubting it?

Yes: many good reasons, a few of which are given below.

1. It subverts the doctrine of a future resurrection.

Paul makes the resurrection indispensable to a future life. Without it they who are "fallen asleep in Christ are perished." 1 Cor. xv: 18. How perished if in heaven? He adds, "If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable" (verse 19). Such argument is void if we can have a future life without a resurrection. Hear Paul again: "If after the manner of men I have fought with beasts at Ephesus, what advantageth it to me if the dead rise not?" (verse 32). The force of this argument is destroyed if saints go to heaven when they die. Certainly that would be advantage enough without any resurrection. The apostles gave great stress to the doctrine of a future resurrection; but multitudes in our day feel little or no interest in the doctrine; and some have lost sight of it altogether. No wonder! If the saints can live in glory without a resurrection what need is there of one?

2. It ignores a future day of judgment.

If men go to heaven and hell at death, a future day of judgment would be a solemn farce. If men are consigned to their eternal destinies at death, then decision has been made, and is already being carried into execution. And this nullifies any future judgment. No tribunal ever institutes a second trial, unless there is some question as to the justness of the first. God will never begin to execute a doubtful decision. When God decides he decides right. Neither will he execute a decision before it is rendered. When will it be rendered? Ans. He shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom." 2 Tim. iv: 2. John the Revelator places "the time of the dead, that they should be judged," under the sounding of the seventh trumpet. Rev xi: 15 18. The dead are raised before they are judged. Rev xx: 12.

3. It gives the prophets and saints their reward before their time.

Rev xi: 18 reads: "The nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou (God) shouldst give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great;" and this is placed under the seventh trumpet by John (verse 15). What right have we to outrage God's revealed plan by teaching that the saints get their reward "before the time."—1 Cor iv: 5. "Thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just." Luke xiv: 14. "The Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father, with his angels, and then he shall reward every man according to his works." Matt xvi: 27.

4. It takes the saints to their reward instead of Christ's bringing their reward to them.

"Behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be." Rev xxii: 12.

5. It makes the place of reward in heaven, while the Scriptures make it on earth.

"Behold the righteous shall be recompensed in the earth."—Prov xi: 31. Read Psa xxxvii: 9-11, 22, 27; Matt v: 5; Rev v: 10; xi: 15.

6. It contradicts the Bible doctrine that the dead are unconscious.

"The dead know not anything." Eccl ix: 5. "Their love and their hatred and their envy is now perished (verse 6) "In that very day his thoughts perish.—Psa cxlvi: 3, 4. "In death there is no remembrance of thee."—Psa vi: 5.

7. It contradicts the Bible doctrine that the dead are asleep.

"David fell on sleep."—Acts xiii: 36. "Some are fallen asleep."—1 Cor xv: 6. "Fallen asleep in Christ."—1 Cor xv: 18. "The first fruits of them that slept."—1 Cor xv: 20. "Concerning them that are asleep."—1 Thess iv: 13. "Our friend Lazarus sleepeth." John xi: 11. "I go that I may awake him out of his sleep."—Ibid. "Many that sleep in the dust."—Dan xii: 2. "And when he had said this he fell asleep."—Acts vii: 60.

This sleep is broken by the resurrection. "I go that I may awake him out of his sleep." Jno xi 11. "Awake and sing ye that dwell in dust." Isa xxvi 19. "I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness." Psa xvii 15. "Many of the bodies of the saints that slept arose," etc., etc. The Bible is full of the sleep of the dead.

8. It makes Christ's coming to receive his people utterly needless. Christ makes it needful.

"If I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am there ye may be also." John xiv 3.

9. It makes death a friend and the "gate to glory."

Paul calls death an "enemy." 1 Cor xv 26. Hezekiah calls it "the gate to the grave." Isa xxxviii 10. God calls the realm of death "The land of the enemy." Jer xxxi 16. God is going to "swallow up death in victory." Isa xxv 8. And this will be brought to pass at the resurrection. 1 Cor xv 54. If death is indeed a friend, why do men so vigorously resent it?

10. It is positively denied by Christ and his apostles.

Jesus says: "Where I go, thither ye cannot come" John vii 34; xiii 33, 36. Yet some teach that they got there nearly as quick as he did, and that the thief got there just as quick; and that some even got there before he did. John writes: "No man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of Man which is in heaven." John iii 13. This is spoken to negate some one's doctrine. Whose is it? Not even Enoch and Elijah have gone to that heaven where God dwells. Jesus is the only man who has ever gone there, and he is more than man. He now dwells in "light which no man can approach unto." 1 Tim vi 16.

11. It contradicts the Word of God as to where men really go at death.

God told Adam where he should go when he died—"Dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return." Gen iii 9. Webster says that "thou" "is the pronoun used in addressing persons." "His breath goeth forth, he returneth unto his earth." Psa cxlvi 3, 4. "Man lieth down." Job xiv 12. "Thou takest away their breath, they die and return to their dust." Psa civ 29. "All go unto one place; all are of the dust and all turn to dust again." Eccl iii 20. "There is no work, nor device, nor wisdom, in the grave whither thou goest." Eccl ix 10.

If you will read the Scriptures carefully you will discover that the words which denote the personality are always applied to the physical man, never to the breath or spirit of life. Hence we must conclude that the physical man is the real man, and that spirit of life from God, is that which causes him to live.

12. It sanctions Satan's falsehood by teaching that man does not surely die.

"Man, thou shalt never die." R. H. Dana. "Thou shalt not surely die." —Satan. Gen ii 4.—G. M. Keach

The Remission of Sins.

What is the Scripture import of the words "the remission of sins?" The one word demanding special attention is the word "remission." The word aphesis, translated "remission" occurs seventeen times in the Greek New Testament; nine times it is translated "remission," six times "forgiveness," one time "deliverance" and one time "liberty." Luke iv 18.

The word aphesis, translated "remission," comes from the verb aphiemi, which is compounded of the preposition apo, and the verb hiemi, to send, and means to send away, dismiss." The verb aphiemi, from which aphesis is derived, is found 145 times in the Greek New Testament, and more than forty times it is translated "forgive" or "forgiven," having reference to the forgiveness of sins. So then, the radical or root idea in the word aphesis, "remission," i. e., to send away, dismiss. Hence, "remission of sins," or "forgiveness of sins," has in it the idea of sending away sin, or dismissing sin.

Lexicographers of New Testament Greek define aphesis thus: "1. Dismission, deliverance, liberty, as of captives. 2. Remission, forgiveness of sins."—Parkhurst. "A letting go, a freeing; example: (1) Of persons from bondage or service, liberty. (2) From the guilt and consequences of sin, remission, forgiveness, pardon". —Robinson. "1. Release as from bondage, imprisonment, etc. 2. Forgiveness, pardon of sins (properly the letting them go, as if they had not been committed), remission of their penalty."—Thayer.

We Wondered.

When we read a new name of one in the faith, especially a minister of the gospel, we always begin to conjecture as to the color of their eyes and hair, their general avoirdupois, and last but not least their ability as a speaker.

When reading in THE RESTITUTION some years ago of Brother Joseph Williams, the name suggested a more than ordinary-sized man, with slow measured steps, grey eyes, a sandy mustache, and as to ability as a speaker, well, when it was arranged to have him come to Dutton to speak over Sunday, we concluded as he was one of "our folks" it would be all right any way, so set ourself to circulating word of the coming meeting, for we desired him not only to have a good impression of us, but we had learned from past experience that numbers give inspiration to a speaker. It all worked well, two good congregations greeted him, two good sermons were listened to, and we are wondering no more about the fair-haired, blue eyes, smooth-faced, almost boyish in stature, Brother Williams. We had hoped to engage him for a month or so to work in Michigan, but he had already engaged his time to Indiana, and we are compelled to begin another search for help for Michigan.

May God bless the efforts of our Brother Williams with health and success, is our wish.

Nebraska Evangelist Report.

Our meeting closed at Marshalltown Iowa, with the two first days of May, with a good interest, but owing to the lateness of the season and rush of farmers, it was thought best to stop. From there we worked back over our former route to Marathon, where we had agreed to return and baptize three young people—Edgar, Lorene and Bernice Beardsley. This makes five we have baptized in this family since last August, the mother and a daughter taking the lead.

From Marathon we took the Milwaukee for home, arriving May 10th, having been gone 49 days, and held 50 meetings—44 sermons and 6 Bible readings. After taking a little needed rest, and meeting with the Church at Benson twice, and fixing up a little at home, we went to Kansas City the last day of May, the Board having heeded their earnest appeal for help.

During May I preached ten sermons and baptized three. My expenses were $4 05, and I received $5.00, leaving a balance of 95 cents. Wages amounts to $65.00 and deducting the 95 cents leaves due $64.05.

During June we held meetings in Kansas City, Kansas, Benson, Neb. and Corvallis, Oregon. In Kansas City the interest was fine, and had it not been for its being right in berry time the results would no doubt have been much more marked. As it was we can introduce Misses Edna and Louise Eberle to the Household of Faith, two excellent young ladies.

We are now at Corvallis, Oregon, and will report later.

During June I preached 23 sermons and baptized two. My expenses were $8.95, and I received $15.00, leaving a balance of $6.05. My wages come to $65.00, and deducting the $6.05 leaves $58.95 due.

Driving with Oil

I wanted to drive an iron bar right through a piece of timber. I bored a hole of the right size, but the bar was rusty, and the hole was rough. I made slow progress, and was beginning to split the wood. Then I remembered the oil can. I oiled the bar; I poured oil into the hole; a few blows of the hammer sent the bar into its place. The oil had not diminished the size of the bar, or enlarged that of the hole. It had only relieved the friction. It had smoothed both surfaces. A few drops of oil were more effective than many blows of the hammer.

How slow some good people are to learn this simple lesson. They take hold of an important enterprise with great zeal. They are intensely earnest, and even morbidly conscientious. Everybody ought to see it just as they do, and whoever does not is hammered at without mercy. Such uncharitable zeal provokes opposition. It excites all the friction of the natural heart. Men will not appreciate the truth presented when they are repelled by the spirit in which it is presented. Let the reformer be careful to have plenty of oil. Let him speak the truth in love.—Dr. Babb.

Cause of Unbelief.

We do not say that there are no honest doubters of Christian truth, or that there are no skeptics that are good men. But we do say that more religious skepticism arises from moral obliquity than from all causes. And if reputedly honest doubters will recall the period when they began to dissent from Christian truth, they will probably remember that it was not the time when they were most faithful to the light they had, or most obedient to their convictions to God and man. The unbelief which may be honest now, may not have been honest at its initial stages. It may have begun in some conscious sin, which gave a false bias to the mind; and though, in after years, the evil fruit, the unbelief still remains. No man, while he is loyal to the truth, while he is true to himself, true to his moral nature, true to the voice of God in his soul, can fall into any dangerous skepticism. The fact that such skepticism is usually found in association with positive vices, compares with the Scriptural genesis of it, to induce the belief that it is not or has not always been honest; that it began and grew in practical disloyalty to the truth, in conscious violation of known obligations.

Pointless Preaching.

There is a great deal of pointless preaching at the present time. After sitting under the ministry of the Word, a person is often led to inquire, "What is all this for? What is the preacher's object? What end has he in view?" so aimless and pointless is the discourse. It cannot be intended to convert sinners, for there is nothing in it to alarm their fears, arouse their guilty consciences, and led them to repentance. It cannot be the spiritual edification of believers, for there is nothing in it to quicken them into newness of spiritual life, to encourage them amid trial, or to stimulate them to greater Christian activity. It is a sort of abstract, ethical theorizing, with scarcely any reference to the soul. No wonder that a person sometimes longs to hear one of the old-time trumpet blasts, when some son of thunder reasoned of temperance, righteousness and judgment to come, and sinners, like Felix, trembled beneath the power of divine truth. A man seldom accomplishes more than he aims to effect. A minister who does not aim in the pulpit and out of it to save souls, will have a barren ministry, and many fruitless regrets at last.—Methodist Recorder.

The Sins of the Fathers.

Some of the omissions of the Bible are very significant. In illustration of this the story is told of a student in an Australian university who asked his professor: "Why did not the Bible say that the sins of the father were visited upon the children to the seventh and eighth generation as well as to the third and fourth?" "Because," replied the professor, "there will be no seventh or eighth generation. Sin extinguishes itself before it gets that far."

THE RESTITUTION is only $1.00 per year. Try it a year.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Announcement.

The Southern Illinois Conference will be held at the Restitution Church eight miles south of Casey, from Sep. 25 to Oct. 3 inclusive. Names of the preachers and programme will appear later.

B. J. WOODS, Sec.

The printed programs of the Iowa Conference, which is to be held at Waterloo, Iowa, August 21st to 29th, are now ready for distribution, and will be sent to any one on request. Address, G. P. Allard, Box 86, Fort Dodge, Iowa.

The Nebraska State Conference of the Church of God will be held in St. Paul, August 28 to September 5 inclusive. Programme will be published later.

ALTA KING.

The Conference of the Church of God in the State of Ohio will be held at Springfield, beginning on Wednesday evening, August 25, and continuing over the following Sunday. The brethren have secured the use of the Fair Grounds, and there is every indication of having perfect convenience and comfort. An earnest invitation is extended to all those of like precious faith.

A complete programme will appear in this paper as soon as it is made up.

STANLEY A. SANFORD, Sec.

The next Annual Conference of the Churches of God in the State of Illinois will be held at Oregon, beginning August 18, and continue over the following Sunday. The programme will appear later.

Let us begin now to plan for this meeting, and to be present with the purpose of doing all in our power for the work in Illinois in the year that is to come.

JAS. W. WILSON, Pres.
EMMA L. SMITH, Sec.

The next Missouri Conference of the Church of God will convene at Morse Mills, Mo. August 25 and continue over Sunday, August 28. Program and directions will appear later.

SADIE B. MORSE, Sec.

Dear Brethren in the One Faith:

The Missouri Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus will be held this year at Morse Mill, Mo., beginning the evening of August 25, and closing Sunday evening, August 29. We want every one, who possibly can to come and help us make this second annual Conference in Missouri a success, as was promised by the first one, last year.

All People coming by way of St. Louis, will take the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern Railroad to Victoria, where hacks will take them to Hillsboro. Here they will be met by the brethren. Those coming from the south, also take the St. L. I. M. & S. to Victoria. Everyone who is thinking of coming, write to Brother J. F. Williams, Hillsboro, Mo.

Provisions will be made to take care of every one, no matter how many, who come. There are a number of brethren in Missouri whom we hope will be present and help in the work, which is so necessary.

Anyone desiring more information, write to:—Sadie Morse, Sec'y, 311 E. Colton St., Warrensburg, Mo.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1 00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

THE MESSENGER

Is the name of a religious monthly magazine advocating the coming of the Kingdom of God, the return of the Lord Jesus, and the hope of Eternal Life. Published in Glasgow, Scotland. Subscriptions received by the American agent, William G. Rothe, 1301 Park Place, Brooklyn, N. Y. 1 copy 37 cts, 2 copies 69 cts, 3 copies 97 cts, 5 or more copies 25 cts each copy per year. Sample copy on application.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. DANIEL.

Notice.

Hindu Literature.

This book, of over 400 pages is of special value to the young people in order to enable them to meet the attacks upon Christianity from Theosophists and others. It has been fully endorsed by the most eminent Oriental scholars of Europe as being authentic, and the historic facts here presented are unimpeachable. A few copies of this standard $1 50 book may now be had for $1.00 a copy post paid. It is used in colleges and universities. Send all orders to Mrs. Elizabeth A Reed, 1311 Balmoral av, Chicago, Illinois.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 80 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

BROTHER John Foore of Parsons, Kansas, realizing that his preaching days are getting short, as he is nearly 76 years old, has issued a series of 10 tracts. They have cost him a considerable sum, and he offers to supply them to the brethren on most liberal terms. The average cost of these tracts is about 10 cents each, and he offers to send them at cost. Also he says that where people are too poor to pay for them he will send them to such free if they will send name and address. The subjects treated are as follows: The Great Divine Healer vs. last day healers, The stature of Christ The restitution, The kingdom of God, Law and testimony, The judgment, Is baptism essential to salvation, Life and death, Signs of the end, Through the second vail, Three days and three nights, Election and predestination. Let any one wishing these tracts send direct to John Foore, Parsons, Kan

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind, or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pins Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Address W. H. Wilson, 625 North Willow Ave, Austin Station, Chicago Illinois.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 366 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10643 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland. O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson. 420 N Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Scripture Searchers Assistant.

A very valuable help to all who are studying the Scriptures—a reprint of one of our beloved Brother Joblin's works. Treats of thirty different subjects, with about four hundred references. All should possess a copy for ready reference. Price by mail six cents, order from Mrs M Joblin, 10643 Ashbury ave, N E Cleveland Ohio

The Elements of the Kingdom of God, is the title of an eighteen page tract by Brother T J Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He sets forth that a kingdom cannot exist without a King, his cabinet officers, territory, a capital city, subjects, laws. Brother Daniel will send this little tract to you at 10 cents each, or $1.00 a dozen. Send direct to him for them.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily abstracted and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, asking for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

'Tis You.

The world is waiting for somebody,
Waiting and watching, to-day,
Somebody to lift up and strengthen,
Somebody to shield and stay.
Do you thoughtlessly question, "Who?"
'Tis you, my friend, 'tis you!

The world is waiting for somebody,
Somebody brave and strong,
With a helping hand and a generous heart,
With a gift of cheer or song.
Do you doubtfully question, "Who?"
'Tis you, my friend, 'tis you!

The world is waiting for somebody—
The sad world, bleak and cold—
Where unloved children are watching
For hope in the eyes of the old.
Do you wonderingly question, "Who?"
'Tis you, my friend, 'tis you!

The world is waiting for somebody,
And it has been, years on years;
Somebody to soften its sorrows,
Somebody to heal its tears.
Then doubtingly question no longer, "Who?"
For, oh, my friend, 'tis you.

The world is waiting for somebody
A deed of love to do;
Then up and hasten, everybody,
For everybody is you!
For everybody is you, my friend,
For everybody is you!

Pine Woods Bible Class.

Teacher. Our subject to-night is a happy one, the title is:

"THE GATE TO ENDLESS JOY."

I wish to ask, Is there more than one gateway to endless bliss?

Ella There is a way taught in the Bible, and a different way taught by man.

Q What is the Bible way?

A See Mark xvi 15, 16: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel (of the kingdom) to every creature, he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be condemned."

Q What is man's way?

A His way is largely hymn book theology. I will quote two verses, which express the sentiment of the majority of mankind.

Why do we mourn departed friends,
And shake at death's alarms?
'Tis but the voice that Jesus sends
To call us to his arms.

Why do we start and fear to die?
What dismal worms we mortals are!
Death is the gate to endless joy,
And yet we do not dare.

Teacher If "death is the gate to endless joy," in what light should we regard Adam, and his transgression?

Ind We should regard him as the greatest benefactor to the human race, the world has ever seen.

Q. Why so?

A See Rom v 12: "By one man (Adam) sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned." If there had been no sin, there could have been no death: and there being no death, as a consequence there could not have been any "gate to endless joy."

Q Well, then; if "death is the gate to endless joy," then sin must be a blessing to mankind, in place of a curse, is it not?

A Yes, sir: if death really is the "gate to endless joy." We read in Rom vi 23: "The wages of sin is death," and hymn book theology says of death,

'Tis but the voice that Jesus sends
To call us to his arms.

Q When this socalled "voice of Jesus," enters the home-circle to call some loved one to "his arms," that he may bear it to "endless joy," does the sound fill them with rapturous joy?

A Far from it. It falls upon their ears, as an harsh discordant note, and "They shake at death's alarms." This voice is regarded as an unwelcome foe by all mankind, whether good or bad, they fear it.

Q Well, then; is it a fact that those people who profess belief in the aforesaid hymn book theology, that they rebel at going to "endless joy," when summoned by this socalled "voice of Jesus"?

A Yes, sir; when they hear this unwelcome "voice," they send for the most skilled doctor that they know of and use the most approved remedies they can procure, if perchance they can defeat the "call" to "endless joy."

Q Do not such actions indicate a lack of appreciation, of their promised "endless joy?"

A It certainly does, when they resist the "call," with all their might when it comes.

Q Do those people who believe what the Bible says, as regards to the way of eternal joy, recognize death as the voice of Jesus calling them to his arms?

A By no means; they believe they can never be with Jesus, until death has no more power to hold them in its cold embrace. Death separates God's people from Jesus. They regard death as an enemy, in place of a friend. Death they regard as a calamity, which they resist with all their power when it threatens to enter the home circle. This would be inconsist, if it was the voice of Jesus calling them to his arms.

Q Do you remember a Bible example where a person was threatened with death, and desired God to save him from this enemy?

A Yes, sir; it was Epaphroditus, a companion of Paul's; he was sick "nigh unto death; but God had mercy on him," and restored him to health.

Q Would it not be a strange "mercy," for God to prevent death from ushering Epaphroditus immediately into "eternal joy?"

A It certainly would be. My mind calls up another case; the messenger of death got after Hezekiah, and he felt real bad about it; he turned his face over to the wall, and wept and prayed, and God heard his prayer, and added fifteen years to his life.

Q Would he have felt bad about it, if he believed death was the gate to eternal joy?

A No, sir; he would have been an inconsistent man if he had.

Teacher Of what use was the mission of Jesus in the world, if Adam opened up the way to "eternal joy"?

Ind It would be entirely useless, what more could we have than "eternal joy," and if the joy is eternal, then the life must also be eternal.

Q Could Jesus give us more than eternal life, and with joy added to it?

A No, sir; and if it is true, that we get all this through Adam, we do not need Jesus.

Q Did not Jesus say, I am come to give life unto the world?

A He did. He did not seem to be aware of the fact that Adam gave us that, when he brought death into the world; it being the "gate to eternal joy."

Q Well, then; does not the teaching that "Death is the gate to eternal joy," undermine the fundamental teaching of Christ?

A There can be no question about that. The teachings of Christ on the question of life and death, and that of popular theology, are as far apart, as anything can be.

Teacher Do not people say, that it makes no difference as to what we believe, if we are only honest in our convictions?

Bessie Yes, sir; I know they do

Q Well, is that correct?

A No, sir; it is not.

Q Why not?

A Well, I might illustrate the case, by a few examples; for instance, take the case of Paul, before his conversion. He thought he was doing God service when he was persecuting the Church of God. Now, if he was honest in his purpose, and convictions, it would make no difference. If he was honest, he was just as well off before he became a Christian, as after. When he was in the Jews' religion, he was on the popular wing, and was a popular man, but when he became a Christian, he became associated with a very unpopular people, who were everywhere spoken against, and persecuted. By the change, he became unpopular, and was terribly persecuted. If he was just as well off when he was honest in the Jews' religion, he might just as well have remained where he was, as he could then have continued a popular man, and would not have been persecuted.

Again, take the case of mothers on the banks of the Ganges, who throw their babes into the mouths of crocodiles, as an honest service of their god. Then they must be just as well off as the most enlightened Christian. What is the use of sending missionaries to disturb them? Cornelius was an honest man, doing the best he knew how to do, and living up to all the light he had. If he was all right, what was the use of sending Peter to him?

Q Did not the idea, that "death is the gate to endless joy," give rise to the thought, that the good enter heaven at death?

A It did.

Q Did not the thought of going to heaven at death, reach back to near the apostolic days?

A Yes, sir.

Q Please give an historic sample?

A I quote from Justin Martyr, A D 150. In his dialogue with Trypho, a Jew, he said: "If, therefore, you fall in with those who are called Christians, who confess not this truth, but dare blaspheme the God of Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in that they say there is no resurrection of the dead, but that immediately when they die, their souls are received up into heaven, avoid them, and esteem them not Christians."

Q What early translator of the Scripture, taught the same as Justin Martyr?

A William Tyndale, in answer to Sir Thomas Moore's dialogue (page 180), he says: "And ye, in putting them (souls) in heaven, hell, or purgatory, destroy the arguments wherewith Christ and Paul prove the resurrection. * * * And again, if the souls be in heaven, tell me why they be not in as good a case as the angels be? And then what cause is there of a resurrection?"

Q Did Christ say anything about whether they went to heaven, or not?

A Yes, sir; see John iii 13: "And no man hath ascended up to heaven."

Teacher I think we might continue this topic almost indefinitely, but we will close for tonight.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.
W. H. WILSON.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUGUST 4, 1909. NUMBER 29.

Exhortation.

These few lines were written to be read at the Northwest Conference, but not being present when called upon they were not read. But we were asked to send them to THE RESTITUTION.

Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God. For this cause the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not.

Beloved now are we the children of God. And it is not yet made manifest what we shall be, but we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is, and every man that has this hope in him, purifieth himself as he is pure.

What a blessed promise is left us. What a wonderful promise. The beloved disciple might well exclaim, Behold what manner of love is this that the Father hath bestowed upon us.

Now, if it seemed so wonderful to John who had followed Jesus from place to place for over three years, and listened to his teaching as he unfolded the plan of redemption to them, how much more wonderful ought it seem to us. Well, may we who have followed the Savior so far off say the same.

John felt that the believers were the sons of God then, but as much as he had been in the company of the Master, he was not prepared to say what we shall be, because it had not been made manifest, but this one thing he was sure of, that when Christ should appear we should be like him, for he had had the promise to that effect. Therefore he could say we know. Now in this day and age of the world, we who profess to be followers of Christ, our Savior, let us teach such things that we know as did John.

What do we know about the plan of redemption? Are we prepared to give an answer for the hope that we have? What do we know about the past, present and future? We know this, that when our Savior was born he was named Jesus, why that name? The angel said to Mary, Thou shalt call his name Jesus. What for? for he shall save his people from their sins, so we know that we must go to him if we would be saved. And that is one thing that would be safe to teach.

I believe all people who have common ability in some way or another are teachers. We know that there are many false teachers in the land. In 2 Tim iv 9 we have something like this, For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine, but after their own lust shall they heap to themselves teachers having itching ears. It almost seems that that time has come, for it seems that they are teaching for doctrines the commandments of men, therefore worshipping God in vain.

We know, because Jesus has said it, that many false prophets shall arise and deceive many, and because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold. But like John when he said "we know." We can say we know; for we have the Word of God for it. "But he that endureth to the end, the same shall be saved." Blessed assurance, one that we can depend upon, for it is the promise that the Savior gave to the faithful ones. Therefore if we teach or when we are in conversation with others let us be sure it is written in God's Book. How easy we can be mistaken if we are not conversant with the Scriptures, and say and try to prove things that we know nothing about.

How well I remember a conversation I had with a good brother in Michigan about forty years ago, before I came into the knowledge of the Truth. We were talking on the nature of man. In answer to something he said, I replied that the Bible said, The soul is immortal, and can never die, and I believed it too. He said, if I could find it in the Bible he would give me his farm. Well you know whether I found it or not. This much I will say, I hunted diligently a long time for it.

Now dear brothers and sisters, who are here today, may we be more Christ like, and grow in the favor of God day by day; for if we are not Christ-like now, we will not be like him when he shall appear in all his glory. Let us abstain from all appearance of evil, then when Christ who is our life shall appear, then shall ye appear with him in glory. Then shall we see him as he is; then shall we be like him.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, AUG 15.

PAUL'S THIRD MISSIONARY JOURNEY. ACTS XIX. 8-20.

Golden Text. "The name of the Lord Jesus was magnified." Acts xix. 17.

The church at Antioch in Syria was evidently a haven of rest for the weary toil-worn evangelists. Paul spent some time there at the close of his second missionary journey, and started on the third, going to Galatia and Phrygia, "strengthening all the disciples." Acts xviii. 23. "If thou put the brethren in remembrance of these things: thou shalt be a good minister of Jesus Christ." 1 Tim. iv. 6. Paul came to Ephesus, as he had promised, Acts xviii. 21. He found some converts of John the Baptist. He baptized them in the name of the Lord Jesus, Acts xix. 5. The Holy Spirit came upon them, and they became preachers. For three months Paul frequented the synagogue, and reasoned out of Moses and the prophets the things concerning the kingdom of God. Instead of converting this hardened—made worse—some of the unbelievers. They influenced the many and made such trouble Paul gave up going to the synagogue and went to the School of Tyrannus. He did this for about two years so that all in Asia heard the Word of the Lord. And the Lord worked with him confirming the Word with signs following, Mark xvi. 20. Read Acts xix. The signs wrought in Ephesus were "special miracles." Articles taken from Paul to sick people cured them. Some religious impostors,—of which there were, in Ohio, lately, a gathering of about two hundred,—undertook to imitate or rival Paul, but failed and were glad to escape with their lives. This became known to all the Jews and Gentiles in Ephesus, filling them with profound reverence for the power of God, and respect for the name of the Lord Jesus. The result was that many believed and confessed their sins, as those did that came to John the Baptist. Matt. iii. 6. Many magicians also were so terrified that they brought out their books and burned them. So the Word of God, like the name of the Lord Jesus was greatly magnified, and accomplished the work for which it was sent. Isa. lv. 11.

Some changes have taken place since Paul preached in the synagogue at Ephesus. The open synagogue has long since disappeared. There is no real public speaking place, temple, hall, or meeting house. The evangelist preaching the glad tidings of the kingdom, is now shut out from all so-called, places of worship. The professed servants of Christ are careful to see that the true servant does not get an opportunity to proclaim the truth to salvation in "his church."

There is not much change in the effect that the Word of God has now from then. Many at the present time hear the gospel, a few who have a good and honest heart, having heard the Word, keep it, and bring forth fruit with patience, Luke viii. 15, but the many believe not, being satisfied with the "traditions of men." These worship in vain, Mark vii. 6-13. Lack of what the world's church calls success does not materially discourage the true evangelist. He knows that opposition awaits him at every point; but he also knows that the Lord will not forsake nor forget the faithful servant who is diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord, Rom. xii. 11, and he is also a rewarder of those that diligently seek him, Heb. xi. 6

Lesson Verses. 8. Where did Paul go? What did he do there?—No one, no believer, need go into a place where the traditions of men are taught, with the idea of hearing the "Word of salvation," Acts xiii. 26. Paul did not go into the synagogue to hear, but to teach the way of salvation.

9. What was the effect of his preaching? What did he do with those who did believe?—He took them from the synagogue and established the Church of God, "The saints which are at Ephesus, the faithful in Christ Jesus," Eph. i. 1, "come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord," 2 Cor. vi. 14-18.

10. How long did he stay with the church? How many heard the Word of the Lord?

11. What took place by Paul?

12. What was the special miracles, or the result?

13. What is an exorcist? What did they try to do?

14. How many were there? Who were they?

15. What did the evil spirit say?

16. What took place?

17. Who knew about the wonderful thing? What was the effect?

18. What followed?

19. Anything further?

20. How did the Word grow?—By many believing it, and being immersed and living according to it, and teaching it. Those who have the "marvelous light" 1 Peter ii. 9, are commanded of Jesus to let their light shine before men, that others may see their good works and glorify God. Matt. v. 16.

Minutes of N. W. Conference.

The Meeting of the Northwest Conference convened Friday, 2:30, June 25. After a song service Bro. Prosser gave a short exhortation. Brother Adams (who came on from the east to attend the Conference) preached in the evening. Saturday morning the business meeting was called. Bro. Frank Smalley our vice president, in the chair, the president being absent at the time. The minutes of the last meeting were called for and read by the secretary, and were accepted. By this time Bro. Montgomery, the president, arrived and took the chair. W. A. Prosser read the new by-laws. They were accepted by the Conference one by one, with a little change with one or two. After this came the election of officers for the ensuing year, which reads as follows: President, Lewis Montgomery of Portland; Vice Frank Smalley of Eden, Wash.; Secretary R. H. Brooks of Scholls, Ore.; Treasurer E. W. Knapp of Scholls, Ore.

Report of the different churches was next in order. All were keeping up the Sunday schools and some of them social meetings, but not much preaching.

A motion was made and carried that Brother Darby and Sister Palmer be authorized to draft resolutions of condolence for the bereaved of the last year in the church.

A motion to adjourn was made and carried.

At 2:30 business meeting was again called. Bro. Adams gave us a good talk on finance, after a song service and a prayer by Bro. Prosser. After Bro. Adams got through talking he called for the secretary to come forward to keep the account and then he called for subscription to carry on the work. $300.00 was raised in a short time. A committee in each church was appointed to look after the finance.

A motion was made and carried for the Church to give a letter of commendation to Brothers Prosser, Darby and Skeels. After a few minor business transactions were through with a motion was made to adjourn. At 8 P. M. Bro. Adams preached, subject, The Resurrection.

Sunday morning after a song service W. A. Prosser preached. At 2:30 another song service and the Lord's Supper. All through the exercises papers were read by different members of the Conference. Sunday evening preaching by Bro. Adams.

The Conference closed with good feeling all around. All felt it was good to be there. All felt glad to clasp hands with Bro. Adams who came so far to be with us.

And now brethren another Conference year has ended, a new one just begun. may we improve it to the best of our ability.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUG. 4, 1909.

We trust all who know their time has expired, will realize how important it is that they renew promptly. To make out and mail statements to each is quite expensive, and most all already know when their time runs out, so that it is not really necessary. Please take note of this, friends.

THE programme of the Ohio State Conference will appear next week.

DURING the past week there have been felt seventy-three distinct earthquake shocks in the valley of Mexico and along her Pacific coast. Many towns are destroyed and lives lost.

AS WAS expected on the removal of the foreign troops, the Cretans hoisted the Greek flag, showing their desire to cut loose from Turkey. Just how this action will be received is still in doubt.

THE Japanese city of Osaka suffered a loss of 13,000 buildings by fire on August 1. Among the buildings destroyed are the famous Buddhist temples which have attracted attention on account of their splendor and the treasures they contained.

BROTHER Joseph Williams called on us last Friday, being on his way to Oregon, Illinois, where he will rest up before the commencing of the Bible School next week. He was with the Church at Roll, over July 25, and reports a good interest there.

BROTHER John L. Wince called last Monday morning on his way home from his appointment with the North Salem Church. The weather and some being away from home, depleted his congregations somewhat. Next Sunday Brother Wince goes to Claysville Church.

A PRIVATE corporation of Spaniards have some mines in Morocco, and a railroad was being constructed across the country. The Moors objected and started in to kill and destroy. A call was made for troops, and when it was learned that it would likely cost a [illegible] of money and the lives of thousands of Spain's soldiers, the people refused to sanction the scheme. Revolt, riot and bloodshed in all the principal cities of Spain is the result.

THE Illinois Bible School begins on August 9, and continues until the 18th when the Conference opens. With Brothers Lindsay and Marsh for the principal instructors, it is sure to be instructive and enjoyable, so all who can attend will be benefitted. At the Conference it is arranged for part to be taken by Brothers Huggins, Conner, Williams, Lindsay, Marsh, Jeffrey Hightower and the President Jas. W. Wilson. This array of talent insures a profitable meeting, and we trust a good number will avail themselves of the opportunity, and attend and help the work in Illinois this year.

ANOTHER evidence that treaties and agreements made between nations are only good while such agreement suits the parties concerned, and are broken at will, is shows in the action taken by Russia in Manchuria. The Russian minister at Peking gave out last Saturday a statement to the effect that Russia does not recognize the principle contained in the notes of Great Britain, Germany, America and Austria, making objection to the Russo-Chinese preliminary and other agreements for the administration of the Manchurian railway zone. The minister declares that the treaty powers have been ignored. Russia on July 27 reopened the Harbin and Manchurian railway zone question by the re-imposition of taxes. All shops both Russian and Chinese, were closed as a protest against this action, but were opened again after two days without paying the taxes. The Russian consul at Harbin ordered the maritime customs precincts on the Sungari river at Harbin removed from before the railway property. China declares this action inconsistent, inasmuch as it was taken while friendly negotiations were proceeding over the question. The Chinese government declines to remove the stations.

"See that none render evil for evil." Otherwise evil is added to evil, and there can be no end or diminution of evil-doing; there can be only heaping up of wrongs in the world. Not to "do likewise" but to "overcome evil with good" is love's true and most effective revenge.—Teacher's Monthly.

Communicated.

"And My Name is Profaned Among the Heathen."

In regard to the teaching of some of our good neighbors concerning the ransom and ultimate redemption of all members of the human race that ever existed,—for thats what it amounts to practically—it seems to me that they not only ignore the teachings of the Bible in both the Old and New Testament, but also the experience of practical every day life.

God's message to man is "They that seek me early shall find me." "Come unto me all ye that labor," and again, "Him that honoreth me, I will honor," also the converse is equally plain, "he that despiseth me shall be lightly esteemed."

If I understand anything at all of what is generally called "the gospel" a man has but one end and one trend that is to make known the character of the living Creator to his dependent creatures so that they may appreciate the generous attitude toward them and make suitable acknowledgment of his bounty. This attitude of mind may be called religion, if you please, but in like, but lesser conditions, gratitude to a human benefactor would only be considered courtesy and good business.

Now the principle of regard for any one would show itself in respect to such a ones reputation and name. No one man can drag the name of his friend, wife, sweetheart, daughter or even his own family into every casual conversation, and if any one else was to do so in his presence they would have to stand for the consequences; yet, in my experience, especially in the large cities, I reckon that ninety-five per cent of laboring men and workmen are habitually addicted to the profane use of the name of God which they drag into all manner of unseemly and base connections, fifty per cent are rather proud of the accomplishment in that line and fairly revel in the delight of it, and the rest cannot be trusted to burst a shoestring or pinch a finger without invoking the Eternal Power in whom their life is, with ferocious imprecations. That there is a willful cultivation of this conceit, dignified sometimes by the name of the "artistic temperament," is patent to any one who has made the subject a study, and it ought to be known as "profane irritability."

In a recent interview, that went round "the press" Senator Beveridge of national fame narrated how he acquired the "cussing" habit among the lumbermen in his former days and how it was one of the hardest works of his life to break it off; for like all bad habits it gets as ingrained in the nature as to seem part thereof, and by the constant dinning we lose the proper sense of its enormity, at least in the mouths of the old and the rude, but in the mouths of the young, to me is a serious calamity. "George," I said, to a particularly bright and otherwise loveable boy, "where did you pick up such language as that?" "From the fellows I go with" he replied, "Then you had better quit that crowd." "Where can I go then? They all do it." "Better stay home" says I. "Then I'll get it off the old man" says George, and so that settled the discussion.

Now, dear "larger hope" brethren these people that I speak of are not fools. From Senator Beveridge down they are more or less educated, most of them have received instruction in what is called "religion" and they thoroughly understand the meaning and scope of the language that they thus use. These people, or most of them, have absolute control of the habit in the presence of women and should any woman use such language in their presence, they, themselves would stamp her as a reprobate at once, and their own wives and daughters would be warned to shun such a one. Showing clearly the judgment they hold and the relation that they stand in regard to their own conduct.

Yet these folks are not lost in the ordinary sense, in fact some of them are otherwise exemplary men, a good deal better than many that make large religious profession, straight in business and so forth, they live their lives in the respect and esteem of their neighbors, and they look for nothing more. Another life does not occupy their attention except in some cases in an academic sort of way, and they like to listen to a "good preacher" that is, one who can orate well, just as they like to listen to a good play or see a good "picture show." In fact the doctrine of a future life is generally [illegible] now even in the pulpit, and Elbert Hubbard, the "Aurora philosopher" has come out in the "Philistine" stating that such a thing as living eternally would be altogether a most undesirable thing and the idea was not to be tolerated.

So now friends, what should be done in such cases? Would it be justice to impose on such people that wish it is not only unsought but rather contemned and ridiculed? Some people think so; but it is not a Bible proposition to do so.

"Into you that fear my name," is the divine promise. "Strive to enter the straight gate; for many there be that seek to enter in and shall not be able."

I have known those who have applied themselves for years by careful study to prepare themselves to pass the civil service examination and all some office in the service of the United States Government, and think you, that the service of the Great King Almighty deserves so little consideration that it can be settled without any particular preparation? Nay, verily, only with strenuous exertion only with earnest solicitation may we hope in God through his Christ.

J. F. GELLETLY.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 9.

"How glorious the thought," sometimes Auntie Willard "that we shall soon be equal unto the angels to die no more. O my dear friends, to me now it seems nothing to die! I can realize in a faint degree, it may be, how the Apostle Paul felt when he said, "To die is gain"—to instantly fall into an unbroken sleep and his next conscious moments, find himself with Christ in glory! What a gain from his life of suffering! Yet, to live to gain other souls to Christ, to sing redeeming love to all eternity is worth suffering on in our warfare with the flesh and the devil. It is greater gain than to fall asleep, both to ourselves and to Christ."

The 1st of May, Auntie Willard had another attack of illness and made up her mind that God was her only refuge and that to him she must apply according to his word, and this she did on Sunday evening, the 2d, and was raised up, on Tuesday, rising from her bed and on Wednesday going with her husband in the buggy to visit a dying neighbor and whisper words of comfort to the mourners. On the next day she rode out again and had a pleasant interview with two young ladies (Baptists) and promised to visit them again and tell how the Lord had led her on; [illegible] Baptist church, and to prayer daily for their brother and his wife that they might learn the truth [illegible] the Lord and be brought to obey him. (The young ladies lived with the brother, and it was here that Rowland Willard was boarding.) Saturday she attended the funeral of the woman who had died on Wednesday, and heard of a risen, but not a coming savior, and not one word upon the resurrection. It seemed but half the gospel yet her soul rejoiced to tears even with this half.

The 7th of May found her at home, her husband, brother Gilbert, Monte, and Rowland having gone six miles to meet and break bread with a few dear saints at Mooretown, where Brother L. Reimer—the writer and publisher of German tracts, had recently moved, and where Dr. Jayne, nephew of the late Dr. Jayne of Philadelphia, a very intelligent believer and his family and a Brother Moses Smiley also resided. Sister Gilbert had remained at home with Auntie Willard in view of some little ones who needed constant care. Sister Gilbert had been everything to Auntie Willard during her illness that intelligence, experience and a warm Christian heart could make her. Brother Gilbert's heart was strong to serve the Lord. "He is," she says, "carrying on our place and we board with them. Our little colored boy Bennie, helps them and Monte is a little white boy, aged 13, whom we took in last Fall. If you have seen the Feb. "Christian", you have read of one of his noble acts under the heading of 'Five Dollars Found,' under the card 'Thou shalt not covet.'

He is a son of Captain Morrow, who commands a brig in the West India Trade, and is now at sea. We visited Mrs. Morrow, who lives at Vineland, New Jersey, and found her in the last stages of consumption, but an earnest Christian. No language could express her joy and gratitude to God and to us, that we had taken in her wandering boy, he having been induced to leave her in August when very sick, and not a word had she heard from him, until she received our letter in February, telling her he was with us. She entreated us to keep him as our own in view of her soon expected decease. We do so until his father comes. These little boys (Bennie a little the heavier) help on the farm, and a girl in the house, make our regular family.

It does us good to hear Bennie pray. He has given his heart to the Lord, and expects to go South to teach his people in my place. He has been with us nearly four years.

Now one word to you, Sister Chaplin, about your dear son, Virgil. As I knelt to pray the first evening of our being together in the family service and opened my mouth for him, such a sweet sense of acceptance of him on the part of the Lord in an everlasting covenant in the persons of parents and grandparents, that I could not doubt, but that he would be led to ratify it in yielding himself a living sacrifice to God. Hope unwaveringly in God."

Those dear saints of God who were at my father's, Monday morning, July 19th, 1891, and witnessed the burial of my boy her in the likeness of Christ's death, at the hands of Brother Israel Roberts, and Brother Ezra Barnhill,—my heartful, yet ever-joyed father standing by, will attest that this prayer was answered.

Brother Willard also added his portion to this long, journal-like letter of Auntie Willard's. He says, "Very dear friends, through mercy we are still spared and are still trusting in 'that same Jesus' for eternal life. Oh I do admire the magnanimity and universality of God's plan to save from the second death all that put their trust in him. What nobler scheme could have been devised to recover Adam's posterity? I had the pleasure of meeting a few dear ones yesterday, and spoke to them from the first part of the 4th chapter of Ephesians, I hope to their edification. I purpose visiting them every third Lord's day in each month, while they are to meet at our house every first in the month. I have Brother Grant's large tent in my possession, (wonder if it had been used at Mooretown? S. R. W.) expecting it will be spread this summer, if the Lord will, probably in Camden. We expect Brothers Hook and Grant will officiate on the occasion and we hope it will be to the glory of God and the good of souls.

I am greatly wondering that Virgil does not write. Not a word from him since I left him in Washington City. Our sojourn together and sleeping on the floor, tended greatly to strengthen the ties of mutual interest. We found kind friends in the city and were made quite welcome. I admired Virgil's manner of getting through the world. He takes everything easy and avails himself of all proper advantages."

To Be Continued.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

I enclose an article for publication written for THE RESTITUTION by my little daughter, I trust you may find room for it in our paper. It occurs to me that perhaps it would be wise to encourage correspondence from the little ones, impressions received in childhood are most lasting. Little children love to be noticed, and if they could have a little corner in our paper, who knows but it might be the means of leading many little restless feet into paths of truth and righteousness. The children are apt to think THE RESTITUTION is for old people and not for them. Let us try to make them feel that it is as much for them as for papa and mamma. The suggestion of my little girl for a "children's corner" is entirely her own and no doubt she expresses the thought of many others of her age.

Your brother in hope.

S. H. THOMAS.

Dear Restitution:

Happening to notice the story in THE RESTITUTION, written by Blanche Gaylor I thought I would write and send a story too. I am thirteen years of age and I am very much interested in the Bible and its truth. I hope that some other girls will write and put stories in THE RESTITUTION as it will make a nice little corner for girls who read THE RESTITUTION.

The Childhood of Jesus.

A long time ago there was no Christmas at all. There were no pretty Christmas trees and stockings filled with presents. No one knew about Jesus, because Jesus had not come into the world then. So there was no Christmas because Christmas was Jesus' birthday. People were very wicked and unhappy before Jesus came, yet God loved them and told them that he would send them his only Son so that they would have a king to rule over them and make them good. He told Joseph and Mary, who were the man and woman that God sent his Son to, that they should call him Jesus. He was born in a manger and some wise men came to see and worship him. They were following a big star that an angel of God had told them would stop over the place where Jesus was at. On the way they came to the place where Herod lived. Herod was a wicked king who lived near the town where Jesus was. He had heard of Jesus and was afraid that Jesus, who was said to be king, would take his throne from him and reign himself. So he told the wise men to go and find the child and then come and tell him where he was, so that he might go and worship him too. But he only wanted to find out where Jesus was and then he would kill him. The wise men went on their way, and soon they saw the star halt over the house in which Jesus was. They went in and worshiped him and gave him costly gifts and presents. Then they went on their way back again, but that night God told them in a dream not to tell Herod where Jesus was, and that he meant to kill him instead of worship him. So they turned and went in another direction so that Herod would not see and question them. Herod was angry when he found out that the wise men had not come around that way. So he sent soldiers into Bethlehem with orders to kill all the children two years of age and under. But God knew that Herod was going to try to kill Jesus and he told Joseph to take Jesus and his wife away into Egypt. Herod had no rule over that place, so he could not hurt Jesus. When Jesus was twelve years old his mother took him to the church in Jerusalem, when they reached the city they went to the temple to worship God and hear about his law out of the Bible. All of this was wonderful to Jesus. He soon began to know that God was his Father and that some very great works were set out for him to do. He was so interested that when it was time to go home he stayed after the others had gone and went back to the temple. After his mother had gone some distance, she found out that Jesus was not with the party. She was frightened and she and Joseph went back to look for him. They found him in the temple talking with some wise men. Jesus was very sorry that he had frightened his mother so badly. But although he wanted to stay at the temple he minded his mother and went home with her for he remembered that one of God's laws was "Children obey your parents."

Indiana Please Notice.

The yearly conference for Indianais to be at Rensselaer early in October. All who come please notify Sister Flora Harris beforehand, so that all may be in readiness.

Now brethren, Indiana has possibilities for a great work the coming year, and much of our success will depend on this conference. Come. We have a large membership and generous means. We have several strong congregations for edification and many scattered members who will be able to aid in evangelizing new localities, by affording a good opening. We have many earnest young people at work in Bible Study. We have several good Sunday Schools and Berean Societies. We have several young men ready to go to preaching. All we need is to take new heart and unite our forces. Let us get our numbers in touch with each other, combine our finances and efforts and all put our talents together for united work. Let each congregation see to it that several leading members from your church are at conference. If agreeable, pay their way. Let as many isolated members as possible come and be renewed for another year. We expect one or two new speakers, and many of the old faithful ones who have served so well. Many new and important things are likely to come up. Come in a Christian spirit of love. Bring your enthusiasm along.

In order for better work in Berean and Bible study, pastoral oversight and evangelizing, it is desired that the secretary be furnished with the names and addresses of all members in the state. Let each secretary of a congregation please send a list of your members to her and all isolated members do the same by a postal card to Lydia Railsback, 621 S. Fellows St., South Bend, Indiana.

Obituary.

John Fitz was born in Ohio, Nov 7, 1835, and died in Cedar Rapids, Ia., July 7, 1909, at the age of 73 years and 8 months. The deceased came to Iowa, with his parents, in 1855. In 1857 he was married to Miss Alletta Ann Bruner, to which union were born five children, four sons and one daughter. Two sons died in infancy. He located in Irving, Ia., in 1863, and resided there until 1882, when he removed to Luzerne, Ia. From there he returned to Irving where he remained about three years and then removed to Cedar Rapids, where he resided to the end of his life.

He united with the Baptist church in about 1852, but later withdrew from that communion and entered the Restitution church.

Bro. Fitz was a man of a kindly, patient, quiet disposition, true to his convictions of right, and an earnest, consistent Christian. He was a firm believer in the gospel of the kingdom and the principles of righteousness. He was one of the carpenters who built the church in which the funeral was held. He is survived by his wife and two sons Orin L., of La Crosse, Wis., and Elmer R. Woodburn, Ia., and the only daughter, Miss Ella M., of Cedar Rapids, Ia., and also four sisters and one brother.

He was taken to Irving on Friday July 9th, and in the Restitution church appropriate funeral services were conducted by L. L. Lodard of Belle Plaine, and he was laid to rest in the Irving cemetery, to await the call of the Master in the morn of the resurrection.

IDA MARSH.

With sad regret we chronicle the death of our beloved Brother Melvin Williamson, who died July 22, 1909, aged 28 years. He leaves a wife, a father and mother, two brothers, two sisters, and a host of friends to cherish his memory.

He has been a member of the Church of God for two years, and bore his sickness with patience, leaving the assurance that he died in the faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, and being persuaded of them, and embraced them and confessed that he was a stranger and pilgrim on the earth.

The funeral was conducted by Elder J. H. Anderson at the Guthrie Grove Church. The bereaved family has our sympathy. His last request was that his wife never forsake the Church of the Blessed Hope of another life beyond the grave.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy per-

The copy for this department of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 10837 Orville Ave. Cleveland, Ohio. Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

We are much gratified by the addition of two more young hearts to our ecclesia here: Francis and Sterling Russell, daughter and son of Brother and Sister Russell. Young in years, but old in the truth so far as an understanding of it is concerned, they have a bright future before them in the service of the Lord. Brother and Sister Russell are rejoicing greatly at their children's early obedience, and the Church and pastor are sharing liberally with them their joy.

CHARACTER OF PAUL THE APOSTLE.

I have frequently expressed my admiration of Paul both as a man and as a valiant soldier of Jesus Christ, and when I heard that Bible characters was to be the subject of discussion this evening, I at once thought of Paul, as one of the best specimens of what the gospel of the grace of God will or can do for, or make of a person. Not to waste time on generalities I at once plunge into my subject.

What should we do if deprived of the testimony of the beloved brother Paul? What an intellectual giant he was. What a noble soldier of the cross! What a witness to the transforming power of the gospel! What an embodiment of faith, and hope, and courage, and fortitude and love.—how oblivious of all earthly good; how thoroughly the hope of life absorbed his thoughts! How completely the cause of Christ monopolized his mind. What sacrifices he made—he threw overboard everything so as not to be in the least encumbered. When he says, "let us lay aside every weight," he spoke from experience. He knew how much better he could run when stripped for the race. I grieve to know that I cannot yet throw off every encumbrance, as he did, but I am happy to tell you I am trying to follow on. May God help us all to follow on. The same hope is set before us, and the same means are within our search,—and what the apostle said to the Philippians holds good to us. He says, "Be anxious for nothing." If in the line of duty let come what will, it will work together for good. Don't be anxious for anything, but at all times by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving, make known your requests before God leave the result to him: and when we reach that point the apostle says, "The peace of God which surpasseth knowledge will keep your hearts and our minds through Jesus the Messiah." Brothers and sisters, may we thus lean upon God habitually, constantly, so that we may be able to claim this blessed promise, Amen.—M. Joblin.

OUR GLORIOUS HOPE.

It is sometimes said that to preach the pre-millennial and speedy coming of Christ paralyzes missionary zeal and exertion."

We might justly style the Apostle Paul, as the "Prince of Missionaries." The proclamation of the coming of the King in his glory, was the burden of the glad message he delivered to the people wherever he went. That which he called "The Blessed Hope," inspired his heart with energy and zeal; and in place of paralyzing his missionary work, inspired him with energy, and nerved him with strength and power to endure tribulation, hardship and persecution, earnestly looking for the coming of the King in his glory.

The Gospel of the Kingdom of God, was the burden of the Christ messages.

One whose heart was fired with zeal when contemplating the soon coming of our blessed Lord, said: "Oh, my friends, see to it that you fulfill your Lord's command: 'Occupy until I come.' Get up, get to work, go and do the Lord's work. There is but a little time in which to do it. The field has to be reaped and the grain is ruddy with the light of the setting sun. Make haste. Do you say, 'My arm aches, my head aches?' Well, never mind. Reap on! reap on! It is only a little while!

How this doctrine has cheered us! You need it in these days, and you will need it more. You will need a word of warning, for these are perilous times. We are not smoothly sliding into the millennial age. Oh no! If there be smoothness at all, it is the smoothness of the mighty river before the Fall; it is like the river Niagara, and the waters are shooting forward to that tremendnous Fall. There are solemn times before us, and I urge you to be on your watch. The powers of the evil one are arrayed against the Word of God. Oh, see to it that you be not ensnared by these powers. Forewarned is forearmed.

Beloved, go tell the heedless world that the Lord is coming! Arouse the slumbering Church! Jesus the Christ is coming. The glorious resurrection is also coming. The sleepers in Jesus are about to be clothed in white raiment, and shine resplendent in glory.

We are on the eve of the greatest changes the world has ever seen. The silver lining will soon appear upon the storm cloud. "Be glad and rejoice forever in that which I create: for behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy." Beyond Armageddon's battle, will appear the beatific vision, the millennial age, and the glorious reign of peace. Jerusalem's warfare is about to end, our heart goes out toward her, as Whittier said:

Blest land of Judea, thrice hallowed by song,
Where fancy's fairest memories cluster like theirs
In the clefts of thy palms, by the shore of thy sea,
On the cliffs of thy beauty, my heart is with thee.

We are now in the time of preparation. God's workmen are in the quarry, cutting out precious stones and gems, to adorn his temple, which he is about to build for his glory. I was impressed by my late visit to Southern Texas, that God has yet some precious stone in that part of the country, yet to be hewn from the quarry. May those who lately put on the glorious mune there, think it not strange if they should have to pass through fiery trials for Christ's sake. In the dressing of stones they have to be hammered, chiseled and polished before they can take a prominent place in the temple. God is seeking gems of character; men and women of sterling worth, that can separate themselves from the surrounding apostacy, and have no fellowship with them; and yet be kind and gentle to all and develop characters that will challenge admiration. There is nothing like the Blessed Hope as an incentive, and aid in doing this glorious work.

The Lord is coming, let that be
The herald note of jubilee;
And as often as we need and part,
The salutation from the heart.
—W. H. Wilson.

GAL. 1 to 12.

Paul an apostle, not of men, neither by man, but by Jesus Christ. Acts i 21. Wherefore of these men which have companied with us all the time that the Lord Jesus went in and out among us must one be ordained to be a witness with us of his resurrection, and they appointed two and they prayed and said, Thou Lord which knowest the hearts of all men, show us which of these two thou hast chosen, and they chose Matthias by lot, and he was numbered with the apostles. But Paul says, Not chosen of man, not like this apostle was chosen, but by Jesus Christ. Acts ix. Here we find Paul imprisoning and putting to death those that believed the gospel. But Jesus called or chose Paul, and says he is a chosen vessel to bear my name before the Gentiles and kings and the children of Israel, for I will show him how great things he must suffer for my name's sake. Now this is the apostle who is writing to the churches at Galatia, chosen of God and Jesus Christ, one who is bearing the name to the Gentiles, who is exhorting and pleading that they stand fast in the gospel, and be not moved by any words, for though we or an angel preach any other gospel unto you let him be accursed. Chosen of God, could Paul preach any other gospel? No, for he says, I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation. Does preaching the gospel please men? Paul tells us, if he pleased men he could not be a servant of Jesus Christ, he was pleasing men when he was taking to prison those that believed on the Christ, pleasing those in authority, the high priests and rulers. But Paul's life work shows that he truly was a servant of Jesus Christ. Brothers and sisters, let us believe the same gospel, let us strive to be servants of Jesus Christ then, when he comes, we will no more be servants, but heirs with Christ in his glorious kingdom.

ELLA KNOWLES.

Read at Northwest Conference.

Dear brethren and sisters assembled in Conference, My mind has gone forward to this meeting with prayer and strong desire that much good might be done, and that we may all be led by the Holy Spirit to confer upon those things that shall not only build us up and establish us in the Word regarding God's plan in the creation of the world, and the establishing of his kingdom on earth, wherein all evil shall be put away, and all truth and rigbteousness perfected, and I think I have felt more than ever our responsibility in the work; for to us together with all his chosen ones, is left the task of completing under God the preparation for its establishment, and while we note with pleasure the zeal of our brethren in studying and promulgating these doctrinal truths, (for a belief in the things concerning the kingdom is a necessary foundation for a faith that will make us heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ,) yet is of almost more vital importance, that we learn, and in our lives express a knowledge concerning the Christ, not only concerning his kingship and sacrifice for the world's redemption, but more also of his life and example, and the abiding presence of his Holy Spirit to transform our lives and make us living epistles, known and read of all men. For if we have been led to see the height and depth and breadth of his most glorious plans concerning mankind, whereby is his wondrous love displayed, and not his vengeful wrath that is so sadly taught by so many well meaning, professed Christians, who have never had the loving truth revealed to them; we ought to be so wholly consecrated to his service that we will have the Christ enthroned in our hearts to guide and direct our every motive and action. For it is only the inhabited man or woman that is able to put self out of sight and only wish to know, "What wilt thou have me to do," or what would Jesus do, and be willingly, lovingly obedient, never asking why, nor questioning regarding the outcome, knowing that the Father is able to give the result as it pleaseth him, and that it is only in his strength that we can do that which to us seems almost impossible, but in the end proves the wisdom and power of God.

There is a stone of stumbling over which I fear we are sometimes in danger of falling, and that is a belief that if we have learned the primary truths of the gospel of the kingdom and been baptized our salvation is secured, whereas in order to an abundant entrance into the kingdom of God we have to live the Christ life, and go on learning and appropriating the truths of the Word to our lives until we can reach the measure of the fullness of the stature of Christ, never thinking that because we are human and he divine we cannot do, for he has said my grace is sufficient for you. He is our example in all things and he never would have said, "Be ye holy as I am holy," unless he was able to help us to do it. He knows our weakness, and that like Paul we can of our own selves do nothing, but can do all things through Christ strengthening us. We can never reach this position until we are willing to crucify the old nature with its desires and lusts, putting away pride and avarice, resisting temptation in the strength of the Lord, and here again we are apt to find the greatest stone of stumbling in thinking that only that is sin that is condemned by law, and not learning to use God's ordinances as not alone them, but turning them aside for the gratification of lustful desires; thus weakening both the moral and physical nature, and transmitting a weakened and depraved nature to the future generations. It is the pure in heart that shall see God, and as all impulses and desires originate in the heart or mind, we must keep our minds pure by never harboring an impure thought, nor indulging in foolish jesting which "is not convenient," for from the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh. Surely we must work out our own salvation before God, for none but the pure in heart will be admitted to the marriage supper of the Lamb, the others will be shut out and have to wash their robes in the blood of the Lamb in the great tribulation, and surely we do not want to be of that number, after all the trials and sadness of this life we want to be ready to enter into that perfect rest prepared for the people of God. And, O friends, there are heights yet to be reached in this life, by following close in the footsteps of the Master, where we can see and claim the power of the Holy Spirit, receive answers to our prayers, and rest in his abiding presence. So let us search the Scriptures, dig deep for the hidden treasures, and glean the golden nuggets of purity and Christ's righteousness, which too many I fear have read right over while still seeking for the true stones of foundation truth whereon to build their faith. Truly this ought we to have done, but not to have left the other undone.

LIBBIE PALMER.

Editor Restitution:

I see in THE RESTITUTION notice of some old people who are anxious for the truth. Now I wish you would send me a copy of Brother Wince's tract on The Resurrection, and the balance of the enclosed check use to help those old brothers and sisters to enjoy their best choice in this life, the good news of a better life, where we are all expecting to be young again, and never get old, thank God and bless his holy Name.

I am now near 67 years old, and you can see by the movement of my pen that it is not what it once was. May God bless those old brothers and sisters, yes and all the Household of Faith. That many of the needy may yet be brought into the fold is my prayer.

I do not think it can be many years until the cry will go forth "Behold the Bridegroom cometh." I would like Brother Wilson or some able writer to give an exposition of the Parable of the Sower that went forth to sow the seed. Good seed was sown, but when it came up there were tares in it. In the end of the harvest the reapers are to gather out the tares and bind them in bundles to be burned. Where is the fulfilment? Do we see it? Do not the organizations of all branches, clerks, mercantile associations, railroad monopolies, postal clerks, and all different branches of industry, as well as the social classes, have their bundles? Now if this view is right, are we not nearing the end of the harvest?

Yours in the One Hope,
WM. D. ROOT.

A Forward Look.

Why should we look forward? Because we are commanded to look up and forward. When men's hearts fail them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth, then look up and lift up your heads. Why? For your redemption draweth nigh. Luke xxi: 28. These are the words of Christ and should therefore be heeded. Christ was here describing a state of things that will be on the earth when he appears the second time, without sin unto salvation, and told them to lift up their heads, look up. Christ, the redeemer will come in this time of trouble, and then shall the Lord himself descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel and with the trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we which are alive (in Christ) and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and then shall we ever be with the Lord. Wherefore comfort one another with these words. 1 Thess iv: 16-18.

This is the time we can look forward to. Because it is yet in the future, and any thing that is promised, and has not yet been fulfilled is beyond, we have to look forward to it. And while it is yet in the future, we have an opportunity to prepare for the event, get ourselves in readiness to receive the redeemer when he comes. How do we prepare ourselves so we can be assured of his favor and grace and mercy? By obeying him and being initiated into his body, for Paul says as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. And if ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise, and Christ says, "Watch therefore, be ye ready, for in such an hour as ye think not, the Son of man cometh. We are commanded not to look back. No man having put his hand to the plow and looking back is fit for the kingdom of God. Luke ix: 62. Remember Lot's wife. She was commanded not to look back which she did and became a pillar of salt.

"Thou hast forsaken me, saith the Lord, thou art gone backward: therefore will I stretch out my hand against thee, and destroy thee, I will destroy my people since they return not from their ways." Jer. xv: 6, 7. Here we see how it fares with those that look forward, and prepare to meet the Lord, they are promised eternal life. And those that turn back are promised eternal death or destruction. The Christian's duty is to look forward and prepare themselves to at any time welcome the redeemer. The Lord looks down and we should look up and forward and in so doing will reap a rich reward.

Yours in Hope.
E. W. KNAPP.

Brother Underwood,

I would like to send a few words to the dear Brethren of the one Faith through the paper. I would especially speak to the dear young people. Your opportunity of laboring for Jesus will become less each day and each year, hence make use of them as they come to your hands. Especially to you, Chicago Bereans, who may mourn the loss of those who have removed from you, go out and interest others and being them to the meeting, for we read in the Blessed Book, that he that watereth, shall be watered. He that goeth forth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless return, bringing his sheaves with him. What more precious seed can we carry and scatter, than the seeds of eternal life, which is the Word of God. And to you older ones, who may visit and meet with the Bereans, don't go there to criticize. Paul's great desire was to build up, not to tear down. How much one can tear down more than many can build up.

Let us who are older, by our walk and conversation, set the example that will lend strength and courage and hope to the younger ones. I hope many will come to our Bible School and Conference in Oregon this year. It may be the last time we will meet together in such a capacity. Leave your spirit of criticism at home. Come in the spirit of prayer, also in the spirit of getting good and doing good. Then it will be said at the close, it was good to be there.

I remain, your Brother in the Blessed Hope.

M. T. ASLAKSEN.

Editor Restitution:

As my subscription to THE RESTITUTION has expired, I will renew again as it is a great pleasure to me to read the letters of like faith, for since the death of my dear companion it has been very lonely, for he held meetings once a month here in the schoolhouse. I am trying to live so when our dear Saviour comes I will be found worthy of a place in the kingdom, where there will be no more sorrow or parting. Enclosed find money order for $1.50 for the renewal of my subscription.

Your Sister in the Faith.
MRS. J. F. PIERSON.

Brother Joseph Williams preached at the Church of God, at Roll on July 24 and 25. He remained a few days to call on the brethren and sisters of the faith. On Wednesday evening he attended the Bible class and being requested to teach, he chose for his subject The Light of the World. Since he will be the pastor for the coming year, it is hoped by all that he may be permitted to attend our Bible class often and give us more of those helpful lessons.

J. H. WILLEY, Pres. Ind. Con.

It is a poor general who is not worth a hundred privates.

"Tainted" whiskey has killed more people than "tainted beef."

"Hear Both Sides."

It is always in order to persuade people to give up a good thing for a better, and this it is the Christian worker's privilege to do.

The skeptic who wants me to read infidel books on the ground that I ought to hear his side, loses sight of an important distinction. When I ask him to "come and see" Jesus, I am asking him to take something I know to be good. When he asks me to read a book or hear a lecture against Jesus and the Bible, he is not asking me to give my attention to something that he knows to be better than anything I know; he is asking me to give up a good thing for a doubt. Let the skeptic first show me something better.

Then missionaries to the heathen, if they are wise, do not begin their work by telling the heathen their religion is false. There are few religions that are all false, and there are few infidels who do not say a true thing once in a while. But if we will but hold fast which we have proved to be good, the Spirit of truth shall guide us into all truth.—Armory.

The Second Coming.

A correspondent of the Chosen People asks the following question: "Do the Jews who have been converted to Christ look for him to return to this earth, to establish again the throne of David which is fallen down, and reign as King in Jerusalem over the House of Israel?"

To this question the editor gives this answer: "As far as I know they do look for his return as King. The coming of the Messiah was and is to the Jews, whether believing in Christ or not, the hope of Israel. Personally I know that to preach Christ to the Jews without holding out to them his second coming would be like tinkling brass. Such preaching can never be successful. If I do not believe the announcement of the white-appareled man, 'this same Jesus...shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven' (Acts i. 11), how can I believe the other announcement, 'The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee, therefore that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called 'the Son of God?' "

Say No, and Stick to It.

The Bible says: "My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not." Prov i 10. But many act as though it read, My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou,—they practically leave off the word "not."

One enticement will most likely be to use tobacco, we see so many, young and old, using it. But our advice is:

"Don't grow it, but outgrow it!
Don't get it, but forget it!
Don't chew it, but eschew it!
Don't buy it, but good-bye it forever!

Don't ever think well of it, if you don't want to smell of it."

"Can you imagine Paul pressing 'toward the mark for the prize of the high calling' (Phil iii 14) with an old pipe or a cigar in his mouth?" some one asks. No, we cannot; and we don't believe he would set any such example. Drinking and smoking generally go together. If tempted to do either, have courage enough to say, "No," and stick to it.—Light-Bearer."

Making Confession.

It is often wise to make a distinction between confessing sin, and confessing sins before men. One who sees the error of his ways takes a wise and necessary step when he confesses that fact before those who have known him as a sinner. If, under any circumstances, silence as to particular deeds puts another under a cloud of suspicion, there is nothing for the guilty person to do but to say, "I am the one." Also, many times it must be a duty to make "one to one" confession to individuals one may have injured. Otherwise it is well to remember that there is "a time to keep silence and a time to speak." Detailed accounts of wrongdoing may offer suggestions such as can become temptation to others, and may rouse a gossipy interest that can almost wholly offset the real import of the confession. As with other things, so with confession, "the highest good of all" is the best test to apply to the doing.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Announcement.

The Southern Illinois Conference will be held at the Restitution Church eight miles south of Casey, from Sep. 25 to Oct. 3 inclusive. Names of the preachers and programme will appear later.

B. J. WOODS, Sec.

The printed programs of the Iowa Conference, which is to be held at Waterloo, Iowa, August 21st to 29th, are now ready for distribution, and will be sent to any one on request. Address, G. P. Allard, Box 86, Fort Dodge, Iowa.

The Nebraska State Conference of the Church of God will be held in St. Paul, August 28 to September 5 inclusive. Programme will be published later.

ALTA KING.

The Conference of the Church of God in the State of Ohio will be held at Springfield, beginning on Wednesday evening, August 25, and continuing over the following Sunday. The brethren have secured the use of the Fair Grounds, and there is every indication of having perfect convenience and comfort. An earnest invitation is extended to all those of like precious faith.

A complete programme will appear in this paper as soon as it is made up.

STANLEY A. SANFORD, Sec.

The next Annual Conference of the Churches of God in the State of Illinois will be held at Oregon, beginning August 18, and continue over the following Sunday. The programme will appear later.

Let us begin now to plan for this meeting, and to be present with the purpose of doing all in our power for the work in Illinois in the year that is to come.

WILL YOU TRY IT?

Dear Brethren in the One Faith:

The Missouri Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus will be held this year at Morse Mill, Mo., beginning the evening of August 25, and closing Sunday evening, August 20. We want every one, who possibly can to come and help us make this second annual Conference in Missouri a success, as was promised by the first one, last year.

All People coming by way of St. Louis, will take the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern Railroad to Victoria, where hacks will take them to Hillsboro. Here they will be met by the brethren. Those coming from the south, also take the St. L. I. M. & S. to Victoria. Everyone who is thinking of coming, write to Brother J. F. Williams, Hillsboro, Mo.

Provisions will be made to take care of every one, no matter how many, who come. There are a number of brethren in Missouri whom we hope will be present and help in the work, which is so necessary.

Anyone desiring more information, write to:—Sadie Morse, Sec'y, 311 E. Colton St., Warrensburg, Mo.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John I. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application. Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

THE MESSENGER

Is the name of a religious monthly magazine advocating the coming of the Kingdom of God, the return of the Lord Jesus, and the hope of Eternal Life. Published in Glasgow, Scotland. Subscriptions received by the American agent, William G. Rothe, 1301 Park Place, Brooklyn, N. Y. 1 copy 37 cts, 2 copies 69 cts, 3 copies 97 cts, 5 or more copies 25 cts each copy per year. Sample copy on application.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. DANIEL.

Illinois Bible School

The Illinois Bible School for the year 1909 will convene in Oregon on Monday morning, August 9th, to last until the 18th, at which time the Illinois State Conference will convene to last over the following Sunday. Please write that you are coming. Those who are obliged to pass through Chicago will find two trains leaving Chicago over the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, leaving Union Depot each day that are through trains, making only two stops between Chicago and Oregon. One of them leaves Chicago at 9:20 in the morning and the other at 6:30 in the evening. There are other trains but these are the best.

The work of the school is being carefully prepared, and your time will be pleasantly and profitably spent. Bring Bible, pencil and note book. Plan to arrive in Oregon on Saturday before the school opens. Board and lodging are free. Write me the addresses of any persons who may be induced to attend. A good program for evenings of the first week is in preparation. Brother Morse will assist in the work this year. His work will probably be on the book of Daniel, while the other part will consist of New Testament work, the nature of which will largely depend upon the personel of the school.

We need not advertize the scenic surroundings of Oregon to those who have been here. Come and spend two weeks at the school and conference, and be convinced. Please write me whether you come or not.

S. J. LINDSAY,
Oregon, Illinois.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured Ih VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 808 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

Owing to Sister Rogers leaving us for California all communications, money orders, etc., must be sent to Alta King of Palmer, Neb., who will act as secretary until Conference. We would like all isolated members to notify the acting secretary if they intend coming to Conference and the secretaries of the different churches to send notice of the number from their respective churches who intend to come. This will be necessary so arrangements for entertaining may be made.

ALTA KING.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10980 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D.C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 201½ W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

BROTHER John Foore of Parsons, Kansas, realizing that his preaching days are getting short, as he is nearly 76 years old, has issued a series of 10 tracts. They have cost him a considerable sum, and he offers to supply them to the brethren on most liberal terms. The average cost of these tracts is about 10 cents each, and he offers to send them at cost. Also he says that where people are too poor to pay for them he will send them to such free if they will send name and address. The subjects treated are as follows: The Great Divine Healer vs. last day healers, The stature of Christ The restitution, The kingdom of God, Law and testimony, The judgment, Is baptism essential to salvation, Life and death, Signs of the end, Through the second vail, Three days and three nights, Election and predestination. Let any one wishing, these tracts send direct to John Foore, Parsons, Kan

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. I. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. I. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to Study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Address W. H. Wilson, 625 North Willow Ave, Austin Station, Chicago Illinois.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 386 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

The Paternity of Jesus. A pamphlet of 122 pages, by M. Joblin, giving in detail all that can be said on this subject, and completely proving the He is the Son of God, and not the natural son of Joseph. This work ought to be sold at 25 cents a copy, but the author was so anxious that price should not stand in the way of its being read, that he put the price at ten cents, so all can buy them. Send to this office for them.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10648 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Scripture Searchers Assistant.

A very valuable help to all who are studying the Scriptures—a reprint of one of our beloved Brother Joblin's works. Treats of thirty different subjects, with about four hundred references. All should possess a copy for ready reference. Price by mail six cents, order from Mrs M Joblin, 10648 Ashbury ave, N E Cleveland Ohio

The Elements of the Kingdom of God, is the title of an eighteen page tract by Brother T J Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He sets forth that a kingdom cannot exist without a King, his cabinet officers, territory, a capital city, subjects, laws. Brother Daniel will send this little tract to you at 10 cents each, or $1.00 a dozen. Send direct to him for them.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing or ordering stop their name, post office and state, promptly and distinctly. We have a great many names and addresses, but we only need one of yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be made by bank draft, post office money order or express money order, NOT by personal check. If none of these can be obtained, send the money in a registered letter. Stamps stick together and to envelopes. Money sent in a registered letter is not lost unless by the carelessness or dishonesty of the postal service. Money sent in a registered letter is not lost unless by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn payable to "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Colo.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending names always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and sends it, asking us to send the paper to him. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say so—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes discontinued, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. Susan, of course, everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends months of time and labor on an important subject, and when at last he gets it completed, puts on a single two cent stamp, drops it in the box, has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an official wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

My Heart Still Sings.

My heart still sings, though the tempest rise,
Though clouds may hang dark in the angry skies,
Though my bark is but on a raging sea,
My heart still sings of its trust in Thee.

My heart still sings, though the storm is high,
My ship is frail and the shoals are nigh;
Death lieth hid 'neath the angry waves,
But my heart still sings of thy power to save.

My heart still sings, though the night is black,
Not a star to light my weary track,
Yet I sing as I lay me down to sleep,
Yes, my heart still sings of thy power to keep.

Selections.

Necessity of Faith.

"Take heed, brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God." Heb. iii: 12.

"For whatsoever is not of faith is sin." Rom. xiv: 23.

I shall try to show briefly that faith in God's veracity in all that he has said is essential in our trial for future life. Before proceeding to prove what we must believe, let us decide what is our authority for this information. The Bible is almost universally accepted among all Christian people as a sacred book, written in the Hebrew and Greek languages by men inspired by the Holy Spirit. Having accepted the Bible as the only reliable authority for what we should believe and do to inherit eternal life, we should realize the importance of understanding what it teaches. "Man that is in honor, and understandeth not, is like the beasts that perish." Psa. xlix: 20. "The man that wandereth out of the way of understanding shall remain in the congregation of the dead." Prov. xxi: 16.

While many people accept the Bible as a divine revelation, and think they believe what it teaches, they have become so impressed with the traditional faith of the immortality of the soul, and of going to heaven at death soon as the body dies that they believe the Bible really teaches it, and whenever they read a passage that is plainly contradictory to this belief, they either blindly pass over it as something unimportant, or they satisfy their desire for light with the prevailing idea that God does not intend for everything that is written to be understood, and so they are satisfied. What a sad idea! God intends for his people to understand his words in our time, but we need not expect to understand them until we are his people by faith and obedience, and believe him instead of the devil. Jesus said to the Jews "He that is of God heareth God's words: ye therefore hear them not, because ye are not of God." John viii: 47. "But ye believe not, because ye are not of my sheep, as I said unto you." John x: 26.

Paul said to the Corinthians, "But if our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost: in whom the god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not." 2 Cor. iv: 3, 4.

We find that none are so blinded that they cannot understand God's word, except those who will not believe him, and are under the dominion of the god of this world. Daniel says, "And none of the wicked shall understand: but the wise shall understand." Dan. xii: 10. Now do not let us be deceived by the thought that all great and learned men can rightly interpret the Scriptures. Elihu said to Job, "Great men are not always wise," Job xxxii: 9, and Paul said to the Corinthians, Not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, are called." 1 Cor. i: 26. He told Timothy that the holy scriptures were able to make him wise unto salvation, through faith which is Christ Jesus.

Then why not reject man-made theories, and believe the plain word of God?

If we would understand what we read in the Bible, we should observe who is speaking, to whom he is speaking, about whom or what, and of what time, whether he is using a plain statement or whether it is a figure or parable, and what peculiar dialect that people at that time used to express their ideas. A strict observance of their rules, and a realization that all interpretations of intricate sayings must harmonize with the plain statements in the scriptures, will help us to avoid many mistaken ideas.

Because, perhaps, of the various opinions of theologians as to what the Bible teaches about God's plan for the future of man, it is generally taught that Christian works are more important than our faith, except that we believe, in a general way, in God and his Son Jesus Christ. I shall try to show that the Bible teaches that a definite faith is all important. We must not only believe in God, but we must believe all that he has said. Paul writes to the Ephesians, "For by grace are ye saved through faith: Not of works, lest any man should boast." Eph. ii: 8, 9. To the Romans he says, "Now to him that worketh is the reward not reckoned of grace, but of debt. But him that worketh not, but believeth on him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteousness. For the promise, that he should be heir of the world, was not to Abraham, or to his seed, through the righteousness of faith. For if they which are of the law be heirs, faith is made void, and the promise made of none effect. Therefore it is of faith, that it might be by grace; to the end the promise might be sure to all the seed; not to that only which is of the law, but to that also which is of the faith of Abraham, who is the Father of us all. He staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief; but was strong in faith, giving glory to God; and being fully persuaded that, what he had promised, he was able to perform. And therefore it was imputed to him for righteousness. Now it was not written for his sake alone, that it was imputed to him, but for us also, to whom it shall be imputed, if we believe on him that raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead." Rom. iv.

Paul is making a comparison between faithful Abraham, to whom God imputed righteousness on account of his faith, and establishing their own righteousness by the work of the law.

He says, "For I bear them record that they have a zeal of God, but not according to knowledge. For they being ignorant of God's righteousness, and going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God." Rom. x: 2, 3. Certainly we should have appropriate Christian works, but as "faith without works is dead," but we must believe all that God has said. How prone man is to believe the old serpent, who said, "Ye shall not surely die," Gen. iii: 4, and this with his assertion, "Ye shall be as the gods," he seems to regard as a proof that he has within him, or rather he himself as a conscious entity is an immortal spiritual being within his natural body, and does not really die, but only undergoes a transition, and soars away to a greater activity. Longfellow said, "Death is not death, but what seems so is only transition." Dear reader, stop and think. Whom are we to believe? St. John says, "He that believeth not God hath made him a liar; because he believeth not the record that God gave of his Son. And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son." 1 John v: 10, 11. It seems hard for man to believe that "Our life is hid with Christ in God," Col. iii: 3, and is not in us. Have we faith in God, or are we relying on the word of the old serpent?—F. M. Rowell.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, AUG 29.

PAUL ON CHRISTIAN LOVE. 1 COR. XIX. 1-13.

Golden Text. "And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity." 1 Cor. xii. 13.

The word rendered "charity" in this lesson, will be more correct, and fit properly if read "love." There is no word in the English language that is much more used, less understood, more misused and abused than the word "love." When any one has an unusual liking for a cat, or a dog, or a horse, it is said by, or of such, that he, or she, loves a cat, dog or horse. When a person has a strong palatable desire for some particular thing to eat, he says he loves that thing. When a man or woman has a powerful natural affection for one of the opposite sex, they are said to be very much in love. Often an uncontrolled fancy on the part of a young man or woman for one another is called—mis-called love. Another abuse of the word is "love at first sight." These last examples account, in great measure, for the great and increasing number of divorce cases.

The word charity as generally understood means liberality to the poor, but it also embraces tenderness, goodwill, benevolence, kindness.

All the foregoing belongs to the flesh—human nature—with its desires and affections, Gal. v. 24. These are all "crucified" when one is converted by the gospel of Christ, Rom. i. 16, and buried with Christ by baptism into death, Rom. vi 4 Then the love of God, and love for God takes the place of natural affection, and is of a far higher order, and far more comprehensive than any human kindly conception. This, the love of God and Christ—is the love that Paul sets forth in this chapter. An ordinary reading of the thirteen verses shows that the love here so concisely, and clearly stated has a height, depth, length and breadth far beyond the comprehension of the ordinary, unconverted mind. For instance, if a man is learned, eloquent, and earnest he can go into any town or city, and draw a crowd to fill the largest hall or auditorium. If he is kind, sympathetic and gentle, he is at once accepted by the public as a man full of "Christian love;" but another man may be learned, eloquent, earnest, kind, sympathetic and gentle, full of Christian love, yet if he preaches the glad tidings of the kingdom, and the name of Christ, the same public will scout him. This is equal to stating that the public "religious public" do not know of the love that Paul knew to be greater than faith and hope.

Paul's advice is to "prove all things" 1 Thess. v. 21, religious things, and John cautions the faithful to "try the spirits—teachers—whether they are of God," 1 John iv. 1. Try them by the Scriptures, by Moses and the prophets. It is not possible by any other test, to tell when a man's life is ruled by Christian love, but the Scripture rule is infallible, because it is God's rule, God's measure, God's judgment.

So then, a man may by a "powerful sermon" by the "masterful address" sway the multitude, and in God's estimation be only making a sound. He may surprise by prophecy, astonish by mysteries, be admired for knowledge, get great credit for faith, from men, and be nothing in the sight of God, or Christ.

He may, by unusual benevolence, make himself poor to help the poor, and be a martyr to his convictions—religious convictions—and yet have no recognition from God; but if a man imbibes the love of God through Christ and by faith and works gives proof of it, he suffers long, is kind, humbles himself 1 Peter v. 6. Has self respect, but not conceit. Believes as becometh holiness, Titus ii. 3, will gladly spend, and be spent for the good of others though they love him not, 2 Cor. xii. 15. If it be possible will live at peace with all men, Rom. xii. 18. "Doeth no evil, receives no evil reports, needs proof. Like his Master, Christ, he loves righteousness, and hates iniquity, Heb. i. 9, and speaks the truth in his heart. Psa xv, 2.

This love never fails in him as long as he is faithful. It carries him through this life, and gives him positive assurance of eternal life, by a resurrection, John vi. 39, 40. Prophecies, tongues, knowledge shall fail, cease, vanish away. Other things may come and go, but love goes on forever.

LESSON VERSES.

1, What is the value of eloquence without love?

2, What gift? What understanding? What knowledge? What possession?

3, What kindness? What sacrifice? What profit without love?

4, What suffers long, and is kind? What does not envy, nor boast, nor cause conceit?

5, What behaves right, is not selfish, and has self-control? What always thinks good thoughts?

6, What hates sin; but loves truth?

7, What bears all things that living according to the gospel may bring? What believes all things that God has promised? What all things does love cause a person to hope for? What does love endure?

8, What is it that never fails?

P. NEILL.

A Bit of Autobiography.

Dear Bro Underwood:

I fully understand that THE RESTITUTION is not and should not be published as the receptacle of any personal grievance or controversy: in this its management is correct. I am nearly 2000 miles from my northwest home and place of evangeliatic labor for a score of years. Immediately after the adjournment of our Conference at Corvallis I received from a brother in Christ, the statement that I had been voted "letters of commendation," from the Conference, with only one dissenting vote, and that was given under the claim that I had never been legally baptized. I have acted as evangelist from its organization, till this year, and am in Arizona seeking the health, which I am gaining. I never before had its lenity question; but here I am, nearly 2000 miles away, and that was used to opposed "letters." But in order that you may see, that I write to save others in the northwest from possible disquietude I will inform you that in addition to the request from Eugene I receive a letter from the president that "the letters" would be sent to me, and a letter from him, containing the following: "There was only one person who voted against giving you this appointment (the letters of commendation are meant). The main reason he gave for this was the claim that you never have been legally baptized into the faith, and that the baptism you claim to have was performed when you were a child, which of course would be contrary to our faith. An explanation from you would be gratifying to me. I never had heard your legal adoption questioned before; so will be pleased to learn the facts of the matter." As those I baptized passed the hundred mark in the early years of my northwest work, and many more were immersed by my hands afterward, including Bro. Montgomery, the esteemed brother, that I have quoted from; and including some of the children of my beloved co-laborer at Eugene who has asked me to give the facts of my immersion, I gladly take the opportunity through THE RESTITUTION, of correcting the errors that were announced at Conference, in regard to my past history, in reaching the faith in which I have become rooted and grounded. It may save some from doubting their act of obedience through doubts of the one that taught them, and aided their obedience, and would love still to help them to continue in lives of obedience. I still hope to return to the northwest, when the disability is removed for which I am not accountable. As the clouds are drifting in the northwest, I am hopeful.

Ohio is my native state. I was born and reared in Union County. My father was a local minister of the Methodist church. He accepted the hope of the literal and speedy coming of Christ. My mother was devout. I presume that she taught the same evening prayer to all of her 9 children which she taught me. It was

> Now I lay me down to sleep,
> I pray the Lord my soul to keep;
> If I should die before I wake,
> I pray the Lord my soul to take.

I remember of asking from my little trundle bed, "If the Lord would take the soul when the dead don't know anything"? Her devotion had been outrunning her theology.

In 1858 Bro. Levi Lyon came from Marysville, our county seat, and held a series of meetings. Several were immersed. I was only 9 years old, but asked for immersion. The question of my capability came up. I remember of standing by the knee of this pioneer workman and answering his questions satisfactorily.

I recall the picture of the weakly boy, with brain and nerve energy more fully developed than muscular force, as he walked boldly into the creek with his scholarly leader who was in advance even of the Adventism of his times, in his knowledge of what Christ will do when he comes.

Sometimes, my mind will dwell on the persecution of the boy from other boys. But I have learned not to be puffed up, and grow fat over persecution, for it is an easy matter for the egotistical to mistake the buffeting for our fault's sake for persecution.

Through my older boyhood and early manhood I began to doubt with my growth in knowledge, whether a boy of 9 could have comprehended all the saving principles to be gathered from the storehouse of truth.

In 1870 I moved to Illinois with my "guiding star," the faithful wife of my youth. The uncertainty of my baptism was with me yet, but under the pressure of my conscience I began to preach. Bro. Hatch came into Illinois—with his help I settled the question of my childhood baptism. I went to the church, and gave a discourse on the coming of Christ before my hair was fully dry. But there is danger of carrying any question to extremes, as almost all pioneers had to learn.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the Goal "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of Kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUGUST 18, 1909. NUMBER 31.

I moved to Oregon in 1875, and was entrapped for awhile by the theories of the Christadelphians. I obeyed a theory. After diligent study of the Bible I renounced the theory, and the mistake of thinking that theorising on a truth is "the truth." These somersaults are not to one's credit if the main ambition is to prove himself a competent leader, by never making any mistakes, but if one desires to have "An honest man" inscribed on his grave stone, I do not know where I could change the story now, or when it was enacted.

So those, brethren, are the naked facts without varnish. If I have not been "legally baptized" I don't know how I can be.

The Revelation of Jesus Christ. Act 5.

THE HARVEST. REV XIV 14; SIX 10.

In act 5th Jesus Christ is revealed as the crowned Son of Man, he reaps the field which he sowed with good seed, he brings his sheaves and presents them with "exceeding joy," they stand on the sea of glass and sing the song of Moses and the Lamb, victory and salvation, type Ex. xvi; Psa xxvii 5; Isa xxvi 19; Matt iii 12; type Gen xxiv 61-67. Now he is not merely the king of Israel, he is the Son of Man, the seed of the woman Eve, and therefore a blood relation of "all the families of the earth," and in this 5th act now is first shown as the Son of Man, our brother, for now he begins to draw all men unto him. Psa xxii 27; Isa ii 1-5; Jer xvi 19; first the first fruits of Israel, xiv 1; second the first fruits of the nations, xiv 10, then the residue of men seek after the Lord xv 14. Before the church he is our high priest, Rev i 13; before the throne he is the obedient Lamb, verse 6; before Israel he is the seed of the woman xii 5; bringing the first fruits of Israel he is their passover Lamb. xiv 1.

Bringing the first fruits of the nations he is the Son of Man, xiv 14, before his enemies he is a man of war, xix 11; before the spoil and great he is their Judge, xx 12.

THE VINTAGE.

"Gather the clusters of the vine of the earth." "Their wickedness is great."

God's purpose to bring again the captivity of Israel had been proclaimed among the Gentiles; vast war preparations followed the "controversy of Zion", Deut xxxii 36-43; Isa lxiii 1-6; Hab iii 1-15, the clusters of the vine of the earth have been "bound in bundles," the desire of men to combine and form vast colling, cruel, crushing monopolies has at last been carried out, James v 6, this was attempted at Babel but was mercifully stopped. Gen xi 6 8.

As is often the case in this drama a brief outline of events is given, a prologue of the topic, then larger and fuller pictures of those events follow so here the treading of the grapes is shown in xvi xviii and culminates in xix 11-21; the beast, Rev xiii 1, little horn, Dan vii 24, viii 23, xi 21-39. Man of sin has invaded the Holy Land, taken away the continual burnt offering, trod the sanctuary and Host underfoot, Rev xi 10; vi 11; xi 6; xii 4, planted the abomination, Matt xxiv; Isa xvi 15, exalted himself above all that is called God, and divided the land, yet he is not happy for "the spirits of devils" have infected the kings of the earth and the whole world with the war mania, the nations are angry, they have become weary of his avarice and cruelty, Rev xiii 9, Hab ii, and now the king of the south pushes at him, the king of the north is coming like a whirlwind, tiding out of the east trouble him, for the kings of the east, the armies of Asia are crossing the Euphrates, but they know not the thoughts of the Lord. Isa xvii 11-14.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUG. 18, 1909.

Brethren and Sisters:

In last week's issue we made statement of our finances, and asked for relief from pressing needs. We have had some response, and are truly thankful, but it has not reached one-fourth of the amount we absolutely must have to meet our immediate demands.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

BROTHER Huggins is minus with copy for "Ebenezer" this week. He is no doubt busy, as he is to be at the Illinois and Iowa Conferences.

ANOTHER earthquake in Japan has caused much loss in towns of life and property. A mountain in one district was shaken down and the surface of the ground much changed.

BROTHER J. L. Wince was with the Church in Plymouth last Sunday, and gave a discourse on Revelations at the morning meeting. A severe storm just at the hour for evening meeting prevented many from coming and no service was held.

THE poem in this issue was sent us by Sister Woodward of Dutton, Michigan. It was written by Sister Eliza West, a sister of Brother Chase. She is eighty-one years old and wrote the verses with her own hand and read them to Sister Woodward. Quite a performance for one of her age, and shows a wonderfully clear mind and steady hand.

THE trouble in Crete is not all over. Though Greece advised the taking down of the Greek flag, the Cretans refused to do so, and now the warships are being rushed there again, and it is likely the protecting powers will have to take the rule again, as the Cretans will not be governed by Turkey. It is now thought that war between Greece and Turkey will be prevented.

FOR the information of friends who ask, we will say that Brother W. D. Thompson is still confined to his bed, it being over sixteen weeks since he has been able to sit up. At times he is bright and his mind clear, and then again he has times when life seems near its end. Sister Thompson keeps up well for one of her age—she being 79 years old. With the aid of the children, she gives him constant care both day and night.

THE article from the pen of our lamented Brother, John W. Appleyard was sent by his wife, and was written in 1890, and read at a meeting in Iowa. It was the privilege of the Editor to be well acquainted with Bro. Appleyard in our younger days, and though later in life we were separated many miles, yet we esteemed him as a friend and brother most highly, and cherish a hope of meeting him in the kingdom of God ere long.

The Rejected Son. Acts xxi.

God, in all ages of the world has had a "chosen people" or rather nation, to whom he has ever showed himself as their great guide and protector. His loving kindness and tender mercies have ever been with them. He has given them statutes and commandments to obey, that he might test their loyalty to him, and thereby develop in them characters worthy of his great blessing, which he has ever promised to those who are faithful to his requirements.

In the lesson before us, there are three points worthy of consideration. Who was the rejected son? By whom was he rejected, and why was he rejected? Jesus, in this chapter (Matt xxi; 42) is speaking to the priests and elders, and he speaks to them in parables. Up to this time the children of Israel were God's chosen people. He had repeatedly spoken to them through his prophets.

In Ex xix; 5, we read: "Now therefore, if you will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people; all the earth is mine and ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and an holy nation. These are the words which thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel."

Thus we see that God here speaks of his people, through his servant, Moses and if we turn to Ex xxiv; 7, we find that Moses did even as the Lord commanded. "He took the book of the covenant, and read in the audience of the people; and they said; All that the Lord hath said will we do and be obedient." Thus we see how willing this people were to serve the Lord their God. Yes, "we will do all, and be obedient."

Truly this was a noble promise, but alas! how soon they forgot when trials and afflictions overtook them. They transgressed God's law and murmured against his servants. Yet after all, God in his infinite mercy, pardoned them and renewed his covenant, and they in turn promised to obey that they might secure the blessing, but these, like the former, were soon forgotten. Thus it continued even unto the day of John the Baptist. He too, was a messenger of God. Christ in speaking of him said, "Among those born of woman, there is not a greater prophet than John the Baptist. Notwithstanding his greatness, his message was not believed by the Jews. They trampled it under their feet, and finally put him to death. Yet God's mercy is still with them. He gives them one more opportunity. He sends his Son.

John the Baptist was the forerunner of Christ. He came to prepare a place for him. The prophet in speaking of him said, "Behold, I shall send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me, and the Lord whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to his temple," and again the same prophet speaking of this says, "Even from the days of your fathers, ye have gone away from my ordinances and have not kept them. Return unto me, and I will return unto you." If we turn to the New Testament, Mark i: 14, we find that the Lord Jesus did truly appear as the prophet had foretold. "Now after that John was put in prison. Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, saying; The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand; repent ye, and believe the gospel." This is the first preaching our Lord did after he was baptized by John. Just previous to this, at the time of his baptism, God acknowledged him as his Son, in whom he was well pleased.

We have now reached a time in the history of this people as mentioned when "God saw fit to send his Son." The Apostle Paul speaking on this point, says, "God who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in in times past unto the fathers by his prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son." Jesus' message from this time is the "Kingdom of God." He travels through all Galilee, in every village and city preaching "The gospel of the kingdom of God" and "healing all manner of sickness and disease," at the same time claiming to be the "Son of God" which he truly was. God acknowledged him as such, and not only so, but calls upon the people to hear him. Christ speaking to the people says, "I am come in my Father's name and ye received me not. Do not think I will accuse you to the Father; there is one that accuseth you. Even Moses, in whom ye trust. For had ye believed Moses, ye would have believed me, for he wrote of me. But if ye believe not his writings, how shall ye believe my words." Jesus came to his own, but his own received him not. He pleaded with them repeatedly, showing them wherein they had transgressed the law. He not only taught them their duty, but performed miracle in their sight to prove his claim, namely, that he was the "Son of God," but, notwithstanding the many wonderful works that he did, they still rejected him. No, they will not acknowledge him as the "Son of God" and their king. Yet he faithfully and persistently presented his claim until we find him arraigned before Pilate. The charge here brought against him is; he claims to be the "King of the Jews," and the "Son of God." Pilate conversed freely with our Lord on these points, and could find no fault in him, and expressed his desire to let him go. He says in John xix: 4, "Behold, I bring him forth to you, that ye may know that I find no fault in him."

When the chief priests therefore and officers saw him, they cried out, saying, "Crucify him, Crucify him." This was just previous to the passover, for which event they were making preparation, and it being customary at this time to release a prisoner as an expression of good will. Pilate being very much agitated, brings Jesus before them saying, "Behold your king." But they cry out, "Away with him, away with him, crucify him. And they took Jesus, and led him away and crucified him."

Thus we see, it was "God's own Son" that was rejected and that by his own people, the Jews, for claiming to be their king, and the Son of God. It would almost seem now, as if God's mercy was at an end. He had done so much for this people, even to the giving of his own Son, to be cruelly mocked and put to death by them, and still they were in rebellion against him. But no; his outstretched hand of mercy is still extended. He, by his omnipotence raiseth him from the dead, thereby constituting him both Lord and Christ.

The gospel was then preached in his name. This was done for about seven years among the Jews only, and resulted in many being added to the same. Some three thousand in one day. Acts xi: 41. What the number was afterward is not stated or how many continued faithful, but sufficient were taken out from among the Jews for the purpose of God, and then he turned to the Gentiles. Peter declared that God made choice of him to make known to the Gentiles the "word of the Gospel." Acts vii: 11. And James says that God visited the Gentiles to take out of them a people for his name. This work continued until the "seven churches in Asia" constituted the "body of Christ."

Paul likens the Romans, Galatians, Corinthians, Ephesians and others to a body, the head of which is Christ. Eph v: 23, iii: 6. And in the fourth chapter he speaks of the "full statue" of the "body"; verse 13. A perfect man. When this shall have been attained, the whole of the constituents of the same will be like their head, glorious and incorruptible; and will rejoice in singing the "new song", saying, "Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof: for thou wast slain, and hath redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, tongue and people and nation, and hast made us unto our God, kings and priests. And we shall reign on the earth." Rev v: 9. "And I looked, and lo, a Lamb stood on the Mount Zion, and with him an hundred and forty and four thousand, having his Father's name written in their foreheads. (xiv: 1.) And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and I saw the souls of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and for the "Word of God." And they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years. Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection; on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years. Rev xx: 4 6.

They Profaned the Name of the Lord.

Sister Nancy B. Robison strikes a keynote in her recent article entitled, "They Profaned the Name of the Lord." In these times of falling away and teaching of loose doctrine and perverse things, it is indeed refreshing to find an occasional one among the brethren who will make no compromise with error, but who stand firm as a rock, for the faith once for all delivered to the saints.

False doctrines like rank and poisonous weeds are fast creeping into the Church of God, taking root and flourishing everywhere. Josephiteism, Anglo-Israelitism, Sabbath-keeping, Foot-washing, the earth as a flat plane, pre-existence of Christ, a personal devil and other errors too numerous to mention here, with many brethren, so subverted and overshadowed the truth that it is difficult to distinguish them from the children of the evil one around them.

This being so, it becomes the duty of each of us who still holds the truth in its purity to follow the noble example of Paul and the Apostles of early days and of such modern men as Brother Joblin, Wiley Jones, Benjamin Wilson and others too numerous to mention; to stand firmly for pure and unadulterated truth, boldly attacking error wherever met.

Especially is this the hard and unpleasant duty of the Evangelist. Let him not imagine that his pathway will ever be strewn with roses while working for the Lord. To fight is a soldier's duty and expectation. The Evangelist is God's soldier. Armed with the sword of truth, he must go boldly forth ready and anxious to meet the enemy, showing no mercy, and sparing no error. Let him not hope to find a field where all will be in accord and harmony with him and the message he brings. For if such a field were found, his services would not be required there. But rather let him seek out some portion of the master's vineyard where weeds of error and unbelief grew most thick and rank threatening to overshadow and choke out the truth, and there let him boldly unsheath the sword of truth vigorously attack those weeds of error, utterly uprooting them. The life of an evangelist who does his duty is a hard one. In each new field fresh error to uproot, fresh minds to meet and arguments to overcome. It is like starting out on a long race of many many miles with a fresh antagonist setting in against you every mile. Little wonder that evangelists who labor earnestly often break down under the constant nervous strain.

But courage, dear Brother or Sister who labor, yours is a noble work and like Israel of old, who went out to battle, the Lord is with you, then who can be against you? Let us not through love of peace and fear of offending those we love supinely wink at the errors they hold and allow them to slumber on in the false security of ignorance, lest by so doing we "profane the name of the Lord". But rather let us cleanse the sanctuary, vigorously attacking by word and pen the errors held rather than those who hold them, and God will surely add his blessing and in due time an abundant reward to those of his servants who reap and faint not.

A Visit.

On Sunday, August 1, we, the church of God in Salem, Ohio, had the pleasure of greeting Brother and Sister Tomlinson of Cleveland. They have long held a prominent place in the Church in that city. Together they have worked for the best interests of the Church and Sunday-School. They are sound in faith, and have stood for the truth to salvation. We had much pleasure in their visit. They were the guests of Brother and Sister Robison. Brother Tomlinson conducted the Lord's Table service in his kindly, earnest, and impressive manner. He stayed until Monday evening. Sister Tomlinson stayed until Thursday evening. We hope they may soon be able to come again. They have a very interesting baby daughter Ruth, just trying to talk, and who added no little to the enjoyment of the occasion. We would, of course, prefer to meet them next time in the kingdom of God instead of Salem, and to this end we fervently pray, Come Lord Jesus.

The Berean Column.

JESUS, THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD.

This subject appeals to me under three different headings, 1st Jesus, the light of the world; 2nd, The name of Jesus; 3rd, The Lamb of God, and yet when we think of it, they are all most beautifully united in one.

What person in the Bible is more dear to us than Jesus? What story is more pleasing and uplifting to us than the story of Jesus? Listen! "Thou shalt call his name Jesus." (The name Jesus means Savior.) "He shall save his people from their sins." "Fear not; for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord." This should be a joy to all people. To some we are sorry to say it isn't, but to some we know it is their greatest joy, because they believe in him who is the Life-giver.

David believed in him, he had the greatest confidence, when he said, "The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life, of whom shall I be afraid?" Again in the 119th Psalm David said, "Thy Word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path." Do all people have this great confidence and love of the Lord? No, we are sorry to say. Only those who have taken the name of Jesus upon them can have it, for if we have love, we have confidence.

Jesus said in the 12th chapter of John, Yet a little while is the light with you. Walk while ye have the light, lest darkness come upon you; for he that walketh in darkness knoweth not whither he goeth. While ye have light, believe in the light, that ye may be the children of light. I am come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth on me should not abide in darkness." He also said in the 8th chapter of John, I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.

We have different degrees of light. They graduate from the very dimest to the very brightest. There is one great light that excels all other lights. This we know is Jesus. He is the light. As light is the opposite to darkness, so is Jesus opposite to the Devil. For certainly, they that follow the devil, walk in darkness.

In 1 John i 6-7 we read, "If we say have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lie and do not the truth. But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanses us from all sin." Let us follow Jesus, who is the light of the world. He said in the 9th chapter of John, "As long as I am in the world; I am the light of the world."

When John saw Jesus coming toward him he said. "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world." A lamb is used as a symbol of sacrifice. Peter speaks of Christ as a "lamb without blemish and without spot." He then was a perfect lamb. He was made a sacrifice for the sins of men. "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life."

Jesus said, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends," Jesus in the very act of laying down his life for his friends, showed his greatest love. That certainly is the hardest thing a person can do. Most people value their own lives so much, that it seems as though it would be impossible for them to sacrifice it for another's benefit, although they may dearly love them.

This is our only way open for salvation, "For there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." Acts iv 12. Christ became "obedient unto death, even the death of the cross." Wherefore God hath highly exalted him and given him a name which is above every name. That at the name of Jesus, every knee should bow, of things in heaven and things in earth and things under the earth. And that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father. Phil xx 9, 10, 11.

Certainly Jesus' name is above every name. It is through him that we may "believe the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ," and baptized into his name only, that after trying to use Christ as our example in life, that we will see the glories of the age to come. Let us make ourselves ready to meet Jesus, the light of the world, and the "Lamb of God who beareth away the sins of the world." Also that we may be ready to be called into the marriage supper of the Lamb. "Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honor to him for the marriage supper of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself ready. And to her was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and bright; for the fine linen is the righteousness of saints. And he saith unto me, Write, Blessed are they which are called unto the marriage supper of the Lamb." "And the city had no need of the sun, neither of the moon, to shine in it; for the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof. And the nations of them which are saved shall walk in the light of it, and the kings of the earth do bring their glory and honor into it. And the gates of it shall not be shut at all by day; for there shall be no night there. And they shall bring the glory and honor of the nations into it. And there shall in no wise enter into it anything that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination or maketh a lie; but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life."

Let it be your prayer and mine, that we may be ready when Jesus comes, who is the light of the world. When the resurrection has taken place and the living are changed, there will be such a time of rejoicing as the world has never known. Then will be everlasting joy and peace.

JESSIE M. WILSON.

Dear Bereans:

The subject "Good Works" we consider a very important one, which ought to be kept constantly before our minds. The Saviour exhorted us to love and to do good works. In James ii: 20, we read that "faith without works is dead;" also in verse 14, "If a man have not works can faith save him?" "Yea, a man may say, Thou hast faith and I have works: show me thy faith without thy works; and I will show thee my faith by my works."

Was not Abraham, our father justified by works, when he had offered Isaac, his son, upon the altar? Seest thou how faith wrought with his works, and by works was faith made perfect." And the Scripture was fulfilled which saith, Abraham believed God, and it was imputed unto him for righteousness; and he was called the friend of God. Ye see then, how that by works a man is justified, and not by faith only. James ii: 22, exhorts his brethren to be doers of the Word, and not hearers only.

Many people seem to believe that their salvation depends upon their good works, while others may go to the other extreme and think if they have the faith that is all sufficient, but by the Scripture above quoted it shows plainly that faith and works cannot be separated, one being as essential as the other. A real Christian will be known by his works. This truth Jesus taught; "Ye shall know them by their fruits."

We cannot manifest a Christian character without its effects being witnessed by those around us. Works to be approved by God must be incited by love: love to God and to our fellowmen. Luke x: 26-27. When a certain lawyer asked Christ what he should do to inherit eternal life, Jesus said to him, "What is written in the law? How readest thou?" He answering said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself." And he said unto him, "Thou hast answered right: this do, and thou shalt live." So much love would certainly lead a person to faith and obedience to all God's requirements. 1 Cor xiii.

The Apostle Paul, speaking of charity (love) says: "Though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing, and though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing." He then tells us of the fruit it brings forth in those who possess it, and it never fails. John vi: 28.

When the people asked Christ what they should do that they might work the works of God? Jesus said unto them, "This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent." 1 John iii: 23:24. "And this is his commandment, and he that keepeth his commandments dwelleth in him, and he in him, and hereby we know that he abideth in us, by the spirit which he hath given us."

We must carry out the principles taught by Christ in our everyday life, by our conduct, our conversation, our works striving day by day to carry out the golden rule; to hold up the standard of truth, adding to our faith, virtue, (courage) telling to others the gospel and urging them to accept, it manifesting patience and forbearance with those who will not listen when we tell them of the coming king and kingdom. We must do good to others, putting down self and working for those by whom we are surrounded, lightening their sorrows and cares as far as we can and we shall have our reward at the coming and kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

ANNA L. ADAMS.

Brother Huggins:

I am glad of the opportunity of coming to your aid in answer to your question propounded in THE RESTITUTION of Aug 11.

In answer would say, that the persons referred to in Heb x 28, 29 are those that died on account of their own personal sin. They have died one death. Their condition is set forth in Isa xxvi 13, 14. The wages of sin is death. Rom vi 23. The man that comes to Christ by obedience to the gospel, he being the resurrection and the life, John xi 25, the same is entitled to a resurrection from the dead. He, if he backslides, is the unjust steward and will come forth to suffer the second death. This makes two deaths for him, while the others suffers one. This is the sorer punishment received by them, "that hath done despite unto the Spirit of grace."

Yours for the truth.

It is a good thing to undo your packages of truth before you fling them at folks.

Never pray that others may do their part until you have done yours toward them.

Poetry.

Verses.

A long time ago when the Savior was born,
There were shepherds watching by night
Their flocks; when an angel appeared unto them,
And around them shone a bright light.

They were frightened, "Fear not," said the angel to them,
"For behold, unto you I now bring
Glad tidings; great joy, for to you there is born
A Savior who is Christ and a King."

Then a heavenly host in the heavens appeared,
Singing "Glory to God the Most High,
Peace on earth and good will to all men" was their theme,
Then returned to th ir home in the sky.

And now, when the angels to heaven were gone,
"To Bethlehem, now let us be gone,"
Said the shepherd, "And see what is this we have heard,
Which the Lord unto us has made known."

They journeyed to Bethlehem, and there they found
That the Babe in a manger was laid
In swaddling clothes wrapped, and no other place found;
For his bed with the oxen was made.

This Babe grew to manhood, filled with wisdom divine,
And in favor with God and with man,
And by wonderful works soon proclaimed to the world
That his mission on earth had began.

Forthwith to the Jordan, where John is, he goes,
And was buried beneath its bright wave,
Thus fulfilling all righteousness, showing the way
For his children to walk and be saved.

And when he came forth from his watery grave
Lo, the heavens were severed in twain,
And the Spirit of God, in the shape of a dove
Descended on him and remained.

And a voice came from heaven, which said, "I'm well pleased
With my beloved Son," and straightway
To the wilderness went to be tempted and tried,
And for forty long days did he stay.

But he overcame satan. Now he says to his friends
"To him that o'ercomes satan and sin,
He will grant them to sit on his throne
As his Father has granted to him."

He traveled from city to city, to preach
The Good News of the kingdom of God,
Doing good to the people and healing disease,
While spreading the message abroad.

Despised and rejected of men, and oppressed,
But proclaiming the news far and near.
Man of sorrows was he and acquainted with grief,
And our sorrows and sins did he bear.

The haughty, proud Pharisees hated and scorned
Because of the good deeds he had done.
He condemned their hypocrisy, no fault could they find;
For his doctrine and precepts they shunned.

They tried hard to kill him, but failed every time;
For his time had not come, by the way
They sent spies to entrap him and when they returned,
"Never man spake like this Man," they say.

Footsore and weary o'er Judean hills,
He into the synagogues went,
To the end that the lost sheep of Israel might hear
The message for which he was sent.

He chose twelve apostles with him to proclaim
The Good News of his kingdom and reign;
But one proved a traitor, his Master betrayed,
Thirty pieces of silver his gain

And then when his mission was done freely gave
His life for the life of the world,
But his enemies then when hanging on the cross
Their spithets still at him hurled.

For three awful hours he hung on the cross.
Then he cried to his Father and said,
"Into thy hands I my Spirit commit,"
And having said this, he was dead.

No wonder that darkness prevailed o'er the land
When the Son of Man died on the tree,
No wonder the sun shut its light from the world,
What other result could there be?

Into Joseph's new tomb then they laid him to rest
Rolled a stone to the mouth of the cave
Set a watch to guard for fear he would rise
And escape them. O were they not brave?

But his Father was watching his well beloved Son,
And he sent a bright angel and he
Rolled away the great stone from the mouth of the cave,
And his face was like lightning to see.

And he said to the Marys that came to the tomb,
And were frightened and trembling with fear,
"I know ye seek Jesus, but go you and tell
His friends "he's alive, he's not here."

He met his disciples, discoursed with them oft,
And gave a commission to them,
The same that his Father had given to him,
For the life and salvation of men.

"Go preach the Good News in all nations and climes,
And he that obeys my commands
Shall be saved in the kingdom I send you to preach,
He that believes not shall be damned."

Then said his disciples to Jesus their Lord,
"Wilt thou now at this time restore
The kingdom to Israel as of old,
As the prophets have spoken before."

And while he thus spake, up to heaven he rose
And a cloud shut him out of their sight,
And two shining angels appear by their side
Clothed in shining apparel so bright.

"Why stand you thus gazing to heaven?" they say,
"This same Jesus who to heaven was sent,
Shall come in like manner as you see him go,
With ten thousands of angels and saints."

He is coming, yes, coming, he soon will be here
To gather his ransomed ones home,
For his children are crying each day of their lives
"Come Jesus," they say, "quickly come."

A Question Answered.

The following appeared in THE RESTITUTION of June 23. We would have answered sooner, but have been very busy and most of the time away from home. LIGHT WANTED. Do the last eight chapters of Ezekiel teach conclusively that the old Jewish priesthood is to be renewed in the age with its ceremonies, sacrifices, Sabbaths, etc? Shall rivers of blood continue to flow from the altar throughout the age? If so, what can be the object? Can the type extend beyond the antitype? If countless thousands of innocent animals must be slaughtered and continue to breathe out their lives from day to day on gilded altars how shall we interpret such Scriptures as this? They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain, saith the Lord, for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea. S. H. Thomas.

I shall not try to answer these questions in detail, but I will give a reason for the hope within with meekness and fear. We are asked to state if the things spoken of in Ezek xl to the close are to understood literally. We see no reason why this prophecy cannot have a fulfilment in the age to come. The language to us seems plain. We do not think that this teaches that the old Jewish priesthood will be renewed. That perished with the law.

Let us note what the prophet says, Ezek xl 2, "In the vision of God brought he me into the land of Israel, and set me upon a very high mountain, upon which was the frame of a city on the south. In this city is a building which the messenger proceeds to measure. He first measured the inside, then the outside. The first three chapters measure the temple or house. In the 43rd chapter we have the law of the house given in which is an altar. Upon this altar are to be offered sacrifices. The remaining chapters describe the measurement of the city and the portion given to the Prince and the priests and to those who shall assist in the altar service. Also the assignment of the land to the tribes as they shall receive it under the ruling of Christ and the saints. Bro. T. seems to object to the idea of animal sacrifice in the coming age. It seems to be the most natural thing that could take place. God's purpose was to make Israel a holy nation, and through Israel as a nation to fill the earth with his glory. I need not prove that Israel will be given their land as all who believe the gospel believe that. But I am expected to show what will take place in regard to Israel after the return of Christ. We understand by the prophets that when Jesus Christ shall appear that many of Abraham's fleshly seed will have settled in the land and will be in great distress.

At that time the Lord will deliver them. See Zech xii 6-8. After their deliverance what? This same prophet says xiii 9, And I will bring the third part through the fire and I will refine them as silver is refined, and I will try them as gold is tried. They shall call on my name and I will hear them. I will say, It is my people; and they shall say the Lord is my God. In this connection please see Ezek xx 33-38. As I live, saith the Lord God surely with a mighty hand and with a stretched out arm, and with fury poured out, will I rule over you. And I will bring you out from the people, and will gather you out of the countries wherein ye are scattered with a mighty hand and with a stretched out arm and fury poured out. And I will bring you unto the wilderness of thy people and there will I plead with you face to face, like as I pleaded with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I plead with you, saith the Lord. And I will cause you to pass under the rod, and I will bring you into the bond of the covenant. And I will purge out from among you the rebels and them that transgress against me. I will bring them forth out of the country where they sojourn, and they shall not enter into the land of Israel; and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

We quote the above to show that Israel will be gathered again and that the Lord will plead with them and cause them to pass under the rod. They will be brought into the bond of the covenant. Israel will be purged, that is purified. The question is what can be the object of placing them under the law of sacrifices? The purpose is to purify them and make of them suitable subjects for the kingdom of God. Paul says, Rom xi 28, 29. As concerning the gospel they (Israel) are enemies for your sake, but as touching the election, they are beloved (subjects) for the fathers' sakes. For the gifts and calling of God are without repentance. In what better way could they be made pure? Again, it is asked, Can the type extend beyond the anti-type? That is Can the sacrifice which pointed to Christ as the great sacrifice be again renewed? I can see no reason why it should not be so when we learn that every sacrifice before and under the law not only pointed forward to the Christ sacrifice, but backward as well to the first sacrifice, in which the animals were slain in order that our parents might live and fill the earth with their offspring. Gen. iii. 21. Otherwise the race would have become extinct. We do not understand that these sacrifices will continue during the whole period of the one thousand years. It is for the purpose of purifying Israel. This must be accomplished before the kingdom can be again restored. It will require the one thousand years to fully establish the kingdom and to bring in perfect righteousness. Acts xv. 16, After this I will return and will build up the tabernacle of David which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up, (establish it.) Now the full restoration of Israel is included in this prophecy. Israel today is resting under the curse of a national disobedience. This must be atoned for before she can again be brought into covenant relation to Jehovah. The object is to teach them to have just balances and to execute judgment and justice. Evidently the time for the offering of these sacrifices must be limited. It may occupy a period of forty years. I do not know, but of this I am assured that Jehovah will not restore Israel to national favor without testing them. Then why not accept the language of the prophet literally? This seems to be the only objectional feature in these chapters. There is nothing in these chapters to prevent the earth being filled with his glory nor in establishing the fact that nothing shall harm in all my holy mountain, as this can only take place at the close and after the one thousand years. We feel that we have just started this subject and trust that others will help in the further discussion of what seems to be a troublesome question to many honest hearts. We have very reluctantly undertaken the task assigned us by our brother, and hope that the subject may not rest here.

Your brother, in the search of truth.

Consolation.

It is the general custom for the clergy to console the bereaved, on funeral occasions, by encouraging them to hope and believe that their departed loved ones have already gone to heaven to be with Jesus their Lord, in whom they trusted. This has also led the dying Christian to believe that to depart this life is only to exchange it for a better and more glorious one in heaven, and that it is only a question of moments, and Jesus is already present to receive them at their last parting breath.

Portions of the 15th chapter of 1 Cor are generally read on funeral occasions, but the real teaching of that chapter seems to be overlooked. They fail to see that the future life and glory is to be realized after the "first resurrection." Paul says: "For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised: and if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain, ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished." 1 Cor. xv: 16-18. Webster's Unabridged Dictionary says, "Sleep implies unconsciousness."

People seem to have no patience to wait the Lord's time, but believe and teach what he has not promised or encouraged. Job said: "For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth: and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God; whom I shall see for myself, and my eyes shall behold, and not another; though my reins be consumed within me." Job xix: 25-27. Again he says: If a man die, shall he live again? All the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come. Thou shalt call, and I will answer thee: thou wilt have a desire to the work of thine hands." Job xiv: 14, 15.

The waiting time of the unconscious sleeper is not realized. The moment of sleeping and the moment of awaking will seem like one moment succeeding another with no intervening period of time. Then why should we dread to sleep in Jesus?

I find no divine promise or encouragement to the bereaved, that their departed friends are now in heaven. The best promises and encouragements that I find in the scriptures are such passages as the following: John vi: 39, 40; "And this is the Father's will which hath sent me, that of all which he hath given me I should lose nothing, but should raise it up again at the last day. And this is the will of him that sent me, that every one which seeth the Son and believeth on him, may have everlasting life: and I will raise him up at the last day." The last day, evidently, is the day of the Lord, when he shall come again, in the clouds of heaven, as he went away. Acts i: 9-11.

John xiv: 1-3; "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." Yes, Jesus will come again, before his beloved disciples can occupy the many mansions.

Paul gives very definite encouragement in his first letter to the Thessalonian church, chapter iv, verses 13 to 18; but it is very far from the belief of going to heaven at death. This is the consolation which he gave; "But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent (go before) them which are asleep. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first; then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord. Wherefore comfort one another with these words."

Psa. xvii: 15; David said, "I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness." Why should not we be then satisfied.

Here is another precious promise: Col iii: 4; "When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory." Again, 1 John iii: 2. John says: "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is."

Paul shows that our real salvation is at the time when Christ shall appear. Heb. ix: 27, 28. "And as it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment; so Christ was once offered to bear the sin of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation." Perhaps you say we are saved now? Notice Rom viii: 22-25. "For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now. And not only they, but ourselves also, which have the first fruits of the spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption, to-wit, the redemption of our body. For we are saved by hope; but hope that is seen is not hope; for what a man seeth, why doth he yet hope for? But if we hope for that we see not, then do we with patience wait for it."

Matt x: 22. Jesus said: "And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake; but he that endureth to the end shall be saved."

Let us, then, be content with the consolation which God gives us, and abide his coming; for, "We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump." 1 Cor xv; 51, 52.

Editor Restitution:

The brethren of the Church of God extends Christian greetings, and invite all those of like precious faith and any one interested in the truth, to be present at our Ohio State Conference here in Springfield August 25 to 30.

Any one wishing to be met at any trains, please notify main ample time. Provision will be made to accommodate all who come, and we hope the brethren from other states will be able to attend. Please bring towels and all necessary toilet articles. Let this Conference be the best ever held in Ohio, and each one feel it your duty to help make it so by coming.

Address me R. F. D. 7, Springfield, O.
Miss JESSIE KAUFFMAN.

Indiana Please Notice.

The yearly conference for Indiana is to be at Rensselaer early in October. All who come please notify Sister Flora Harris beforehand, so that all may be in readiness.

Now brethren, Indiana has possibilities for a great work the coming year, and much of our success will depend on this conference. Come. We have a large membership and generous means. We have several strong congregations for edification and many scattered members who will be able to aid in evangelizing new localities, by affording a good opening. We have many earnest young people at work in Bible Study. We have several good Sunday Schools and Berean Societies. We have several young men ready to go to preaching. All we need is to take new heart and unite our forces. Let us get our numbers in touch with each other, combine our finances and efforts and all put our talents together for united work. Let each congregation see to it that several leading members from your church are at conference. If agreeable, pay their way. Let as many isolated members as possible come and be renewed for another year. We expect one or two new speakers, and many of the old faithful ones who have served so well. Many new and important things are likely to come up. Come in a Christian spirit of love. Bring your enthusiasm along.

In order for better work in Berean and Bible study, pastoral oversight and evangelizing, it is desired that the secretary be furnished with the names and addresses of all members in the state. I ask each secretary of a congregation please send a list of your members to her and all isolated members do the same by a postal card to Lydia Ballsback, 621 S. Fellows St., South Bend, Indiana.

Dear Brethren in the One Faith:

The Missouri Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus will be held this year at Morse Mill, Mo., beginning the evening of August 25, and closing Sunday evening, August 29. We want every one, who possibly can to come and help us make this second annual Conference in Missouri a success, as was promised by the first one, last year.

All People coming by way of St. Louis, will take the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern Railroad to Victoria, where hacks will take them to Hillsboro. Here they will be met by the brethren. Those coming from the south, also take the St. L. I. M. & S. to Victoria. Everyone who is thinking of coming, write to Brother J. F. Williams, Hillsboro, Mo.

Provisions will be made to take care of every one, no matter how many, who come. There are a number of brethren in Missouri whom we hope will be present and help in the work, which is so necessary.

Anyone desiring more information, write to:—Sadie Morse, Sec'y, 311 E. Culton St., Warrensburg, Mo.

Indiana Conference.

SEPT. 30 TO OCT. 8.

The Rensselaer Church, where it is to be held, is desirous to have a full attendance, therefore sends greeting: Come all who can. Ample provision will be in readiness to care for all who may come, in the way of sustaining the "outer man" with food and rest; with due care however that the fare be not gorgeous, destroying or impairing the relish for the food from the spiritual store house, to "renew the inner man" (Christ in you the hope of glory) to be ministered by those assembled. Come with vessels well filled to give liberally, as giving will not diminish, but increase the amount in store, whereby all may share in the sweet comfort and rest in Christ, having a foretaste of that "feast of fat things" when the Lord of hosts shall reign in Mount Zion, destroying the face of the covering cast over all people, and the vail that is spread over all nations. Begin at once to make arrangements to be at the Conference from start to finish.

Programme Iowa Conference.

Dear Brothers and Sisters of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus:

As it nears the time set for the annual conference which will be held as usual, at our Camp-ground in the beautiful Cedar River Park at Waterloo, Iowa; this year from August 21st to the 29th, inclusive, we send you this greeting and a printed program.

We invite you to be present and take part in the various meetings, and to assist in making plans for the next year's work. You should be on hand to hear the reports of officers and evangelists, and to learn how the money you have contributed to the support of the Conference has been expended.

Those who have attended the conference heretofore and experienced the pleasure of associating with those of like precious faith, and of listening to the word of God from the lips of those who speak, it is not necessary to urge to be present, as they know of the benefits to be derived from a meeting of this kind, but to those who have not as yet met with us, we urge upon you the necessity of partaking of these annual feasts of spiritual food, so that in the months to come we may all be better able to overcome the evils of the world, and have new courage to press forward to the mark of the high calling.

Ohio Conference.

To the Church of God in Ohio, my beloved Brethren:

By the time you read this it will be one year since the last, the sixth Ohio Conference. We are now close on the seventh. It is needless to go into details of the value of the annual meeting. It is impossible to fully estimate the great and lasting benefits to all who attend with a sincere desire to help further the work of the Lord. This statement is made on the testimony of those who were present at past gatherings. Those who were there "in singleness of heart, fearing God."

All who have a heart-felt interest in "sounding out the Word of the Lord" will be at Springfield, unless positively prevented by circumstances.

The Young people are especially entreated not to give the least consideration to anything of less importance. There is no other meeting at which they can glean, and treasure up more grand truths by which they can grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

The faithful everywhere can be assured of a hearty welcome from the Springfield brethren.

Dearly beloved, let us who are "the children of light, and the children of the day" "be diligent that we may be found of him in peace, without spot, and blameless."

P. Neill.

Try The Restitution, $1.50 a year

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take The Restitution, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take The Restitution on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured the VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Berean meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. Thompson, Sec'y., 303 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

Brethren, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to The Restitution for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

Hindu Literature.

This book of over 400 pages is of special value to the young people in order to enable them to meet the attacks upon Christianity from Theosophists and others. It has been fully endorsed by the most eminent Oriental scholars of Europe as being authentic, and the historic facts here presented are unimpeachable. A few copies of this standard $1 50 book may now be had for $1.00 a copy post paid. It is used in colleges and universities. Send all orders to Mrs. Elizabeth A Read, 1311 Belmoral av, Chicago, Illinois.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10009 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

Please don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in The Restitution. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. Daniel.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

Twelve Words, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Ever lasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

The Gospel of the Kingdom, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in The Restitution some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies post paid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10613 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. and Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid as we—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp, and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

The Cost of Worth.

God gives no value unto men
Unmocked by need of labor;
And cost of worth has ever been
The closest neighbor.

All common good has common price;
Exceeding good, exceeding;
Christ bought the keys of Paradise
By cruel bleeding.

And every soul that wins a place
Upon its hills of pleasure,
Must give its all, and beg for grace
To fill the measure.

The Bible and Its Message. No. 14.

Speculation leads to theory, but reason leads to the truth. We are invited to come an I reason together. The Bereans were an excellent people because they searched to see if what Paul preached was true or not. Again we are admonished to prove all things and hold fast that which is good. Joseph Cook once said that every speech should begin with an indisputable proposition. A few weeks ago I had a conversation with a friend on the subject of baptism. He claiming that it was not necessary to salvation. It was only a command. In writing on baptism I wish to introduce an indisputable proposition; namely, "baptism is immersion." No Greek scholar will for one moment dispute this proposition. Baptize is not a rendered word. It is a Greek word translated into English by substitution of the English letters for the corresponding Greek letters. Those having the Diaglott can see the English equivalents for the Greek letters in the word baptize. The Greek word is "baptizo" and is always rendered by the English word immerse, dip, plunge, bury, plant, etc. To render it by any other word is to do violence to the Greek and English languages. The above words have but one meaning. Each is equivalent to the other. The word sprinkle is rendered from the word "rantizo" and has but one meaning. To say that "I baptize you in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit," and apply a few drops of water to the face is not only speaking but is acting a lie in the name of Jehovah God. It is a well known fact that license to sprinkle was first practiced by the Catholic church. As was stated by a well known English bishop that sprinkling was substituted because of its convience. Luther, Calvin, Knox and all of the reformers stated the same. Calvin claiming that the church had the right to change from immersion to sprinkling.

It is a terrible thing to change God's Word into a falsehood. If we were to examine early church history we would find that the writers of the centuries following the apostles all taught immersion to be baptism or baptism is immersion I wish now to refer to New Testament testimony on this very important subject. In Matt iii 5, 6. Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the region round about Jordan, and were baptized of him in Jordan, confessing their sins. Mark i 5 And there went out unto him all the land of Judea, and they of Jerusalem, and were all baptized of him in the river Jordan confessing their sins. It is plainly stated here that John baptized IN the river of Jordan. If sprinkling were practiced why go to the river? Why not carry a little water to the church and use it there. Not so, they baptized in the river, John immersed those who came unto him.

Again we read. Then cometh Jesus from Galilee to Jordan unto John, to be baptized of him. When Jesus was baptized he went up straightway out of the water. He must have gone down into the water in order to come up out of it. He evidently was baptized while in the water.

"Go thou and do likewise." Reason would dictate that those who sprinkle should go down into the water. I wish to call attention to Philip and the Ethiopian. They went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him. The historian Luke has made it so plain that there can be no need of a difference of opinion. If we speculate it leads to opinions. They both went down into the water and Philip baptized him and they came up out of the water. Would it be just to say that they both went down into the water and Philip sprinkled him? This is just what those who sprinkle should affirm and they should practice it. The question is asked, "How about Paul and the jailor? There is no evidence that Paul immersed him and his family." It could not have been done in the jail, they say. Please note Acts xvi 30. He brought them out. The jailor said, Sirs, what must I do to be saved? They said, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved and thy house. And they spake unto him the words of the Lord and to all that were in his house. And he took them the same hour of the night and washed their stripes; and was baptized he and his straightway. What we wish to state here is that Paul and Silas were brought out of the jail and taught the Word, and they were baptized. They were not rantized or sprinkled. Paul was commanded to arise and be baptized and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord. Would reason say that Paul's sins were washed away before his baptism? By no means.

Thus far we have proven that baptism is immersion in water and not a few drops of water sprinkled on the face. We wish now to prove baptism is a form and has a deep meaning. Paul says in Rom vi 17, But God be thanked since ye were the servants of sin, but ye have obeyed from the heart that form (mold) of doctrine which was delivered you. The form or mold of doctrine is here spoken of as having been obeyed. Rom vi 3, 5. Know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we were buried with him by baptism into death; that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection. To be baptized into his death means to be covered up. To be buried with him cannot mean to have a few drops of water sprinkled on the face. Again we were planted together in the likeness of his death. This form or mold of doctrine means a burial, death and resurrection. Sprinkling has no reference to a burial. The importance of this form is alluded to in the Corinthian letter. xv 3. For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received how that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures? And that he was buried and that he rose again the third day according to the Scriptures. Three things are here affirmed, viz: that Christ died, was buried and rose according to the Scriptures. It was needful that they believe these facts. These facts can only be believed and obeyed from the heart by submitting to baptism. He who rejects it rejects salvation To be buried in water alone will not save. It must be preceded by an intelligent faith in the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus, the Christ, and repentance of your sins. This renders your baptism valid. Thus far we have proven that baptism signifies a death, burial and resurrection.

We wish now to prove that it is a seal. In Rom iv 11, Paul says that circumcision was received by Abraham as a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had yet being uncircumcised. A seal is an instrument to legalize a document in which a covenant has been made. A deed of conveyance is legal only when the seal of the official is affixed. This officer must have a legal right to affix this seal or it is not legal. No Gentile would have been permitted to have circumcised a Jew. It was legal when performed by one of Abraham's seed. If this were neglected he was cut off. He could not claim a right to the promise made to the fathers. In Col ii and Rom iv we read of two circumcisions. One made with hands and the one made without hands. The apostle says, Ye are complete in him (Christ). In whom also ye are circumcised with the circumcision made without hands, in putting off the body of sins of the flesh by the circumcision of Christ. Now Paul tells us what this circumcision is, viz. baptism. Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God who raised him from the dead.

Circumcision under the covenant made with Abraham (Gen xvii) was a seal of his faith. Why is not baptism, which Paul declares to be that circumcision not made with hands, a seal of our faith. In following the analogy through, one is as important and necessary as the other. "Jesus said to John, Suffer it to be so now; for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness." Now if it was necessary in the case of Christ, who had no sin, is it not doubly necessary for us. Noah was commanded to prepare an ark that he and his family might be saved, and they were commanded also to go into it that they might be saved. We are also commanded to get into Christ that we may be saved. Ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. In this act we take upon ourselves the name of Jehovah. It is the fixing of the seal.

We wish now to close this article by showing the needfulness of baptism. In disobedience Adam brought death into the world, and without further provisions the race would have become extinct. The provision was made through the seed of the woman. The penalty of the law was DEATH, a violent death. Adam was permitted to die a natural death. Therefore the seed of the woman must suffer the violent death that all who believed in him might be permitted to live. Jesus suffered this death on the cross and therefore obtained eternal redemption. When this was accomplished the world could be reconciled to God through Jesus Christ on the conditions of faith, repentance and baptism. Every one of Adam's race must suffer death through the administration of baptism. We must gain eternal redemption for ourselves as did Jesus. Heb ix 12. In submitting to this form we crucify with him our old man; that is we put him to death in our immersion. The old Adamic seed has been destroyed and the new seed has been planted. We have been made a new man. The body of sin has been destroyed. Here we become a part of that spiritual seed promised to Abraham of which Jesus is the head. If ye are Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise. We are now reconciled to God through Jesus, the Christ, and are admonished to continue in him who has been given all power in heaven and earth, and has promised if faithful to raise us up at the last day. Dear brothers and sisters, let us so abide in the true vine that we may draw our new life from a source that can never be extinguished.

Your brother abiding.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 11.

Brother and Sister Willard must have gone on from their visit here, and at Warsaw, Oswego, Monoquet and Bourbon, to a Conference of the Crisis people at DeKalb, Illinois, as I find a letter, dated Sept 12, 1869; that was written and mailed at DeKalb. They were met by Brother and Sister Mansfield, Bro. Himes and two sons, together with some other brethren whom they had known in former years, and felt quite at home surrounded as they were by familiar faces. Bro. Sheldon had preached in the morning, Sister Mansfield in the afternoon and Bro. Himes in the evening. Many were sadly disappointed at not seeing father there. Bro. Himes looked and was really feeble, as was also Brother and Sister Mansfield—nearly worn out while yet young.

Brother and Sister Willard had intended coming back here, when they left us. It made her nearly sick because she could not do so. It was too sad to her to even mention to father and mother. The Mr. and Mrs. Chipman whom they mention as having visited at Warsaw, were searchers after truth. They were not members of any church, standing out from principle.

The next letter after that of November 8, 1872, was written Dec. 5, of the same year,—the years of 1870—71, seeming to be skipped entirely, or else the letters belonging to these years have been lost. Brother Willard says in the neatly written sheet, "Through mercy we are still preserved and are enjoying good health. I often wonder when looking back upon my past experience, remembering as I well do, when I was taught that George Washington was the President of our country, and I have been cognizant of all his successors, down to the present incumbent, and what is stranger, I have been spared to outlive them all, save ex-president Johnson and Grant, (Bro. W—was born Aug 4, 1794). And the changes and improvements that have taken place in my day cannot well be computed, and what is most to be regarded, is the soon merging of all earthly kingdoms into the kingdom for which we have so long been praying, and hence a time that will try the hearts of the children of men. The busy world sees none of these things but vaguely hopes that at the time of their exit, their spirits will gravitate to a waiting heaven.

I am surprised that Brother Grant should refuse to publish your article (The Generations and Prophetical Periods) one from me, some years ago was refused on the same grounds, that it clashed with their theology, prospectively,"—as to probation in the age to come. Have you ordered your article returned? We would like to see it." (It was afterwards published in THE RESTITUTION.) Bro. Willard then goes on to say, "I fear there is a tendency to guard the sanctuary and bar out all that is considered heresy, whether it be such or not, but the matter must come to a crisis when public defense must bring the truth to light, or somebody be forced to back down, for good and strong brethren are of the opinion that all will not be consummated at Christ's second coming as they expect, but to fill out the program of Scripture, probation must be protracted a 1000 years at least. To undertake to convince the religious world, that Satan has been under bonds for a millennium of years already to my mind would be an impossibility, and as our honest views are throttled, by having no mouth piece among us, it gives them a decided advantage; but I don't charge them with dishonesty, but with a determination to coerce unity, irrespective of others feelings, and equal rights to speak the true interpretation as we understand the Word, as well as they."

As to Christ's proximate coming we do not disagree; but the great future when the day spring from on high shall dissipate the great darkness which now covers the world, may not consign the ignorant to eternal oblivion. Truly God is not honored in such a result, such is not the tenure of the Scriptures, I know the elect will be comparatively few, and if probation closes at the coming of Christ, redemption through Christ will apparently prove a failure.

We are greatly pleased that we may look for you in February. Cannot your brother Morse come with you? Please write him on our behalf. We have plenty and to spare, and will try to make your stay profitable to our brethren in the city."

Thursday, March 27th, 1878, Sister Willard writes "The Name of the Lord is a strong tower; the righteous runneth into it and are safe." This text was a great comfort to me all day yesterday. What matters it where we are if we are safely housed in that 'strong tower?' 'Father had just returned from Haddonfield and had written back that Mr. Wince and myself were the happy parents of a first-born son. I also had enclosed a note, at which she was greatly surprised. In replying she gave me much kind, motherly counsel, knowing my disposition to wait upon others while forgetting the proper care of myself.

Rowland had graduated the evening before, and Auntie Willard said "When he entered the house on his return from the city, it reminded her of the victors in the Grecian games."

The foster daughter, Ella L. Benton was at this time in Boston, and had been visiting Sister Hastings at her home in Lynn. Mary Hastings and Amy S. Whiting had just came home. I think they had been teaching in the South among the colored people.

Indiana Conference.

SEPT. 30 to OCT. 3.

The Rensselaer Church, where it is to be held, is desirous to have a full attendance, therefore sends greeting: Come all who can. Ample provision will be in readiness to care for all who may come, in the way of sustaining the "outer man" with food and rest; with due care however that the fare be not gorgeous, destroying or impairing the relish for the food from the spiritual store house, to "renew the inner man" (Christ in you the hope of glory), to be ministered by those assembled. Come with vessels well filled to give liberally, as giving will not diminish, but increase the amount in store, whereby all may share in the sweet comfort and rest in Christ, having a foretaste of that "feast of fat things" when the Lord of hosts shall reign in Mount Zion, destroying the face of the covering cast over all people, and the vail that is spread over all nations. Begin at once to make arrangements to be at the Conference from start to finish.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential to final salvation.

Obituary.

G. W. Benage, the subject of this sketch was born April 8, 1826, in Union County, Pennsylvania, and died at his home in Bristow, Iowa, July 27, 1909, at the age of 83 years, 3 months and 19 days, of dropsy. He was ill eight months.

Mr. Benage was united in marriage April 27, 1847, to Miss Agnes S. Stevenson, and to this marriage were born two children—J. S. Benage, now of Minnesota, and George B., who died in this county in 1895.

In the year 1879 they came to Iowa and settled in Walker, Linn county, moving to Butler county in 1883, settling on a farm three miles southeast of Bristow, where they resided until 1888, when they moved to a home in Bristow, and since that time have been residents of this village. They have always been among our most respected citizens and enjoyed the esteem and goodwill of all. All except a few years of his working life were spent in farming, though for a number of years he followed the trade of carpenter.

He united with the Church of God in 1857 and lived a consecrated life until he died. His honesty was proverbial, and in his death Bristow loses one of her best citizens.

To the bereaved widow and son and other relatives the sympathies of the entire community are extended.

The funeral ceremony occured at the home at 1:30 p m July 29, 1909.

With You Always.

A mother one morning gave her two little ones books and toys to amuse them, while she went to attend some work in an upper room. Five minutes passed quietly, and then a little voice at the foot of the stairs called out, "Mama, are you there?" "Yes, darling." "All right, then;" and the little ones, reassured of their mother's presence, again turned to their toys.

Thus how sweet it is for us, when in doubt and loneliness, to look up to the Lord Jesus, not to ask, Are you there; but to know that he is there, watching over us, guarding, guiding. Blessed Savior, Thou art there!

Drink Like a Brute.

Webster's definition of a brute is: "A beast; any animal destitute of reason." How strange then must have seemed this advice, said to have been given to a class of school boys by an aged Catholic priest: "Boys, there's just one thing I want to advise you to do, when you get out in the world; and that is, Drink like a brute." But strange as it sounded at first it was shown to be sensible when he added: "A brute never drinks anything stronger than water."—Light Bearer.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide it will be used only for those who the receiver says their circumstances, or whom can be presented by some trustworthy person.

We trust all who know that their time has expired, will realize how important it is that they renew promptly. To make out and mail statements to each is quite expensive, and most all already know when their time runs out, so that it is not really necessary. Please take note of this, friends.

Brethren and Sisters:

In our issue of two weeks ago we made statement of our finances, and asked for relief from pressing needs. We have had some response, and are truly thankful, but it has not reached the amount we absolutely must have to meet our immediate demands.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

Brother Thompson is weaker day by day, and no one can tell what the result will be.

Brother W. H. Wilson complains that all have not noted his change of address. His number is changed. Send to 625 North Willow Ave., Austin Station, Chicago, Ill. Make note of this now, so that when you write to Brother Wilson you can have the proper address.

The following short notice of the death of Brother Craton was received at this office Aug 21, and was sent by his wife, Mary J. Craton, of Romona, Kan. We hope some one who can give an account of the life of our Brother will write out something and send us. We are not acquainted with details enough to make a proper obituary.—Ed.

James B. Craton died Aug. 9th, at the age of 72, in Memphis, Tenn. He was engaged in gospel work and died very suddenly of malaria, leaving a widow, three sons and two daughters.

We have received the following report from the Illinois Bible School, which shows good work done, and the possibilities for word in other places. —Ed.

The Seventh Annual Bible School of the Churches of God, convened at Oregon, Ill., Aug. 9th to 18th. There was a very good attendance throughout the 10 days session. The enrollment was 56, and the majority of the enrollment was present at each class period. Several letters were received from former members of the class, who could not be with us this year. The following States were represented Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Nebraska, Missouri, South Dakota, Mich, and New York.

This mingling of the different States should be encouraged. Through new associations, a study together of the rich promises made for each of us who are faithful and obedient, and the exchange of ideas, brings us nearer to each other and gives us new enthusiasm and renewed spirit in our work when we return to our respective homes. Our instructors were Bros. S. J. Lindsay and G. E. Marsh, two very interesting and able teachers. Bro. Lindsay gave a series of lessons on "the Spirit," and "the essentials of the gospel." Bro. Marsh's lessons were on the Book of Daniel.

As a result of their close Bible study here as well as in their own homes, five of the class members became obedient to the gospel by baptism.

The Fifth Universal Kingdom. Daniel xi: 44.

"And in the days of these kings shall the God of Heaven set up a kingdom that shall never be destroyed, and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever."

The kingdom referred to is called the Fifth Universal Kingdom because it is the fifth one spoken of in the prophecy and will be when it is fulfilled the Fifth Universal Kingdom on earth.

Before I can say much about the Fifth kingdom, will try to trace the fulfillment of the prophecy down to the present time. All doubtless have heard of the dream of Nebuchadnezzar the king, that Daniel interpreted for him, but to again familiarize yourself with it, please read the 2nd chapter of Daniel. It is one of the most complete and grandest prophecies of the old Testament Scriptures. Commencing with the 31st verse, five short verses describe the image and next verse give the interpretation, reciting as it does before they happen, the great events of the world's history.

Daniel says, "This image's head was of gold," and in the interpretation says, "Thou art this head of gold, and after thee shall arise another kingdom inferior to thee," showing that not the king was meant, but the kingdom. Babylon was the head of gold. Babylon was founded by Belesis, B. C. 747. This king is also called Nabonassar, and in the Scriptures, Baladon. It arose from the ancient Assyrian Empire founded by Nimrod the great-grandson of Noah. It reached the zenith of its power and glory under the king Nebuchadnezzar.

At this time not all countries of earth paid tribute to Babylon, yet she had conquered every nation that she had warred with and was acknowledged the supreme nation of earth. Her capitol city was the largest and most luxurious earth had known. It was laid out in a perfect square with the river Euphrates flowing through it. It was surrounded by immense walls towering to a height of 350 feet, and 87 feet thick, surrounded by a moat or ditch of equal cubical contents of the wall. The circumference of the wall was 60 miles, 15 miles to each side. It was divided into 676 squares each two and one-fourth miles in circumference. It had 50 streets crossing each other at right angles, 25 each way. It had 30 miles of river wall, 15 on each side of the river. It had 150 gates of brass. Its hanging gardens, rising terrace above terrace until they equalled the height of the walls themselves. The Scripture speaks of it as the "Glory of kingdoms, the beauty of the Chaldees excellency." It is to this city that Daniel and his followers are carried captive from Jerusalem. It is this kingdom that outrivals every thing the world has seen, and in many particulars anything the world has seen up to the present time that Daniel calls the head of gold.

This is the same kingdom that is portrayed in the 7th chapter in the first four verses. During the reign of Belshazzar, Nebuchadnezzar's son, Daniel had a dream and saw four beasts, each different from the other. The first was like a lion and had eagles wings. It was a strong and swift nation. They had made every provision that the ingenuity of man could think of to make the place impregnable yet it was written by God's prophet, "After thee shall arise another kingdom inferior to thee." Only two years after King Nebuchadnezzar's death, war broke out between Cyaxers, king of Media, called Darius in Daniel. He called to his aid his nephew Cyrus, of the Persian line, and in six years all cities of the east had succumbed to their valiant arms except Babylon, and now they laid seige to it.

Babylon had immense stores sufficient to last for many years. They could not take it by force, nor starve them out, so they took it by stratagem. An immense canal is dug to draw off the waters of the river Euphrates and when all is ready selecting the night of the annual feast, the waters are lowered. Armed men are ready and as the water shallows following its course under the massive walls surrounding the city, they then find themselves between the walls on either bank. But again are they favored, Belshazzar summoned his nobles and courtiers to a night of revelry and debauch, the soldiers, careless in their fancied security have left the gates to the river open, and the hosts of the Medes and Persians fall upon the unsuspecting Babylonians with the sword. The feast is at its height and the arrogant king sends for the vessels of silver and gold that Nebuchadnezzar bought from Jerusalem, and the Holy Writ says, "And while he and his princes, his wives and his concubines drink wine and praise the gods of gold and of silver, of brass, of iron, of stone, in the same hour come forth fingers of a man's hand, and wrote over against the candlestick upon the plaster of the walls of the King's palace, and the king saw the part of the hand that wrote."

In the 5th chapter of Daniel the whole scene is so graphically described that it thrills one through and through. Daniel, who had been forgotten at Belshazzar's court is sent for. He tells the king why the hand and writing have appeared, and then reads it. It being in an unknown tongue, Daniel says, 5th chapter vs 25, "And this is the writing that was written Mene, Mene Tekel Upharsin." vs 26. This is the interpretation of the thing Mene: God hath numbered thy kingdom and finished it. vs 27, Tekel: Thou art weighed in the balance and found wanting. vs 28, Peris: Thy kingdom is divided and given to the Medes and Persians. vs 30. In that night was Belshazzar the king of the Chaldeans slain.

Thus it was that the head of gold was succeeded by the breast and arms of silver. This event took place B. C. 538. This kingdom corresponds to the beast of Daniel vii: 5 "And behold, and the beast a second like to a bear, and it raised up itself on one side." The same deterioration is here noticed as in the prophecy of Daniel 2nd. As silver is inferior to gold, so is the bear inferior to the lion.

In the 8th chapter we have the same power represented by a ram. vs 3 reads, "Then I lifted up my eyes and saw and behold there stood before the river a ram which had two horns, and then two horns were high up but one was higher than the other, and the higher came up last." vs 4. "I saw the ram pushing westward and northward and southward so that no beast might stand before him, neither was there any that could deliver out of his hand, but he did according to his will and became great."

In vs 20 of this chapter in the interpretation it is given in plain language, "The ram which thou sawest having two horns, are the kings of Media and Persia." Vs 21, "And the rough goat is the king of Grecia, and the great horn between his eyes is the first king. When Babylon was taken B. C. 538, by Cyrus as an act of courtesy he allowed his uncle Darius to take first place in the kingdom; two years later he died and Cyrus took the throne. And he it was that signed the decree to allow the Jews to return to Jerusalem and to rebuild the walls. After a reign of seven years Cyrus left the kingdom to his son. Seven different monarchs reigned to 335 B. C. when the last Persian monarch Cyrus Codomannus took the throne; war soon after broke out between the Persians and the Greeks under Alexander. The deciding battle was fought B. C. 331 and is known as the battle of Arbela in which the Greeks were entirely victorious and Alexander thenceforth was master of the Persian Empire; thus did the silver of the image give way to the brass; thus did the bear of the 7th chapter give way to the beast like a leopard with the four wings, and it is thus that the ram of the 8th chapter gives way to the goat with the notable horn.

After this battle of Arbela, Darius tried to gather his shattered forces, but could not get enough together to hazard another engagement. He finally was captured by the traitors who shut him up in an enclosed cart and finally mortally wounded him. Alexander now is the king reigning over the 3d universal empire. In history he is called Alexander the Great, and is said to have wept because he had no more worlds to conquer. He was a warrior, but a selfish licentious man. He gave himself up to all forms of drunkedness and debauchery and died in his prime, being only 32 years old. His brother was chosen his successor and after 13 or 15 years of strife we find the kingdom divided amongst Alexander's four principal generals, thus fulfilling the prophecy of Daniel viii 8, which reads, "Therefore the he goat waxed very great, and when he was strong the great horn was broken and for it there came up four notable ones toward the four winds of heaven. The Grecian kingdom was the Third Kingdom, the brass of the image, and we have one more. Do you ask what one was that? We answer let us refer to the passage of history, and we find there has been but one Universal kingdom since the kingdom of Greece and that was Rome. Rome conquered Grecia. It subdued all things; like iron it broke to pieces and bruised. The historian Gibbon as though borrowing his language from the symbolic image of Daniel in describing this Empire says, "The arms of the republic sometimes vanquished in battle, always victorious in war, advanced with rapid strides to the Eupurates, the Danube, the Rhine and the ocean and the images of gold, or silver, or brass that might serve to represent the nations or their kings were successively broken by the iron monarchy or Rome." Again in speaking of Rome, Gibbon says, "The Empire of the Romans filled the world, and when that Empire fell into the hands of a single person the world became a safe and dreary prison for his enemies. To resist was fatal and it was impossible to fly." It is not our object to give a history of Rome but to say just enough to show that it was the Fourth Universal Kingdom. Under the Caesars the world was ruled by a one man power. It was as strong as iron but later became as weak as iron mixed with clay. The kingdom is all broken up and warring one against the other, neither do they trust one another, but one and all maintain large armies and navies to protect themselves. This is no age of concentration, of combination of large capital but no signs of uniting of the powers of earth into one kingdom. Let us read what Daniel says of our times. Daniel ii: 43 "And whereas thou sawest iron mixed with miry clay, they shall mingle themselves with the seeds of men, but they shall not cleave one to another even as iron is not mixed with clay."

During all time of the broken parts of the Roman Empire, the nearest attempt to a Universal Kingdom was under Napoleon Bonaparte and all know what a failure his was. The Fourth Kingdom has come and gone and the pages of history are dark with the record of the evils committed. Where are we now? Every intelligent observer agrees that we are in the times of the end. The world is restless and wondering what will happen next. Why should they wonder, why not know the next great step?

And this brings us again to our text, Daniel ii: 44. "In the days of these kings shall the God of Heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed, and the kingdom shall not be left to other people but it shall break in pieces, and consume all the kingdoms and it shall stand forever."

All of the prophecies referring to the kingdoms down to this last verse have become history. We can read its pages and are lost in wonder at the revelation of God to Daniel. All we have or know of the Fifth Universal Kingdom is prophetic. Can we not now approach its study with faith strong and sight clear from what has gone before?

Paul says, "We have also a more sure word of prophecy where unto ye do well that ye take heed as unto a light that shineth in a dark place."

To tell all about this kingdom is to preach all the gospel. That I will not attempt, but will give some of its peculiar features where it differs from the other kingdoms.

In Daniel, the 7th chapter, after telling of the four beasts arising one after another, he tells how the fourth beast is slain and his body given to the flame. Then says verse 13, "I saw in the night visions, and behold one like the son of man came with the clouds of heaven and came to the ancient of days, and they brought him near before him." Verse 14, "And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom. That all people, nations and languages should serve him, his dominion is an everlasting dominion which shall not pass away, and his kingdom, that which shall not be destroyed." Here then is one great difference, that while all other kingdoms of earth are destroyed one after another and occupied by different people, this kingdom which succeeds the iron kingdom is never destroyed, and is not left to other people. Again in the 27th verse of this same chapter he tells whose the kingdom will be. Daniel vii: 27. "And the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven shall be given to the people of the Saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all kingdoms shall serve and obey him." One more thought is here added, this kingdom is "under the whole heaven." In chapter ii please observe also that the stone "became a great mountain and filled the whole earth." I mention this to emphasize the fact that it is on earth that this Fifth Kingdom is established. It takes the place of all four kingdoms that have preceded it.

In the 2nd Samuel vii is a remarkable promise recorded. Nathan the Prophet, is sent by the word of God to David, and says in verse 12, "And when thy days be fulfilled and thou shalt sleep with thy fathers, I will set up thy seed after thee which shall proceed out of thy bowels, and I will establish his kingdom." 13th verse, "He shall build an house for my name, and I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever."

We find here that the coming King is to be of the royal line of David. In the 2nd chapter of Acts we have a record of how on the day of the Pentecost, Peter standing up with the twelve proves by the words of David, the Prophet King, that Jesus the Christ is the promised king. In the 36th verse, he, in summing up the matter, says, "Therefore let all of the house of Israel know assuredly that God hath made that same Jesus whom ye have crucified both Lord and Christ." I will say that the name Christ is an untranslated Greek word and means just the same as the Hebrew Messiah. In English they mean, Anointed King.

The great argument of Paul and some of the other apostles to the Jews was to prove that Jesus was indeed the promised king. In his great defense before King Agrippa, Paul says, Act xxvi: 22, "Having therefore obtained help of God I continue until this day witnessing both to small and great, saying none other things than those which the prophets and Moses did say should come." Let us refer briefly to a few things they have said.

Isaiah ix: 6, 7, "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given, and the government shall be upon his shoulders, and his name shall be called the wonderful Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace." Verse 7, "Of the increase of his government there shall be no end, upon the throne of David and upon his kingdom to order it, and establish it with judgment, from henceforth even forever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this." In these verses we learn the name of the King, a name above every name. We also learn that his kingdom shall have no end, agreeing with Daniel in this. And again we learn that it is upon the throne of David that it is to be established and in this particular differing from any other kingdom, that it is to be established with justice from henceforth forever. And by the zeal of the Lord, instead of the strife of life that we, living under the most favorable circumstances that have ever existed are now engaged in. Contrast the peace of the following. Isaiah xi: 6; "The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb and the leopard shall lie down with the kid and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together, and a little child shall lead them." 9th verse; "They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain, for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea."

Just think of the exceedingly great weight of the glory pictured in the prophet's mind that would cause him to write these words. Isaiah xxiv: 23. "Then the moon shall be confounded and the sun ashamed when the Lord of Hosts shall reign in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem and before his ancients gloriously." And my friends only think of the glory and the joy for the downtrodden of earth, when the following comes to pass. Isaiah xxv: 8. "He will swallow up Death in victory and the Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces."

There are many Christians that are loath to accept what is in the Old Testament Scriptures, we will believe if they find the same thing in the New, therefore I quote a few passages from the New Testament.

Rev xxiv: 3: "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed away." 7th verse, "He that overcometh shall inherit all things, I will be his God and he shall be my son."

In speaking of the head of gold I told you something about their great Capitol City. Would you hear of the great capitol of the Fifth Kingdom of earth. The builder and maker of this city is God, and John in vision was permitted to see and describe it. It also has four square and has walls not of brick made of clay like Babylon, but the building of the wall was of jasper, and the "City pure gold like unto clear glass." It had foundations, the first also of jasper and each one of the twelve foundations of a different beautiful stone. The city also had gates, each gate a separate pearl. John saw this beautiful city coming down from God out of heaven, adorned as a bride for her husband." It also has a river but not the muddy Euphrates but clear as crystal; it is the river of life. It is not walled off like in Babylon, but is in the midst of the street and the tree of life from which Adam and Eve were kept by the two-edged sword is there, and bears twelve manner of fruit and the leaves are for the healing of the nations.

My friends, the half of the story has not been told. In the light of history do you believe in the Holy Prophets? Do you believe in the Blessed Bible? Do you want a part in this beautiful glorious kingdom that I have been trying to describe? And better yet, do you want to "reign with him," that you might have a part in all of its glory? Christ died for you, and will you have him reign over you? Do you remember Christ's own words "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit down with me in my throne even as I have overcome and sat down with my Father in his throne."

Do you not remember the record given in Matthew six when Christ has told his disciples how hard it was for a rich man to enter the Kingdom of God. Verse 28. "Then answered Peter, and said unto him, behold, we have forsaken all and followed thee, what shall we have therefore? Verse 29, "And Jesus said unto them verily I say unto you, that ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel." Verse 29, "And everyone that hast forsaken houses, or brother, or sister, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands for my namesake shall receive one hundred fold, and inherit everlasting life." What think ye friends, are not these glorious promises? Listen again, direct from the lips of the Master. Matthew xxv: 31, "When the Son of man shall come in all his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit on the throne of his glory." Verse 32. "And before him shall be gathered all nations, and he shall separate them one from another as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats." (33), "And he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on his left." (34), "Then shall the king say unto them on his right hand, 'Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

Just one word more of direct testimony, when Jesus was being examined by Pilate just before his crucifixion recorded in John xviii: 37. Pilate therefore said unto him, "Art thou a king then?" Jesus answered, "Thou sayest that I am a king, to this was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I shall bear witness of the truth."

Now my friends with all the good things that are promised to us in that kingdom that is to come, Eternal Life, to be like Christ, and to see him as he is. To reign with him, to have no more sorrow when all sin and temptation is done away; no more death, a glorious reunion with our loved ones. With all of these and the glory of dwelling with him, when God shall be our God and we his people, is it any wonder then that when his disciples asked him to teach them to pray he should say to them, "After this manner pray ye," and opened his prayer with these words: "Our Father who art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name, Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is done in heaven."

The Wandering Evangelist in the Field.

To the brethren scattered abroad I wish to tell you with an ever confident, thankful heart that I have reached Montrose, Colorado, and am to begin work this Sunday evening, Aug. 15th with prospect of engaging to a series of meetings on Saturday evening, Aug. 21. I do not know where my work shall be directed from here; but as the Master in early times sent out his servants without script or purse, and their wants were seen after, through the providential action of faithful brethren, I do not believe that it has any of the spirit of fanaticism for me to say I go on with the work and trust him.

As I have no Conference officials to whom to report, I open the following account with the brethren. Surplus from donations $60.00; traveling expenses from Phoenix to Montrose, $22 60.

I will make no charges for time till my work begins when I will charge the fund $4 50 per day for services actually rendered in the work. As this was the manner of my work with the Northwest Conference for nearly 20 years I think it will be satisfactory.

I cannot be depended on with any degree of certainty of getting to Iowa or any distant point of work on account of having failed in getting some promised means that I had proposed to devote to the work.

The copy for this department of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 10837 Orville Ave. Cleveland, Ohio. Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

The Editor of "Ebenezer" attended the Illinois State Conference at Oregon, held from August 18 to 22 The weather was ideal, and the attendance fair. The preaching this year was unusually good; the preachers seemed to excell themselves. The ministers were brethren L. E. Conner of Ohio Lindsay, Marsh, Jeffery and Hightower of Illinois, and Williams of Nebraska. A full report of this meeting will soon be printed, written by the Secretary, so we content ourselves with this brief editorial.

They Wrote Letters.

Brother Huggins:

I pray the Lord will bless you and all the dear brethren of the household of faith. I have never met you, but I read all your writings in THE RESTITUTION. I enclose a letter from a Baptist, a friend of mine. He seems to want to know all about the truth. Please answer his question in THE RESTITUTION.

Yours in Christ,

R. E. LLOYD.

THE BURNING UP OF THE EARTH.

Brother Huggins:

Please explain 2 Peter iii 10. Some people claim that the earth is to be burned up; they refer to this Scripture to prove it. Give me the scriptural proof that the earth will not be burned up.—J. H. Westermon.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Poets from Shakespeare to hymn-writers appear to delight in giving pictures of this earth in flames. Dramatic poets, however, are not inspired, and the man of God will turn from all human writers as unreliable and will only consult and submit to God's oracles. From them he learns that the earth cannot literally be burned up for two reasons:

1. Because the earth, not heaven, is the future abode of the saints, and God has emphatically pledged its eternal existence. Isa xiv 18; 1 Cor xv 45; Psa ii 8; xxxvii 9; Matt v 5; Rom iv 13; Gen xii; 1 Cor iii 21-22; Rev v 10; Eccl i 1. Psa civ 5; cxix 90

2. Because the passage relied upon to prove the conflagration of the earth, 2 Peter iii, states not only that the earth is to be burned up, but in addition says explicitly that the "heavens shall pass away with a great noise" (verse 10); that they shall "be dissolved" (verse 11); and finally that this dissolution is to be by "fire". See verse 12. So if the apostle means that the earth literally is to be burned up, he also means that the literal heavens are to be destroyed. And if this is the correct meaning of his words, the text is as inimical to our heaven-going friends as it is to us: for if we admit that the earth is destroyed by the text, it is just as clear that the heavens are "dissolved" also. With both destroyed, may we not ask our friends where they are going?

A few words now as to the actual meaning of the apostle Peter. In giving an exposition of his meaning we cannot do better than follow this outline: 1. The overflowing of the world with water; 2. The figurative language of the Bible; 3. The new heaven and new earth; and 4. The old heavens and earth.

1. The overflowing of the world with water. This point is invaluable in elucidating Peter's prediction of world-burning, for as a preface to his prediction he thus makes direct reference to the Deluge: "The world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished" (verse 6) This statement affords a basis for understanding the disputed verse which follows it. We cannot go wrong in interpreting prophecy when we have as here, historical illustration to guide us. When the apostle says the antediluvian "world perished", he certainly does not mean that the earth "that then was", ceased to exist. He only means that the flood caused the destruction of Noah's contemporaries. The contrast is between the "world that then was" and something existing in his day called the "heavens and earth which are now." (verse 7) The literal heavens and earth existing in Peter's day were exactly the same as those in being when Noah lived. The contrast in Peter's mind cannot apply to two distinct literal heavens and earths: we must look somewhere else to or to interpret [illegible] words. The solution is easily found by regarding his words, "heavens and earth", as referring to the human constitution of things on the earth at the particular periods mentioned. And this brings us to consider:

2. The figurative language of the Bible. Students of the inspired writings cannot fail to observe that the spirit of God has made use of nearly every phenomena of nature for the purpose of teaching and illustrating spiritual truths. A few illustrations must suffice for now: "Light" and "darkness" are used for knowledge and ignorance (Isa viii 20; Acts xxvi 18); "rain" for doctrine (Deut xxxii 2); "clouds", for multitudes of men (Jer iv 18; Ezek xxxviii 9, 16); mountains for kingdoms (Jer li 24, 25) rivers for an army (Isaiah viii 7) "waters". for nations (Isa xvii 13; Rev vii 1, 15); and "trees", for men (Dan iv 20, 22; Jno iv 4) Literally the sun and moon were made to "rule" the day and night (Gen i 16), but figuratively the sun is used for kings, the moon for ecclesiastical systems, and the stars for princes and governors of inferior grades. These luminaries bear the same relation to the earth that political and ecclesiastical rulers do to the rank and file of mankind. Exalted above the people as kings to "rule" the people under them, they constitute the "heavens" that Peter says shall "be dissolved". The subjects, or the people governed, are represented by "the earth", as in Psa lxv vi 8; lxxix 1; Isa xiv 16, and they, according to Peter, are to be "burned up."

With these thoughts in mind we can understand why Israel is said to have a "sun" and "moon". Jer xv 9; Isa lx 20. The setting of the Israelitish sun was the overthrow of the throne of David; and the withdrawing of the Jewish moon was the abolition of the Mosaic priesthood and ritual. Of Babylon it was said in prophecy: "The stars of heaven and the constellations thereof shall not give their light: the sun shall be darkened in his going forth, and the moon shall not cause her light to shine." "I will shake the heavens, and the earth shall be moved out of her place." Isa xiii 10, 13. This prophecy has been fulfilled; the overthrow of Babylon is in the past, but there is no record of the literal sun, moon, and stars, ceasing to shine on that occasion. See also the same prophet's intimation that Idumea shall be destroyed: xxiv 4, 5: "All the host of heaven shall be dissolved, and the heavens shall be rolled together as a scroll.....for my sword shall be bathed in heaven; behold, it shall come down upon Idumea." The bathing of Jehovah's sword "in heaven" is here explained to mean his judgments on Idumea. This prophecy, too, is now an accomplished fact; yet in its fulfillment the literal heavens were not dissolved; we have the same ones today as existed prior to this prophecy. With fulfilled prophecy to guide us, we are on safe ground when we take Peter's prediction as historically illustrated—that his "heavens" and "earth" have to do solely with the political and ecclesiastical arrangements of things on the earth at the Lord's advent. Indeed, the apostle intimates that Old Testament prophecy is the basis of his prediction, and that the way to interpret and understand one is the way to construe the other. This point is obviously inculcated in his allusion to

3. The new heavens and new earth. To prepare us for his prophecy, he exhorts us in the 2nd verse "to be mindful of the words which were spoken before by the holy prophets;" and right in the midst of his own prediction he pauses to tell us that all he is saying is "according to his promise" recorded by a prophet "before" his day. Isa lxv 17. Read the whole of Isa lxv and you will see that the promise given by the prophet consists of a blessed condition of things on the earth, particularly around Jerusalem. "Behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy." If God means to make a bonfire of the earth; if he intends to turn this globe and the whole astronomical system into a furnace, Jerusalem could not be "a rejoicing", nor could any "joy" result to God's people from such a catastrophe.

The new heavens and earth, like the old ones which Peter says are to be destroyed, refer to a constitution of things on the earth. There is a "sun" provided for the new heaven in the "sun of righteousness." Mal iv 2. Of this sun the prophet spoke to his countryman in the words, "Arise, shine; for thy light (sun) is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee. For behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people; but the Lord shall rise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee." Isa lx 1-2. In harmony with this calligraphy, spiritual darkness now envelopes the earth. The "sun" or "light" of Israel has not yet arisen in the "new heavens"; his "rule" has not yet commenced. Ere long he will arise, accompanied by other symbolic satellites, of whom it is said. "They shall shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father." Mat xiii 43. Dissipating the darkness now on earth which the prophet calls "gross", by their instrumentality, "the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord as the waters cover the sea." Hab ii 14. So completely different will the rulers and the people of the earth be from what they are now, it can be truly said there exist "new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness." Righteousness, inferentially, did not dwell in the "heavens" and "earth" which Peter says are to be destroyed. The point of contrast with him is moral, not material; and this fact affords presumptive proof that the "heavens" and "earth" in each are symbolic, not literal. The point becomes clearer as we note a few facts about

4. The old heavens and earth. We have already noted the fact that Israel had a figurative "sun". Jer xv 9. A sun necessitates a "heaven" in which it can shine. To carry out this symbol, then, we find the Psalmist addressing the Lord as follows: "Of old thou laid the foundation of the earth, and the heavens are the work of thy hands. They shall perish, but thou shalt endure; yea, all of them shall wax old like a garment; and as a vesture shalt thou change them, and they shall be changed." Psa cii 25, 27. The Mosaic "heavens" and "earth" continued to exist until they were fulfilled by him who was typified in all their ceremonials (Matt v 18); then they waxed "old like a garment", and he "changed" them like a man changes his "vesture". Thus they "perished"; "decayed and waxed old," and were ready to "vanish away" in Peter's day. Heb viii 13. We say "in Peter's day," for although the old covenant had been legally abolished by Christ's death, it was still recognized as being in force by the Jewish nation generally. It became necessary under this condition of things, to manifest in a more signal manner that the law had been superseded by the gospel and was now useless. The Temple was destroyed, and Jerusalem was captured by the Romans. This had been predicted by Joel and our Lord in the following symbolic language: "The sun shall be turned into darkness and the moon into blood, before the great and notable day of the Lord come." Joel ii 31. "The sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from heaven, and the powers of the heavens shall be shaken. Mt xxiv 29. The "sun" of the Jewish heavens was darkened by the nation being deprived of all political power; and the "moon" was turned into blood by the overthrow of their ecclesiastical system amidst much bloodshed (the destruction of Jerusalem was attended with the slaughter of 1,000,000 human beings); and the "stars", or nobles of the Israelitish Commonwealth, were cast to the ground (Dan viii 9-11), and the people generally were scattered among all nations of the earth. In this way the Jewish "heavens" "passed away with a great noise;" they "vanished away like smoke" (Isa li 6), and the luminaries thereof were totally eclipsed.

Mark the following prophetic language which is descriptive of the event: "Therefore, thus saith the Lord God; Because ye are all become dross, behold, therefore, I will gather you in the midst of Jerusalem. As they gather silver, and brass, and iron, and lead, and tin, into the midst of the furnace, to blow the fire upon it, to melt it, so will I gather you in my anger, and in my fury, and I will leave you there and melt you. Yea, I will gather you and blow upon you in the fire of my wrath, and ye shall be melted in the midst thereof. As silver is melted in the midst of the furnace, so shall ye be melted in the midst thereof." Ezek xxii 19 22. Here the disobedient children of Israel are represented as base metals, and their punishment is compared to the subjection of silver, lead, etc. to intense heat in a furnace.

This shows what Peter means when he says, "the elements shall melt with fervent heat." When Jerusalem was destroyed by the Romans, only the base portion of the nation was gathered in the city. The disciples of Christ filed out of the city according to his instructions (Matt xxiv 15 21), and were saved from all harm in the city of Pella, leaving only the "dross" behind to be melted in the furnace of fire. Some have thought that the "elements" Peter mentions as melting with fervent heat, meant that the very elements of which this mundane system is composed are to be destroyed with intense heat. But symbolic "heavens" must have symbolic "elements" also. Scripturally, the word "elements" may be applied to things material, mental, or moral; it is sometimes used for the atmosphere around us, and sometimes for the constituent substances composing the earth; but its use is not limited to these things. It may be, and sometimes is, applied to the first rules or primary principles of any science, art, or religion.

The first principles of the Mosaic Covenant are called "the elements of the world" (Gal iv 3, 9); "rudiments (marg. 'elements') of the world" (Col ii 20). These words are addressed to Jews who had professed to renounce the abrogated law of Moses, and had embraced the gospel: and we submit that if such language appropriately described their former condition, it could just as appropriately be applied to the then condition of all Jews who had repudiated the Law of Moses; and since the greater part of the Jews were still in this condition when Peter was writing, "the elements" of that "world" were still in existence, but were soon after destroyed in the "fervent heat" of the Roman invasion.

One word more and we close. We do not deny that Peter's language will find another fulfillment in the scenes of the Lord's second advent. But in our exegesis we have confined ourselves wholly to the historical aspects of the subject in order to the more clearly show our Baptist friend, that, though the future may witness the accomplishment of this prophecy, we have it already incipiently fulfilled, and others like it, and yet the literal heavens and earth remain unmoved. Reasoning upon what is to be from what has been, leads us confidently to expect what has been, and nothing more. In other words, if what is to be has been, and the heavens and earth remain, when that which is to be takes place, the occurrence cannot annihilate the heavens and earth. Here is solid ground; do not be afraid to stand upon it.

Historical Coincidences.

John Adams was eight years older than his successor, Thomas Jefferson; Jefferson was eight years older than James Madison; Madison was eight years older than James Monroe; Monroe was eight years older than John Quincy Adams. Washington ended his Presidential term in the sixty-sixth year of his age; and so also did John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison and James Monroe. Jefferson and Adams died the same day—Fourth of July, 1826, just half a century after the Declaration of Independence. Monroe died exactly five years later—Fourth of July, 1831. Roosevelt is the only President seriously addicted to the wearing of spectacles. It is said to be a historical fact that all the Presidents of the United States had blue eyes, except William Henry Harrison.—New York Press.

How to Open a Book.

Many people spread a book wide open in the middle the first time they open it. This makes an unsightly crack. Lay the book, back downward, on a table or smooth surface. Press the front cover down until it touches the table, then the back cover, holding the leaves in one hand while you open a few of the leaves at the back, then at the front, alternately pressing them down gently until you reach the center of the volume. This should be done two or three times. Never open a book violently nor bend back the covers. It is liable not only to break the back but to loosen the leaves.

God is Love.

Love is the greatest thing in the world. We ought to love God more every day. If we don't love God he will not love us. "He that loveth not knoweth not God, for God is love." Ye are of God, little children, for you have overcome evil Greater is he that is in you than he that is in the world. So let us have faith in the Lord.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, SEP. 5.

PAUL'S THIRD MISSIONARY JOURNEY. FAREWELLS. ACTS XX. 17-35.

Golden Text. "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." Phil. iv. 13.

After the uproar at Ephesus had quieted down Paul called the disciples together and bade them an affectionate farewell, and left for Macedonia. He went all over that region reminding the believers of the promises of God and Christ of eternal life in the kingdom, with glory and honor, Rom ii. 7. He came into Greece, at the end of three months was about to sail for Syria, but on account of the Jews he returned through Macedonia. Seven brethren went on before him to Troas where he stayed seven days—on the last day he preached and exhorted until midnight when a young man fell from an upper window and was killed. Paul, by power from Christ his Lord, brought the young man alive, and continued his talk till day-break. He then went to Assos, from there to Mitylene, from there to Chios, then to Samos, to Trogyllium, next to Miletus. He did not wish to spend further time a Ephesus or that part of Asia. He desired, if possible to be at Jerusalem during Pentecost. Acts xx. 1-16.

Lesson. From Miletus he sent to Ephesus, about forty miles north, for the elders of the church. It is very questionable if the elders of any part of the Church of God ever received—from that time until now—a more important address consisting of valuable earnest, reminders, explanations, instruction, exhortation, warnings, and we may add prophecy. Observe some of the statements. Serving the Lord with all humility of mind. I kept back nothing that was profitable unto you. Repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ. The Holy Spirit testifies that bonds and afflictions await me. But none of these things move me, neither count I my life dear to myself. I know that you, to whom I have preached the kingdom of God, shall see my face no more. I have declared to you all the counsel of God. Take heed to yourselves, and to all the flock. Feed the Church of God which he has purchased with the blood of his own Son. Grievous wolves shall come in among you. Of your ownselves shall man arise speaking perverse things. I have warned every one night and day with tears. And now brethren, I commend you to God, and to the Word of his grace, which is able to build you up, and give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified. He kneeled down and prayed with them. And they all wept sore, sorrowing that they should see his face no more. And they accompanied him to the ship.

The words of exhortation and warning are just as important and necessary to the Church of God today, as then. The enemies of the church—outside of the church,—whoever they may be, can do no permanent harm to the church; but when men with false pretense, and pretended repentance come, are received into the church then there is great and grave danger; and when men of the church make or adopt some hobby, ism or theory opposed to the truth; there is still greater and more danger, because however foolish, weak or unscriptural the "perverse things" may be, some one or more are sure to follow. By the same Spirit,—the Holy Spirit in Paul—we are informed that those advocate things "contrary to the doctrine" do so with "good words and fair speeches" and so deceive the simple, Rom xvi. 27, 18. And in the lesson we are told the object is "to draw away disciples after them."

It was indeed a sad farewell, few partings could be more so. Paul, the man, the chosen vessel of the Lord Jesus, went to Ephesus. He spoke boldly in the synagogue for three months, preaching and persuading the things concerning the kingdom of God, Acts ix. 8. Being opposed, he took his disciples and spoke in the School of Tyrannus for two years. This gave ample time to organize and establish the Church of God, with the proper officers, and in addition to all "God wrought special miracles by the hands of Paul." Acts xix. 11. Bidding farewell to such a noble servant of the Lord Jesus, and knowing they would see him no more until the resurrection, 1 Thess. iv. 15 18. It was no wonder they parted in prayer and tears.

Verse 17, Who did he call for? What church?

19, Who did he serve?

21, What did they repent of?

23, How did he know there was trouble ahead?

24, Did he try to avoid the persecutions? What was to cause the "bonds and afflictions?"

25, What had he been preaching? Where did he find the story of the kingdom?

27, Is a "never-dying-soul" part of the counsel of God?

28, What were they to feed the Church with?

30, What are perverse things?

32, What did he mean by the Word of his grace?

38, What was their greatest sorrow?

Next Lesson. Close of Paul's Third Missionary Journey. Acts xxi. 3-12.

Report.

Brother D. M. Hudler was called to Vaugh, N. C., August 1, 1909, where he delivered seven discourses. They gave him the Methodist Church the first night, but some of the members who did not attend, objected the second night, but the railroad agent offered the warehouse the second night. After this, a Baptist friend offered him a vacant store in which he delivered five discourses.

Much interest was manifested, especially by the Methodist preacher, who gave him a dollar when he told him good-bye. He returned to Hobgood, N. C., and preached two discourses at No. 1 school house, and baptized two more.

May the good work continue to go on.

S. D. BRADLEY.

Indiana Please Notice.

The yearly conference for Indiana is to be at Rensselaer early in October. All who come please notify Sister Flora Harris beforehand, so that all may be in readiness.

Now brethren, Indiana has possibilities for a great work the coming year, and much of our success will depend on this conference. Come. We have a large membership and generous means. We have several strong congregations for edification and many scattered members who will be able to aid in evangelizing new localities, by affording a good opening. We have many earnest young people at work in Bible Study. We have several good Sunday Schools and Berean Societies. We have several young men ready to go to preaching. All we need is to take new heart and unite our forces. Let us get our numbers in touch with each other, combine our finances and efforts and all put our talents together for united work. Let each congregation see to it that several leading members from your church are at conference. If agreeable, pay their way. Let as many isolated members as possible come and be renewed for another year. We expect one or two new speakers, and many of the old faithful ones who have served so well. Many new and important things are likely to come up. Come in a Christian spirit of love. Bring your enthusiasm along.

In order for better work in Berean and Bible study, pastoral oversight and evangelizing, it is desired that the secretary be furnished with the names and addresses of all members in the state. Let each secretary of a congregation please send a list of your members to her and all isolated members do the same by a postal card to Lydia Railsback, 621 S. Fellows St., South Bend, Indiana.

J. H. WILLEY,
Pres. Conference.

The Living Word

"The Word of the Lord," having within the very principle of everlasting truth, must grow and does grow wherever it is proclaimed in its purity. It touches human hearts, appeals to them, kindles them in every land, among all classes, at every stage of life. If there have been periods when it seemed to make no headway, this was due to the fact that though professedly the Word of God was taught, in reality the word of man was put in its place. It is easy to day to wander away from the Word of God, allured by the "multitude of words" of men, but let us in our work with the young take special, prayerful care to keep close to the divine Word, to "Teach Christ first, Christ last, Christ all the time." That and that only is the way of making truth and righteousness and joy and salvation prevail in human hearts over the powers that make for unrighteousness.—Teacher's Monthly.

Announcements.

The Southern Illinois Conference will be held at the Restitution Church eight miles south of Cady, from Sep. 25 to Oct. 8 inclusive. Names of the preachers and programme will appear later.

B. J. Woods, Sec.

The printed programs of the Iowa Conference, which is to be held at Waterloo, Iowa, August 21st to 29th, are now ready for distribution, and will be sent to any one on request. Address, G. P. Allard, Box 86, Fort Dodge, Iowa.

The Nebraska State Conference of the Church of God will be held in St. Paul, August 28 to September 5 inclusive. Programme will be published later.

Alta King.

The Conference of the Church of God in the State of Ohio will be held at Springfield, beginning on Wednesday evening, August 25, and continuing over the following Sunday. The brethren have secured the use of the Fair Grounds, and there is every indication of having perfect convenience and comfort. An earnest invitation is extended to all those of like precious faith.

A complete programme will appear in this paper as soon as it is made up.

Stanley A. Sanford, Sec.

The next Annual Conference of the Churches of God in the State of Illinois will be held at Oregon, beginning August 18, and continue over the following Sunday. The programme will appear later.

Let us begin now to plan for this meeting, and to be present with the purpose of doing all in our power for the work in Illinois in the year that is to come.

Dear Brethren in the One Faith:

The Missouri Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus will be held this year at Morse Mill, Mo., beginning the evening of August 25, and closing Sunday evening, August 29. We want every one, who possibly can to come and help us make this second annual Conference in Missouri a success as was promised by the first one, last year.

All Peop'e coming by way of St. Louis, will take the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern Railroad to Victoria, where hacks will take them to Hillsboro. Here they will be met by the brethren. Those coming from the south, also take the St. L. I. M. & S. to Victoria. Everyone who is thinking of coming, write to Brother J. F. Williams, Hillsboro, Mo.

Provisions will be made to take care of every one, no matter how many, who come. There are a number of brethren in Missouri whom we hope will be present and help in the work, which is so necessary.

Anyone desiring more information, write to:—Sadie Morse, Sec'y, 311 E. Colton St., Warrensburg, Mo.

Ohio Conference.

To the Church of God in Ohio, my beloved Brethren:

By the time you read this it will be one year since the last, the sixth Ohio Conference. We are now close on the seventh. It is needless to go into details of the value of the annual meeting. It is impossible to fully estimate the great and lasting benefits to all who attend with a sincere desire to help further the work of the Lord. This statement is made on the testimony of those who were present at past gatherings. Those who were there "in singleness of heart, fearing God."

All who have a heart-felt interest in "sounding out the Word of the Lord" will be at Springfield, unless positively prevented by circumstances.

The Young people are especially entreated not to give the least consideration to anything of less importance. There is no other meeting at which they can glean, and treasure up more grand truths by which they can grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

The faithful everywhere can be assured of a hearty welcome from the Springfield brethren.

Dearly beloved, let us who are "the children of light, and the children of the day" "be diligent that we may be found of him in peace, without spot, and blameless."

P. Neill.

Editor Restitution:

The brethren of the Church of God extends Christian greetings, and invite all those of like precious faith and any one interested in the truth, to be present at our Ohio State Conference here in Springfield August 25 to 30.

Any one wishing to be met at any trains, please notify mein ample time. Provision will be made to accommodate all who come, and we hope the brethren from other states will be able to attend. Please bring towels and all necessary toilet articles. Let this Conference be the best ever held in Ohio, and each one feel it your duty to help make it so by coming.

Address me R. F. D. 7, Springfield, O.

Miss Jessie Kauffman.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take The Restitution, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take The Restitution on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A M to 12:30 P. M Order of services.—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Brother, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to The Restitution for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

Hindu Literature.

This book of over 400 pages is of special value to the young people in order to enable them to meet the attacks upon Christianity from Theosophists and others. It has been fully endorsed by the most eminent Oriental scholars of Europe as being authentic, and the historic facts here presented are unimpeachable. A few copies of this standard $1 50 book may now be had for $1.00 a copy post paid. It is used in colleges and universities. Send all orders to Mrs. Elizabeth A Reed, 1311 Balmoral av, Chicago, Illinois.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects." and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10009 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

Please don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D.C Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in The Restitution. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in The Restitution some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance: the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saving for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

A Psalm of Comfort.

Look up and heart, and grieve no more,
Naught e'er can go amiss;
For he who drives thy bark to and shore
Resides in all that is.

Nor think thyself and kith alone,
Or dark and cold thy place;
Surrounding thee is all thine own
The friendship of God's face.

There is no creature e'er denied
The comfort of his eye;
'Tween him and thee is no divide—
Where thou art he is nigh.

No child was ever loved like thee—
Despite the galling pain,
That breaks the heart and be, was the knee
And weighs upon the brain.

Just now no stars the path reveal
Across the trackless sea;
But One there is who guides the wheel,
And guides eternally.

Fear not! He loves thee—would cut off
Thy very self in light;
And give thee visions as of old,
To gird thee for the fight.

Look up and heart, and grieve no more,
Naught e'er can go amiss;
Thy barque will surely reach the shore,
And that be all that is.

The Bible and Its Message. No. 15.

There has never been a time since our Lord was taken up in to heaven when we needed to watch with more care than there days of liberal views. The most liberal views are taken in regard to the interpretation of God's word. We are not agreed among ourselves on points of doctrine.

We were asked the following question by a brother. Do you think it right to pass the emblems to non-believers or to those of other churches? We answered emphatically, No! He stated that another brother said: You would do no harm by being liberal you might be able to get them to listen.

The question is, is it right? To begin with, Jehovah called Abram from his country and people to make him and his offspring a separate people. He watched over and preserved them while they sojourned in Egypt. They were led from bondage by the leadership of Moses. He sent his angel to keep them in the way and bring them to the place he had prepared. After their being settled in the land they were commanded to keep themselves from the nations roundabout. They were not permitted to take to themselves wives from among the heathen. Neither were their children to do so.

Israel was a nation of which he wished to make a kingdom of priests, a holy nation. They were to be a peculiar treasure unto Jehovah above all people. As long as they remained so God blessed them and prospered them. If they become physically corrupt, they were required to cleanse themselves as written in the law. They were placed under the strictest hygienic law. They could not depart in any way from the written law and receive Jehovah's approbation. Saul was sent down to destroy the Amalekites. He was ordered to not leave one alive. He disobeyed slightly but lost his kingdom and his life. Are not these incidents a lesson to those of like precious faith? A people whom God would make kings and princes in his kingdom must be morally and physically clean.

He wished to make Israel that by a rigid discipline. The nations of the world select men to fill important position because they are adapted in every way to fill them. Our ambassadors are selected from the class who will represent us creditably abroad. Think you that Jehovah will require less from those who are called and placed under trial to prove their fitness to occupy the responsible positions in the coming kingdom? Since the days of Jesus Christ, our heavenly Father has been calling for men and women to make of them kings and priests.

In speaking of this class, the apostle says, "Ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, and a holy nation, a peculiar people (margin, a purchased people); that ye should shew forth the praise of him who hath called you out of darkness into his marvelous light." Now if we are a purchased people it must have been through the blood of the only begotten Son of God. Therefore we are of the house over which Christ was faithful. Like Israel we are commanded to come out from among them and be ye clean. The ordinances can only belong to this household. It is written, "He took bread, and break it and gave unto them saying, This is my body which is given for you; this do in remembrance of me. Likewise also the cup after supper saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you. These emblems were given to his disciples and not to those who do not believe that Jesus is the Christ. They cannot take them in remembrance of one whom they do not know.

In writing to the church at Corinth he says, "As often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup ye do show the Lord's death till he come." This was given to the body and not to those who were religious merely. How can one show the death of Christ when their doctrine denies his death and denies the purpose of his coming. Are we not eating and drinking unworthily when we do this. Are we not unworthy servants when we say, "These are the people of the Lord?" Are we not eating and drinking with the enemies of the master? Some argue that if this be correct we can not in any way associate with the world. Not so, we may eat and drink with them as did Jesus, we are not eating his body nor drinking his blood.

These emblems were given as a memorial until he comes whose right it is to rule. In eating they excluded all who were not Israelites. It is not a question as to the moral fitness but as to being Christ's. The blood of Christ can only be applied to those who have been baptized into his name. In these days we hear a great deal about the blood of Christ cleansing the sinner. The sinner can never touch the blood until he has been put to death through baptism.

We formerly sang, "There is a fountain filled with blood drawn from Immanuel's veins. And sinners plunged beneath that flood lose all their guilty stain." We now know how foolish such an idea it is. The body and blood of Christ is too precious to be given to non-believers or those who have not the faintest conception of a crucified Christ. We are Abraham's spiritual seed through whom the world is to be blessed, and we must keep ourselves unspotted from the world. Let us remember, "wherein ye greatly rejoice though now for a season, if need be ye are in heaviness through manifold temptations. That the trial of your faith being much more precious than of gold that perisheth though it might be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honor and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ." 1 Peter i: 6, 7.

Your brother trusting in the promise of our God.

Teacher The title of our lesson for tonight will be:

A POPULAR ERROR CORRECTED.

Bessie We find many popular errors in existence, what particular error have you in mind?

Teacher Well, it is supposed by so many well meaning people, that Jesus washed his disciples' feet on the occasion of the observance of the Jewish Passover Feast, and at which time he also instituted what is called the Lord's Supper; and that this is the time that Judas had selected in his mind to go forth to make a covenant with those who sought the life of our Lord, that he might betray him into their hands.

The error consists in supposing that our Lord washed his disciples' feet on the occasion of the Jewish Passover Feast, and also that this was the time Judas had selected to seek an interview with those sought to take the Lord's life, that he may make a betrayal covenant with them.

George I used to think that the feet washing took place at the time of the Jewish Passover; but I find from the study of John, that the disciples' feet were washed previous to the adversary's entrance into Judas, and I also have found from the study of Matthew and Mark, that the adversary entered into Judas two days prior to the institution of the Lord's Supper, while in Bethany; but the Supper was instituted in an upper room in Jerusalem.

Arloa Please prove to us from John the time and place Satan entered into Judas.

George Please turn to John xiii 1, 2; and you will learn that the adversary took possession of Judas before the Passover Feast, and not at it. It reads as follows: "Now before the feast of the passover, when Jesus knew that his hour was come that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end. And Supper (not passover supper) being ended, the devil having put it into the heart of Judas Iscariot to betray him." This occurred at Bethany, two days before the passover. See Matt xxvii 2, 6, 14, 15.

Ella Is the above the only Scripture showing that the adversary entered Judas before the Passover Feast?

George No, sister, it is not; see Luke xxii 1 6, "Now the feast of unleavened bread drew nigh, which is called the Passover. And the chief priests and scribes sought how they might kill him; for they feared the people. Then (before the passover) Satan entered into Judas surnamed Iscariot, being of the number of the twelve."

Ella Is there any other evidence showing that the adversary entered Judas before the Passover Feast?

George There is; see Matt xxvi 1-4, 14. "After two days is the feast of the passover, and the Son of Man is betrayed to be crucified. Then assembled the chief priests and the scribes, and the elders of the people, unto the palace of the high priest, who was called Caiaphas, and consulted that they might take Jesus by subtilty, and kill him.  Then one of the twelve called Judas Iscariot, went unto the chief priests, and said unto them, what will ye give me, and I will deliver him unto you? And they covenanted with him for thirty pieces of silver."

Ella You have quoted three of the Evangelists; now, what does Mark say?

George See Mark xiv 1, 10: "After two days was the feast of the passover, and of unleavened bread; and the chief priests and the scribes sought how they might take him by craft, and put him to death.  And Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve, went unto the chief priests to betray him unto them," two days before the Passover?

Albert I wish to ask, did Satan enter Judas, before or after the Lord washed the disciples' feet?

Lud We must observe that John is the only Evangelist, who mentions the Lord washing the disciples' feet. Turn to John xiii. The first verse says: "Before the feast of the Passover," etc. Now, as to what happened before that feast, we will learn by the context. Verse 2, shows that they ate a supper together prior to that feast, which was then "near at hand;" and at the conclusion of that supper, the adversary put it into the heart of Judas Iscariot to betray the Lord! Verses 4, 5, says: "He (Jesus) riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself. After that he poureth water into a basin, and began to wash his disciples' feet, and to wipe them with a towel wherewith he was girded."

Now, after the feet washing was over, they resumed their places at the table again. See verse 12: "So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, know what I have done unto you?"

Now while they were seated at the table after the feet washing was over, Jesus further said, verse 21, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me." The supper was over, and the betrayal had not yet taken place, and the passover supper had not yet been eaten. The bargin even had not yet been made with the chief priests by Judas.

Carrie I know that Jesus had not been delivered up yet, by the betrayal kiss, but how do you know that Judas had not covenanted with them for the thirty pieces of silver?

Lud Because Satan entered his heart before he even tried to sell his Lord, which was after the feet washing.

Carrie When did Satan enter his heart?

Lud Jesus gave a sop (after the feet washing) to indicate which of his disciples should betray him. See verse 26, "When he had dipped the sop he gave it to Judas Iscariot." See verse 27, "And after the sop Satan entered into him. Then said Jesus unto him, that thou doest do quickly." Supper was then ended, the feet washing was over, and the sop given to Judas, before Satan entered his heart, and the passover was still "near at hand."

Carrie Then you feel sure, that the supper they had just eaten, was not the passover supper?

Lud I do.

Carrie Well, what confirms you so strongly in your opinion?

Lud Because the whole account of this supper begins with the phrase, "Now before the feast of the passover," and again from verses 27 29, "After the sop (given to Judas) Satan entered into him. Then said Jesus unto him, that thou doest do quickly. Now no man at the table knew for what intent he spake this unto him. Some of them thought, because Judas had the bag (was treasurer), that Jesus had said unto him, buy those things that we have need of against the feast." Now, if the things that were needful for the Passover feast had not yet been purchased, the supper they had just eaten, could not have been the passover supper, any reasonable student must admit this.

Arloa At what city did Satan enter the heart of Judas?

Lucy See Matt xxvi 6: "And when Jesus was in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, there came a woman with an alabaster box, etc." It was from this house, that Judas went out to sell the Lord. See verse 14, "Then one of the twelve called Judas Iscariot went unto the chief of priests, and said unto them, What will ye give me, and I will deliver him unto you? And they covenanted with him for thirty pieces of silver."

Ella You have quoted three of the Evangelists; now, what does Mark say?

George See Mark xiv 1, 10: "After two days was the feast of the passover, and of unleavened bread; and the chief priests and the scribes sought how they might take him by craft, and put him to death.  And Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve, went unto the chief priests to betray him unto them," two days before the Passover?

Albert I wish to ask, did Satan enter Judas, before or after the Lord washed the disciples' feet?

Lud We must observe that John is the only Evangelist, who mentions the Lord washing the disciples' feet. Turn to John xiii. The first verse says: "Before the feast of the Passover," etc. Now, as to what happened before that feast, we will learn by the context. Verse 2, shows that they ate a supper together prior to that feast, which was then "near at hand;" and at the conclusion of that supper, the adversary put it into the heart of Judas Iscariot to betray the Lord! Verses 4, 5, says: "He (Jesus) riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself. After that he poureth water into a basin, and began to wash his disciples' feet, and to wipe them with a towel wherewith he was girded."

Now, after the feet washing was over, they resumed their places at the table again. See verse 12: "So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, know what I have done unto you?"

Now while they were seated at the table after the feet washing was over, Jesus further said, verse 21, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me." The supper was over, and the betrayal had not yet taken place, and the passover supper had not yet been eaten. The bargin even had not yet been made with the chief priests by Judas.

Carrie I know that Jesus had not been delivered up yet, by the betrayal kiss, but how do you know that Judas had not covenanted with them for the thirty pieces of silver?

Lud Because Satan entered his heart before he even tried to sell his Lord, which was after the feet washing.

Carrie When did Satan enter his heart?

Lud Jesus gave a sop (after the feet washing) to indicate which of his disciples should betray him. See verse 26, "When he had dipped the sop he gave it to Judas Iscariot." See verse 27, "And after the sop Satan entered into him. Then said Jesus unto him, that thou doest do quickly." Supper was then ended, the feet washing was over, and the sop given to Judas, before Satan entered his heart, and the passover was still "near at hand."

Carrie Then you feel sure, that the supper they had just eaten, was not the passover supper?

Lud I do.

Carrie Well, what confirms you so strongly in your opinion?

Lud Because the whole account of this supper begins with the phrase, "Now before the feast of the passover," and again from verses 27 29, "After the sop (given to Judas) Satan entered into him. Then said Jesus unto him, that thou doest do quickly. Now no man at the table knew for what intent he spake this unto him. Some of them thought, because Judas had the bag (was treasurer), that Jesus had said unto him, buy those things that we have need of against the feast." Now, if the things that were needful for the Passover feast had not yet been purchased, the supper they had just eaten, could not have been the passover supper, any reasonable student must admit this.

Arloa At what city did Satan enter the heart of Judas?

Lucy See Matt xxvi 6: "And when Jesus was in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, there came a woman with an alabaster box, etc." It was from this house, that Judas went out to sell the Lord. See verse 14, "Then one of the twelve called Judas Iscariot went unto the chief of priests, and said unto them, What will ye give me, and I will deliver him unto you? And they covenanted with him for thirty pieces of silver." Then the supper and feet washing must have been in Bethany at the house of Simon the leper, two days before the passover feast was due, is the reasonable inference.

For further proof, see Mark xiv. The first verse says, "After two days was the feast of the passover," etc. Where was Jesus and his disciples at that time? See verse 3, "And being in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, as he sat at meat," etc. Verse 10, And Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve, went unto the chief priests to betray him unto them," etc. Now Judas did not go out to betray his Lord, until after he was given the sop, after the feet washing; and if he went out from the house of Simon, the leper, in Bethany, to do that work the conclusion is by strong inference, that the supper and feet washing must have been held in the house of Simon the leper, of Bethany, two days before either the passover feast, or the Lord's supper was instituted. The passover supper, and Lord's Supper, were held at Jerusalem, on the first day of the passover, in an upper room, some two days after the Lord washed his disciples' feet.

Teacher I introduced this lesson, because many people suppose that the Lord washed his disciples feet, on the occasion of the celebration of what is called the Lord's Supper. And that being the case, it is argued that the feet washing must be just as much a Divine ordinance as the Lord's Supper. You will doubtless have observed, that the preponderance of Scripture evidence is against the supposition; and that the passover could not have been eaten before Judas received the sop, (which was after the feet washing) and also became the things needful for the passover feast, had not then been purchased, and also that the Lord's Supper was eaten on the occasion of the Passover Feast.

The evidence is wanting to show that feet washing stands on a par with the Lord's Supper, and baptism, as a Divine ordinance.

Sometimes we will find a passage of Scripture where several events are spoken of as though all occurred at the same time; but if you gather together the preponderance of evidence on the topic under investigation, you will sometimes find a space of time intervenes between the events. We need to be more careful in dividing the Word of Truth.

Yours In the Blessed Hope.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, SEP. 12.

CLOSE OF PAUL'S THIRD MISSIONARY JOURNEY. ACTS XXI. 8 12.

Golden Text. The will of the Lord be done. Acts xxi 14.

The last lesson should have made a deep impression on all the seed of Abraham. Gal iii 29. There was very much in it to cause serious reflection, and enables us to "watch and pray" according to the Word of the Lord.

Paul having parted from the Elders from Ephesus sailed to Coos, a small island in the Aegaen Sea. There are many islands in that sea; next came to Rhodes, an island in the Mediterranean, a place of many notable happenings. Here the statute of Apollos was built over the entrance of the harbor, 105 feet high, finished in 280 B. C., destroyed by an earthquake 224 B.C. From there Paul came to Patara, a city on the coast of Lycia in Asia Minor, east of Rhodes. From there he sailed to Phoenicia—the east coast of the Mediterranean, passing the Island of Cyprus he landed at Tyre, a famous city that many people know of and know some of its history. It is safe to say Paul saw it at its best. He found there disciples of Jesus. A city may have many attractions for the general public; but has little or no drawing power on a faithful follower of the Lord. If there are none of the Church of God in it, or known to be in it. The disciples said to Paul—through the Spirit that he should not go up to Jerusalem. In Acts xx 22 the Spirit told him to go up. Here is a seeming contradiction that the 'scorner' enjoys. Let us see. Paul was hurrying to Jerusalem. It is not guessing to remark that the Spirit, through the disciples, told Paul not to hurry, but stay there seven days, before proceeding towards Jerusalem. When the seven days were passed he departed. The brethren with wives and children accompanied him to the shore were there was another commendation to God, and an affectionate farewell.

From Tyre he came to Ptolemais, about 27 miles south of Tyre, and towards Jerusalem. Ptolemais is now called St. Jean D'Arce. He stayed there one day with the disciples, that was likely as long as the ship remained there. Next came to Cesarea, or Cesaren on the Mediterranean about 50 miles south of Ptolemais, and about 70 N W. of Jerusalem. It was a city of considerable note, now desolate. When the church at Jerusalem was scattered by persecution, in which Saul—Paul—was the most active, Acts viii 3, Philip left Jerusalem, preaching all the way to Cesarea. Acts viii 40. When Paul first preached in Jerusalem, the Jews sought to kill him. The brethren brought him to Cesarea and sent him to Tarsus. Acts ix 30. And now in the lesson we find Paul at the home of Philip, the evangelist, who was not only a public proclaimer of the glad tidings himself, but had four daughters who devoted their lives to preaching the gospel. Paul was now near enough to Jerusalem to be able to get there at any time. So he stayed with Philip a good while. Agabus, a prophet, moved by the Holy Spirit, showed Paul that trouble was waiting him at Jerusalem. Paul was under trial. Like his Master he did not waver. It was his business to go to Jerusalem, and the business of his Lord, and no one could persuade him to give up going, no fears could stay him. The loving brethren finally believed him, that it was to magnify the name of the Lord Jesus that he should go up to Jerusalem, and they accepted the will of the Lord.

Three days after these things took place, they packed their baggage and started for Jerusalem, where the brethren received them gladly. The next day Paul delighted the elders by an account of his work, especially among the Gentiles, and they glorified the Lord, gave the Lord the glory and honor for the great work. They then gave Paul some advice. This closed Paul's great missionary work, not by any means his life work.

Contrast, for a minute, the life work of this apostle, with the life work of some of the present day—socalled—evangelists. Paul's success, even with the help of the Lord Jesus, was as nothing compared to boastings of some who have gone all over the world, and who tell of the thousands of converts they make, sometimes hundreds in one night. The result—Jesus has for Paul a crown of righteousness. 2 Tim iv 8. For the modern boaster—I never knew you.

Some have gone so far as to link together the names of Luther, Wycliffe, Melanchthon, Calvin, Zwingle, Knox, and others with that of Paul, but oil and water will not mix. The reformers did reform, but did not preach the "things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ," and therefore were not Christ's, nor Abraham's seed, nor heirs according to the promise. Gal iii 29. What do we find in verses 5 and 13?

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPTEMBER 1, 1909. NUMBER 33.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

The Restitution.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPT. 1, 1900.

Death of Brother Thompson.

William Dickson Thompson was born in Fayette County, Ind., March 4, 1827, and died at his home in Plymouth, Ind., August 27, 1900 having reached the age of eighty-two years, five months and twenty-three days.

He traces his ancestry back through several generations to his great grandfather, James Thompson, who came to this country from Scotland, and settled in that part of the State of Maryland that was taken off for the District of Columbia. Here William Thompson, his grandfather, was born in 1779, and in 1798 was married to Miss Nancy Lewis. About 1800 James Thompson and his family moved to Bracken County, Kentucky. He and his son, William, were both Baptist ministers, and while on his way to attend a conference of his church was drowned in the Ohio River.

William, with other members of his family moved to Fayette County, Ind., where, in 1816 he severed his connection with the Baptist church, and became identified with the Disciples, of which denomination he was a minister until his death in 1858. He is buried in Union Township, Marshall County. His son, Lewis Thompson, the father of William Dickson, was born December 20, 1804 in Bracken County, Kentucky, and was also a member of the Christian Disciple Church. He was married to Phebe Lewis Dickson February 27, 1825. Of their children the following grew to maturity: William D., Alexander C., Nancy J., and Julia A., two of whom, Alexander C., of Cleveland, Ohio, and Mrs. Julia Harsch, of South Bend, Ind., are still living.

When William D. was nine years old he with his father and grandfather and their families came to Marshall County where he has resided continuously ever since. On February 14, 1850 he was married to Miss Amanda Logan, daughter of Thomas and Mary Logan, of the same county. Seven children were born to them, of whom Francis Meade, Mary Alice and Lewis Edwin are dead. Mrs. Phebe C. Willey, Mrs. Eva L. Underwood, Albertus C. Thompson and Olive M. Thompson survive him. He also leaves four grand children: Lois Thompson, Arthur, Harold and Glen Underwood.

Having the confidence and respect of his neighbors, Wm. D. Thompson was chosen by them to service in public position several times during his life, having been Justice of the Peace, Trustee of Center Township, and a member of the Plymouth City Council when the present City Hall and Firemen Station was built.

In his early life Brother Thompson heard Elders E. Hoyt and Ephraim Miller, who came into this County to preach the gospel of the Kingdom of God and the things concerning the name of Jesus Christ. He believed that God was a reasonable Being, and having made man, his creature, with reasoning power, his conclusion was that God demanded of every man the use of the faculties given him. Hence it became man's duty to study to know what his Creator would have him to do. This made necessary a research to determine the plan of God in the creation of the universe, and man's relation to that plan. He soon found that God created the earth for an abode of living creatures. That he then made those creatures and gave them life in the various spheres each fill. Man was given the place of honor in this creation, and before him was set a trial, to test his fitness for the position. Through disobedience the first man fell from this exalted place, and had no power within himself to rise again to the height from which he had fallen.

Brother Thompson reasoned and studied through all these happenings, and following the history of the race on down he learned that only through Jesus Christ, the only begotten Son of God, was there hope of life beyond the present. He saw that in the reasonableness and simplicity of his purpose, God had made this provision for extension of being to such of his creatures as manifested a desire for the perpetuation of life beyond this. To Brother Thompson the idea of death [illegible] repugnant. He loved so well. All who gave kind words of sympathy, and in so many ways gave evidence that their hearts were filled with human kindness. We assure you each that the family fully appreciates your labor of love, and will ever hold you in grateful remembrance.

desired life. He did not want to die. Such a prospect was unpleasant to him. Therefore he lost no time in laying hold on the promises God has made. He endeavored to do all that the Giver of Life wanted done. Having obeyed with full purpose of heart the requirements of his Master, he realized that he must ever be faithful to the vows he had taken. His life is an open book. He lived a long time, to a good old age, and gone but bear testimony to his worth as a man in every walk.

Like Paul, he was ready to be offered. His course was finished; he had kept the faith. He could say in full assurance "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me in that day." Consequently our sorrow is tempered with the joyful anticipation of the glories he will, at the appointed time, receive.

Brother Thompson had the service of the Church uppermost in mind. He was prominent among those who brought about the erection of Antioch meeting house five miles south of this City, and was one of the first Trustees of that Church. After the organization of the Church in Plymouth he was made an Elder, and has since held the position. Until disease prevented, he was always prompt at each appointment of service, doing his full share both in the business and devotional work.

He had a special gift. His voice was his pleasure and pride. Brother Woodward says "I have traveled up and down the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific, here there and everywhere, and among all the many whom I have heard sing, nothing ever just thrilled me as did the voice of Brother Thompson." A clear tenor, of the purest type; a voice that would attract attention among a thousand. Frivolous songs of the day had no attraction for him. The best he had was given to the service of God, and the songs of Zion were his delight. All who have ever attended meetings where Brother Thompson was, will remember the power of his voice in song. He retained till late in life a wonderful clearness and volume of voice, and only lately did weakness of body cause him to cease singing. His voice is now silent. The grave is his resting place, and for a time he must lie down in death; sleep till the angel messenger from the throne of God shall issue the call for the saints to come forth, clad in raiments of light.

Brother Thompson's hope was similar to Paul: "When the Chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away," and the Psalmist David sings of that glad morning when the dead shall awake from the sleep of death, "I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness." Like the King Immortal—live where he lives, reign where he reigns. Could we ask for more! Well may we say "Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Brother Thompson has fallen. Death holds sway for a brief period, but victory is nearing. Soon Jesus will come and break death's power. Soon will the waiting ones of earth be freed from the dominion of the enemy of all mankind. Eternal life through Jesus Christ, is the hope that inspired our brother, that sustained him in the trials of life, and was the comforting thought while death approached. By faith his view was fixed on the ladeless inheritance, and we can in confidence leave him for a while in silence, trusting that our lives may be so pure that we will meet our loved one in the resurrection morning, and hear his voice break out in singing the praises of Him to whom all praise belongs.

The funeral services were held at the residence on Center Street, on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 29. Brother B. W. Woodward came all the way from Dutton, Michigan, to be at the funeral, and spoke fittingly and feelingly. Word was sent to Brother J. L. Wines but the misplacing of the letter at his home prevented his being here. After the services a large concourse of relatives and friends followed to Oak Hill Cemetery, where Brother Thompson now waits, quietly asleep in Jesus.

It is with grateful hearts that we bear testimony to the faithful service rendered by friends in the hour of bereavement. Mrs. Schroeter, Mrs. Martindale, Mrs. Walker, Mrs. Vorse, and so many others who bore so large a part in softening the blow that fell on the family. The singers: Misses Yockey and McCrory, Messrs. Thompson and Vanvactor, and Miss Helms who presided at the organ; those who sent the beautiful flowers the deceased

Report.

The household of faith at Raisin Center were encouraged again last Sunday when Sister Unice Lamb took a brave stand for the gospel truths by being immersed into the Christ.

Brother Woodward was not able to go so when the telegram came from Brother F. Smith of Adrian, we simply did the best we could and Sister Woodward went. We had services Sunday at Little Hope church, after which Raisin River claimed another evidence of faith in the promises of God. The Lord's supper was administered to Sister Lamb at Brother Charles Chase's.

This young sister has been thoroughly educated in the gospel by Sister Averell, her grandmother, and by her mother, both being grand educators in the things pertaining to the Kingdom of God. Their home is at Detroit, 339 W. Grand Boulevard, and they considered the work of so much importance that they came on the train Sunday morning, returning in the evening.

We are very much pleased with the work the Berean class is doing in Adrian, though few in number, they were bravely struggling on, and those who attended the Bible School at Dutton express themselves as feeling more interested then ever before. They will not now be easily moved away from the hope of the gospel. May they be faithful to the truth. Do not compromise with error, beloveds. The good Father will reward with eternal life those who are faithful unto death.

Nebraska State Evangelist Report for July.

On June 22, we boarded the train at Omaha for Corvallis, Oregon, Conference. Arrived there Friday noon, the 25th. Conference convened at two o'clock in the afternoon. While here we met many old friends, among them were the Cramers, Harlans, Morgans, Grays, Browns and Cadys, who were once Nebraska people. It seemed good to look into these old familiar faces again and to note that they were still contending for the faith. We also met Brother and Sister Palmer, formerly of Iowa and found that they had lost none of their former zeal. Also Brother Darby whom we had met in far away Kansas. It can be said of Brother Darby that he is a good man, which means more than words can express. His daughter Goldie was the organist and being a good singer helped very much, to put life into the meeting.

We have noticed the name of W. A. Prosser associated with the Northwest Conference for many years and was pleased to meet him. He is a man of force and earnestness and has fallen into the right line of speaking, mostly from a practical stand-point. He gave a couple of splendid talks along this line.

Brother Balshaw, wife and daughter of Eugene, Oregon, were of much value to the meeting.

Brother Montgomery, the Chairman, is a man of ability, and has a valuable assistant in his wife. They have a fine home in Portland, and you feel welcome as soon as you enter. Brother Montgomery took Brother Darby and myself in his auto on Saturday to Felida, Washington, where our people have a good building of their own. Here we spoke twice, Brother Darby giving us an earnest talk on the parable of the sower. There is a splendid field in the northwest for a live evangelist. It would be a fine place for tent work.

We arrived home on Tuesday after an absence of just seven weeks, and having been at home only a little over a week since last March.

Expenses were as follows:—Omaha to Portland and return, $50.00. Portland to Corvallis and return $5.20. Meals on trip $2.50. Portland to Corvallis and return, second trip, $5 20. Meals and hotel bill on return trip, $4 20. Total, $67.10.

Money received, at Oregon Conference, $97.50. At Box Elder $4.00. Total, $101 50. Received above expenses, $34.40. Wages $35.00.

Due Evangelist, less the amount received $30 00

Sermons:—At Corvallis 4. Portland 3. Felida, Washington, 2. Moorefield, 2. Total, 18.

Baptized at Moorefield, July 29, William Wharton, Bert Ealy, Minnie Ealy, Miss May Stephenson, and Mrs. Tribbe. Total 5.

ALMUS ADAMS

Obituary.

J. B. Craton was born May 5, 1837, at Rowsbury, Ohio, and died in the hospital in Memphis, Tenn., at the age of 72 years, 3 months and 4 days. He was ill only a few hours, and fell asleep in death. His daughters Mrs. R. M. Michelfelder of Oklahoma, and Miss Lily Craton of Ramona, Kan., started immediately on receipt of a message, but arrived too late. His wife at Ramona was in feeble health and was unable to go. His sons Milo of Galveston, Texas, Roy of Salt Lake, Utah, and Earl of Vancouver, B. C., were unable to reach Memphis in time.

Bro. Craton was united in marriage to Mary J. Clark, Sept. 10, 1861 to their union were born eight children, five of which survive him. They came to Kansas in 1880. For the past two years he has been traveling in gospel work in the south. He united with the Church of God in 1857, in which he was a faithful servant of the Lord, and was ever ready when called upon to go out to preach the gospel. Brother Craton was very zealous for the cause of Christ, traveled over many hundreds of miles with a gospel wagon with his dear wife and children worn out and fatigued, and at last found out that his gospel wagon was a failure, not satisfied with that, and wanted to do all that he could do, started a gospel boat which took lots of hard work. He gave his life, and nearly all his earthly possessions for the cause of Christ. I have known Bro. Craton for over twenty-five years. Although he was poor in this world's goods he was rich in faith, and an heir of God according to the promise. By request of Sister Craton the above obituary was written.

Selections.

The Priceless Man.

Let men speculate as they will on man's origin and place, let them expound the stages of development by which he has attained his present structure and power, this much, at least, is clear about him, clear on the face of God's Word—that he is a being whose rescue from moral evil is held on high to be worth the agony and the bloody sweat, the cross and passion, the precious death and burial, the glorious resurrection and ascension of the Son of God. His sacrifice is the eternal witness to the truth that man at his very worst is worthy of being ministered to from heaven, and at a cost which defies expression in terms of our earthly sacrifices.

If you are tempted to think meanly of man; if, face to face with the dark facts of his vice and frailty, all the fine things that poets have sung of him and prophets have forecast, seem to you but a hollow mockery, then remember that there is a judgment above yours; remember that however little you can see to honor or admire, there must be in each one something of infinite value, since God would fain redeem each for himself by an infinite sacrifice. The humblest personality is glorified by this thought of redemption, and you cannot stand before a human being, no matter what his race, his creed, or his character, without being in the presence of one whom God loves, and for whom Christ has died.—Canon Duckworth.

Shirking Duty.

The habit of shirking is a great evil in our land. Sad and bitter are the experiences of multitudes who have lost positions of emolument and trust by shirking duties and responsibilities devolving upon them. They saw their mistake after it was too late. It is a bad sign to see a young man contracting the habit of shirking. You may set it down at once that sooner or later he will be a drone in the great hive of human industry, living without any purpose in life and scorned by all who have willing hands, and follow up whatever they can find to do. Young men, if you want to gain the confidence and esteem of your employer, never shrink from a duty. If overtasked, lay in your complaints, and you will always get a hearing. If you begin life a shirk, you may set it down as a fixed fact that the habit will follow you through life, and instead of a "success" you will be an utter failure.

There is no real heroism in doing one's duty, but the truest heroism is in doing what is right without being conscious that it is duty—duty having been lost in love.

Let That Pump Alone.

It is hard to look on and witness useless and fruitless labor. And it is specially hard for a man who knows what should be done, and how to do it, to stand by and see persons trying to do what they can never do, and what they in some instances only hinder others from doing. William Taylor, the evangelist, tells the following story:

"I remember one night years ago, in San Francisco, when water was worth a shilling a pail, having previous permission, I went to a neighbor's well for a bucket of water. I pumped away for a minute, but no water came. I went at it again with with more earnestness of effort to make it come, when I heard the good lady of the house, who did not know she was talking to her minister, exclaim in an authoritative tone, 'Let that pump alone! the water is all out of the well, and you'll spoil the pump.'"

How many persons stand in pulpits today working dry pumps, and laboring to do something which God has never given them to do; and which they never can do without his commission and his help. A dry pump is moisture itself compared with a dry minister; one who has been instructed by men, but not taught of God; one who holds his commission from some human association, but who has never been sent, sanctioned, or honored by the Lord of Hosts; a man who seeks wages rather than souls, and who feeds the hungry church with stones instead of bread. How the pump creaks and squeaks when the effort is made to draw up something refreshing from one of these "wells without water;" and how sometimes one feels as this woman did when she ordered her minister to "Let that pump alone!"

Oh, if some of these empty talkers would only stop pumping; if they would leave their pulpits and go into their closets; if they would seek the pardon, the blessing, the salvation of the Lord of Hosts; if they would confess their sinfulness, their emptiness, their worldliness, and their worthlessness, and cry to God to be brought up out of the horrible pit and the miry clay, how soon they would find peace and blessing at the hand of the Lord; and it is possible that the Lord might yet count them faithful, putting them into the ministry.

And if the time should ever come when they, receiving into their hearts the words that Christ has spoken, should find them abiding within them as "a well of water, springing up unto everlasting life;" if, believing on Christ, they should be so filled with his Spirit, that out of them should flow "rivers of living water," their own souls would rejoice quite as much as would their thirsty people, in the fact that they had stopped working the dry pumps, and learned with joy to draw water out of the wells of salvation.—H. L. Hastings.

The Coming One.

Christ was foreseen and foretold as the Coming One for whom all waited in expectation. "Art thou he that should come, or look we for another?" was the question that arose in many a heart.

On his coming much depended. Without it, there was no salvation for sinners. He came and brought salvation, but his work is not yet completed. He has said: "I will come again," and to that coming Christians look as the time when he shall crown and consummate his work.

If Christ had not come in lowliness, there would have been no cornerstone laid in Zion. We should have been building our hopes upon the sand. But if he does not come again, there will be no head-stone brought forth to crown the mighty temple, with shoutings of "Grace, grace unto it." The saints before his incarnation looked, and longed, and waited for his coming. The church on earth still waits, till he who once was here to bear the cross, shall come again to wear the crown—the crown of glory that fadeth not away. "Even so, come, Lord Jesus."—Armory.

Faith which worketh by love stops the mouths of lions, quenches the violence of fire, turns to flight the armies of aliens, waxes valiant in fight, subdues kingdoms, works righteousness, obtains promises. The same faith that accomplished wonderful deliverances in other days is the same faith that is in reach of every child of God today. Love, the propelling power and incentive to perfect faith must fill the heart before we shall see demonstrations of God's power in these days of unbelief, but it is available; thank God!

Brethren and Sisters:

It ought to be evident to each one of our friends that know the trials of the hour, that a dollar comes in very handy at such a time. Please do not quench the promptings of your heart, but send us what you can right now. We thank you sincerely.

Profession and Practice.

The world will not be evangelized by mere profession. There must be practice as well as profession, action as well as talk. The church which Christ left on earth was full of ceaseless activity; and when persecution scattered the disciples abroad, they went everywhere preaching or proclaiming the Word. They did not wait for pulpits, or salaries, or calls; they did not wait for authority or ordination. The apostles were at Jerusalem, but the church was flashing the light of the gospel wherever they went.

If there is much to be done for the salvation of a lost world, there must be a utilization of all the forces in the church. A few flat-chested, slender-waisted, black-coated ministers will never be able to wrestle with the giant powers of darkness which rule the world, and win victories over satan and his host. The church must take hold of the work. Business men, like Elisha, must leave their ploughs and their implements in the field, and give themselves to the work of God. There must not only be ministers especially called and qualified for the work, but there must be a feeling that a work so vast demands the united and persistent energies of the universal church. The rich man must bring his wealth, the business man his tact and talent; the man of fortune must consecrate his fortune; the man of position must consecrate his position; and doing this the Master's bidding will be accomplished, the gospel be preached in all the world, and a people prepared for the Lord.—Christian.

Single-Handed Work.

Many young men covet the position of those who address large audiences. They fail to realize that often much more good is done in pleading with individuals singly. There is little exaltation of self in personal dealing with souls, and God honors those efforts the most where there is the most self-effacement. All our powers are called forth in such service. Then it requires more courage to fight single-handed than in companies. Therefore, young men, seek to do more and more of personal work. Preach the Word by the wayside, in the workshop, behind the counter, in your boarding house, anywhere, everywhere, when you have the opportunity. When you write letters to your friends, tell them what God has done for you. Remember in all your pleadings with friends, to plead with God. "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

Rothschild's Rules.

The following twelve maxims form part of the will of Meyer Anselm Rothschild, the founder of the great banking house at Frankfort:

1 Seriously ponder over and thoroughly examine any project to which you intend to give your attention.

2 Reflect a long time, then decide very promptly.

3 Go ahead.

4 Endure annoyances patiently and fight bravely against obstacles.

5 Consider honor as a sacred duty.

6 Never lie about a business affair.

7 Pay your debts promptly.

8 Learn how to sacrifice money when necessary.

9 Do not trust too much to luck.

10 Spend your time profitably.

11 Do not pretend to be more important than you really are.

12 Never become discouraged; work zealously and you will surely succeed

It is usually vain to tell inexperienced Christians to "go to work," without giving them some further instructions. Most persons do not know when to take hold. They shrink from the responsibility of attempting lines of work on their own judgment, but if given definite things to do, and relieved from all anxiety about planning, then will execute according to the direction given. Experienced workers must furnish the pattern and cut out the work for others. A president of an Endeavor Society, or chairman of a committee must be like the superintendent of a shop or foreman of a department. He must not say, "Here is work," but "Here is your work; do this; do that." Most persons will respond when asked to do definite things.

A Declaration, Containing In Brief Outline a Statement of the Doctrines "Most Surely Believed among us" Lk. 1. 1.

THE BIBLE.

1. The book currently known as the Bible, consisting of the Scriptures of Moses, the prophets, and the apostles, is the only revelation God has given to man. This revelation was made by the Holy Spirit through God-selected men, is without error, and is the Word of God 2 Tim iii 16; 1 Cor ii 13; Heb i 1; 2 Pet i 21; 1 Cor xiv 37; Neh ix 20, 30; Jno x 35.

2. We must believe in the doctrines that are taught in the Bible in order to be saved. Matt xv 14; 2 John ix 12; John xv 6, 7; Mk xix 16; 2 Thess ii 10-12; Rev xxi 8; Heb iii 12-19; 2 Thess i 10; Jno iv 41, 42; v 34; xii 48.

THE GOSPEL.

1. Salvation is conditioned upon hearing, believing, and obeying the gospel. Rom x 13-17; 1 Cor i 21; Mk xvi 15; Rom i 16; 1 Cor xv 2; 1 Pet i 22-25.

2. The gospel consists of the truths "concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ." Acts viii 12; Mk i 14; Lk ix 2, 6; Acts xix 8; xx 25; xxviii 30, 31

THE KINGDOM OF GOD

1. The kingdom of God will be a divine political dominion established on the earth. Dan ii 44; vii 13, 14; Rev xi 15; Isa xxxii 6; xi 9, 10.

2. At the close of the times of the Gentiles, God will send Christ in person to the earth to "set it up." Acts iii 20, 21; Psa cii 16, 21; 2 Tim iv 1; Lk xix 12-16; Acts i 9, 11; Dan vii 13.

3. The kingdom established on the land bequeathed to Abraham for an everlasting possession at that time will be the kingdom of Israel restored. Mi iv 6-8; Amos ix 11, 15; Ezek xxxvii 21, 22; Jer xxiii 3, 8; Gen xiii 14-17; Heb xi 8, 9; Gal iii 16; Lev xxvi 42; Mi vii 20.

4. The restoration of the kingdom involves the ingathering of God's chosen nation, the Israelites, and the building again of Jerusalem to become "the throne of the Lord" and the metropolis of the whole earth. Isa xi 12; Jer xxxi 10; Zech vii 8; Ezek xxxvi 24, 36; Isa li 3; lxii 4; Jer iii 17; Mi iv 7, 8; Joel iii 17; Isa xxiv 23.

5. Christ will be King. His associates will be the saints of all generations, developed and immortalized by resurrection, and constituting, with Christ their head, a collective "seed of Abraham", in whom all the families of the earth will be blessed, and including "Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets," and all in their age of like faithfulness. Zech xiv 9; Dan xii 2; Lk xiii 28; Rev xi 18; 1 Thess iv 15 17; Jno v 28, 29; vi 39, 40; Lk xiv 14; Matt xxv 34, 36.

THE REIGN OF CHRIST.

1. Christ and his immortal saints will in the kingdom of that one thousand years, during which time sin and death will continue among earth's inhabitants (the remnants of the Jewish and Gentile nations) though in a milder degree than now. Rev xx 7-9; xii 15; Isa lxv 20; Ezek xx 33 39; Zech xiv 12-20; xiii 7 9; 1 Cor xv 24, 29.

2. A law will be established for the subjects of the kingdom; they will be instructed "in righteousness". War will be abolished to the ends of the earth, and the glory and knowledge of the Lord will cover the earth. Mi iv 2, Isa xlii 14; xi 2 5; ii 3, 4; Heb ii 5.

3. During the thousand years reign of Christ and his Brethren "all enemies" will be subdued. "All rule and all authority and all power" of human governments will be destroyed; ignorance will be removed; and finally death itself, "the last enemy", will be extirpated. Dan ii 44; Rev xi 15; Isa xxv 6 9; 1 Cor xv 25, 26; Rev xx 12 15; xxi 4.

4. After the one thousand years have expired there will "a little season," during which time there is a resurrection and judgment of the "rest of the dead," that is, those who have died during the reign of Christ. Judgment results in the extinction of all sin and sinners, and the immortalization of those who shall establish a title to eternal life during the thousand years. 1 Cor xv 24; Rev xx.

5. Then the kingdom will be delivered up by Christ to his Father, who will manifest himself as the "all in all"; sin and death having been taken out of the way, and the earth peopled with sinless immortals. 1 Cor xv 28; Rev xxi 1-10.

THE FATHER, SON, AND HOLY SPIRIT.

1. There is only one God, the Father. Deut vi 4; Mk xii 29-32; 1 Cor viii 4 6. Eph iv 6.

2. Jesus of Nazareth was the Son of God, begotten of Mary by the Holy Spirit, without the intervention of man. Matt i 23; 1 Tim i 16; Lk i 26-35.

3. He died, was buried, and rose again, and ascended to heaven where he is officiating priest for his own house only. Lk xxiv 51; Acts v 31; 1 Tim ii 5; Acts xv 14; Jno xvii 9; 1 Jno ii 1; Pro xxvii 13.

4. The Holy Spirit is the power of God in official manifestation. Its possession and gifts were limited to the official members of Christ's church in the days of the apostles. Lk i 35; Acts ii 8; Mi iii 5 9; Eph iv 8 17; 1 Cor xiii.

THE NATURE OF MAN.

1. Man is mortal. Job iv 17; xiv 10-16; Psa xlix 14-20; Eccl iii 18-22; 1 Cor xv 47, 48.

2. During the death state he is unconscious. Eccl ix; Psa cxlvi 4; vi 5, lxxxviii 10 13.

THE RESURRECTION.

1. Resurrection is an awakening to life and consciousness of people who are dead and in the dust of the earth. Job xiv 13, 14; xix 26, 27; Psa xvii 15; Isa xxvi 19; 1 Cor xv.

2. The subjects of resurrection consist of two classes—the just and the unjust, the righteous and the wicked of all ages who have been blessed with the privilege of light. The just are those who have obeyed the faith; they come forth at the resurrection invested with immortality, and are exalted to reign with Christ as joint heirs of the kingdom, co-possessors of the earth, and joint administrators of God's authority among men in every thing. The unjust embraces apostates and all others who know the revealed will of God, and have neither believed nor obeyed it; they come forth at the resurrection to be consigned to shame and the second death. Matt vii 26; viii 12; xxv 20; Gal i 8; v 21; 2 Thess i 8; Heb x 26-28; Rev xxi 8; Mal iv 1; Psa xxxvii; Rev v 9, 10; iii 21; Lk xxii 29 30.

3. A third class, consisting of people who are ignorant of the gospel, and who are not therefore eligible to either reward for obedience or punishment for disobedience post-resurrectionally, are irresponsible; they are not raised from the dead. John xv 22 24; ix 40, 41; Jas iv 17; 2 Cor iv 3; Psa xvii 14; Mat. vi 2; Psa lxxiii 22; lxxxviii 4, 5; Isa xliii 17; Pro xxi 16; Amos viii 11-14; Oba xvi; Dan xii 2; John v 28, 29; Rev xx 12 15.

BAPTISM.

Baptism (immersion of a believer in water) is essential to the remission of sins, to adoption into Christ, to heirship of the gospel preached to Abraham, and to salvation and entrance into the kingdom of God. Acts ii 38; xxii 16; Rom vi; Col ii; John iii 5; x 1, 9; Gal iii 27; Mk xvi 16.

THE BREAKING OF BREAD.

The breaking of bread on the First Day of the week by obedient believers only, is binding, and essential to our acceptance with God. Matt xxvi 26 30; Acts ii 42; xx 7; 1 Cor x 16, 17; xi 2, 23-34; v; John vi 48. 59; Heb x 26-39; 1 Jno i 7-10; 2 Jno x.

THE COMMANDMENTS.

None are recognized by Christ as his friends except those who obey the commandments. Matt xxviii 20; John xv 14; 1 Cor xiv 37; 2 Pet i.

DOCTRINES WE REJECT.

We reject the following propositions as unscriptural: That the Bible is only partly inspired, or if wholly so, that inspiration has made errors or allowed them to be made in the Bible; That God is three persons; That the Son of God personally pre-existed; That Joseph was the father of Christ; That Christ's nature was immaculate; That the Holy Spirit is a person distinct from the Father; That man has an immortal soul; That man consciously exists in death; That the righteous go to heaven when they die; That the punishment of the wicked is eternal torments entered into at death, That the devil is an immortal being; That the kingdom of God is the church; that the gospel is the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ merely; That Christ will not come till the close of the thousand years; That the resurrection of the wicked is confined to apostates; That the law of Moses is binding on believers of the gospel; That sprinkling is Scriptural baptism; That people in ignorance, those who have not heard, believed, and obeyed the gospel, will be saved unconditionally; That mortality and sincerity will save men without the gospel; That "faith alone" will save without obedience to gospel requirements; That we cannot believe the gospel without the direct influence of the Holy Spirit; That men are predestined to salvation; and That a knowledge of the truth is not necessary to make immersion valid baptism.

When Was Christ Raised From the Dead?

Brother Huggins:

With some interest we have been reading your expositions of the three days and three nights that Jesus was to have lain in the tomb in fulfillment of the sign of his Messiahship Have also read the criticism of Brother Whitford. Allow me to say that so far as we can see he does not better it in any particular, as you say, using his time also falls short of the full three days and three nights, or seventy-two hours. Now we hope, Brother, that you will not think us presumptuous in writing you on this question, for we want to get to the bottom of things with regard to the truth. We want to know the truths as they are concerning Jesus of Nazareth, and of the certainty of his Messiahship. Therefore we have given considerable thought along this line. The conclusion of our study is that it is unnecessary to leave an opening for the skeptic and infidel to drive the wedge of skepticism and infidelity. Where is the proof that Jesus rose from the dead on the first day of the week? Matt. xxviii. 1, says, "In the end of the Sabbath," or seventh day of the week he arose, time yet belonging to the Sabbath, i. e. before the first day of the week had arrived. What is the use any way of trying to bolster up a first day resurrection? Now let us take Wednesday as the 14th day of the first month, in which day the passover lamb was to be slain. It is obvious that Jesus died at 3:00 P. M. or in the middle of the afternoon on the 14th day of the 1st month. Now turn to Lev. xxviii. 4-7. We will quote: "These are the feasts of the Lord, even holy convocations, which ye shall proclaim in their seasons. In the fourteenth day of the first month at even is the Lord's passover, and on the fifteenth day of the same (first) month is the feast of unleavened bread unto the Lord; (This is the high day of which John speaks, John xix. 31) Seven days ye must eat unleavened bread. In the first day (or on the morrow after the fourteenth,) ye shall have an holy convocation, ye shall do no servile work therein."

Now is it not plain, brother, that the Sabbath here spoken of was a yearly, and not a weekly Sabbath, as some would have us believe? It did not even come in conjunction with the weekly Sabbath. Now the time of year that Jesus died; the days and nights were about equal in length; so there were about three hours of sunshine yet belonging to the fourteenth, in which to place Jesus in the tomb. You know that Pilate marvelled that he was so soon dead, and that they broke the legs of the thieves to prevent their escape, and that they be not exposed on the cross the Sabbath day.

Now let us take a time that will harmonize with the foregoing Wednesday. Jesus was laid in the tomb Wednesday evening. Then Thursday would be one day and one night; Friday evening would be two days and two nights; Saturday (the Sabbath) evening would be three days and three nights. Perfect harmony, don't you see; and no place for the infidel to drive his contradictory wedge; and fully establishing Jesus as the Messiah according to the sign spoken of by him.

Now Brother, we are not writing this as a criticism of what you have written, but to bring out the facts in the case. If you wish to publish this article in THE RESTITUTION and reply to it, you are at liberty to do so. But if you prefer, you can answer by pen, but in any event I shall expect to hear from you again on this question.

Yours for the truth, and in Christian love.

W. H. STEWART.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Brother Stewart's suggestion that Christ was crucified on Wednesday and raised on Saturday evening is the way and the only way to count full time for the three days and three nights. While this may satisfy some who think the mere question of time is the all-important thing, the theory is open to several serious, and to us fatal, objections; but as this question has been sufficiently discussed we do not state them, as we desire now to dismiss the discussion of this subject from our page. We think it impossible to prove that Christ was raised from the dead on Saturday evening; and there are other objections which will be hard to solve, if indeed they can be solved at all. The question has been thoroughly discussed; all sides to the question and all views of it have been heard; and we now leave our readers to decide for themselves, by a careful consideration of the evidence submitted by the different writers, whose claim has the preponderance of proof from God's Word.

They Wrote Letters.

Brother Huggins:

You have propounded a question, to which I might not attempt a reply, but for a discrepancy which appears to me in a statement of yours, and Paul's presentation in Heb x 28, 29. You quote, "He that despised Moses' law died without mercy," and then say that "a sorer punishment" is to be visited upon us if we do "despite unto the spirit of grace."

Observe, Paul does not say, that it is to be visited on us, or will be on any one, but the whole of the 29th verse is a question, to those he is addressing, "Of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye shall he (receive? no) be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant wherewith he was sanctified an unholy thing," etc? The class to whom this refers, apostates, is mentioned in the 26th verse. This was a heinous, an unpardonable sin, to have "trodden under foot the Son of God," etc., and Paul asks us to judge how much sorer punishment he deserves, but does not threaten its infliction. We cannot conceive of anything sorer than death except an interminable existence in a state of great suffering, and so far as we can see, that is impossible, for no mortal man can endure it, he must die; and we have no basis for a belief that immortality and suffering can co-exist in the same being. Is not that true? We must leave it to what is stated in the 27th verse, and beware that we be not found there. This subject is referred to in Heb vi 4-6; 2 Peter ii 20, 21. There was an example of sorer punishment under the law of Moses when the rebels were swallowed up of the earth with their wives and children, and all that they had. Was not that worse for the time being, than for a man to suffer death alone for his own sin? Numbers xvi. This is not for publication, only suggestive for yourself. Do not take this for criticism. It is not so designed.—A Sister.

Although this letter was not written for publication, it is so good that we take the liberty to omit the writer's name, and print it. By reading the chapter closely I think our sister will see that while the statement is in the form of an interrogation, God fully intends to inflict the punishment spoken of. A question does not always imply doubt. To speak of a punishment God has no intention of inflicting, would be both absurd and useless.—Editor.

The Sorer Punishment

Attempted answer to question asked in RESTITUTION of Aug. 11, 1909. "What kind of punishment is sorer than death without mercy?".....Compare Heb x 29 and chapter vi 4, 5, 6. The sacrificial work of Christ was "Once for all." Never to be repeated.

There is no other basis for hope left. The apostate having turned away from Christ, after having known him. "Having been made partaker of the Holy Spirit—tasted the good Word of God and the powers of the world to come. And yet have fallen away."

He who saves his life shall lose it, he who loses his life for my sake, shall keep it unto life eternal." John xii 25. The loss of this eternal life is beyond computation. Think of the tribulation, anguish and wrath against the day of wrath and revelation of the righteous judgment of God. What mental torture—the contemplation of such an outcome must be agonizing in the extreme, a "sorer punishment than death without mercy." Having forfeited the life of the world to come, nothing left but a fearful looking for of judgment. The contrast between the one who continues to patiently run the race marked out, and the one who falls away, is clearly marked out. Rom ii 1 6 compared with verses 7 and 10, and John v 29, and 2 Peter ii 1-8 and verses 15, 20, 21....."Better not to have known the right way than after having known it, to turn away from it."

Respectfully submitted for your inspection.

C. W. TOMKINS.

John xvii. 5

Christ's glory on the Mount is typical of his glory in the world to come. Here is a translation of John xvii 5, taken from the Gospel Banner, Jan. 1860. "And now, glorify me thou O Father, with thyself, with the glory which I had before of the world to be with thee."

The following is submitted for your inspection and criticism: "And now, O thou Father, glorify me at the side of thyself before that (glory understood) of the world to be; with the glory which I had with thee."

Jesus himself is the subject of the sentence, "I had with thee." This glory he had had before he prayed for like glory at the Father's side, in accordance with certain prophetic utterances, Psa xvi 11 and cx 1, and references, "Sit enthroned at my right hand until" and compare Acts ii 21.

As to the time of glorification. See Jno vii 39, and compare with Acts iii 13 and v 30, 31. The necessity for this glorification appears in verse 1—Father, the hour is come, glorify thy Son; so that the Son may glorify thee in the world to be, sitting upon David's throne.

The "world to be," or to come is the destined sphere of the Son's governmental activities. And the glory prayed for at the Father's right hand side is a like glory to that which he had with (in the sense of, in company with) the Father in the holy Mount, when he was transfigured in the presence of three witnesses. Consult Matt xvii 2-5; Mark ix 2, 3. And Luke ix 29 and then compare 2 Peter i 17, 18 and 1 Jno i 2. The life was manifested.....and show unto you that eternal life which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us." In the mouth of two witnesses, or three let every word be established. The phrase, "The world was" is inadmissable because aiual, to be is the present infinitive. An, and on, indefinitely, as in Rom iv 11, and other places.

Respectfully submitted.

What the Law Could Not Do.

We well remember when we were greatly puzzled over "what the law could not do." In Gal iii Paul plainly states that "if there had been a law given which could have given life, verily righteousness would have been by the law. Wherefore the law was our school master (child leader) to bring us to Christ. In Rom viii this same writer says, "What the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God sending his Son in the likeness of sinful flesh and for sin, condemned sin in the flesh. We read again, Gal iii 22, that the Scriptures hath concluded (shut up) all under sin, that the promise by faith of Jesus Christ might be given them that believe. For disobedience the race had been condemned to death. So long as the race remained under condemnation there could be no eternal life obtained.

Under these conditions not one could merit eternal life, for all were "shut up under the law." The principle here alluded to stands connected with two things at the very beginning. The immutable character of God—I am Jehovah, I change not, and the absolute nature of the sentence passed upon man. The sentence of the law was death. "In the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." The law was violated and must be satisfied. Jehovah changes not. However he can settle or judge the disobedient ones and provide for the future of the race which he did in the slaying of the animals, Gen iii 21, which provided a covering for them enabling them to live under this covenant of the slain lamb. The sentence was typically executed. Adam was still under the law. Dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return. He was not deceived but transgressed willfully, therefore he is still under the law. Not one can plead merit. Therefore God must count those righteous upon the principle of faith. Abraham believed God and it was counted to him for righteousness. Not that Abraham could earn it or was in any way entitled to it, but that it must be the gracious gift of Jehovah. The gift could not be bestowed because the sentence had not been fulfilled. Redemption was promised through the Seed of the woman. Jehovah counted all righteous who through faith of the promised seed would offer an acceptable sacrifice. It was the covenant made through the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world (cosmos). We should always remember that "the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life." This gift could not be bestowed until the sentence of the law had been fulfilled. This was consummated when Jesus suffered the violent death of the cross. As a confirmation of this covenant we find Jesus living after death. Death could not hold him for the promise was "Thou wilt not leave my soul in hades, nor suffer thine Holy One to see corruption." No name had been bestowed before this "for salvation." In the resurrection of Jesus the Christ the Seed was perfected that can and will produce a harvest. Without this perfected seed the race would have remained shut up under the sentence of the law. It was through the blood of the everlasting covenant that brought Jesus the Christ from the death state. Perfection under the Mosaic law could not do this as it was weak. It promised only temporal blessings. The blood of bulls and goats could not obtain eternal redemption, but by Jesus shedding his own blood was it secured. If eternal redemption had not have been obtained the gift of eternal life, would never have been bestowed. The immutable character of Jehovah demanded it. The law was the shadow, the sacrifice of Christ was the substance. Now Jesus, the Christ, is the Anointed of God to bestow this gift of eternal life upon as many as will take upon themselves his name.

God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have eternal life. Without this gift the race would have remained alienated from Jehovah by disobedience and wicked works. Those who reject this gift can never hope for redemption. We take the covering of the Lamb slain through faith, repentance and immersion. If we remain under this covenant we have the promise of the sure mercies of David, as we become joint-heirs with Jesus to whom was given these holy and just things. He hath redeemed us (who have obeyed) from the curse of the law being made a curse for us. All who have not believed remain under the law. Therefore brethren, let us labor to reclaim those who are under this curse.

Your brother laboring to this end.

The Sorer Punishment.

The Editor's question of Aug. 11th, "What kind of punishment is "sorer" than death? It cannot be death, for it is worse than death. "The second death" (Rev xx 6, 14, 15) is certainly worse than what was suffered by the condemnation of two or three witnesses; for there is escape from the condemnation of the law but none is promised to those who willfully reject salvation after they have been enlightened.

While it is true that the Lord preserveth all them that love him, but all the wicked will he destroy (Psa cxlv 20), it is also true that some shall be beaten with many and some with few stripes. Luke xii 47, 48. As a Restitution people we must not lose sight of God's reformatory methods with those that become his children. "If ye endure chastening, God dealeth with you as with sons." Heb xii 7. Chastisements and judgments do not always result in death, but if they go before the second death they will be a sorer punishment than could be inflicted under the law. Nor must we forget the judgments that shall come upon the nations in order that the gospel may be fulfilled to them.

Perfection. Matt. v. 48.

If Jesus had said, Be ye as perfect as your Father in heaven is, I would lose my bearings and have to get out of the race; but as he said, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect," I lift up my head hopefully. I try to grasp some conception of the vast space of difference between the possibilities of a perfect God and his mortal creature, sin-cursed man, and conclude that while we cannot be perfect in the God-sphere, we can and must attain to the human plane of perfection—avoid the extremes on this subject, as well as others; for there is as great difference of degrees in perfection as there is between God and man. It is the children of God who need an advocate. Jesus was appointed high priest for them. It is they that must pray "forgive us of our debts as we forgive our debtors." Consequently they can not boast of absolute perfection.

Here I see my chief argument for the divine Sonship of "the only begotten of the Father full of grace and truth." John i 14. Four thousand years passed without bringing forth a son sufficiently perfect to redeem himself or his brother (Psa xlix 7) or who by perfection could be entitled to life, but when the "holy child Jesus" came, though he was tempted in all things as we are tempted he was without sin. You that ridicule miracles' it would be as great a miracle that the Christ as the Son of Joseph should accomplish what he did in boyhood and in manhood as his origin by the Bible story of his conception by Spirit power. If all were by natural law we might speculate as to how many only begotten sons of God may have been born into the world though "shapen in iniquity and conceived in sin," Psa li 5.

Besides if God recognizes a family of children it is most reasonable that his "First Born" should be his "Only Begotten" by divine origin in order that the other children of God may become a part of the family by adoption by taking upon themselves the name of the perfect Son of God—the one and the only one that was holy from birth, and perfect throughout a life of trial. Do not leave the perfect One out of your faith; do not leave the perfect example out of your works. Strive to climb higher and travel more diligently the higher plane. "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the age." To have him with us, leading us, we must walk in the only "narrow way," in which he can be found—then if we stumble he will hold us up by his strong arm. We cannot keep in the way by our boasting egotism, but by contrite humility. He said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee for my strength is made perfect in weakness. Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities that the power of Christ may rest upon me. Therefore I take pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in distress for Christ's sake, for when I am weak then I am strong." 2 Cor xii 9, 10.

Indiana Conference.

Sept. 30 to Oct. 3.

The Rensselaer Church, where it is to be held, is desirous to have a full attendance, therefore sends greeting: Come all who can. Ample provision will be in readiness to care for all who may come, in the way of sustaining the "outer man" with food and rest; with due care however that the fare be not gorgeous, destroying or impairing the relish for the food from the spiritual store house, to 'renew the inner man" (Christ in you the hope of glory) to be ministered by those assembled. Come with vessels well filled to give liberally, as giving will not diminish, but increase the amount in store, whereby all may share in the sweet comfort and rest in Christ, having a foretaste of that "feast of fat things" when the Lord of hosts shall reign in Mount Zion, destroying the face of the covering cast over all people, and the vail that is spread over all nations. Begin at once to make arrangements to be at the Conference from start to finish.

D. T. Halstead,
Mattie Benjamin, Sec.

We trust all who know their time has expired, will realize how important it is that they renew promptly. To make out and mail statements to each is quite expensive, and most all already know when their time runs out, so that it is not really necessary. Please take note of this, friends.

Announcement.

The Southern Illinois Conference will be held at the Restitution Church eight miles south of Casey, from Sep. 25 to Oct 3 inclusive. Names of the preachers and programme will appear later.

B. J. Woods, Sec.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God for Indiana will be held at Rensselaer, Indiana, commencing Sept. 30, and extending over Sunday Oct. 3.

Program and particulars later. Let all who possibly can make an effort to attend. We expect a good meeting.

J. H. Willey, Pres. Ind. Con.

Indiana Please Notice.

The yearly conference for Indiana is to be at Rensselaer early in October. All who come please notify Sister Flora Harris beforehand, so that all may be in readiness.

Now brethren, Indiana has possibilities for a great work the coming year, and much of our success will depend on this conference. Come. We have a large membership and generous means. We have several strong congregations for edification and many scattered members who will be able to aid in evangelizing new localities, by affording a good opening. We have many earnest young people at work in Bible Study. We have several good Sunday Schools and Berean Societies. We have several young men ready to go to preaching. All we need is to take new heart and unite our forces. Let us get our numbers in touch with each other, combine our finances and efforts and all put our talents together for united work. Let each congregation see to it that several leading members from your church are at conference. If agreeable, pay their way. Let as many isolated members as possible come and be renewed for another year. We expect one or two new speakers, and many of the old faithful ones who have served so well. Many new and important things are likely to come up. Come in a Christian spirit of love. Bring your enthusiasm along.

In order for better work in Berean and Bible study, pastoral oversight and evangelizing, it is desired that the secretary be furnished with the names and addresses of all members in the state. Let each secretary of a congregation please send a list of your members to her and all isolated members do the same by a postal card to Lydia Railsback, 621 S. Fellows St., South Bend, Indiana.

A citizen of Antwerp has recently put to a test the celerity and homing instinct of the swallow as compared with pigeons. He caught a swallow in its nest under his roof at Antwerp, made a red mark on its feathers and sent the bird with a consignment of 250 pigeons by train to Compiegne, in northern France, a distance of 147 miles. The birds were released there simultaneously at 7:15 the next morning. The swallow without the slightest hesitation, made for the north and disappeared like a flash. The pigeons circled laboriously around before deciding which direction they should take. The swallow reached its nest in Antwerp in sixty-seven minutes, while the pigeons took four hours and seven minutes to cover the distance. In other words, the messenger of spring flew at the rate of nearly 132 miles an hour, while the speed of the pigeons only slightly exceeded 35½ miles an hour.

The government commissioners in Italy who were appointed to report on the question of woman suffrage have decided to recommend giving women engaged in trade the right to vote for members of the chamber of commerce. The women of both Belgium and France have this right.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending The Restitution to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take The Restitution, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel to bet a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take The Restitution on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Berean meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. Thompson, Sec'y., 308 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

Brother, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to The Restitution for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

Hindu Literature.

This book of over 400 pages is of special value to the young people in order to enable them to meet the attacks upon Christianity from Theosophists and others. It has been fully endorsed by the most eminent Oriental scholars of Europe as being authentic, and the historic facts here presented are unimpeachable. A few copies of this standard $1 50 book may now be had for $1.00 a copy post paid. It is used in colleges and universities. Send all orders to Mrs. Elizabeth A Reed, 1311 Balmoral av, Chicago, Illinois.

The Restitution is only $1.50 per year. Try it a year.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

Please don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D.C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John I. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in The Restitution. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

Twelve Words, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

The Gospel of the Kingdom, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in The Restitution some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10643 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 625 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in sufficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

The Peace of God.

"Let the peace of God rule in your hearts—and be ye thankful."—Col. iii. 15.

"The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him."—Psalm xxv. 14.

Just to let thy Father do—what he will:
Just to know that he is true—and be still:
Just to follow hour by hour as he leadeth:
Just to draw the moment's power—as it needeth:
Just to trust him—this is all.
Then the day will surely be
Peaceful, whatever befall,
Bright and blessed, calm and free.

The Bible and Its Message. No. 16.

There has been much speculation and difference of opinion regarding the subject of the judgment. Some claiming that every son and daughter of Adam will be subjects of a future judgment. Each individual must be raised and have a special examination and then be judged. The future judgment will be conducted much like human courts. We question such a theory, as those who are judges in that age shall not judge after the sight of their eyes, neither reprove after the hearing of their ears. They will be able to render a righteous judgment. Paul says, "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ, our Lord." Adam through disobedience brought death into the world. Death here must mean extinction of life. The eternal life depends wholly upon Jesus the Christ. Without his obtaining eternal redemption the race could never have been reconciled to God. Thus we find every son and daughter of Adam placed under condemnation through the disobedience of one. The Scriptures hath concluded (shut up) all under sin, that the promise by faith of Jesus the Christ might be given to them who believe. Gal iii 22. Therefore those who do not believe remain under the curse of death.

There can be no promise to such of a resurrection from the death state. Those who do not avail themselves of the provisions made are as the brute creation. They are not subjects of the resurrection unto eternal life. Adam's judgment was, "Dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return." Adam had his opportunity to gain eternal life and lost it through willful disobedience. His judgment has been rendered. Through the covenant made (Gen iii 21) he was permitted to live and generate. All the days that Adam lived were nine hundred and thirty years; and he died (Gen v 5). The claim that he died a spiritual death or began to die the day he transgressed is not warranted by the record. God's purpose in permitting the race to continue was that he might fill the earth with a righteous people. They who lived before the flood proved unworthy and were destroyed in the flood. Noah and his family only were saved. Even as Sodom and Gomorrah, and the cities about them in like manner, giving themselves over to fornication, and going after strange flesh, are set forth for an example, suffering the vengeance of eternal fire (Jude 7). Can it be possible that such characters will be subjects of a future judgment. If so, why?

Each age has been closed with a judgment. The seed of Abraham were judged when Jerusalem was finally destroyed by the Romans and the inhabitants scattered among all nations. The judgment still rests upon them and will so continue until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in. At the close of this age there will be ushered in the Great Day of Judgment. It will last 1000 years.

The subjects of this judgment day will be Israel restored, and the nations which are on the earth when Jesus the Christ shall come to raise his saints. See Ezek xx 33-39; xxxvii 15, 28; xxxix 25 29; Jer xxxi 31-40. For the judgment of the nations, see Psa ii; cxlix; Matt xxv 31-46; Rev ii 26, 27; 1 Cor vi, 1-3. We trust the readers will examine these Scriptures closely before proceeding to finish this article. We wish now to call attention to the xx chapter of Rev. It gives a brief but comprehensive view of this Judgment Day. In connection please read 2 Pet iii. Note carefully the different incidents recorded in Rev xx. Satan is bound and cast into the abyss and is shut up and a seal set upon him. This is the beginning of the 1000 years. We next see thrones and they (the saints) sat on them and judgment was given unto them. And they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years. We should remember that judgment was given to them who sat upon the thrones.

In Matt xxv 31 we read, "When the Son of Man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory. And before him shall be gathered all nations; and he shall separate them one (nation) from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from his goats.' Matt xix 28 reads, "Ye who have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of Man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. The Apostles occupy thrones when Jesus sits upon his and judges the nations. To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne even as I also overcame and am set down with my Father in his throne. Jesus and the overcomers and the apostles will all reign and judge simultaneously. In Rev xx 6 a blessing is pronounced upon those who have been raised. Upon such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ and shall reign with him a thousand years. There are those who have not been raised upon whom the second death shall have power. The rest of the dead lived not until the thousand years were finished. The rest of the dead can only comprise those who have had no part in the first resurrection, and are subjects of a future judgment. Those who have never heard the gospel preached are still "shut up unto sin" or its effect, death. Those who have been destroyed are not subjects of a future judgment. You ask then, who are?

1. Those who have become apostates from righteous Abel to the coming of Christ or the beginning of the great Judgment Day.

2. Those who have heard and believed the gospel and rejected offered mercy. They who have failed to take upon them the sin covering name through baptism.

3. The obedient who have died during the thousand years.

The incident recorded in the 7-10 verses is placed at the end of this period as Satan is loosed out of his prison. He deceives the nations Gog and Magog and gathers them together to battle. Fire comes down from God out of heaven and destroys them. The devil that deceived them was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone where the beast and the false prophet are, and they shall be tormented day and night forever and ever. Israel and the nations have been judged. The last scene that is enacted is recorded in the last five verses of this chapter. We see the great white throne and him who sat upon, from whose face the earth and the heavens fled away, and there was found no place for them.

The earth and heavens here spoken of must mean the former cosmos. These have no part in the judgment of the great white throne. I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God! These were raised at the close of the thousand years. They are now alive. It is stated that the books were opened, and another book was opened, which is the book of life, and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works. Now whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire. The book of life here spoken of cannot be the "lamb's book of life," as that book contained the names of the saints, and they were raised at the beginning of the thousand years. It could contain only the names of those who were counted righteous during the thousand year period. The books contained the names of all the unrighteous of all the ages. They suffered the penalty of the second death.

It is written, "The sea gave up the dead which were in it, and death and hades or the grave delivered up the dead which were in them. And they were judged every man according to their works." The sea represents the nations, and were those who died among the nations during the thousand years. Daniel saw the beasts rise out of the sea or nations. So John saw the nations giving up the dead. Death and hades will include all the dead previous to the thousand year period who were subjects of the judgment.

What we have written is as we have gleaned from fruitful fields. It has not been written for controversy, but that all may study it with care. Hoping that these lines may be helpful to some we remain as ever your brother seeking for additional truth.

D. C. ROBISON.

A Question.

Can we worship with and hold as brethren those that have not the faith? The answer will be no.

Then can we worship with and hold as brethren in Christ those that have been baptized, but do not have the faith? No, because without faith it is impossible to please God. See 2 Cor vi 14, 15.

Then can we worship with and hold as brethren in Christ those that believe and have been baptized but at the time of their baptism they were strangers to the true faith, had not heard it and knew nothing of it? No, because at the time of their baptism they were strangers to the covenants of promise and commonwealth of Israel, and therefore an alien, and will remain an alien unless they comply with the naturalization laws. God's law of induction must be complied with or they will be without hope.

The faith that will bring to us the blessing and heirship are founded upon the promises, "and the Scriptures foreseeing that God would justify the heathen (any man) through faith preached before the gospel to Abraham, saying, in thee shall all nations be blessed," Gal iii 8. Justified. For as many of us as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ, and if we be Christ's, ye are Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise. Gal iii 26, 27, 29. Paul here makes faith in Christ equivalent to the faith of Abraham as is evident from verse 7 and Rom iv 11, 12. To have faith in Christ, to be of the faith of Abraham and to believe the covenants of promise, is one and the same thing.

Paul in speaking of the Ephesians at a certain time says they were aliens from the commonwealth of Israel and strangers from the covenants of promise. Eph ii 12. They were strangers and aliens because they were unacquainted with the promises, but a change had taken place with them. "Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners but fellow citizens and of the household of God. Ver. 19.

There is no half way ground here. There are just two classes, fellowcitizens or stranger citizens or aliens. There is only one way to become a citizen of the commonwealth of Israel, and that is to have the true faith with obedience based thereon.

Having now learned of the true faith, what should be our relationship with those who do not believe? Vital importance to know what Abraham believed, "Even as Abraham believed God and it was accounted to him for righteousness." Gal iii 9. Faith is always based upon a promise, and in verse 8, we find this language, "The gospel was preached to Abraham, saying, In thee shall all nations be blessed." Our attention here is directed to Genesis xii 1 3, as the basis of Paul's statement. From this language we learn that Abraham is to be an instrument in the hands of God through which the blessing will be carried out, but Abraham must first be prepared for that work as we see in the second verse, "And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee—and thou shalt be a blessing," and in v 1, a territory or home for that nation to dwell in. The fulfilment of these promises we see being carried out in Micah iv 6, 7; v 1-5. These are promises that God made to Abraham, and the belief of these promises constitute the faith of Abraham.

Paul in referring to the promises and the mighty nation, Eph ii 12, calls them the commonwealth of Israel and the covenants of promise. Paul says we are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus.

Know ye that they which are of faith are the children of Abraham. Gal iii 7. What will be the result of being a child of Abraham? So then they which are of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham. Verse 9. Then if in order to get the blessing we must have faith, the question comes, what faith?

In seeking an answer to this question, I can only turn to the book before me, which says, "to the law and testimony, if they speak not according to this Word it is because there is no light in them. Isa viii 20. In Rom iv 11, 12, Paul says, "and he received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of faith—that he might be the father of all them that believe, who also walk in the steps of that faith of our father Abraham which he had. This is positive as to the faith we should have. If we have that faith which he had, he is our father and we are his children (seed, Gal iii 29), and will be blessed (in company) with him. Having now learned that in order to get the blessing, it is necessary to have that faith, which he had, it then is of vital importance to know what Abraham believed.

Even as Abraham believed God and it was accounted to him for righteousness. Gal iii 6. Faith or belief is always based upon a promise, and in verse 8 we find this language, "The gospel was preached to Abraham, saying, In thee shall all nations be blessed."

If we recognize one as a brother in Christ without regard to his faith now and at his baptism we would defeat our effort to bring him into the true relation with the body of Christ, for if he is a brother, he is in as good case as we, and a change upon his part is useless.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 12.

Brother Willard's letters are historical. They give us bird's-eye glimpses of the gradual drawing apart of the two branches of the Advent people. First, we see the regretful attitude of "the Age to Come" party, that there should be a difference of faith in reference to our Father's plan, and also mark the efforts made to convince the opposite side, that the elect ones, who have been taken out of the present and past dispensations have been chosen for the very purpose of ordering, executing and establishing, as kings and priests, the government of God over the nations in the approaching millennium—the fact of there being a priesthood, proving the necessity therefore.

Second, we note in these letters, the loving, tolerant spirit of those who held that the millennium is to be emphatically the age of the blessing to a lost and ruined world, sunk into the very depths of poverty and degradation, through ignorance and sin,—that we can in this age, but touch the outer rim of this seething, putrescent mass—our missionaries and home guards, being utterly incompetent to cope with the mighty problem. Some of them having already been lured into the enemy's camp to preach "salvation by personal character, instead of salvation by the atoning blood of Christ," and an attendant faith in the gospel of the kingdom—a theology that leaves out "a propiation for human sin," makes "the early part of the Bible an Oriental poem," and tears from the holy record, "all that is miraculous including the birth, resurrection and ascension of Jesus,"—Christ's presence, with an immortal cabinet, being needed to accomplish the work.

Third, we see in that last quotation from Brother Willard's pen that after having so long met and worshipped with the "Crisis" friends without "taking up weapons of controversy against them"—the determination to force him and others to give up their "Age to Come" views, was placing them on the defensive and was making them feel that they too had a right to speak, and ought to have a mouth piece, whereby the truth, as they understood it could be disseminated.

The letters are very interesting, viewed in this light, and show no spirit of hatred, or desire to misrepresent. Strange though it is, that Bro. Willard in canvassing the question of "the Age to Come", never once alludes to the restoration of the twelve tribes of Israel to their own land, though he devoutly believed the doctrine, and it was being talked of on every hand, and was as bitterly opposed as was the idea of future probation. I suppose he left father to read the rest "between the lines."

From Titusville, Pennsylvania, May 1, 1873, Auntie Willard writes; "Dear Brother Chaplin:—In a letter just received from home, I am told that Roxana's darling baby is dead. I am truly surprised and grieved and cannot divine why it should be so, but what we know not now we shall know hereafter. I hope grace may be given to the bereaved ones; so that they can say, "Blessed be the name of the Lord." The little bud is safely housed and may be given again to them to rear in the more congenial clime of the ages to come. We all believe that age to be just before us when death shall be swallowed up in life. I know Jesus, who comforted Mary and Martha at the grave of Lazarus is comforting those stricken hearts and they are praising him through their tears. Give them my love and sympathy and tell them to honor God in all his dealings with them."

"Well, here I am in Titusville after an absence from home of over a month. Dear Lymie and Maggie, kept still calling 'mother!' and would not be pacified till I came. I left home and friends the last day of March, and set out for Pittsburgh, with Allegheny City as my first stopping place. Here I thought to tarry two days but my reception was such that I remained a week, going from house to house and attending the Wednesday evening prayer-meeting in the Hall and heard Brother Clewes preach twice on Lord's day, and was present at the organization of a Sunday-School. Things are moving on there most cheeringly, and I believe, to God's glory. The house was full the day they expected us, and Brother Clewes seemed clothed and filled for the occasion. They were sorely disappointed at our not coming—husband having remained at home, preferring to visit Titusville later on. Sister Conley tried to make up for the disappointment by giving them her whole time for the week; even hiring her washing and ironing done so she could take me round to see all the brethren and sisters, beginning, as I suggested with the poorest, least esteemed in the church. We had a nice visit at Brother Clewes. He lives near the Arsenal and Allegheny Cemetery and the latter, we visited, particularly to see the monument erected to the memory of the forty-five, who were instantly killed at an explosion at the Arsenal, September 17, 1862, among whom was a daughter of Brother Clewes, aged 20 years. They never recognized even a shred of her clothing, much less any part of her person. Brother Clewes said the last time he saw her she was singing the words:

"I would not live alway, I ask not to stay,
Where storm after storm rises dark o'er the way."

She worked in the building and was a dear child of God.

The Power.

"I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." Phil iv 13.

Where is the secret of power? In my college days the professor of natural philosophy used to exhibit his great horseshoe magnet, wound about with coils of wire. He hung it up, charged the wire with a galvanic current, and it caught up and held four thousand pounds. He signalled to his assistant to draw off the current, and the power was gone. My brother, encircle your soul with faith and let the Divine electricity of the love of Jesus Christ charge it. Then you can lift anything; you can do anything that God wants you to do. Draw it off, and you are a shorn Samson, a weakling.—Theodore L. Cuyler.

Be patient toward all men. Great and good men have been noted for their patient forbearance with their fellow-men. Moses meekly bore the insults of Israel while he led them to their promised land. Daniel, while complaining of Israel's sins, called them his brethren, and numbered himself among them. Lincoln, in the midst of a hostile cabinet, by patience compelled them to do his will. The Christian worker, above all, should be patient with his fellows.

The youth who was smoking a cigarette near the monkey's cage took another one from his pocket. "Would it do any harm," he asked, "if I should offer him one of these?" "Not a bit," responded the attendant. "He wouldn't touch it. A donkey isn't half as big a fool as he looks."—Chicago Tribune.

Consecrate your money to the Lord. All you have is what he gave to you according to his word.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Brethren and Sisters:

Circumstances of late have added somewhat to our expenses, and we do really need what is due us right now. This ought to be enough to say, and we will not add more to it, but trust that by thus calling your attention to the matter, all who know that their time has expired, will send in renewals at once, and so relieve our necessities.

We thank you for the favor.

The marriage of Brother Huggins may account for the absence of copy for "Ebenezer."

We received word from Brother P. Neill that he was in Cleveland, Ohio last week to unite in marriage Brother R. G. Huggins and Sister Edna May Cowell. Again later we received an announcement that these worthy people were married on August 31. We extend to them congratulations, and wish for them all the good of this life, and an abundant entrance into the kingdom of God.

A sister whose paper was addressed exactly as she gave it, missed some issues. It was evident that they got to her home post office, because others at the same office received theirs, and they all went in the same package. Of course we were subject to censure, and cheerfully resent the missing numbers. The Sister claims to have written before about this and received no reply. This complaint never reached us. There may be a good reason for it. This letter that did come was placed in an envelope, the flap of the envelope tucked in, and not sealed. Then it was addressed, and a one cent stamp put on. It just happened to pass through the mails. To send a letter in such a manner is an infringement of the postal laws, and the person so doing is liable to a fine of $10 00 for the offense. A written communication is a letter, and is subject to letter rates, no matter how it is fixed—whether sealed, tied up, or left open. To attempt to pass it through the mails under any other rate is a violation of the laws. Don't do it again. If you do not absolutely know the proper rate, ask your postmaster and be on the safe side.

Brother S. J. Lindsay wishes us to say that any others who want to take his correspondence Bible Lesson course for this year, will confer a favor on him and the other members of the class as well, by writing at once. Brother Lindsay's lessons are simply meant to stimulate systematic study of the Bible. It is a lamentable fact that these last days in which we are living are most barren of downright Bible study. Brethren and sisters, don't go to sleep—don't get lukewarm. This course of Brother Lindsay's will not be near all you ought to do, but it will put you in touch with what others are studying, and aid you to deeper and more exhaustive work. You cannot know too much of what God has said, what he has done, and what he promises to do hereafter. He has endowed you with reasoning faculties, and demands that you use them in his service. He requires that you believe his word, obey his commandments, and having yielded yourself to him, a proper life is essential to your salvation at his hands. Many people think that because God is love, is kind and gentle, long-suffering and forbearing, that it does not make much difference what we believe and do, just so we are sincere, and not too bad—that finally he will accept us and save. By a little study each day it will be plain to any one that God has never promised salvation on any such terms. Get Brother Lindsay's lessons, and study them through the year. They will help you, and your answers and study will help others. His address is Oregon, Ill.

Sunday School Lesson.

Lesson for Sunday, Sep. 19.

Review.

Golden Text. "So mightily grew the Word of God and prevailed." Acts xix. 20.

The lessons of the quarter cover a period of about six years. From about A. D. 52 to A. D. 58.

Paul and Barnabas made the first journey together. They started from Antioch in Syria and went through Syria and Cilicia confirming the church, Acts xv. 40, 41. They came to Derbe and Lystre; they went through the cities of Phrygia and Galatia; they passed Mysia and came to Troas, to Samothracia, to Neapolis, to Philippi, Acts xvi. Through Amphipolis, and Apollonia, to Thessalonica, to Berea, to Athens, Acts xvii. From Athens to Corinth, to Ephesus, to Cesarea, to Antioch. This ended his second journey, Acts xviii. 1-22.

After awhile he began the third journey, going among the brethren in Galatia and Phrygia, building them up in the faith. He next came to Ephesus, thence to Macedonia, then to Greece, again to Macedonia, to Philippi, to Troas, to Assos, to Mitylene, to Samos, to Trogyllium, to Miletus, to Coos, to Rhodes, to Patara, to Syria, to Tyre, to Ptolmais to Cesarea, to Jerusalem —The end of his missionary journeys. Acts xviii. 23, to Acts xxi. 15.

Lesson 1. July 4. Acts xvi 6-15.

What cities are mentioned in this lesson?

What special thing took place in verse 9?

What other good thing is told in verses 14, 15?

Lesson 2, July 11. Acts xvii 25-40.

What did Paul and Barnabas do? Verse 35.

What wonderful thing took place?

Who was converted?

Lesson 3. July 18. Acts xvii. 1-15.

What did Paul do in the synagogue?

Where was the synagogue?

What happened to Paul?

Lesson 4. July 25. Acts xvii. 22-34.

Where was Paul?

What did he find in Athens?

How was what he preached received?

Lesson 5. August 1. Acts xviii. 1-11.

Where did Paul go to?

Why did he leave the Jews?

What people did he go to?

Lesson 6 August 8. 1 Thess. v. 12-24.

Did Paul instruct the Thessalonians or the Church in Thessalonica?

What—to you—seems the most important instruction?

Who did Paul say was coming?

Lesson 7. August 15. Acts xix. 8-20.

Where was the synagogue?

What two wonderful things took place?

What did those who believed do?

Lesson 8. August 22. Acts xix. 23-30, 35-41.

Where was the great trouble?

What was the cause of the uproar?

How was it settled?

Lesson 9. August 29. 1 Cor. xii. 1-13.

What is the greatest thing in the lesson?

How great is it?

Does Love make any great and good thing, any better?

Lesson 10. September 5. Acts xx. 17-35.

How did Paul serve the Lord?

What did he preach?

How much of it did he preach?

What were the elders to give heed to?

Lesson 11. September 12. Acts xxi. 1-17.

Where did Paul land?

What did they do on the shore?

Whose house did they visit?

What did he find there?

Lesson 12. September 19. Review.

What is a Review?

Is it a good thing?

What was the real object and benefit of Paul's preaching?

The questions in this review are partly suggestive. The earnest teacher may think of others that he or she considers better for their class. In a review it is not positively necessary to go over all the quarter. It is better to have a few questions, or points well understood, than all the lessons just glanced at.

Next Lesson, Temperance. 1 Cor. x. 23-33.

Sudden Changes.

"And he (David) chose him five smooth stones out of the brook and put them in a shepherd's bag which he had." 1 Sam. xvii. 40.

Concerning the remarkably sudden conversions that are said to happen, both for good and evil, may we not conclude that they are only apparent. A man of high standing in the business and social world suddenly absconds with the funds he has been entrusted with, are we to suppose there has been a sudden transformation in the character of the man? By the same sort of reasoning Judas was suddenly turned into a traitor and Peter to a coward, yet in both instances the Master who was a penetrating judge of character anticipated the events in both cases. So also, in seeming changes for good, the sudden effect of changed circumstances brings out only what was before hidden or undeveloped.

Thus David's advance against the giant enemy of his country was not altogether the result of sudden impulse, but calm reliance on God's favor on the one hand and cool knowledge, and perhaps somewhat of pride (as his brother said) in his wonderful dexterity with the sling,—on the other hand, when the occasion offered he rapped the stone on the right place and he knew very well he could do it, as any skilled marksman knows his power. Whatever was the sudden effect of the stroke to change the whole political situation and influence untold generations of men the stroke itself was the result of years of continual practice and was nothing unusual for David—and observe, he took five stones and no chances; if he happened to miss him once or twice he reasoned that five shots was abundantly enough and indeed against such a buttrail-lause the Philistine had no show at all.

And so it is, on through all our life histories, men go suddenly to smash and then others mount to success; men sometimes turn evil suddenly and others stand forth for the good and the true—at least that is how it appears; but at the bottom, if we are able to read the character, or judge of the capacities of such men, as God read David, or Christ read Peter, for both good and bad, we would doubtless see that all such change was a consistent sequence of events; and the lesson to be drawn is to prepare for emergency with patient practice and thus develop strength and skill in reserve. It often looks as if things were going to continue along the same line forever, but they never do. Suddenly there's a crack or a crash and some of the first are last, some of the last first. The change is only in the circumstances that reveals the men. So also is the kingdom of heaven.

Illinois Conference Report.

The Illinois conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus met at Oregon, Wednesday, August 18, continued over the Sunday following.

It was a meeting of spiritual refreshment and uplift from beginning to close, the various services being in charge of the following ministers; Brother L. E. Conner and R. G. Huggins of Cleveland, Ohio; Brother Jos Williams of Indiana; Brother Peter Jeffrey and Rolla Hightower of Ill.; and our State Evangelist S. J. Lindsay, and our Assistant State Evangelist G. Eldred Marsh.

Each evening at 6:40, a meeting was held by the Bereans preceding the regular evening service, and on Sunday at 6:00, the Bereans held a special service, all their own. In addition to these, the question-box discussions upon various topics of interest proved very helpful.

But to say the truth, many were conscious of a sense of incompleteness in our conference from the fact that some who were our best helpers and burden-lifters in the duties and interests of our annual gathering were unable to be present—some who have never before been absent, or at least rarely, whose very presence has always been a source of encouragement.

Especially was this true in the case of our beloved President, James W. Wilson, and a feeling of sadness that was not lifted, being over our assembly, when it was stated that he could not be with us, and requested that because of continued ill-health he be allowed relief from duties as our State President.

In accordance with this wish, after a few well-chosen words by Brother S. J. Lindsay, expressing our disappointment as a conference body in being deprived of the help Brother Wilson has given in the past years in his office of President, a motion prevailed that Brother J. E. Cross of Oregon be appointed as Chairman pro tem.

After the appointment of various committees the conference moved on with its regular work until called to order on Saturday morning to consider the business side of our work in our annual business session. The report of our state Evangelist S. J. Lindsay showed a widening field, and deeper interest with more baptisms and other results realized, than any previous year.

The report of our asst. state Evangelist also showed excellent work at the local points in Illinois where his efforts have been spent, and with larger plans for better work the coming year, and as the reports from these churches came from the various delegates in their order, it was shown clearly that progress is being made.

The financial part of our conference meeting, in the hands of Brother L. E. Conner, who has so often thus helped us, gave a better showing than last year, "with more to follow."

The reports of Auxiliary Societies showed that "faithful women" were doing their part in all possible ways, and our State President of the Bereans, Sister Anna Drew gave an excellent report of work done in the past year, with better things in contemplation in the year to come.

The following tribute to our President, James W. Wilson, was adopted as a resolution:

The conference of the Church of God convened at Oregon, Ill., sends greeting and brotherly love to our President, James W. Wilson, and we regret your inability to be present.

We especially miss you at this time. You have served us so long, and so faithfully, that your absence leaves a place that we all feel no one can fill. That the God of Heaven, our loving Father restore you soon to health, and give you of His sustaining grace to comfort you in your present affliction, is the loving wish and prayer of your brothers and sisters in the Lord, and may we all meet in the resurrection morning when the Saviour shall call his own.

Committee:

Joseph Williams.
Kathryn Townsend.
Lelia Whitehead.

The pastors, or evangelists elected for the coming year were as before, Brother S. J. Lindsay, State Evangelist, and Brother G. Eldred Marsh, Asst. Evangelist. The committee on nominations now submitted their report which was accepted, and the following officers were thereby elected: For president, John E. Cross, of Oregon, Ill.; vice-president, Rolla Hightower, of Camden. The Board of Managers to consist of the present incumbents, J. H. Williams, J. M. Glotfelty, E. F. Gesin, S. H. Smith, and Peter Jeffrey, together with our retiring President, James W. Wilson as honorary member of said Board, with full privileges and powers of the other members thereof.

Committee:

L. E. Conner.
Lewis Weaver.
Peter Jeffrey.
Rolla Hightower.
Lelia Whitehead.

The attendance on Sunday was as usual, very large, and the services were interesting. The conference closed on Sunday evening, and after a sermon by Brother S. J. Lindsay came the final farewells and general handshaking and "good-bys" which are always a feature of the close of our conference, from the fact that most of these loved ones in the faith will not be with us for another year, and some perhaps more rarely. But all departed, glad for even this brief feast together, and hoping to meet again at our next annual gathering at Oregon in 1910.

Ohio Conference Report

The writer could be at Conference only Saturday night and Sunday, therefore am unable to give a complete report of the happenings at the Conference, and will have to rely upon others giving a report to the readers of The Restitution in order to be complete.

We had the pleasure of listening to some good addresses by Bro. Mason, Toronto, Can., Bro. Huggins, Cleveland, O., Bro. Neill, Salem, O., and Bro. Jos. Williams, Nebraska. Bros. Mason and Williams have not previously spoken for this Conference, and we trust this will not be their last. On every side we heard about the good speaking that we were having. I had formerly met Bro. Williams about 10 years ago, before he was a preacher of the gospel, and it was very pleasing to learn that he had developed into such an interesting speaker. He has done a great amount of memorizing and studying. In his two discourses I listened to, he quoted verse after verse, and gave the text from memory, not having to use his Bible.

The singing was a feature of the Conference. The solos by Sister Ora Beck and a Sister of Springfield whose name we did not learn were excellent.

A business meeting was held on Thursday Aug. 26, '09. H. E. Overholser was appointed Sec. Pro. Tem. By unanimous vote it was decided to have two committees, one on program, consisting of P. Neill, J. C. Thompson, and the Evangelist, also a committee on speakers, consisting of the President of the Conference, A. E. Overholser, and P. L. Morron.

Letters were read from B. F. Smith, Monroeville, O., H. Juergenson, Barbertou, O., W. D Root, Gracey, O., and Sister Woodworth.

Bro. Juergenson's report was read and accepted, with the exception that his resignation was not accepted, and he was by unanimous consent, retained as chairman of the Conference Committee.

A business meeting was held on Saturday, Aug. 28, '09. H. E. Overholser, Sec Pro. Tem. The first was a financial report. The Evangelist gave his report which was accepted together with a vote of thanks. Bro. Jos. Williams read a resolution, which Bro. Robison moved and seconded by J. N. Beck be adopted. The resolution was unanimously adopted. W. S. Tomlinson was re-elected President of the Conference, and P. Neill, Vice. J. C. Thompson was elected Secretary and Treasurer, and Ora Thompson Assistant Secretary and Treasurer. D. C. Robison was unanimously elected Evangelist.

The following were elected a financial committee. J. Lehman and Ashford Lehman, Brush Creek, P. L. Morron and O. Pottorf, Salem, O., T. Klingenstein and W. S. Tomlinson, Cleveland, O., Samuel Elton, Delta, O., A. Overholser and D. Beck, Springfield, O.

Respectfully submitted,
A. E. Overholser.

After expenses of the Conference had been paid there remained a balance on hand of thirty dollars. The collection amounted to $23 81 making a total now in the Treasury of $53.81.

At the close of the Conference a vote of thanks was extended to the Springfield brethren for their hospitality, also the speakers for their excellent addresses we had, also the cooks for the good meals, and to all who helped to make the Conference a success.

Wandering Evangelist.

On Aug. 28, though the evening had much the appearance of a gathering shower, I went to the school house and talked to a dozen on the coming of Christ—to be a literal return to earth—and announced meeting the next evening and to be resumed in one week.

Aug. 30th, We did not have meeting last night on account of the evening proving rainy. I had already appointed meeting ahead for Saturday Sept. 4th. I design to remain at the kind home of Bro. and Sister Asher until the question of holding meetings in this neighborhood is well tested, or until I get call from some other locality near, or distant. Of course we may expect rain to cut off attendance and especially where the faith has never been established. I am great for "hang-on-a-tiveness" though. I would be glad to get letters from those that will encourage pioneer work who will tell by whom and where the gospel of the kingdom was preached in Colorado before I reached this locality?

Prophecy Fulfilling.

In an article on "The Jewish Outlook," and the offer of Mesopotamia to the Jews, the editor of Watchword and Truth says, in the June number:

"How all this stirs the blood, appeals to the imagination, and thrills the expection that the coming of the Lord draweth nigh. 'When ye see all these things begin to come to pass, then lift up your heads, your redemption draweth nigh.' And it is nearer than we know. Everything will come with a rush towards the end. How many things the fulfilment of this scheme will make possible! No longer will the world wait for railroad communication from the Occident to the Orient—from Constantinople to the Persian Gulf. Turkey will build the railroad through its own territory by Jewish capital, developing a State under Jewish control, insuring protection of life and property, and the administration of equal justice to all, upon the unequaled basis of the Mosaic law. Babylon will be rebuilt, and the richest, most commercial and energetic race on earth, will restore commercial supremacy to its base—to the spot where it started—to a new Babylon, rebuilt with greater splendor than ever flashed out in the days of the kings who ruled the world. Gradually, from this point, Palestine will be recovered and restored to Jewish control—indeed, the Jewish people now outnumber any other race covering these sacred hills and valleys. Jerusalem will be inhabited, its temple will be rebuilt, the Jewish sacrifices and worship will be re-established, and there will be two capital cities—Babylon and Jerusalem—the one controlling the commerce of the world, and the other—shall we tell it?—becoming the centre of the actions of the Anti-christ, first getting control of the Jewish race by flatteries, then by coercion, and then by a despotism, a tyrrany, a persecution and a tribulation, never before equalled, and never again to be repeated. Behold, it cometh quickly!"

Dear Brethren:

I am very much interested in the above. Will Brother W. H. Wilson, also James W. Wilson, George Moyer and Bro. Underwood give us their opinion through The Restitution, after careful consideration. I never have understood Zech v 11. This House that shall be established in the land of Shinar upon her own base. And in Daniel xi 36 on to end of chapter, also 2 Thes ii.

I have long thought that it would require a Catholic Jew king to sit in the Jews' new temple, in order to fulfil the Word of God, but I may be wrong, so let any one that will, write on this subject.

Brethren, we are living in a time when men's hearts are failing on account of the things that are coming on the earth, so let us watch and be sober.

Mrs. Clark McClelland.

Dear Restitution:

Please find money order enclosed for three dollars, which is a free will offering from Sister Kreger and myself, for the poor fund, so as to help send the dear Restitution to the poor and needy ones. We pray God may bless the offering, and may it bring gladness to the hearts of others. We had a nice Bible class of 40 scholars last winter and spring, but I took sick and had to leave here, but am some better again, and hope to resume the work again as soon as I am strong enough. I love the dear Restitution, as we are so isolated we would not know what to do without it, will send in our subscription a little later. We sometimes feel so weary, and knowing that we may not expect the betterment of the world in general that it makes us at all times feel like saying, Oh, Lord, thy kingdom come.

Your sister in the Blessed Hope.

L. R. Freer.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

Poetry.

Courage.

The hardest things to bear we never tell;
We wear a mask to every human eye;
We smile, and bravely answer, "All is well!"
But naught is hidden from the Deity.

How good it is that One can surely know,
And give the sympathy for which we yearn;
Strength in our weakness, patience in our woe,
And cheer to meet the worst at every turn

Of life's most crooked pathway. It is best
There are both hills and valleys on our way;
The level ground gives little for a test
Of brave endurance, or a strenuous day.

Fight hard or no one wins. Tell him, aside,
Of all the disappointments, all the tears,
The wrecks of plans, the hopes unsatisfied;
But show the world no sign of loss nor tears.

—Sarah K. Bolton.

Why Did Christ Rise?

That Christ came bodily forth alive from the grave of Joseph of Arimathea, in which he was placed after his crucifixion, is the most conspicuous feature of the testimony delivered by the Apostles, amid much affliction, after the ascension. Of this any one may be satisfied by consulting the following passages: Acts ii 23; iii 14; iv 10; v 30; x 39; xiii 30-31, and many others.

Popular theology gives a very uncertain place to the resurrection of Christ. Think of this, and ponder the reason. The reason is that popular views of the death of Christ do not require his resurrection, though nominally recognizing it as a fact. Those views make the death of Christ the saving part of the work of Christ. The preachers say Christ died in our room and stead, and thus paid the debt that we owed, and that consequently we go free. If this is true, our freedom results from the death of Christ, and not from his resurrection.

But apostolic teaching requires his resurrection, without which, all that went before is of no avail.

Proof: "If Christ be not raised, your faith is vain, ye are yet in your sins." 1 Cor xv 17. How is it that the resurrection of Christ was a necessity before human salvation was possible? Because, without a risen, living Christ, there would have been no forgiveness of sins, and no attainment of immortality following upon his death. God does not save sinners direct. He cannot look upon sin. Adam's expulsion from Eden, at the beginning, and his holding sinners at arm's length ever since, exemplify his relation to sin, which is as much an established law as any physical ordinance of the universe.

1 He saves, but it is by Christ, whom he makes the Savior, by first bestowing life upon him for his obedience, and then giving him power over all flesh, to save as many as he pleases.

Proof: "He, Jesus, made supplication, with strong crying and tears, to him that was able to save him from death, and was heard in that he feared." Heb v 7. "He obtained eternal redemption," Heb ix 12. "He became the author of eternal salvation," Heb v 9. "He loved righteousness, and hated iniquity, therefore God exalted him," Heb i 9.

"Thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him," John xvii 2. "Though he were a Son, yet learned he obedience," Heb v 8. "The Captain of their salvation, bringing many sons to glory," Heb ii 10. "He that raised up the Lord Jesus Christ shall raise us up also, by Jesus," 2 Cor xiv. "The dead shall hear the voice of the Son of Man, and shall come forth," John v 29. "He, Jesus, shall change our body by the power whereby he is able to subdue all things," Phil iii 21. "He, Jesus, shall save his people from their sins," Matt i 21.

2 Forgiveness of sins unto eternal life is only obtained through the request of a living Christ, in whom God is well pleased.

Proof: "I, Jehovah, will cause him, Israel's governor, to draw near, and he shall approach unto me,' Jer xxx 21. "He shall make intercession for the transgressors.' Isa liii 12. "Through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins.' Acts xiii 38. "He is able to save unto the uttermost all that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them.' Heb vii 25. He is the 'one mediator between God and man,' 1 Tim ii 5. "If any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ, the righteous, 1 John ii 1. 'We have a great high priest, passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God. Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy and grace to help in time of need,' Heb iv 14-16.

3 The dispensing of the results of the work of Christ is confided absolutely to the hands of Christ, who has been made the Judge as well as priest of his people.

Proof: 'The Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment to the Son,' John v 22. 'It is he, Jesus, that is ordained of God to be the judge of the living and the dead,' Acts x 42. 'We must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, that we may receive in body according to that we have done, whether it be good or bad.' 2 Cor v 10. 'I, Jesus, will give to every one of you according as your work will be,' Rev ii 23. 'The Son of Man shall come in his glory, and then shall he reward every man according to his works,' Matt xvi 27. 'The Lord Jesus Christ shall judge the living and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom.' 2 Tim iv 1.

Now for the practical application. It is not enough that you look to the death of Christ; you must look to his living judgship, and remember that unless you please him in the doing of commandments, there is no hope of your salvation. If you doubt it, turn and read the following: Matt vii 21-22; John xv 14; Rom viii 13; 1 Cor vi 9; Gal vi 8; 1 John iii 7-8.

Man Not Naturally Immortal.

Reasons why man does not possess an inherent immortal or deathless nature.

Because God only hath immortality. 1 Tim vi 15, 16. We are to seek for immortality (Rom ii 7); and if we possess immortality by heredity why should we be commanded to seek for it? It is a gift only to the righteous, Rom vi 22, 23.

Because we are to put it on at the resurrection. 1 Cor xv 52 54. God said to Abraham "Dying thou shalt die" (Gen ii 17, margin); and "Dust thou art and to dust shalt thou return" (Gen iii 19); and to Hezekiah that he should die and not live. Isa xxxviii 1.

Because "In death there is no remembrance of thee; in the grave who shall give thee thanks?" Psalm xxii 29. "He is forgotten as a dead man out of mind." Psalm xxxi 12. "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth, in that very day his thoughts perish." Psa cxlvi 4.

Because "There is no work, nor device, nor wisdom, or knowledge in the grave whither thou goest." Eccl ix 10.

Because the dead know not anything...and their love, hatred and envy are perished." Ezek xviii 4; James v 19, 20. "The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence." Psalm cxv 17.

Because immortality is to be conferred upon the body, and not upon an invisible nonentity—"Who shall change this vile body that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body. Phil iii 21; 1 Cor xv 44.

Because man and beast die alike, have one breath, go to one place. Eccl iii 19-20. "His sons come to honor and he knoweth it not, they are brought low, but he perceiveth it not of them." Job xiv 21.

Because a merciful God placed cherubim and flaming sword to guard the way of the tree of life, lest man have continual access to it and live forever in sin. Gen iii 24.

Because if we believe we naturally possess immortality we accept Satan's word ("Thou shalt not surely die.") in preference to God's Word ("Thou shalt surely die.") Let God be true and every man a liar. Rom iii 4.

Because the apostles preached Christ and the Resurrection (1 Cor xv 15 23); and not Christ and the immortality of the soul, as is now popularly taught. See also John v 28, 29; vi 40, 44, 54; xi 24; Acts iv 2; xvii 18; 2 Cor iv 14; v 4; Rev xx 6.

Because Christ has spoken from heaven: "I am he that liveth and was dead, and behold I am alive for evermore; Amen, and have the keys of hell and of death." Rev i 18. The firstfruits of them that sleep. 1 Cor xv 20.

Because Jesus Christ, our High Priest has entered the holiest of holies (heaven itself, at the right hand of God) and is there making intercession for us by the sprinkling of his own blood, shed once for all (Heb iv 14; v 10; vi 19, 20; vii 1; ix 24) and none can follow him there, for it was certain death to enter (Heb ix 7 12; Lev xvi 17; Num iv 17-20), look into (1 Sam vi 19) or touch (2 Sam vi 6) even the typical holy of holies, save by the high priest and those appointed by God.

Because nowhere do the Scriptures teach that man possesses an immortal soul and not once are the terms immortal soul, deathless spirit or never-dying soul used therein. But immortality only on condition of obedience is taught. Rom ii 7.

Be Strong.

The source of all strength is God, the Creator. This is self-evident. Even those who are strong in sin and rebellion against God have received their strength of will and purpose from God, but with it freedom of will, which they ungratefully misuse and abuse to rebel against and defy their original and true benefactor. The unchangeable God is no wise swerved from his purpose by this contingency, which has been foreseen and provided against. Such beings, whether human or angelic, will run their allotted course and then necessarily perish, because having exhausted their strength received originally, and also their allotted time, they have cut themselves off from its renewal by opposing the Creator's will. It is self evident that infinite wisdom cannot be defeated by the finite creature, thus permitted to take its own course for a time in order to show the utter folly of sin. Sin cannot be eternal, since this would be to divide the sovereignty of God. Sin is wisely permitted for a time, in order that God's intelligent moral universe may know by actual experience, either as witnesses or participants, that the least sin, permitted to run unchecked, will bring to absolute wretchedness and ruin a race, however noble and capable by creation, and destroy a world or a universe.

It is therefore clearly evident that moral strength to resist temptation, to do right and obey God, is the will of the Creator for every man, woman or child. This is to be in harmony with God and carry out the purpose of our creation. God will therefore readily give strength, that we may fully do his will as far as known to us. As man is free to obey or disobey, the condition of faith is imposed, which is simple trust in the goodness and wisdom of the creator. This is the most reasonable thing in the world, for it is certain that man's Creator must be wiser than the wisest man, and better than the best and noblest of mankind.

Faith in God will believe the gospel, accept the Son of God as a Savior, gladly obey him, and wait in patient submission to his will for the fulfilment of his promise to come again, bestow eternal life, and cleanse from all sin the earth over which he is God's appointed ruler and king. This is to be strong, and those who are thus in harmony with God will ask and receive the Holy Spirit, which is divine energy and strength within, to do or suffer whatever God may require of us, knowing that he will surely sustain, and at last reward for every service rendered him.

"God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Therefore will not we fear though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea. Though the waters thereof roar and be troubled, though the mountains shake with the swelling thereof." Psa xlvi 1-3. "Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard that the everlasting God; the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth fainteth not, neither is weary? There is no searching of his understanding. He giveth power to the faith and to them that have no might he increaseth strength. Even the youths shall faint and be weary, and the young men shall utterly fall, but they that will wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles, they shall run and not be weary, and they shall walk and not faint." Isa xl 28-31.

Servant of God, strength is yours for the asking; divine, unfailing moral strength now, intellectual and physical strength hereafter. It is God-like and Christ-like to be strong. Therefore, "Be strong in the Lord and in the power of his might." Yea, be strong!

As Good a Christian as a Jew.

Of Oscar S Straus, who became Secretary of Commerce and Labor in President Roosevelt's cabinet, the World's Work says:

"It is no offence to say that he is as good a Christian as he is a good Jew, for he is of a liberal faith. Yet the fact that he is Jew has a meaning—or may have, to the old world. He happens to be the first man of his race to sit in the President's cabinet, although Isador Straus, his brother, declined the Postmaster General's portfolio under Mr. Cleveland, and Joseph Seligman declined the portfolio of the Treasury under President Grant. Mr. Straus has not only the general qualities called for by the post that he will take, but a special fitness for his particular portfolio, for he knows both the commerce and his labor by close study, by personal experience, and by a sympathetic interest in the practical affairs of each."

Where are the Dead.

Job asks the question in another form; "Man giveth up the ghost and where is he?" Mark, he does not ask, "where is his ghost," but "where is he, the man?" Human philosophy has never been able to answer this question. Science throws no light upon the dreary abodes of death. All is alike dark to human reason and speculation. Poets have sent the spirit into far off worlds beyond sound and sense. Theologians have invented a hell and a heaven for the spirit after the body dies, and spiritualists have opened up a sort of spiritual commerce with the departed shades. But in all these theories we find nothing satisfactory, nothing real. Aside from the Bible there is no light shining upon the gloomy land where the dead are sleeping. That period between death and the resurrection seems to be a quiet sleep for the weary aching heart. Job says, "O that thou wouldst hide me in the grave; that thou wouldst keep me secret until thy wrath be passed; that thou wouldest appoint a set time and remember me." This looks like rest. David points to the same sweet repose in 6th Psalm: "Return O Lord, deliver my soul: O save me for thy mercies' sake. For in death there is no remembrance of thee: in the grave who shall give thee thanks." Again says David: "The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down in silence," (Psa cxv 17.) "The grave cannot praise thee," says Hezekiah. The whole volume of inspiration is a unit against the idea of the dead being in some fairy world. "If I wait, the grave is my house, says the man of Uz. If, then, the dead are in quiet sleep awaiting the coming day of life, how precious to the dying children of earth is the promise of life and the resurrection. Christ was placed in the grave, but it could not hold him. The hour is coming when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God and come forth. Those who fall shall rise and amid the growing brightness of the perfect day they will wear the crown of life, victorious over death. The sepulchre of David was with Israel when Peter was discoursing on the day of Pentecost to the multitudes, and it was there said, "David is not ascended into heaven." No promise this side of the resurrection. That is the day of life, of the crown of victory. Men may strive to beat back the tides of death, but they will surely come. There is a light shining on the grave, there is a promise to the quiet sleeper; there is a hope beyond the night of dreary watching. The life-age is about to dawn, the golden lamp of faith will yet shine brightly in the valley of death, and beyond we behold the Dayspring from on high.

We have reared monuments to our dead; we have written epitaphs on marble; we have watched over the silent grave with bleeding hearts. But this is not all. We have heard the prophecy from the sacred depths of God's own eternal truth; "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust, for thy dew shall be as the dew of herbs and the earth shall cast out her, dead."

Death holds some, the grave holds others, while others are sleeping on the ever moving floors of the sea. But from all these the resurrection voice from the great white throne will call them forth to golden crowns shining beyond the reign of death.

The dead, then, are awaiting the morning; they rest in hope, and when quickened from their earthy pillow will come forth in the white robes of immortal life, bearing palms before the ever blessed King. "I shall be satisfied," says David, "when I awake in thy likeness." The awakening comes in the morning of joy after the night of weeping is past. Glorious hope! Blessed assurance! We will wait in patience, bear the burdens, hold to the promise, and trust him who is "the Resurrection and the Life."

It ought to be evident to each one of our friends that know the trials of the hour, that a dollar comes in very handy at such a time. Please do not quench the promptings of your heart, but send us what you can right now. We thank you sincerely.

Editor Restitution:

Please find enclosed clipping telling of the death of our dear mother, which we would like published in THE RESTITUTION, as she was a strong believer in the doctrines you advocate, to the last.

MRS. S. TRELOAR.

Mrs. Sarah Lee, or Grandma Lee, as she was affectionately known to her large circle of friends and relatives, was laid to rest in the Carpinteria Cemetery Monday afternoon, death having overtaken her early Sunday morning. The community at large laid aside its activities and came together in the Presbyterian church at two o'clock Monday afternoon to pay its respects to her, whose life had been one of singular faithfulness and beauty. Some time before her death Mrs. Lee expressed her wishes regarding her funeral, and these wishes were carried out in every possible particular. The services were conducted by the three resident ministers of the valley, Dr. Tubbs, Rev. C. A. Hyatt and Rev. T. C. McLean. The singing was beautifully conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Southwick of Santa Barbara, old-time and close friends of Mr. and Mrs. Lee. The pall-bearers were grandsons of the deceased. The many beautiful flower tokens expressed in blossom the thought of esteem and affection in the hearts of all.

Sarah Dawkes was born almost a century ago, in Bedfordshire, England, in 1818. In the year 1845 she married C. J. Lee, and soon after they came to America and settled in Wisconsin near the present site of Beloit. The country was then practically a wilderness, and Mr. and Mrs. Lee, experienced much of pioneer life. When gold was discovered in California, Mr. Lee became a forty-niner and took up claims in Sierra county at Forest City where Mrs. Lee joined him some time later. In 1866 they returned to Wisconsin and engaged in farming until 1893, when they came to California again and located in the Carpintaria valley, where they have since lived. Six children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Lee, three of whom are living—Charles Lee of Correctionville, Iowa, Frank Lee of Milton, Wisconsin; and Mrs. Samual Treloar of Carpintaria, who for a number of years has been devoted to the care of her mother and counted no sacrifice too great if it but added to the comfort and happiness of her parent. Twenty-six grandchildren, thirteen great grandchildren and one great great grandson are the descendants of Mrs. Lee. Almost up to the last Grandma Lee was a regular and faithful attendant upon church services and Sunday school, and it has been contended that she and Mr. Lee, the oldest couple in the county, attended Sunday school most regularly. Her mind remained clear to the end, and she was soothed and sustained by her unfaltering trust in her Heavenly Father.

Editor Restitution:

I am so thankful to you for continuing to send me the grand, good, old RESTITUTION. I take so much comfort in reading its blessed pages. It is so cheering to my lonely heart. I wish I could pay you for it; but I cannot work any more to get money; but you will get your reward when Jesus comes. I was to meeting last Wednesday night, and the speaker asked the question, Where are you? Yes, where are we! We look over the world today and see where the true church of God has drifted to since the apostles fell asleep. See the different sects and faiths. See how they differ from the true church, and see what confusion they are in. Just as Paul told Timothy should come to pass in the last days, and we are living right now in that time. Pretending Christians are afraid to talk to poor me in their meetings. They don't want to hear about Jesus coming back, or his coming kingdom. They don't want Jesus to come and reign over them; but they have immortal souls that fly to heaven when they die. I do not see where they got their immortal souls, for it is one of the devil's lies that he invented to deceive the people. I can praise the blessed Lord that he ever opened my eyes and called me out of Babylon. Dear brethren let us fight the good fight, and lay hold of eternal life, and when Jesus comes we shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away.

Yours in the blessed hope,

B. W. REESE.

P. S.—In regard to the question in a recent issue, I think to be banished from the Lord and from his kingdom, and the joys of the blessed forever would be worse than death. Oh how I wish I could be to your good meetings and hear the blessed true gospel proclaimed by our dear brethren.

Pray for me, that I may be restored to health again if it be God's will.

B. W. R.

Announcement.

The Southern Illinois Conference will be held at the Restitution Church, eight miles south of Casey, Illinois, beginning September 25, and end October 3. All are invited to attend. Preparation will be made to care for all who attend with no cost except transportation. All parties come to Casey and we will meet you with conveyances. Please write and let us know if possible, what day you are coming. Trains from the east arrive at 10:00 A. M. from the west at 12:04 noon.

There will be preaching each evening on week days, and on forenoon on Sunday. Bible School each afternoon, the topic announced each day.

Preaching brethren are Robert G. Huggins and L. E. Conner. Come, everybody is welcome. Come the first day and stay.

Direct all communications to Lewis Weaver, R. R. No. 3.

God's loving care is over you. Be not afraid.

"Thy Word is true from the beginning; and every one of the righteous judgments endureth forever."

Men seldom improve when they have no model but themselves to copy after.—Goldsmith.

"A religious life begins and grows like any other, into a fuller and more perfect state. We get our life from God. We must take care that it grows."

At the final reckoning, the little things done in a loving, Christian spirit, will surprise us by the magnitude of the reward they bring.

In the tumult of the world, where every life is invaded and encroached upon by the "pride of man" and the "strife of tongues," we wrap around us the robe of God's eternal mercy in Christ Jesus, and look out undaunted upon the dangers that cannot harm us.—Phillips Brooks.

"His inheritance in the saints" denotes not only his possession, but also his entire control. It speaks of a Christ-governed life, in which all choices are submitted to him, in which he has the absolute disposal of time, money, efforts, home, influence, intellect, and is indeed the "Lord of all." Are our lives thus Christ-controlled? And if not, why not?—J. Stuart Holden.

Many men say that when they know, they will act; Jesus says that if they act they will know. He knows that light will come through doing, and not through dreaming. No one can have a true idea of right until he has done it, and reverence for a truth comes only when its meaning has been made definite in experience at some cost. In other words experience makes both understanding and appreciation possible. It is vital therefore, that we put present belief into action, in order that belief may grow; for in this way alone do we furnish ourselves with that deepening experience which can lead to greater truth. Mighty convictions are born from truth lived out.—Sabbath Recorder.

While in Troas Paul's third supernatural revelation came to him in the form of a vision at night. This vision clearly indicated the line of duty. It meant that Macedonia needed the gospel and there were souls there ready to receive it. Paul's one business was to lead men to Christ. He regarded every call made to him as a summons to preach deliverance from sin. At this time he became conscious that extensive labors were assigned him. It was not because Asia had been fully harvested that he was called to Europe, but because harvest time was fully at hand in Macedonia. Paul was ready to act as soon as he knew the will of God. The use of the pronoun "we" indicates that his conviction was shared by his companions and that all were eager to reach the new field of labor. The figure used here is that of reaching a conclusion by putting things side by side.

We trust all who know their time has expired, will realize how important it is that they renew promptly. To make out and mail statements to each is quite expensive, and most all already know when their time runs out, so that it is not really necessary. Please take note of this, friends.

Wandering Evangelist.

As a strong believer in prayer I do not believe that we class ourselves with fanatics in trusting to the directing providence of the Father, or in saying to the Elder Brother with the confidence of a child "lead me!" for he has said, "I am with you always, even to the end of the age." "The end of the age"—it must include promises to us until he is present in person, which will be when the Christian age shall end.

At Phoenix, when it was published all over the United States, through THE RESTITUTION, that a brother is sick in the Arizona sanitarium, it was faithful brethren from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the far north to Louisiana, that ministered unto me an answer to prayer.

Now I am away here in Colorado still determined to follow the injunction of Paul, "But watch, thou in all things, endure affliction, do the work of an evangelist, make full proof of thy ministry." The Iowa Conference is in session at this time. I had ambition to seek prospective work in that State, but did not desire to contract for work if physical disability should cause failure and disappointment. I designed to start sooner, but a delayed telegraphic communication prevented my starting till the morning of the 11th. I saw I could not get my appointment on the 13th; it was depressing, so much so that I could not enjoy the scenic line of the world, as under other circumstances I might have done, as we moved northward and eastward out of the heat of Arizona on to the cool hills, ridges and mountains of north Arizona, New Mexico and cool Colorado. On reaching Canyon City, and traveling through the Royal Gorge and up to an altitude of 10,000 feet, the wild grandeur was magnificent, even to one that has seen so much of the great west.

I reached Montrose, Colo., on the 14th, where I met Bro. Asher with horse and buggy to take me 5 miles out to his home.

I was to begin on the 13th, but in getting there it proved the traditionally unlucky 13th number. So we got a congregation of 8 adults and 2 babies together on the evening of the 15th, and postponed meeting until the evening of the 21st, and talked to a slightly increased number—as many as the Savior most usually talked to. As is often my custom when meeting with a new congregation I spoke from the words, "And now abideth faith, hope, love, these three, but the greatest of these is love." I spoke the next evening to four times the number we had on the first occasion, still it seemed small compared to hundreds of congregations of the northwest. But I was feeling stronger and more vigorous in comparison with some of the depression I had passed through, and it was inspiring to get a congregation together on a summer evening, and to see the young people voluntarily gather around the organ and sing, and to see both old and young give such close attention to what seemed wholly new to them, "The gospel of the kingdom."

As harvest time and a growing moon persuaded me that a week later would be more favorable for a doctrinal series, I announced the meetings to begin on the evening of the 28th. I had already given up getting to the Iowa Conference.

I feel sure that if my work is destined to Iowa or any other state where the gospel has been published for years, or if it is for me to still toil on at pioneer work, the way will be made manifest. If I should be destined to remain in Colorado in order to teach the faith to those with whom it seems entirely new, I feel assured that there are faithful brethren who will kindly keep eyes on my work. I know of no organization of the Church of God in Colorado, but would like to communicate with such if they will write to me. The brethren in this neighborhood are Brother and Sister Asher and Sister Baker, whom I immersed when they lived at Phoenix, Arizona, and with whom I expect to find a pleasant home till I respond to other calls. These brethren are located in a valley at an altitude of some 5000 feet. They are in a rural place five miles from Montrose, and less than a quarter from the Riverside School house, where our meetings are held.

My account with the donated fund stands, Received $60 00, Travel $23.-60, Three days of work $4.50. I hope the surplus will save souls.

Indiana Please Notice.

The yearly conference for Indiana is to be at Rensselaer early in October. All who come please notify Sister Flora Harris beforehand, so that all may be in readiness.

Now brethren, Indiana has possibilities for a great work the coming year, and much of our success will depend on this conference. Come. We have a large membership and generous means. We have several strong congregations for edification and many scattered members who will be able to aid in evangelizing new localities, by affording a good opening. We have many earnest young people at work in Bible Study. We have several good Sunday Schools and Berean Societies. We have several young men ready to go to preaching. All we need is to take new heart and unite our forces. Let us get our numbers in touch with each other, combine our finances and efforts and all put our talents together for united work. Let each congregation see to it that several leading members from your church are at conference. If agreeable, pay their way. Let as many isolated members as possible come and be renewed for another year. We expect one or two new speakers, and many of the old faithful ones who have served so well. Many new and important things are likely to come up. Come in a Christian spirit of love. Bring your enthusiasm along.

In order for better work in Berean and Bible study, pastoral oversight and evangelizing, it is desired that the secretary be furnished with the names and addresses of all members in the state. Let each secretary of a congregation please send a list of your members to her and all isolated members do the same by a postal card to Lydia Railsback, 621 S. Fellows St., South Bend, Indiana.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Indiana Conference.

SEPT. 30 TO OCT. 3.

The Rensselaer Church, where it is to be held, is desirous to have a full attendance, therefore sends greeting: Come all who can. Ample provision will be in readiness to care for all who may come, in the way of sustaining the "outer man" with food and rest; with due care however that the fare be not gorgeous, destroying or impairing the relish for the food from the spiritual store house, to "renew the inner man" (Christ in you the hope of glory) to be ministered by those assembled. Come with vessels well filled to give liberally, as giving will not diminish, but increase the amount in store, whereby all may share in the sweet comfort and rest in Christ, having a foretaste of that "feast of fat things" when the Lord of hosts shall reign in Mount Zion, destroying the face of the covering cast over all people, and the vail that is spread over all nations. Begin at once to make arrangements to be at the Conference from start to finish.

Try THE RESTITUTION, $1.50 a year

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services.—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 308 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

Hindu Literature.

This book of over 400 pages is of special value to the young people in order to enable them to meet the attacks upon Christianity from Theosophists and others. It has been fully endorsed by the most eminent Oriental scholars of Europe as being authentic, and the historic facts here presented are unimpeachable. A few copies of this standard $1 50 book may now be had for $1.00 a copy post paid. It is used in colleges and universities. Send all orders to Mrs. Elizabeth A Reed, 1311 Balmoral av, Chicago, Illinois.

THE RESTITUTION is only $1.50 per year. Try it a year.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D.C. Roblson's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. DANIEL.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 80 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1 00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10648 Ashbury Ave. N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 625 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Scripture Searchers Assistant.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is quite detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper is now delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should provide copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Perfect Through Suffering.

God never would send you the darkness,
If he felt you could bear the light
But you would not cling to his guiding hand
If the way were always bright,
And you would not care to walk by faith,
If you could always walk by sight.

'Tis true he has many an anguish
For your sorrowful heart to bear,
And many a cruel thorn-crown
For your tired head to wear;
He knows how few would reach Home at all
If pain did not guide them there.

So he sends you the blinding darkness,
And the furnace of seven-fold heat;
'Tis the only way, believe me,
To keep you close to his feet—
For 'tis always so easy to wander
When our lives are glad and sweet.

Then nestle your hand in your Father's
And sing, if you can, as you go;
Your song may cheer some one behind you
Whose courage is sinking low;
And, well, if your lips do quiver—
God will love you better so.

Salvation What is it?

We are constantly hearing something about Salvation when among religionists. And we think that those who use that word most frequently would be puzzled to explain what they mean by it,—and still more puzzled if they had to give a Scriptural exposition of the term. Lexicographers tell us that salvation is the act of saving; this may satisfy a few unreasoning people, perhaps, who do not care to know the why or wherefore of things; but we think there are others who would like to know how it happens that man needs to be saved; would like to know what ails them before they take any remedy whatever; and as we consider this a wise course to adopt we will attempt to crowd into one article an epitome of the whole matter, beginning at the point of time when there was no man.

The strata of earth proves that it was made for just such a creature as man is, because in its bowels are vast stores of iron, copper, tin, zinc, silver, gold, lead, oil, coal and a great many other things that man has found a use for; and its soil produces just what he needs to sustain him, and it was not till the earth was fitted up to suit such a creature that he was introduced. He came as [illegible] right time, but where did he come from? Only God, who made him could answer that question. That happily he has done. The [illegible] says he was formed of the ground, and Gen 3:19 [illegible] in the following words [illegible] Adam: "In the sweat of thy face thou (Adam) eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." This shows where he came from what he was made of, and was to become of him. Before we go to the note,

1. There was no man [illegible] formed of dust.

2. God being true, only [illegible] into man's composition.

3. After man's formation [illegible] dust, he was caused to live. [illegible] caused his eyes to see, his ears to hear, his hands to handle, his brain to remember, calculate, his [illegible] taste, and speak,—in fact to do all [illegible] see him do. But what caused him to perform all these functions? Ans.

God being true, the Breath of life was the cause,—the only cause, as proven by Psalm 104:29. It says, "Thou takest away their breath, they die, and return to their dust. Simply deprived of what first gave them life, and they are unmade. There was no man before he was made.—there is no man after he is unmade. But [illegible] was man unmade? Not [illegible] was not perfectly formed, and the whole organism worked harmoniously. It was a very good organism. But no exquisite piece of [illegible] was not what he was formed for. The Creator is a moral being—a loving,—a God of love and truth, and justice. And, although Jesus in the flesh "profiteth nothing," he had organized the flesh of man capable of developing a character in harmony with His own—a Godly character, a moral character. He had the faculty of loving God,—reverencing God, believing him and obeying him. God's sole object in the formation of man was the development of character resembling his own. The faculties man was endowed with, mentioned above, were for this purpose, and [illegible] adapted to this purpose. Here we ask reader to pause. Before he goes any further we want him to realize the difference between the mechanical action of a machine that is utilized to do what it was intended to do, and a free moral organism that is capable of choosing the right and rejecting the wrong. Such a creature man was. He was capable of choosing his own course and permitted to choose it, and did choose it.

A moral character could be developed in no other way. A man without a will of his own could develope character of his own; and of necessity would be only a living machine, to be set in motion and obliged to do just so, and in no sense responsible for his conduct, and therefore could be amendable to no law, nor rewarded nor punished on account of it. Man under these conditions would be on a level with the brute creation, not being eligible to glory, honor and immortality.

But, as we have shown that man was fearfully and wonderfully made and afterwards sentenced to be unmade, and returned to the ground he was taken out of, we must now show the reason why this was done? We have referred to the irresponsibility of the brute, and the responsibility of the man, and now we will show that God created him as personally responsible for his action. He gave him one law to test him. He was told he could eat of every tree of the garden except one. If he ate of that he should die, surely die. He ate of it after this fair warning of the consequences, and the words, "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return," is the sentence of the [illegible] threatened him. God's own explanation [illegible] other man [illegible] he had organized [illegible] use for; and [illegible] not till the earth was [illegible] suit such a creature [illegible] introduced. He came as [illegible] right time, but where did he come from? Only God, who made him could answer that question. That happily he has done. The Creator is a moral being—a loving,—a God of love and truth, and justice. And, although Jesus in the flesh "profiteth nothing," he had organized the flesh of man capable of developing a character in harmony with His own—a Godly character, a moral character. He had the faculty of loving God,—reverencing God, believing him and obeying him. God's sole object in the formation of man was the development of character resembling his own. The faculties man was endowed with, mentioned above, were for this purpose, and [illegible] adapted to this purpose. Here we ask reader to pause. Before he goes any further we want him to realize the difference between the mechanical action of a machine that is utilized to do what it was intended to do, and a free moral organism that is capable of choosing the right and rejecting the wrong. Such a creature man was. He was capable of choosing his own course and permitted to choose it, and did choose it.

A moral character could be developed in no other way. A man without a will of his own could develope character of his own; and of necessity would be only a living machine, to be set in motion and obliged to do just so, and in no sense responsible for his conduct, and therefore could be amendable to no law, nor rewarded nor punished on account of it. Man under these conditions would be on a level with the brute creation, not being eligible to glory, honor and immortality.

But, as we have shown that man was fearfully and wonderfully made and afterwards sentenced to be unmade, and returned to the ground he was taken out of, we must now show the reason why this was done? We have referred to the irresponsibility of the brute, and the responsibility of the man, and now we will show that God created him as personally responsible for his action. He gave him one law to test him. He was told he could eat of every tree of the garden except one. If he ate of that he should die, surely die. He ate of it after this fair warning of the consequences, and the words, "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return," is the sentence of the [illegible] threatened him. God's own explanation [illegible]

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPTEMBER 15, 1909. NUMBER 35.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

[illegible] and their subjects, and the [illegible] of all nations assured.

[illegible] His coming Jesus to tell [illegible] that kingdom of God was coming, and commanding repentance in its coming, and [illegible] going to carry to heaven that kingdom [illegible] would return and [illegible] its coronation glory. [illegible] and inherit the [illegible] the [illegible] Mount, Blessed [illegible] the earth,—and [illegible] that they will be found [illegible] 9. [illegible] places. But [illegible] many such more [illegible] Abraham, all witness [illegible] resurrection to be or else [illegible] Heb xi 35) proves that [illegible] and to be taken away [illegible] expected to realize [illegible] promised [illegible] Saviour the land he [illegible] as a stranger should after [illegible] his inheritance—in resurrection. See verse 39. But that [illegible] was only typically [illegible] with the blood of beasts. It [illegible] and the spotless blood of the woman's seed, the Seed of Abraham and Son of God to confirm it and [illegible] into force. And so he said in the last supper "This is my blood of the new covenant, shed for you." This covenant is the everlasting covenant because it covenants everlasting life, death, and the kingdom [illegible] glory.

[illegible] could not give life after death till [illegible] into force by the death of [illegible] and he [illegible] Heb ix 20). [illegible] who was the first fruits from the dead, the first-born among many brethren, was himself raised from the dead through the blood of the everlasting covenant which he shed. Verse 20 says the God of Peace brought [illegible] from the dead our Lord Jesus, that Great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant.

And now, dear Sister, do you want to share the blessings of Abraham and his seed, the Christ? Do you want to live and reign as a king and priest with Christ, and sit with him upon his throne, Rev iii 21, and have power over the nations as he promised in Rev ii 26, 27, when he possesses what Gabriel promised his mother, Luke i 32, at his return to rebuild the tabernacle as is foretold of him, Amos ix 11, 12 and Acts xv 16, 17, and possesses the kingdom under the whole heaven, for ever, even for ever and ever, Dan vii 18 and 27. Then you want all this blessedness?

[illegible] must accept all the promises of it as Gospel, in connection with the offices and work of Christ, as His Saviour in our behalf, his being raised from the dead for our justification,—his office of Mediator for all God's children at the court of heaven, and the remission of sin, and be baptized in Christ's death in order to obtain his promises. Your sin covering, then live godly while you live in the flesh, and ever be looking for that blessed hope, the glorious appearing, and all will be well.

Life Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES NUMBER 13.

What a sad ending to a young devoted Christian life, was that sudden taken off of Brother Clawes daughter. Yet God has worked perfect resignation in the heart of that once almost distracted mother." Of her three daughters, one was married a year after the death of her sister, the other, a girl of sixteen, was still at home, at the time of Auntie Willard's visit and one day as they sat conversing, said, "Mother I wish sister was alive." The mother replied, "I do not." "Why, mother?" questioned the daughter. "Because she might have married a bad man and lived a wretched life. God knew best."

Then she told Auntie Willard that her deceased daughter was engaged to a young man who afterwards proved utterly unworthy, his own father averring that "she better be where she was than to have been his wife."

Auntie Willard said Sister Clawes, was a lovely woman, she had been paralyzed and helpless for years but was now walking and could lift her arm though not able to use it. Bro. Clawes waited on her with all the kindness and loyalty of a youthful lover.

Auntie Willard had got acquainted with some of those Allegheny friends at Milbrahum, and perhaps I may tell you of a former visit made here when we are through telling of her visit to Titusville. This place is in Crawford County in Northwest Pennsylvania. From Allegheny City you go by railroad 68 miles to Brady's Bend, then by stage 9 miles over almost impassable roads to Petrolia, Butler Co., where Lyman Willard lived, and then north to Titusville. Petrolia was a new place, yet Lyman had a good practice, as his predecessors had all fallen out of line through intemperance.

There were no meetings in the place, and the only open doors for young men, outside their own homes, were the liver-shops and billiard-parlors. But Auntie Willard and Maggie hearing of a meeting in a school-house on a hill outside the town, picked their way through the mud to the place, [illegible] seated themselves, discovered that it was to be a Catholic service, and that it would detain them too long to stay. So making explanations to those nearest them, they quietly withdrew.

I do not know when Lyman and Maggie's marriage took place, but they had taken a little baby-boy as their own and it had died. Father had seen Maggie when he was east and thought her a very sweet woman. I think she was one in faith with her husband.

Brother J. V. Himes spoke at Titusville the last evening in April. He and his wife had been visiting her brother in a near-by city, then going on to Rochester. They had called at Titusville to visit a Brother and Sister Dodge and this brother had invited his neighbors to come to a little meeting at his house.

"The discourse was a most finished one on the first and second advents of our Lord. It gave great satisfaction as was evident from the glowing remarks that followed. A Presbyterian minister was present who rose and said he had not been taught in college nor by man, but from God with an open Bible before him and he had been preaching just the things he had heard this night, and as fully, with the exception of the death of the spirit of man; that he did not see, and only mentioned it to define his position. His labors,' he said 'had been blessed in raising up two earnest working churches, and all that astonished him was that ministers and people were so ignorant on these subjects, when they are so fully set forth in the Bible."

An Episcopalian gentleman was also present who had traveled extensively in Europe, and in Palestine. He said he "had met a clergyman on the Mount of Olives who avowed his belief in the near Coming of Christ as unmistakably as he had heard it tonight" and then said "This is the clearest exposition of the subject I have ever heard, and I am deeply interested as I have already been reading on the subject." The President of the Young Men's Christian Association was also out and spoke at length, he being a full believer with us, and an earnest worker; going about distributing tracts, and living his religion. He was delighted with the discourse.

One young man from down Oil Creek, a convert, of Brother Hastings, also spoke warmly and feelingly, "There was," he said, "but one other believing family in the place where he lived besides his own," and Auntie Willard says, "I encouraged him to meet and read the Bible and pray with this other family and thus keep up their interest, and it maybe draw in others."

"Before the friends dispersed it was proposed that the believers in Titusville meet together and exhort one another and break bread on the first day of the week, as Brother Dodge is a minister of the Gospel. Brother Himes encouraged it strongly and it was decided they would. So," Auntie Willard says, "I concluded to stay over another Sunday and meet with them." Nelson Willard and Artie, his wife were delighted with the meeting, and Brother Dodge, "hoped Bro. Himes would come again so as to get the subject before the people in a public hall or church and he promised he would.

Brother Himes, could do fine when he spoke on the coming of the Lord, but was not so good on other topics. He was a man of medium size and fair-looking, though he had somewhat of a stubby-nose. Sister Himes was in poor health, but had the appearance of being a sensible Christian woman.

Sister Roter was expected home by streamer from San Francisco to New York, about this time. No clue is given as to where she had been. Auntie Willard was also going home on Tuesday.

What Love Does not Do.

LOVE is not a tyrant, but it is an imperial master. There are some things it bids us shut out from our lives forever. It is always ready for the surgery which would cut away what endangers the life. With very candid and honest eyes love looks upon the world. When any way of life or any way of speech puts an obstacle in the path of another man, it repudiates it. It is not so much that it has a tender conscience, as that it has an honest conscience. We are in a social network where we are responsible for other lives as well as our own. And if my life is making it harder for some other man to win moral victory, my life must be changed. Here the temperance movement finds a firm foundation. It is a modern expression of the abstinence of love. The man who can look at all the havoc which intoxicating drinks have wrought, and then contentedly sip his wine, thoughtless of his own devastating influence, is either stupid or unloving.

The principle has very wide application. There is not a day when we may not seek duty more clearly, choose our words with a new adequacy and direct the life with a new effectiveness, if we apply the test of love.

Why He Lost Friends.

He was always wounding their feelings, making sarcastic or funny remarks at their expense.

He was cold and reserved in his manner, cranky, gloomy, pessimistic.

He was suspicious of everybody.

He never threw the doors of his heart wide open to people, or took them into his confidence.

He was always ready to receive assistance from them, but always too busy or too stingy to assist them in their time of need.

He regarded friendship as a luxury to be enjoyed, instead of an opportunity for service.

We have not followed cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eye-witnesses of his majesty.

God is infinitely and unchangeably holy.

We trust all who know their time has expired, will realize how important it is that they renew promptly. To make out and mail statements to each is quite expensive, and most all already know when their time runs out, so that it is not really necessary. Please take note of this, friends.

EXAMINE Your account, and give us a renewal of subscription if you can do so.

Circumstances of late have added somewhat to our expenses, and we do really need what is due us right now. This ought to be enough to say, and we will not add more to it, but trust that by thus calling your attention to the matter, all who know that their time has expired, will send in renewals at once, and so relieve our necessities.

We thank you for the favor.

Let all who have correspondence with Brother R. G. Huggins make note of his new address, as published in this issue: 10703 Hampden Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

Any one wishing Photo post cards showing the membership of the Illinois Bible School for 1908 can get them by sending to C. L. Curtis, Oregon, Ill. We are informed that the photo is a good one, and can be had for 5 cents each by mail.

Once more we will say that it homeless for persons unknown to us to send communications that are signed only with initials. We must know who you are for our own protection. If you cannot trust us with your name and position, we cannot trust you.

On Monday evening Brother Joseph Williams made us a call. He is looking up matters for the coming Conference at Rensselaer, and trying to encourage the Berean work. His permanent address is now Hillsburg, Indiana, where letters may be sent hereafter.

The article on "Salvation. What is it?" has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each. 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to H. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

Iowa Conference Report.

The 22d Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus, met at Waterloo, Iowa, Aug. 22 28, 1909, and the programme carried out as nearly as possible as it was published.

Owing to sickness Brother Reed of Chicago was not with us, which was a great disappointment to all, and especially to those who had heard him before and had an intense desire to see him and hear him proclaim once again the glad tidings of the kingdom of God.

We also regret that Brother Joseph Williams found at the last moment that it was not practical for him to fill his place on the program. Many of his friends were present, hoping to hear his words of cheer and comfort especially to the broken-hearted, as he has found them revealed in the Word of God. However we were very fortunate in having with us teachers and preachers who can fill any vacancy, and are equal to any occasion for doing good.

Among those present who helped us with their timely talks and excellent sermons were John Garton and Bro. Oliver of Kansas, Almus Adams from Nebraska, S. J. Lindsay and Eldred Marsh of Illinois, H. A. Dingman and J. L. Chadwick of Minnesota, O. J. Allard and A. J. Eychaner of Iowa.

It would be useless for me to comment on the good qualities of these speakers, as all are so well and favorably known, that their names are sufficient proof that those who were present were well repaid for their efforts in coming. Some of the subjects so clearly brought before the Conference by different speakers were God's plan of salvation, God's kingdom on the earth, the Resurrection, Age of Restitution, Signs of the times showing forth the budding of the "fig tree" and the restlessness among the dry bones of Ezek. xxxvii. a type of the restoration of Israel, and the nearness of the coming of the Great King, who will take the throne of his father David and rule from sea to sea, and from the rivers unto the ends of the earth, until he has subdued all enemies, and the kingdoms of this world are become the kingdom of our Lord and his Christ, or Anointed. These grand doctrinal truths or foundation principles were ever the prevailing exhortation to those who believe these things and show their faith by their works. Faith without works is dead. This is our day of preparation, our testing time, to prove whether we are worthy of that "high calling"—immortality—and qualified to be rulers in the kingdom of God. To walk not after the flesh but after the spirit; for to be carnally minded is death, but to be spiritually minded is life and peace. For you have the assurance that if the spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his spirit that dwelleth in you.

Besides Brother Lindsay's very good sermons, he conducted a Bible class, taking the word "spirit" in all its various phases. Taking the different translations and uses of the word and showing that in every instance it could be translated force or power, and never has reference to a personal entity. Brother Lindsay had a complete knowledge of his subject, and we all felt benefitted after the lessons, and I am sure had a better understanding of the word than ever before.

Miss Evelyn Harsch, President of the Indiana Bereans, had charge of the young people. The Book of Esther was studied, and the lessons were very interesting and instructive. Miss Harsch is an excellent teacher, keeping the attention of the young people, making them think for themselves, and bringing out all the doctrinal truths and practical lessons. We feel grateful to Miss Harsch for her services, and know we were fortunate in securing her for this work.

We had also Mrs. Mary E. Teats of Chicago, National Evangelist of Purity of W. C. T. U. who gave us a very instructive discourse on social purity and influences of heredity.

It was a great pleasure to the Conference to listen to Brother Eychaner, who although just recovering from his recent severe illness, seemed to fade as Paul said of himself, made strong in weakness, and gave us some of the best sermons we ever heard. I am sure we all feel grateful to our Heavenly Father for his goodness to us in sparing his life, and we hope that he may grow better and stronger, and have many more years to work for his Lord and Master.

The following officers were elected for coming year:

President O. J. Allard, Ft. Dodge, Ia.

Vice President, A. J. Eychaner, Tampa, Fla.

Secretary Eva L. Stearns, Sac City, Iowa.

Treasurer G. P. Allard Jr., Ft. Dodge, Iowa.

Corresponding Secretary Mrs. Ada Moran, Clinton, Iowa.

The following motions were carried.

1. That a committe be appointed to solicit Conference dues. G. P. Allard appointed.

2. That all visiting members be invited to take part in all business deliberations.

3. That we purchase new tent rods and sides. Subscriptions taken that amount to $120 00.

4. That the bedding belonging to the conference be rented as follows—1 Comfortable and 1 pair of blankets for 10 cents a night for the first five nights, or 50 cents for the 10 days.

5. That the Conference Board have Evangelists for coming year, paying them for their services as seems best in their judgment.

6. That Conference Board issue Ministerial Certificates to those whom they deem worthy.

7. That we appoint a Conference Secretary to collect money and make reports. The following appointments were made:

Sac City, C. A. Nokes,
Gladbrook, Sadie Clark,
Irving, Ida Marsh,
Hickory Grove, Mrs. I. Fish,
Eagle Grove, A. M. Jones,
Waterloo, Mrs. J. Ellis,
Laporte City, Mrs. Herrick,
Marathon, Mrs. Beardslee.

8. Resolutions on Church discipline as recommended by the Illinois Conference, were read, but as the subject was to be discussed through The Restitution the coming year, a motion was carried to lay the question on the table.

9. That a vote of thanks be given the Ladies of Marathon for the comfortable so kindly donated to the conference.

The committee on Registration reported 206 in attendance at conference. Those from outside the State of Iowa were: From Nebraska, Almus Adams, Mrs. Mary A. King and M. A. Culpin; Illinois, S. E Kelly and wife, G. E. Marsh, Mrs. J. Marsh, Bernice Phelps, S J. Lindsay and wife, Joseph Williams, wife and daughter Grace, Viola Eaton, Daisy and Ethel Seymour; Missouri, Ida Ordning; Kansas Mr. and Mrs. Oliver; Indiana, Evelyn Harsch; Louisiana, Mrs. A. M. Siple; Oklahoma, Mrs. E. A. Rahe; South Dakota, Mrs. Inez Titus; Minnesota, O. J. Marsh, wife and children, Kate Abbott, Mark Abbott, George Berry and wife, Elder J. L. Chadwick Sunday School organizer, in Minnesota and Elder H. A. Dingman, Pastor of the Church of God, at Eden Valley, Minnesota. The last six named were delegates from the Minnesota State Conference of the Church of God. We were very glad to have these brothers and sisters with us, and although they came to us as strangers, soon learned to love them; for we found we were of one Spirit, seeking for truth and trying to follow in the steps of our Savior.

There were fifteen baptisms during the year and at the Conference, namely—Edgar, Lorene and Bernice Beardslee, and Anna Garton of Marathon, Mrs. Harvey Hilsabeck of Gifford, Leona and Hazel Goodsell of Cedar Falls, Cora Belle Marsh of Marshalltown, Mildred Everett of Fairbanks, Mrs. W. Crombaugh of Kozsta, Hazel White of Cola, May Gates of Oelwein, Luther Lorimer of Sac City, Myrtle Fisher of Avon, and Elmer Bergen of Stanhope.

The Treasurer reported as partial expenses for Conference ministers and speakers, $115 00. Rent for tents, $14 50. Total, $129.50

Collected for bedding and springs, $40 65. Also that there was $1800.00 in Treasury to commence work for the coming year. This includes subscriptions to Conference Fund and amount on hand.

Table committee reported. August 21, 20, sale of tickets for meals $213.81. Paid out for help and eatables, $189 29. Balance in Treasury, $24.02.

The committee on Resolutions present the following:—

Whereas:—We have been bountifully blessed the last year, in various ways, by the God of love, and in a special manner the past week by being allowed to partake daily of the feast of fat things prepared from His Word. Be it,

Resolved:—That each heart be lifted to him, the giver of every good gift in a prayer of praise and thanksgiving.

Resolved:—That we express our sincere thanks to our Conference Board, Evangelists, visiting Ministers, and to all others who have in any way contributed their time or means to help make a success of the present Conference.

Resolved:—That it is with grateful hearts that we acknowledge the receipt of the very comfortable comfort donated us by the Ladies Aid of Marathon.

Whereas:—We have been separated by death from several of our beloved company, Be it

Resolved:—That we express our deepest sympathy to the bereaved relatives, and commend them to Him who has said "I am the resurrection and the life," and we admonish them to wait patiently for his appearing.

State Town,
C. A Nokes,
S. J. Lindsay,
Committee.

Just at the close of the day, too late to read before the Conference, we received a letter from Uncle John Foore announcing the death of our Brother J. B Craton. Although not personally known to me, yet I have always heard that Brother Craton was a very zealous worker, doing all in his power to spread the good news of the kingdom. Our hearts are filled with love and sympathy for the bereaved wife and children, and yet we sorrow not as others who have no hope, for we know that precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints, and he will watch over them, care for and protect them in their peaceful sleep until the trumpet shall sound and they come forth incorruptible. What a time of rejoicing it will be when the Sun of Righteousness shall arise, with healing in his wings, and there will be no more sorrow or death or crying in the land.

After being together for ten days, enjoying the companionship of those of like precious faith and partaking of the feast of spiritual things, it is with mingled feelings of joy and sadness that we each resume again the duties of life, and wend our way to our respective homes. Nearly every one attending the Conference throw aside for these ten days all the worry of the domestic circle, thought of business and the world, and abandon themselves to the delights of lifting their hearts in continual praise and thanksgiving to our Heavenly Father for his infinite love and mercy to the children of men; and we feel like Peter James and John when they were on the Mt. of Transfiguration: that it is good to be here. We would like to build tabernacles and dwell here forever away from the toil and care and persecution. But Jesus knew that for them as well as for us that the time was not come for us to dwell together, and that these little times of refreshing are only for a moment, to give us more faith and to make us stronger and braver to endure the cross, and make us worthy to be rulers in the Kingdom of God.

And just as there was waiting for Jesus at the foot of the mountain not only a poor boy to be healed of a terrible disease, but a struggling mass of helpless humanity waiting the touch of the Master's hand to lift them out of the darkness of ignorance and sin, so we must go forth from our time of refreshing not only better prepared to meet the petty friction of our every day life with one another, the jar of business and discord of the domestic circle, but determined to throw aside every weight and the sin that doth so easily beset us, and show by our lives that we are true disciples of the Lord Jesus; to be always able and willing to defend the faith once delivered to the saints, to give a helping and protecting hand to the needy and the fallen, and in our daily lives, reflecting as in a mirror the glory (or character) of the Lord, until we are transformed into the same image from glory to glory even as from the Lord, the spirit. Then we will have the assurance, whether we are asleep or awake, that when the call goes forth, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh," that we will be ready and waiting for an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

Submitted in Faith, Hope, and Love.

Conditions East and West.

Having been privileged, through the kindness of the Ohio conference board, to make a visit among the brethren assembled at Springfield, these few words will express my appreciation of their hospitality, which was generous indeed, and the observations of one at a greater distance may afford suggestions of some little profit for the general welfare of our common good.

The Ohio brethren show good strength in their ability "to admonish one another", "in songs and hymns and spiritual songs," and in words of encouragement and edification. It is encouraging to see each member take some active part, as they do, and not get into the modern wrong way of merely a preacher and a congregation. They also show good clean lives as a rule, which some western localities might profitably emulate. This seems to come in part from their application of church discipline to morals and doctrine.

Perhaps the worst danger in this is that of becoming too rigid, and demanding too much of babes, especially on doctrinal differences. But these brethren do show a desirable unity. If this is attained by a general conference of all sections, we will more likely be correct than if by each locality clinging to its own peculiar tenets and refusing fellowship to all others. Let us show all the charity we can until conditions grow better. They surely will as the moral standard of the general membership improves.

In Illinois the good work of Brother Lindsay in Bible school teaching is showing good results. We had a good school and conference.

The brethren in both states might profitably spend more for gospel work, it would appear to one who, however knows only a little of these conditions. Let us all resolve to live a life of simplicity, spending less for vicious habits, such as stimulants like coffee and tobacco, and other extravagances and follies and devote that much more to some labor of love.

If I can serve any one in a pastoral way, address me at Hillisburg, Ind.

In fraternal love.

Joseph Williams.

Obituary.

William Albert Moore was born in Abington, Knox County, Illinois. October 25, 1859, and died September 7, 1909, in the Omaha General Hospital, after an operation for kidney trouble, aged 49 years, 10 months and 12 days. In the year 1887 he was united in marriage to Miss May Jones of Abington who with his mother and three brothers and four sisters remain to mourn his loss. At an early age he united with the M. E. church, and in the year 1889 while the writer was holding a meeting in his neighborhood, he responded to the call of the gospel, and was truly faithful to the end.

In 1885 he came to Frontier Co., Nebraska, and settled about 11 miles north of Bartly, where he lived for 24 years without making an enemy, but instead was beloved by all. Brother Moore was of rare worth, and how we shall miss him. But his work is done, and well done, and we sorrow not without hope. His is one of those cases where we feel confident of the future.

The funeral was held from the Christian Church of Bartley, and was well filled with relatives and friends. It was noticable that all his neighbors had driven that 11 miles to pay their respects. Surely he rests in hope and will respond to the Master's call. We spoke to the people of the future hope from Rev xxi 1 4. May the Lord comfort the lonely wife, as she is left entirely alone.

The Wandering Evangelist.

Locality, Riverside, 5 miles from Montrose, Colorado—a nice rural school house situated in a valley 1000 feet high. As it is alfalfa hay harvest to attempt a series of meetings during week day nights was deemed impracticable. So meetings were held Sunday night Aug. 15 Evenings of Aug 21 and 22, also appointed for Sept 4 and 5.

On Sept 4th, I received a letter for one of the brethren in Pomona, Cal., expressing gladness that I had got at work again, and the purpose of sending me small remittances as he could, if I could keep him informed of my locality. Who thanks! I had to tell him that he must depend on The Restitution for his information, as I had to write more than I was able. This evening proved too rainy for a congregation. As it is but a short distance from Bro. Asher's home he and I went over, but as I had announced that there would be no meetings on rainy evenings, it would have been as well to have remained at home. On Sunday Sept 5 and evening it was too stormy for the people to gather for their Sunday school or any meeting. So we will try to keep in good cheer as long as we are doing all we can to gain health and converts and feel that others are interested in the same all important questions.

This Pomona brother belongs to the benevolent workers that established the sanitarium fund for me at Phoenix. He now shows commendable zeal to assist the sin-sick, and enlighten those that are not benefited by church and conference organizations. In his letter he told me that the "Adventists would not let Miles Grant speak in their Conference because he wished to talk on the thousand year reign. He expressed the desire that I may find opportunity to preach in their community in California. I certainly hope so. My address is Montrose, Col.

Announcement.

The Churches of God in Michigan will convene in Quarterly Conference at Coats Grove, Barry Co., Michigan, October 22, 1909, continuing over the following Sunday. It is hoped that all the brethren that can possibly do so will make an especial effort to be present. Good speakers will be in attendance; and the Coats Grove brethren will provide entertainment, and all who can come will be accorded a hearty welcome.

Those living at or near Kalamazoo, take the C. K. & S. R'y at Kalamazoo for Coats Grove. Those coming from the north or from other distances, take M. C. R'y to Hastings where teams will convey them to Coats Grove, unless they get to Hastings in the forenoon, when they could get a train on the C. K. & S. for Coats Grove.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending Tax Restitution to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

"The man who practices what he preaches before he preaches it, will have little difficulty in getting others to practice what he preaches."

No prayer is lost. Every sincere approach to God is fruitful of good. In that sense every prayer is answered. All who yield themselves to God so completely as to desire what he wills, are getting precisely that, as fast as time passes and as fully as they obey his laws and his leading.

The copy for this department of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 10708 Hampden Ave. Cleveland, Ohio Please read all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

Let all note the Editor's change of address from 10837 Orville Ave, to 10708 Hampden Ave.

The Editor and wife have just returned from a ten days visit in Canada. We visited the brethren in Fonthill, and Bro. and Sister Weldon, in Toronto. We spent one day at the wonderful Falls.

We have to thank many brethren and sisters in various States for letters of congratulation, and also for many valuable and highly prized gifts. We are both helped and encouraged by the expressions of friendship, and feel sustained by the many fervent prayers of our brethren.

Elsewhere in this issue is printed an article on Church discipline. It was passed by the Ohio State Conference; and we urge the brethren in the different States and in Canada to consider well the resolution. Ebenezer is open to discuss the matter so long as the writers for and against the resolution write in a becoming and Christian spirit. A matter of so much moment should be contemplated from all standpoints, and all should reserve the making up of their minds on the issue till they have heard and considered well the evidence.

A Resolution on Church Discipline.

We believe church discipline to be one of the needs of the hour. To this end we favor the church organization provided in the Scriptures, and recommend that all congregations have the leaders provided for in the Word and deal with grievances and offenses as provided in such Scriptures as Matt xviii; 1 Cor v; Titus iii 9-11 and 2 John, both moral and doctrinal, but that more latitude be given on doctrine than morals, for the reason that immorality is plainer to detect than error, that Acts xv be used as a model on doctrinal differences and they be discussed freely and kindly by all who differ, believing that thus we can come unto a unity of faith as they did, and that whoever is correct in doctrine will be able to convince others. Titus i 5-11; 2 Cor xiii 8. We favor free speech untrammeled by sectarian prohibition, and object to any member being refused fellowship over his faith until he has had a hearing as in Acts xv to convince him of his error, and then fellowship withdrawn only on first principles, and by the collective body after cautious deliberation, concluding that the error is so dangerous as to subvert some one's gospel faith. In this line of discipline we recommend it be applied first on moral grounds, and doctrine be left for later deliberation, for the reason that righteous people understand truth. Prov iii 32; Ps ii 26. We believe this last principle in conjunction with conference deliberation on doctrine will give unity of faith.

To the end of correcting sin, we recommend that organization within Scriptural authority be carried from local to State and National footing, and to this end that other conferences take up this matter and let us hear from them.

Provided, That the passage of this resolution empowers the presidents of State conferences passing it, and the evangelists and pastors acting under such conference boards, to act as delegates to such a conference next year, at time and place to be determined later, the expenses of such delegates to be paid out of the conference funds of their several States, such delegates being empowered to act in accordance with this resolution.

Covetousness.

The lesson for tonight is based on the 3rd verse of the 10th Psalm (read). "For the wicked boasteth of his heart's desire, and blesseth the covetous, whom the Lord abhorreth." In looking up the meaning of the word "covet" we find that to covet is to wish for with eagerness or inordinately, therefore covetousness is a strong or inordinate desire of gaining some supposed good, so if we at any time wish for something which we think we would like to have, we are classed among the covetous, and we learn in the verse I have just read that the Lord abhors the covetous, and to abhor is to regard with extreme dislike therefore we find how a covetous person stands in the sight of God. It is true we all of us more or less wish for things which others may have and which we think we would like to have, and probably we say these things without thinking but forgetting that when we do this that we are showing the spirit of a covetous person, and we ignore one of the commandments given in the 20th chapter of Exodus, "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife, nor his man-servant, nor his maid-servant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that is thy neighbor's." When we do these things we forget this commandment and not only this commandment but our Father in heaven who is ready and willing at at all times to grant unto us the desires or wishes of our heart if we but ask him, if it is his will to do so and if it is for our good that these things should be granted unto us, but let us not ask for too much. We read in Prov xxviii 20, "A faithful man shall abound with blessings: but he that maketh haste to be rich shall not be innocent. Christ on one occasion when preaching to his disciples said to them: "Take heed, and beware of covetousness; for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." Luke xii 15. Let us not forget, brothers and sisters, that it is not riches that is going to give us an entrance into God's kingdom. And we are assured of this part if we read Eph v 5, "For this ye know that no whoremonger, nor unclean person, nor covetous man, who is an idolator, hath any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and of God." Read Col iii 1-7, Let us therefore not seek after the things of this world and let not the desires of our heart be desires for things pertaining to this life, but let us seek after things pertaining to God. Not only are we commanded to refrain from being covetous or being desirous of worldly blessings, but we are warned not to associate with a covetous person, for if we do we will in time fall into temptations which are liable to lead us from the faith, therefore let us take heed. We no doubt have all read on one occasion when the people sold all their possessions of lands, etc., and brought the money and laid it at the apostles feet, but there was one man and his wife (Ananias and Saphira) who sold a possession and kept back part of the price for themselves and brought a certain part and laid it at the apostles feet, instead of giving it all to them. This is an example of covetousness, and what did Peter tell Ananias. He told him that he had not lied unto men but unto God, and what was the punishment which was meted out to them for their covetous art, immediate death. Some people you know in this world have no thought for others, but for self. God knows the hearts of each and every one. Self should not come first. These are not the kind of children God wants to be his children. God loves a cheerful giver but he abhors or dislikes a covetous heart. Are we classing ourselves among the covetous ones? I earnestly hope we are not, for we read in 1 Tim vi 6-8, "But godliness with contentment is great gain. For we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out. And having food and raiment let us be therewith content." What a happy disposition to have to be content with all we have. We may not have all we want, but let us learn to be content with what blessings God has seen fit to bestow upon us whether they be great or small, and if we do this life will be worth living. Paul in Heb xiii 5 reminds us of God's care over us for he says "Let your conversation be without covetousness; and be content with such things as ye have, for he hath said, I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." We all have our faults and I hope that if the act of coveting is a fault of us here tonight, that we will strive to overcome this one great fault and learn to be content with all things.

BESSIE NICHOLLS.

Covetousness. Psalms x 3

In looking over David's expressions in the 9th and 10th Psalms, we notice that he has expressed his strong faith in the time when the Lord shall rule righteously. "He shall judge the world in righteousness, he shall minister judgment to the people in uprightness." "The Lord also will be a refuge for the oppressed, a refuge in times of trouble." Psa ix 8 and 9.

He then looks around him at the wickedness and oppression of the righteous in the world, and with a strong appeal turns to God in behalf of the oppressed: "Why standest thou afar off, O Lord? Why hidest thou thyself in times of trouble?" "The wicked in his pride doth persecute the poor, let them be taken in the devices that they have imagined." "For the wicked boasteth of his hearts desire, and blesseth the covetous, whom the Lord abhorreth." Psalms x 1, 2, 3.

The word "whom" is supplied; and the margin reads: "Or...the wicked blesseth himself, he abhorreth the Lord." But, whichever is the correct statement the thought David conveys classes the covetous with the wicked; and God is not in all their thoughts (4th verse).

What is it to be covetous? Who are the covetous? What are the temptations to become covetous. The best way to avoid covetousness. There are a few points we might profit from in the study of this subject but the one strong point which impressed me in looking at this Psalm was, its consequences or the end to which it leads.

In 1 Tim vi 10 we read, "For the love of money is the root of all evil: which while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows."

Money is here spoken of as it universally represents all possessions, and will also secure others' service, power, etc. But we notice that money, or its value is not the root of all evil, but "the love of money." This is where covetousness is shown. The spring of the evil is from the desire to get gain, whether in possessions, honor of men, praise or power. Mark vii 21 reads: "For within, out of the heart of men, proceed evil thoughts," the list of evil including covetousness.

A good example of this is shown in Ezek xxxiii 31, "And they come unto thee as the people cometh as they sit before me as my people, and they hear thy words, but they will not do them; for with their mouth they show much love, but their heart goeth after much covetousness."

They loved to hear the word of the Lord but did not do them—because they were covetous of some earthly things; so we see it is not a question of whether we [illegible] us, or not; whether [illegible] get gain, but we can [illegible] if we allow our heart's affection to be turned from "seeking first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness."

1 Tim vi 10 (already quoted) says those who covet after gain "pierce themselves through with many sorrows;" and the 9th verse, "They who will be rich fall into a snare." "Where our treasure is, there will our heart be also." So let us take an example from the parable of the rich man who said he had much goods laid up for many years, and would eat, drink, and be merry. "But God said unto him; Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee; then whose shall those things be which thou hast provided!" "So is he that layeth up treasures for himself, and is not rich toward God."

The worthy ones of whom we are told in the 11th chapter of Hebrews who all died in faith, and had laid up for them a crown of life, confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims in the earth, but they looked for a city which was to come, whose builder and maker was God; and so we may avoid the consequences of covetousness, if we "set our affection on things above, and not on things of the earth."

JENNIE SALISBURY.

Was Paul out of His Body? 2 Cor. 12.

Does this scripture teach the conscious existence of an immortal soul that for a time left its cage, the body and migrated to the uppermost of three heavens piled one above another, then returned and again reincarnated itself in the body? And afterwards did this soul not know whether it had been there incased in its body or apart from it? And if so do such souls now in heaven not know whether they are "in" the flesh or "out?" Let God enlighten us by other scripture, as he says in 2 Pet i 20 and 1 Cor ii 13.

1. Of whom was Paul speaking? Of himself, verse 7. The Corinthian church by fault finding rebellion and lack of appreciation of him had forced him as he thought in chapter xi and elsewhere to speak of his own worth, verse 11. But he realizes in verse 1 that this is not good, so he ceases praise of his sufferings and comes to speak of his worth in his understanding of visions and revelations, which he says were abundant, verse 11, at the time of which he speaks.

2. When was this? When he was converted, Gal i 11-18. See also Acts xxii 14-21 and xxvi 16-23. There you will see that the "revelations" he is talking about were that he was to preach salvation of the Gentiles to them as he says again in Eph iii 3-6. So going to Acts ix, which tells of his conversion, we find that at that time this matter was first revealed to him and Ananias, verses 15-17. In 2 Cor xii 1 he speaks of "visions and revelations" in connection. So see Acts ix 11-12 and you will find he had a vision, Acts xxvi 19, at the same time he had some of the above revelations. He also, later, had other visions, Acts xvi 9-10; xviii 9-10, and revelations, Acts xxiii 11; xxvii 23-24, as it says in Acts xxvi 16.

3. The third heaven. This consists of the new heavens and earth, Rev xxi, which in 2 Pet iii, we learn is the third. It consists of "the holy city, new Jerusalem," made "a rejoicing and her people a joy." Isa lxv 17-18. Rev xxi says it comes from heaven and will be here on earth. "But some man will say." "This earth will be burned up." Will it? If so, the literal heaven must go too, 2 Pet iii 10. Where then will the redeemed be? No, "the works that are therein" are what will be "burned up," 2 Pet iii 5-6 says the world perished at the flood. What world? "The world of the ungodly," 2 Pet ii 5. Not the literal world, for Noah saw the tops of the mountains above the flood. The present "ungodly world" is reserved for cleansing by fiery judgments, 2 Pet iii 7, in the judgment day, a thousand years long, 2 Pet iii 8; Rev xx. We shall still be "on the earth," Rev v 9 10. The meek shall inherit the earth and God's will be done here as now in heaven. The kingdoms of earth then be Christ's, Rev ii 26 27; xi 15. See Ps xlvi 2 3 with verse 6.

4. "In the body or out." What body? Paul's flesh? No, he talked out from that while all this happened, Acts ix 4-6, and walked, verse 8, and was spoken to, verse 17. A very lively "house," to be untenanted by an immortal soul, if it makes us alive, wasn't he? Is t[illegible]ipture speaking of a p[illegible] body [illegible] any please sel[illegible] man speak, let h[illegible] of-acles of God," 1 P[illegible] there in scripture any other "body" that Paul could have been "in" or "out", and be puzzled to know which? Yes. "The body of Christ," Rom xii; 1 Cor xii, "the church." Was Paul "in" the church or "out" at the same time? I cannot tell. He could not. We get in by baptism, Gal iii 26-29. He was not baptized until afterwards, Acts ix 18. Hence he might think he was not "in the body" of Christ. Again, he was by God's authority called "brother" before this, Acts ix 17, and given communication from God as evidence of communion with him. So thus he might think he was "in the body," the church. But when he wrote 2 Cor xii 2 he was "in Christ" beyond a doubt. Conversion is a transition and we cannot specify the exact time of change from "out" to "in".

5. The "thorn in the flesh." What bodily affliction was sent to Paul at the time of conversion? Blindness. See also Gal iv 13 15. Weak eyes seemed to remain with him. Servants wrote his epistles as he dictated. See the subscriptions. His own handwriting was so rare as to be commented on, 2 Th iii 18; Col iv 18; 1 Cor xvi 21. He calls his affliction one of the devil's angels, 2 Cor xii 7. That is, God's visitation by adversity, to keep him humble. To teach him, as all adversity should teach us, to rely wholly on God, 2 Cor i 8 10. So much so, that he spoke not of himself when he did speak of himself, vs 5. For the Paul-man was crucified, Gal ii 20, by his adversity, 2 Cor xii 9-10, and Christ alone lived in him in resurrection life beyond the cross. Have you yet been crucified in your suffering? If so, you have found God's power over "sin in the flesh." May he lead you [illegible]us to the Holy City. Bear your cross and follow Jesus to Calvary. But let God [illegible] you through suffering. Get beyond Calvary and the cross into overcoming life.

Gold Dust.

Compassion will cure more sins than condemnation.

A good word is an easy obligation; but not to speak ill requires our silence, which costs us something.

He who would do a great work must expect toil, envy, isolation and opposition; but these give zest to the true hearted.

What matters where your feet stand, or wherewith your hands are busy, so that it is the spot where God has put you, and the work he has given you to do?

The study of God's word will secure peace. Take those Christians who are rooted and grounded in the Word of God and you will find that they have great peace. It is those that do not study their Bible, who are easily offended when some little trouble comes, or some little persecution. Just a little breath of opposition, and their peace is all gone.—D. L. Moody.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, SEP. 26.

TEMPERANCE. 1 COR x 23-33.

Golden Text. Let every one of us please his neighbor for his good to edification. Rom xv 2.

This lesson does not treat of temperance with regard to strong drink, but temperance or self restraint, or self denial, or obedience with regard to eating meat—flesh—under certain conditions. The temperance that is required in this case would not be required under other conditions. For instance whatever a faithful believer chose to buy in the open—or public—market, thank God for it, eat it and ask no questions. Verse 25. The instruction is, not to ask the seller any questions. Not to ask, Is this meat a sacrifice to idols? "Ask no questions."

The underlying truth in the lesson is, Nearly all religious services, both true and false worship, by Jew and Gentile was observed by sacrifice, a sincere Jew sacrificed to the God of Israel, the true God, a sincere Gentile sacrificed to his God, or idols. This manner of worship—by sacrificing animals—had passed away. All proper sacrificial offerings, both before and under the law, pointed forward to the sacrifice of Christ. After he had offered one sacrifice for sins for ever, Heb x 12; no other blood sacrifice was acceptable to God[illegible] the resurrection of Jesus, [illegible] that [illegible]od [illegible] God and the [illegible]esus Christ, and were immersed [illegible]uame of the Lord Jesus, were said to be redeemed by the precious blood of Christ. 1 Peter i 9-10. To such the command of the Lord Jesus, by Paul, is, If an unbeliever bid you to a feast, and you wish to go, eat whatever is set before you, eat and ask no question concerning the meat, and there will be no remorse of conscience, no troubling thoughts, or bitter regrets. But if any man at the feast say to you, this meat is offered to idols, was sacrificed to some god or gods. The instruction is, not to eat, "eat not for his sake that shewed it." By refraining, or refusing to eat there might be more or less offense taken. That is not to be considered. By self-denial or temperance, the believer takes the position that the Lord, through Paul, points out. Obedience is always pleasing to God. By not eating he shows whose he is, and the action may have a saving effect on the man who tells, and perhaps others at the feast. But even if there should be no resulting benefit to any one, the believer has shown his faith and obedience and pleased God.

Another reason why the believer should buy meat, ask no questions, eat, and give God thanks, because whatever he eats, it is the gift of God. "For the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof." Psa xxiv 1.

Another temperance point in this lesson is, Do not do a thing because you have the liberty to do it. Before doing, give the effect on others due consideration. This is true temperance.

There are several other things that could be profitably studied. Some must be passed by. Notice the first word "all" a word used by some men to prop up some of the greatest errors that have been forced on the attention of the Church of God. No one will for a moment contend that Paul included lying and stealing in his all things. Yet to be consistent those who stubbornly hold, in other cases, that all means all; should contend for the same all here. Paul simply meant that it was lawful for him to do all lawful things; but there were some things he would not do because there would be in his actions the "appearances of evil." 1 Thes v 22. That would be detrimental to the glory of God, and the salvation of men, and that was what he was now living for. And every true believer is asked to do the same, "Whatsoever ye [illegible] to the glory of God."

Let no man seek his own, but every man another's good, not wealth. Put it this way, Let no man—believer—seek only his own good, give none of offence. If men's minds were not poisoned by false doctrine, they would not take offense. On the contrary the gospel would delight them. On the other hand it is the duty of every believer to avoid giving offence.

Did Paul please all men? He pleased all that received the love of the truth. 2 Thes ii 10.

Golden Text. Let every one of us—Who make up the us? The Church of God in Corinth, 1 Cor i 1, 2, and all who have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered. Rom vi 17.

All such are glad, and ready to please their neighbor, if the neighbor is pleased to be edified—instructed in the gospel of Christ. Rom i 16.

Why was meat offered to idols forbidden? Because idols were an abomination to the Lord. 2 Chron xv 8. In connection with this lesson read 1 Cor viii. It is full of information on the subject of sacrifice to idols, and the temperance duty of the stronger brethren.

Next Lesson. Paul a prisoner—the arrest. Acts xxi 27-39.

How God Loves.

"We love him, because he first loved us."—1 John iv 19.

A minister of the Gospel once illustrated the love of God to one who feared God could not love him on account of the coldness of his affections. "When I leave you I shall go to my own residence, if the Lord will; and when there the first thing I expect to do is to call for a baby that is in the house. I expect to place her on my knee, and look down into her sweet eyes, and listen to her charming prattle, and, tired as I am, her presence will rest me, for I love that child with unutterable tenderness. But the fact is, to say the most for her, she loves me very little. If my heart were breaking under the burden of a crushing sorrow, it would not disturb her sleep. If my body were racked with excruciating pain, it would not interrupt her play with her toys. If I were dead she would be enticed by watching my pale face and closed eyes. If my friends came to remove my corpse to the place of burial, she would probably clasp her hands in glee, and in two or three days totally forget her papa. Besides this she has never brought me in a penny, but has been a constant expense on my hands ever since she was born. Yet, although I am not rich in the world's possessions, there is not money enough in the world to buy my baby. How is it? Does she love me, or do I love her? Do I withold my love until I know she loves me? Am I waiting for her to do something worthy of my love before extending it to her?

We would say to our little folks this is the way God loves his children. Our heavenly Father looks down upon us, in all our weakness, and loves us with a greater love than our father or mother ever showed toward us in this world. Let us learn to love him, trust his Word, and obey his commands, and he will give us a life that will never end.—S. A. Chaplin.

Past and Future.

Whilst the historian is borne back to ages so remote that gray tradition cannot recollect them, and athwart oblivious centuries, in nooks of brightness and in oases of light, sees the patriarch groups clear, vivid, and familiar as the household scenes of yesterday, there is also a picture sketched for the explorers of the future. For whilst the apocalyptic curtain slowly rises—whilst through its fringe of fire, the new Jerusalem comes down from heaven, and gazing on the pearly gates, and peaceful streets, and bowers of sanctity, our planet can scarce believe that she is gazing on herself, that this is old mother earth grown young again—that this vision of holiness and bliss is nothing more than Paradise restored—that new but yet ancient earth in which dwelleth righteousness.—Hamilton.

Purity removes all defilement. If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.

It ought to be evident to each one of our friends that know the trials of the hour, that a dollar comes in very handy at such a time. Please do not quench the promptings of your heart, but send us what you can right along. We thank you sincerely.

A Letter.

...ed a kind letter from Wash-...on, D. C., Aug. 29th, I answer ...THE RESTITUTION by courtesy ...the editor.

My Dear Brother:

You on Aug 22 quoted from my "Bit of Autobiography" in THE RESTITUTION (Aug 18) in which I said concerning my theoretical somersault in 1875 that "I obeyed a theory and after diligent study of the Bible I renounced the theory and the mistake of thinking that theorizing on truth is the truth." My brother, I have never met you in person but have known you favorably for a number of years, and especially because of your appreciation of the "greatest of these." 1 Cor xiii 13.

I have not space nor health to devote to the method of luring me into "the Christadelphian trap" It would be better to learn how to keep out of it, or of all other traps that take theories for the basic principle of hope. I found firm ground when I saw the full force of the statement that "the gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believe it," Rom. i. 16, and had coupled it with the fact that Jesus preached "the gospel of the kingdom," Matt. iv. 23. That Paul "dwelt two whole years in his own hired house.....preaching the kingdom of God and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ"—"The Lord the Savior the anointed," titles including the hope and plan of salvation. I still read, "But when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ they were baptized both men and women" Acts viii. 12. After reaching so far are we at the point where we can be inducted into the saving and forgiving name through faith and repentance? Yes, certainly yes, or mankind is left to hopelessly and darkly grope his way!! My few months with the Christadelphians were months of clouds, for justification pre-supposes and excludes us of eternal life, Rom. vi. 23, if we are [illegible] to the "justification;" and justification could not be possible without an act of judgment in the glorious act of recording the name of God "in the Book of Life." Besides I can not tear out of Revelation the statement "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection; for on such the second death hath no power; but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years." Although it has not the same gospel glory, I shall read with equal assurance concerning "the ages to come;" "but the rest of the dead live not again until the thousand years were finished," v. 5.

Among the churches of God there has been a diversity of sentiment concerning the extent of the resurrection. But is not the important question instead, rested not in the numbers to be included, but in the hope born of faith in the promise "they that have done good unto the resurrection of life." John v. 29. Any church or body of people can grind themselves to powder by theorizing concerning a truth after they have learned the essential truth, and sad to think, they suppose they are growing in the knowledge of the truth, when their growth though marked and rapid, is enlarging them by taking them further apart.

It has not been many years since I read an apology from one of our brethren and an excuse for leaving the Church of God and uniting with the Christadelphians, that we must be bound together by "Articles of faith." I have wondered ever since if he had succeeded in bringing them or in being brought into perfect harmony with all the theories which that people advance. If so he has been more successful in keeping pace than I ever hoped for.

The time is near upon us when "yet once more I shake not the earth alone but also heaven" is to be fulfilled. "This word yet once more signifieth the removing of those things that are shaken, as of things that are made, that things which cannot be shaken may remain."

The result is we shall "receive a kingdom which cannot be removed." Let us have grace whereby we may serve God acceptably with reverence and a godly fear. Heb. xii. 26-28.

Announcement.

The Southern Illinois Conference will be held at the Restitution Church eight miles south of Casey, from Sep. 25 to Oct. 3 inclusive. Names of the preachers and programme will appear later.

B. J. WOODS, Sec.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God for Indiana will be held at Rensselaer, Indiana, commencing Sept. 30, and extending over Sunday Oct. 3.

Program and particulars later. Let all who possibly can make an effort to attend. We expect a good meeting.

J. H. WILLEY, Pres. Ind. Con.

Indiana Please Notice.

The yearly conference for Indiana is to be at Rensselaer early in October. All who come please notify Sister Flora Harris beforehand, so that all may be in readiness.

Now brethren, Indiana has possibilities for a great work the coming year, and much of our success will depend on this conference. Come. We have a large membership and generous means. We have several strong congregations for edification and many scattered members who will be able to aid in evangelizing new localities, by affording a good opening. We have many earnest young people at work in Bible Study. We have several good Sunday Schools and Berean Societies. We have several young men ready to go to preaching. All we need is to take new heart and unite our forces. Let us get our numbers in touch with each other, combine our finances and efforts and all put our talents together for united work. Let each congregation see to it that several leading members from your church are at conference. If agreeable, pay their way. Let as many isolated members as possible come and be renewed for another year. We expect one or two new speakers, and many of the old faithful ones who have served so well. Many new and important things are likely to come up. Come in a Christian spirit of love. Bring your enthusiasm along.

In [illegible] better work in Berean [illegible] pastoral [illegible] It [illegible] the [illegible] be furnished with the [illegible] names and addresses of all members in the state. Let each secretary of a congregation please send a list of your members to her and all isolated members do the same by a postal card to Lydia Railsback, 621 S. Fellows St., South Bend, Indiana.

J. H. WILLEY.
Pres. Conference.
JOSEPH WILLIAMS.

The Southern Illinois Conference will be held at the Restitution Church, eight miles south of Casey, Illinois, beginning September 25, and end October 3. All are invited to attend. Preparation will be made to care for all who attend with no cost except transportation. All parties come to Casey and we will meet you with conveyances. Please write and let us know if possible, what day you are coming. Trains from the east arrive at 10:00 A. M. from the west at 12:04 noon.

There will be preaching each evening on week days, and on forenoon on Sunday. Bible school each afternoon, the topic announced each day.

Preaching brethren are Robert G. Huggins and L. E. Conner. Come, everybody is welcome. Come the first day and stay.

Direct all communications to Lewis Weaver, R. R. No. 3.

Indiana Conference.

SEPT. 30 TO OCT. 3.

The Rensselaer Church, where it is to be held, is desirous to have a full attendance, therefore sends greeting: Come all who can. Ample provision will be in readiness to care for all who may come, in the way of sustaining the "outer man" with food and rest; with due care however that the fare be not gorgeous, destroying or impairing the relish for the food from the spiritual store house, to "renew the inner man" (Christ in you the hope of glory) to be ministered by those assembled. Come with vessels well filled to give liberally, as giving will not diminish, but increase the amount in store, whereby all may share in the sweet comfort and rest in Christ, having a foretaste of that "feast of fat things" when the Lord of hosts shall reign in Mount Zion, destroying the face of the covering cast over all people, and the vail that is spread over all nations. Begin at once to make arrangements to be at the Conference from start to finish.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Hindu Literature.

This book of over 400 pages is of special value to the young people in order to enable them to meet the attacks upon Christianity from Theosophists and others. It has been fully endorsed by the most eminent Oriental scholars of Europe as being authentic, and the historic facts here presented are unimpeachable. A few copies of this standard $1 50 book may now be had for $1.00 a copy post paid. It is used in colleges and universities. Send all orders to Mrs. Elizabeth A Reed, 1311 Balmoral av, Chicago, Illinois.

THE RESTITUTION is only $1.50 per year. Try it a year.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John I. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do li[illegible] is set at 10 cents single [illegible] $1.00. Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cts per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 15 cts.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10643 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 625 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Scripture Searchers Assistant.

A very valuable help to all who are studying the Scriptures—a reprint of one of our beloved Brother Joblin's works. Treats of thirty different subjects, with about four hundred references. All should possess a copy for ready reference. Price by mail six cents, order from Mrs M Joblin, 10643 Ashbury ave, N E Cleveland Ohio

The Elements of the Kingdom of God, is the title of an eighteen page tract by Brother T J Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He sets forth that a kingdom cannot exist without a King, his cabinet officers, territory, a capital city, subjects, laws. Brother Daniel will send this little tract to you at 10 cents each, or $1.00 a dozen. Send direct to him for them.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points. He did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Sometime, Somehow, Somewhere.

Sometime the gospel that frights thee will cease;
Sometime the Master himself will speak peace;
Sometime the sun through the clouds will appear;
Sometime the morning of life will be clear.

Somehow the burden you bear will be borne;
Somehow he healed the heart that is torn.
Somehow the grace that is needed will full;
Somehow thy heart will be strengthened for all.

Somewhere the treasures long lost will be found;
Somewhere the harp that is silent will sound.
Somewhere is ended earth's wearisome quest;
Somewhere is rapture, and somewhere is rest.

Stay thou my soul on the promise secure,
Stay thou my soul thou, and bravely endure.
All thy distresses and doubts will be past.
Sometime, somehow, and somewhere at last.

The Bible and Its Message. No. 18.

I wish we might all study with care and with much interest the sublime thought found in the prophet Isa lx 1 to 3. Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee. For behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people; but the Lord shall arise upon thee and his glory shall be seen upon thee. And the Gentile shall come to thy light and kings to the brightness of thy rising. To those who have a knowledge of Jehovah's purpose regarding the race the above is indeed sublime. Darkness has covered the earth and gross darkness the people. The darkness is plainly visible to God's waiting people. It is said, "That the darkest hour is just preceding the morning. In noting the signs of the times we can not see that this night of darkness is nigh spent. Israel is addressed in this language. Her light is to shine. The Lord shall arise upon her. Nearly 2000 years has passed since this gross darkness began. As surely as it has existed and is still existing so will this darkness be dispelled.

Those who have been seeking for the north pole speak of the long continued darkness of more than 100 days. No light of the sun during this period, yet they prepare for the day, for it is surely coming. These hardy explorers know that the midnight sun will be seen and they arranged for its coming. Now we have the same assurance that our sun will again arise and dispell this gross darkness. The voice came to Moses, "As truly as I, Jehovah, live all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord. Again the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea. What beautiful language we find in Mal iv 2. But unto you that fear my name shall the Sun (son) of righteousness arise with healings in his wings; and ye shall go forth and grow up as calves of the stall. In this mountain shall the Lord of hosts make unto all people a feast of fat things, a feast of wine on the lees, of fat things full of marrow, of wine on the lees well refined. And he will destroy in this mountain the face of the covering cast over all people, and the vail that is spread over all nations. Isa xxv 6, 7.

The above quotations from the different inspired writers point to a time and event yet future. What a great blessing is in store for those who love the Lord our God. Let our prayer be, "I will trust and not be afraid: for the Lord Jehovah is my strength and my song; he also is become my salvation. What a great and exalted privilege it is to become the sons and daughters of Jehovah. We are not one who would cast a doubt, but we are dust and ashes and our God has promised to make of us kings and priests in the kingdom that he has promised to those who are overcomers.

The above promises are prospective and future, and we must earn them as we do not merit even this life. Eternal life is a gracious gift and comes to us through the merits of Jesus the Christ. He was put on trial and gained the victory and therefore obtained eternal redemption. He brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. We can only claim it as a gift when we have become obedient children.

There was a long period of years that sacrifices were offered, looking forward to the great sacrifice. All animal sacrifices were but types and could not forgive sins. The apostle says, "It is not possible that the blood of bulls and goats should take away sins." Under the law there was a constant offering daily that their sins might be passed over. Those previous to the addition of the law built altars and offered their sacrifices looking to and hoping for the promise made through the seed of the woman. Gen iii 15. The slaying of the animals for a covering (Gen iii 21) could not have been for the forgiveness of their sins else the blood of bulls and goats would have forgiven sins. Adam had the promise of life through the tree of life and not through the seed of the woman. The continuation of their lives depended upon a life of faith, love, holiness and sobriety. If all could see clearly that Jehovah requires all to live up to the requirements of the law under which they are placed there would be less careless living. Faith in the gospel has been the means of salvation since the time that the Lord God said, The seed of the woman shall bruise the serpent's head. The ancients gained the victory through faith. For proof of this please read. Heb xi By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain by which (faith sacrifice) he obtained witness that he was righteous, God testifying of his gifts. Each of these sons of Adam had the same right to offer an acceptable sacrifice to obtain the excellency. But one gained the gift. Cain became angry and slew his brother and judgment was passed upon him. "A fugitive and a vagabond shalt thou be in the earth. This judgment was final for Cain said, "Mine iniquity is greater than it may be forgiven (marg.) Jehovah's judgments are just finding out. If the words spoken by angels was steadfast and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense of reward how shall we escape if we neglect so great a salvation. Those were days when the promise was a mere ray of light. God's purpose has been gradually developed. To those in the early history of the race it was the gospel with the one phase that the serpent's seed should be destroyed. The destroyer was yet to be produced. The one whom Jehovah selected was to pass through a severe trial. He (Christ) was made perfect through sufferings. He gained the crown by the way of the cross. He was brought from the dead, through the blood of the everlasting covenant. This everlasting covenant was made with Abraham and David. Jehovah made an unconditional promise to Abraham that his seed should possess the gates of his enemies. As a conqueror he should possess the kingdom. Further that his seed should bless all nations of the earth. First he should possess. Secondly he should bless. The beautiful texts chosen at the beginning of this article point to the time when this seed shall bless by a righteous rule. It required a prophet's eye to see the future phase of the kingdom. This was the gospel before preached to Abraham. It contained the gospel but not in detail. This gospel is further developed to David when he was promised that his throne and his kingdom should remain forever. There were two phases in this promise. One was the promise of a landed estate given to Abraham's fleshly seed. This is to be an everlasting possession. This promise embraces the time when Judah and Israel must dwell safely. Jehovah will again plant them in their land and they shall not be removed. They are to receive the land from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates. This is a greater promise than was given under the law. They are given the land but not the kingdom. The royal family inherit the kingdom. Jehovah covenanted to David's righteous seed the sure mercies of David. This embraces the just and holy things of David. Acts xiii. Abijah said to Jeroboam, "Ought ye not to know that the Lord God of Israel gave the kingdom over Israel to David forever. And now ye think to withstand the kingdom of the Lord in the hand of the sons of David." The members of the royal family of which Jesus is the head are inheritors of these blessings. Israel was promised this royal blessing under the law but she failed. Exod xix Those who were faithful will be made kings and priests in that kingdom. Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God. It was a great favor to bestow upon the Son of the Highest, and to give to him the name of Yahweh (Jesus). The keeping of this name to the end will assure to us a place among the royal ones of the house of David. What a blessed privilege we enjoy to know Jehovah's purpose in the future. We may not know its every detail but we know that when Jesus comes that the kingdom (royalty) will be given to the faithful of all ages. Jesus is to be retained until the times of RESTITUTION of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his prophets since the world began. Dear brothers and sisters, let us anticipate that day and give our lives for it. This world should have no attractions for us in view of the rich promises given to the faithful ones.

Your brother anxiously waiting.

D. C. ROBISON.

Revelation ii. 26-27. "And he that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers: even as I received of my Father."

The Millennial Age will be followed by a period of time called "a little season."

After confinement of a thousand years [illegible] shall be set at liberty, and will [illegible] four quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together to battle, the number being as the sand of the sea.

This vast number that went up on the breadth of the earth, is "the rest of the dead that lived not again till the thousand years was finished," for we read that the sea, death, and hell, gave up the dead that were in them, and they stood before, or in the presence of, the Judge on the great white throne.

The picture presented by the prophet, leads one to see that the last resurrection and the last judgment, are going on at the same time that Satan is rallying the hosts to surround and take the "Holy City," this all going on in the "little season."

The struggle between Christ and Antichrist ends in two great contests, the battle of Armageddon, and the last effort of Satan to surround the Holy City and capture it. Both these contests take place in the little season. The gathering to the great battle of God Almighty, is to be accomplished through three unclean spirits like frogs, that came out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet, Rev. xvi. 13.

These unclean spirits are false doctrines which issue out of these three divisions of Antichrist. They are the spirits of devils working miracles, which go forth to the kings of the whole earth, and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of the great day of God Almighty. Rev. xvi. 14.

And I saw the beast and the kings of the earth and their armies, gathered together to make war against him that sat upon the horse, and against his army.

And the beast was taken, and with him the false prophet that wrought miracles before him with which he deceived them that had the mark of the beast and them that worshipped his name.

These both were cast alive into the lake of fire burning with brimstone. So we see that two divisions of Antichrist will be put down at the battle of Armageddon.

This will take place in the little season. To prove this we will take the testimony of Daniel vii. 10. In his vision he saw the Judge on his throne and says "the judgment was set and the books opened." This refers to the Judge on the great white throne. He says "I beheld then (while the judgment was set and the books were opened) because of the great words which the horn spake." I beheld even till the beast was slain and his body destroyed and given to the burning flame.

This was done while the judgment was set and the books opened, and we know that this took place in the little season, and at the very time that Satan is rallying the nations to surround and capture the Holy City. At this time fire will come down from God out of heaven, and destroy these nations. Satan in some way is not caught in this rain of fire, but was cast into the lake of fire, where the beast and false prophet are, and shall be tormented day and night forever and ever, Rev. xx. 10

Satan, the third and last division of Antichrist, goes into the lake of fire at, or near the close of, the little season.

We see by the view the prophet unfolds to us, that the beast, the false prophet, and Satan will be permitted to live through the thousand years, and that they will be destroyed in the little season, with "all whose names are not written in the book of life," and with hell and death, the last enemy, for he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet, and the last enemy that shall be destroyed is death.

This closes the drama, and the curtain falls. All the enemies of Christ are put down, cast into the lake of fire, the second death, extinction—the end, or death of death. The heavens and the earth fled from the face of him who sat upon the throne, and the prophet lifts the curtain to show us the first view of the world redeemed. And I saw a new heaven and a new earth, for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away, and there was no more sea. And I, John, saw the Holy City, the New Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself, shall be with them and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying; neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passed away. And he said unto me, It is done.

Nebraska Conference Report.

The twenty-fourth annual Conference of the Churches of God in Nebraska, was held in St. Paul, from August 28 to September 5, inclusive.

The ministers present were Brothers Almus Adams of Omaha, and U. E. Marsh of Oregon, Ill.

At the close of the meetings three were added to the Church: Brother Pearle Brown, Sisters Emma Welsh and Jessie Lelloy, all young people of St. Paul.

The officers chosen for the coming year are, Brother M. D. Newell, President; Brother Crouch, Vice President; Sister Alta King, Secretary; Sister Emma Davis, Treasurer. Brother Adams was again chosen Evangelist.

Although the attendance was not as large as that of last year, owing in part to failure of crops in the western part of the state, we feel sure this conference has accomplished more and better results than any other that has been held in Nebraska. Each and every member seemed to be awakening to our lack of unity in works and faith, and to see the necessity of organization and system, in order to carry on the Lord's work successfully.

One of the most important steps taken toward organized and systematic work, was the drawing up of 14 articles, in which the duties of each officer were clearly defined, and the Evangelist given authority to organize the brethren of the different communities into some kind of working order, and request that regular meetings be held in each community, for earnest study of God's Word. These articles will be published later.

There was also a committee appointed to draw up and draft the Articles of our faith as they are found and proven in the Bible. These are to be given to the Evangelist and read by him before the different churches as he visits them, and when they are approved of by a majority they are to be recognized as our belief.

It was decided to form a stock company for the purpose of buying a Conference ground. Any one who wishes can take out shares of $5 00 or more, this money with whatever dividends there might be, to be given back when the land was used for any other purpose than that of Conference. A committee was appointed to look up a good location, and report to our next Conference.

Pledges for $812.00 were made by members attending to carry on work during the year. More is expected, as the secretaries of the different church societies will finish taking the pledges at home. This is good proof of the deep interest taken in the work, and we pray that this interest, coupled with our desire to work in unity and order, will bring about better results to the work of the new year.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, OCTOBER 13, 1909. NUMBER 38.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

At Breaking of Bread.

For ye have heard of my conversion in the Jews religion, how that beyond measure I persecuted the Church of God. Then he goes on to tell how he was educated, and what advantages he had, above many of his equals in his own nation. But it pleased God to reveal to Paul, that although he was very zealous in his Jewish religion, he was doing the wrong thing, and must repent and preach Christ—just the opposite from what he had been doing.

Some might think it was because Paul was so cruelly persecuting the Church was why his service was not acceptable. But this was not the only reason. God has a way in which he wants to be worshipped, and it must be in his way and no other, as we will see by the example given by Cornelius, Acts x. 2. A devout man, and one that feared God with all his house, which gave much alms to the people, and prayed to God always. Now here is a character that from the human standpoint we would say was just about as good as he could be; but he had no more hope of eternal life than had Paul, the man who was breathing out threatenings and even slaughter against the people of God. But God who knows the heart, knew that they were both honest men, and so he appeared to Paul by vision and showed him what he must do. Peter was sent to Cornelius to tell him of words whereby he might be saved.

It is our duty to tell the gospel to those who will listen, and if they have an honest heart they will accept it and glorify God.

Are We Mistaken?

A friend of mine remarked "When we are going up to heaven, we will just leave you here, so you can see your mistake."

My answer was, We cannot be mistaken. God told the truth to Abraham, and he has already told us that the earth will stand, Eccl. i. 4; Psalms civ. 5. The righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell therein forever. Psalms xxxix. 27; Numbers xiv. 21; Matthew v. 5; Daniel vii. 27; Isa. vi. 9; Hab. ii. 14. Praise the Lord.

Yours in the One Faith.

Editor Restitution:

Enclosed find post office money order for $1 50 for which please renew my subscription, as I do not want to miss a paper, as it is the only preacher I have. I am isolated and have not heard a sermon since I came to Washington two years ago.

I like the western people; all are very kind and sociable, but the principal thing is the great abundance of fruit of all kinds, and the mild climate. There is more fruit goes to waste here than is raised in Iowa where I lived before I came west.

Isaiah ii. 1-4. "The word that Isaiah the son of Amoz saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem. And it shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. And many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths; for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem. And he shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

EXAMINE Your account, and give us a renewal of subscription if you can do so.

Circumstances of late have added somewhat to our expenses, and we do really need what is due us right now. This ought to be enough to say, and we will not add more to it, but trust that by thus calling your attention to the matter, all who know that their time has expired, will send in renewals at once, and so relieve our necessities.

We thank you for the favor.

Our space is all given to correspondents this week, as articles and reports seem to be important.

Indiana Conference Report.

As per announcement the annual Conference met at Rensselaer, Sept. 30 to Oct. 3. Conference was opened Thursday evening by singing, and President J. H. Willey reading Matt. vi. after which Brother D. T. Halsted led in prayer. The President then gave an address, which was fittingly responded to by Brother Halstead, he being the oldest minister in the state and a resident of Rensselaer.

Friday morning at 10:00 a business session convened which was opened in the usual manner. Roll call of the churches showed the following represented, viz: Bracken, North Salem, Plymouth, Pleasant View, Rensselaer, Roll, South Bend and Hillisburg.

The usual reports were heard, and received. The Secretary's and Treasurer's reports showed received for the year $358 26, expenditures $240.97, leaving a balance of $115 29.

The Bible School report showed that part of the work to be in a flourishing condition.

The reports of the churches and ministers showed work being done.

At the Saturday business session the following was adopted unanimously, the vote being taken by delegates at roll call of churches.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE

To the yearly Conference of the Churches of God in session at Rensselaer, Indiana, Sept. 30, to Oct. 3, '09, Greeting:

Whereas: We, all seeing the great need of a more urgent work being done in the State, and of closer organization, this committee believes that the Master's work may best be done by adopting the following plan:

1. That every member or believer in the Gospel of the Kingdom of God, set apart for this work at least one dollar ($1.00) each year, and also pay the sum of one dollar ($1.00) on each one thousand dollars ($1,000) assessed valuation of their property; this to be paid quarterly to the State Secretary.

That each Church or company of believers appoint one of their members to collect this money from their Church and send to the State Secretary quarterly; all isolated members to do the same, or send to the Church nearest them, if more convenient.

2. That the Conference Board handle all ministerial funds, hire the ministers and place them where the most good can be done.

3. That all ministers report quarterly to the Conference Board as to work done, and all money received from any source.

4. That the Trustees of any local Church shall be three in number, to hold office for three years, one Trustee's time expiring at each annual election; said election and notice thereof shall conform to the laws of the State of Indiana.

That the officers of a local Church shall consist of first and second Elders, two Deacons, a Secretary, Treasurer, and three Trustees; said officers excepting Trustees, to be elected for one year; election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in January.

The Elders of each congregation to be selected by said congregation, and to be confirmed by the Conference executive board. Upon failure of the congregation to select a suitable or acceptable person to this Board, the said Board shall choose from said congregation and confirm to their best ability.

5. That the State Secretary be authorized to furnish the necessary blanks, and distribute to the churches and ministers for their reports.

6. The urgent need of organized work in the State demands that these plans take immediate effect, with the exception of contracts already made.

Committee:
R. A. Frazier,
Emma C. Railsback,
James A. Burnham,
Hazel McLeland,
George Himmelright,
John L. Wince,
Marshall Logan,
Phebe C. Willey.

Moved and carried that the Executive Board be empowered to use sufficient funds to carry out the intent of the foregoing resolution.

The Literature committee was discontinued and money on hand voted into the Berean society.

The Bible School Board was re-elected, said Board consists of John L. Wince, Phebe C. Willey, and Lydia Railsback.

Ministerial certificates were granted D. T. Halstead, J. F. Wagoner, J. L. Wince, J. H. Willey, J. A. Burnham, W. B. Wilson, D. E. Vanvactor and Joseph Williams.

Election of officers as follows: President, J. H. Willey, Plymouth; 1st Vice President, R. A. Frazier, Roll; 2d Vice President, J. A. Burnham, Rensselaer; Secretary, Lydia Railsback, South Bend; Treasurer, Wm Hutler, Hillisburg.

At 2:30 on Friday Brother Joseph Williams spoke on Christian Stewardship, the foundation of the discourse being found in Romans xvi. which was read as a lesson.

The evening service was conducted by Brother W. H. Wilson, the lesson read being Phil. iv. sermon subject Thought, text Prov. xxiii. 7

Saturday 2:30 Brother Wince spoke of Paul and his Last Words, the lesson read was 2 Tim. iv.

At 7:00 the social meeting was led by Brother B. C. Railsback, his lesson being Romans xii. Following this Brother Williams spoke on the Doctrine of the Pharisees and Sadducees.

Sunday 10:30 Brother H. V. Reed gave the address, his subject being Heaven, Earth and Hell. Text Num. xiv. 21. The lesson read was 2 Pet. i.

At 2:30 the Berean meeting was led by Sister Emma Railsback, assisted by Sister Idona Romine. The lesson was Acts ii, their subject being What is a Christian?

3:15 sermon by Brother Williams, the subject Basis of Fellowship. Some Scriptures used Eph. v. 11; 2 Cor. vi. beginning at verse 14; 1 John parts of i. and ii.

Sunday night the lesson was read by Brother Willey, Psalms xxxvii. 1-22, and the discourse was by Brother Reed, and was a continuation of the morning subject, based on the last chapter of Isaiah.

At the close of the evening meeting the Communion service was held, presided over by Brother Wince.

Ministers present during the Conference were D. T. Halsted, J. L. Wince, J. H. Willey, J. A. Burnham, Joseph Williams, Wm. H. Wilson and H. V. Reed. About thirty delegates and visitors were present.

The meetings were good throughout, and all seemed to feel that it was good to be there.

Spirit.

The word Spirit, like too many other words found in the Bible, does not receive from Bible readers the scholarly examination that it should. It is a word which bears to many readers a "read-in" meaning; that is, a meaning which has been forced upon it by philosophers and theologians which did not originally belong to the word in the foreign tongue from which it was taken. With by far the greater number of professed Christians the words Soul and Spirit are used interchangeably as meaning the same thing. Even theologians of note speak of the Spirit as being the real intelligence—the real man—the one which at the death of the body wings its way to the fields Elysian, to be more alive than ever before. And when questioned as to their authority reference is made to Eccl. xii. 7, where we read as follows: "Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was and the spirit shall return to God who gave it." It is to combat this error that this article is written.

From the language of the above text it will be seen that the "it" is something that was given to the individual. Let us paraphrase as follows: And my spirit shall return unto God who gave it to me. The It is not the Me. At best it can only be a part of me. I have been reading recently from a work on Spiritualism by a man, and in it I find some very reasonable thoughts upon this subject, and I can do no better than to quote at some length. On this subject he says:—

"It has been truly said that the Spirit is the Man, or it is not. If it is the conscious entity, it is the Man, because man is a conscious being and no theory, not even Spiritualism, claims two conscious entities in the same person."

"The spirit is either the Whole man, or a Part of him. It is not claimed to be the whole of him; therefore it must be either a part of him, or No part of him. If no part, it is something foreign to him. If it is a part of him, it is not a man by itself and therefore should never be called man, more than an arm; and therefore we do not find the spirit [illegible] therefore we conclude it is [illegible] the man, consequently not a conscious entity by itself."

"Again, if the spirit is a Part of man, it commences with him, and stops when he does, and therefore is not a man by itself. If a man is mortal, every part of him is mortal also; hence it follows, that if the spirit is a part of man, it must be mortal; for what is true of a whole is true of all its parts."

"If the spirit is a part of man, it was made when he was made. But man was made of dust—the entire man—no intimation to the contrary. Indeed, science proves that the earth contains all the elements which are found in man."

"Again, if the spirit is the Man, it is either mortal or immortal. If a Part of man, it is mortal, because man is mortal. If it is immortal, it is not a part of man; hence man has no spirit, as intimated in the question."

In our dealing with the word Spirit, we will examine first its Hebrew origin—ruach. Spirit is not the only word coming to us in the King James' translation out of this word ruach. There are at least calculation eighteen words in our King James' version that come out of this word. Before we can get at the real force of the word ruach, we must accumulate these words and the texts in which they are found, and then supply a term that will accommodate them all in a general way.

In 1 Sam. xxvi. 19 ruach is translated "accept" (margin "smell.") Now therefore, I pray thee, let my lord the king hear the words of his servant. If the Lord have stirred thee up against me, let him accept an offering.

It is translated "accept" but once. It is translated touch but once, and it is found in Judges xvi. 8. And he brake the withs, as a thread of tow is broken when it toucheth (margin, smelleth) the fire.

There are eight texts in which the word smell is translated from this same word ruach. Only one text—Amos v. 21, is given. I hate, I despise your feast days, and I will not smell in your solemn assemblies.

Understanding (to make of quick) is another shade of meaning found in this word according to the translators. It occurs but once and is found in Isaiah xi. 3. And shall make him of quick understanding in the fear of the Lord.

Job xli. 16 contains the word air as coming from ruach. One is so near to another, that no air can come between them.

Again, we have the word anger coming from it, Judges viii. 3. Then their anger was abated toward him, when he had said that. In the margin you will find the word spirit.

Ruach is translated blast four times. Only one text is given, Exodus xv. 8, And with the blast of thy nostrils the waters were gathered together.

In twenty-eight different texts the word breath comes from ruach. Only one text is given, Job xii. 10, In whose hand is the soul of every living thing (all things living, then, have souls) and the breath of all mankind.

Strange as it may seem, the word cool also comes from this Hebrew word, see Genesis iii. 8. And they heard the voice of the Lord God walking in the garden in the cool of the day. The margin says "wind."

It is translated courage once, Josh. ii. 11 and compare with the thought in Josh. v. 1, Neither did there remain any more courage in any man, because of you.

To save time and space we will not quote further, but leave the reader to examine the texts for himself.

Translated mind six times, found once in Ezekiel xi. 5.

Quarters once in 1 Chronicles ix. 24

Side six times, Ezekiel xiii. 20.

Spirit two hundred and forty times, Genesis i. 2; Numbers xvi. 22.

Tempest once, Psalm xl 6

Vain twice, Job xvi. 3.

Whirlwind once, Ezekiel i. 4

Wind or windy ninety-three times, Genesis viii. 1; Psalm lv. 8.

In the next we will examine the Greek word Pneuma.

Report of Conference.

The Eighth Annual Conference of the Southern Illinois Church of God was held at the Restitution Church, near Mornay, Clark County, beginning September 25, and ending October 3-1 1909.

We are glad to report a very enjoyable time. The weather was ideal, audiences very good, and the discourses instructive, profitable in reproof and doctrine, and were as refreshing showers to the people of the One Faith here, as it is only occasionally we have the opportunity of hearing the gospel of the kingdom, and have the beauties of the coming kingdom portrayed as Brothers Conner, Huggins and Jeffreys so aptly illustrated, so strengthening our faith.

Not only was the future illuminated as our hope and incentive to labor in this present sphere, but this truth was impressed upon us, that there is a law by which we must fashion our lives, namely the law of love. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and thy neighbor as thyself." "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

We had many both practical and doctrinal discourses. Subject matter was varied, and every discourse was full of good things.

We had with us as ministers Brothers L. E. Conner and R. G. Huggins both of Cleveland, Ohio, and Peter Jeffreys of Murphysboro, Illinois—not a minister but like Peter of old, exhorting and stirring up the mind by way of remembrance.

We cannot give program in full, as former Secretary has not fully reported. The opening sermon by Brother Huggins was relating to the personality of God, subject What is God? On Sunday morning Truth and Error, and Sunday night Faith. On Monday at 10:30 in the morning Bible Lesson with Brother Huggins instructor, and in the evening a discourse the Necessity of Understanding the Scriptures.

On Tuesday Bible lesson led by Bro. Huggins, topic The Devil—what is it? showing that the Satan with which we have to deal is the evil inclination of the mind, the Adamic nature or the carnal mind. In the evening Brother Conner having arrived gave a practical talk on Titus ii. on the Home.

On Wednesday morning Brother Jeffreys instructed us to our edification on that wonderful chapter—1st Corinthians, with text from Job xiv. 14. If a man die shall he live again?

We feel that our meeting has not been in vain. Some results were visible and the flock was fed. There were seven accessions to the Church. Sister Harriet Boice of Champaign, Ill. placed her membership with us, and we were made to rejoice as Brother Conner administered the ordinance of baptism to six others who desired to show obedience. Pray for these that they may indeed walk in newness of life. They are Mrs. James Jeffreys, Nellie Congleton, Minta Cooley, Tisca Cooley, Emma Cooley, and Henry Cooley.

On Sunday morning Brother Huggins preached a very valuable sermon to the new converts on Hebrews vi. This splendid message was so abundantly full of meat and drink that after the 'babes in Christ' had taken of "the sincere milk" there was yet "strong meat" for those of "full age."

On Sunday night after the administration of the Lord's Supper, Brother Conner made the farewell address, on the Fruits of the Spirit. This was directed especially to the newly baptized ones, but like the morning sermon, there was repentance for all.

Our business meeting was held Friday morning, and the following officers were elected: President A. O. Lenz, Secretary Mrs. C. W. Weaver, Treasurer Lewis Weaver, Deacons B. F. Wood and Wm. Gross, Elder John Elliot.

Treasurer's report was given which concluded the meeting.

We had with us Sister Anna Drew of Dixon, Illinois, the State Berean worker, also several other visiting brothers and sisters.

We trust that much good may yet come from the efforts put forth in this Conference. Paul planteth, Apollos watereth, but God giveth the increase.

Mrs. C. W. Weaver, Sec.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

Second Series. Number 16.

My almost daily prayer is, "that our nation—God's chosen people, Israel—as I believe them to be, may put down evil and exalt righteousness in the earth." I realize more and more every day that it is our bounden duty as a nation, to put away impurity and profanity and drunkeness and all that is defiling, and to do judgment and justice in the earth. And in realizing this, and in offering this prayer for our nation, I also realize as I once did not, my own responsibility and the responsibility of those who hold "the blessed hope" with me, as to the part we ought to take in battling against the giant sins of our day. We are not to keep silent, we are not to pass by on the other side when a fellow-being has been robbed and left wounded by the wayside, we are to bring him home and bind up his wounds, and pay all the charges for his keeping, and we are to do more than this, we are to put the robber dens, the saloons, out of business. There is more for a Christian to do than to go to meeting and sing and feel good on Sunday. There are orphans to take home and mother with tender mother-love, there are dear young men to turn back who have already tasted of the wine, that at last bites like an adder, there are drunkards to win from their sinful ways, lonely girls to shelter, swearers to rebuke, a hideous wave of moral impurity to stem. In all these things Auntie Willard was faithful to her God in so far as lay in her power. No one knows how many Bibles she put into the hands of both old and young, how many tracts, leaflets, papers and books she distributed, how much she did to lessen swearing, to put down infidelity and to strengthen faith by example and precept, as well as to teach the gospel of the kingdom in cottage meetings, and in the Bible Class at home and abroad. I would I could emulate her example; but I have not finished that Alleghaney City story.

Sister Conley was much interested in "The Home of the Friendless" and one day took Auntie Willard to see it. She thought it a twin-sister to the "Holly Tree Temperance Room," although not at all connected therewith. It contained one hundred children, the off spring of drunken parents, all of whom are fed, clothed and cared for by the voluntary offerings of the people; good Samaritan women being at the head of it and carrying it on as Muller carried on the orphan's Home in England.

Auntie Willard was invited to attend the Sunday School, and she says "It surpassed anything she had ever seen in the way of committing Scripture to memory. Besides the lesson which was 'the legion of devils cast out of the man and the entering of them into the herd of swine,' which was twenty verses recited in concert; near the close of the school they were given the privilege of reciting texts and some forty out of the sixty pupils present rose one at a time, gave chapter and verse and recited from one to six verses, all learned in the last week." Auntie Willard heartily commended them, and gave them the verse "Behold the fear of the Lord, that is wisdom and to depart from evil is understanding."

Auntie Willard also visited the Penitentiary and heard the chaplain preach, his text being, 'Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us," etc, and the foundation of his sermon—the prodigal son, met by his father when he was a great way off. "One of the convicts burst into sobs, and others were quite stirred but some laughed. There were about five hundred in this prison and two hundred more in a new prison out of the city, and with two or three exceptions the most of them were young and in the prime of life; some of them with beautiful hair combed to the utmost nicety."

It made Auntie Willard "think of their mothers, who with pride and joy had so often combed these heads, in their innocent childhood, and now to see where they were." Her "heart ached, and her longing soul cried out 'Mercy Lord! Mercy for Jesus' sake!' and glad she was that the sound of mercy could yet reach their ears.

"But why are they here? Was the next question. Ask the government that licenses the saloons! Ninety-five per cent of these young men are in prison because of drink. How blind to its own interests is our nation, for in slaying these she is putting the knife to her own throat! Left the Christian and tracts for the Reading Room."

"Dixmont, was the next place visited. It is the Hospital for the Insane of the county and is out among the hills. The scenery on the way, winding in and out among these picturesque elevations was very beautiful with pretty homes and farms, and even mansions, nestled among them. But some of these mansions have histories that make Solomon's words true—'All is vanity' and also the words of a greater than Solomon—'A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth' and yet, strange to say, it seems encrooted in man's mind that riches and happiness are inseparable.

Dixmont is a great structure of brick and it requires five engines to do their part of the work of the Institution which now contains five hundred and ninety-five inmates. It has twenty-six halls from ninety-five to one hundred and four long, and fifteen feet wide, each patient having access to a hall, and also to the parlors on each floor. Cleanliness, neatness and order, prevail. There are chapel services, riding, walking and little parties for these demented human beings. Also great dining and bath rooms. The more deplorable cases cannot be seen."

But what makes so many lunatics? Are they too the miserable fruit of the saloons? In a great measure, they surely are. God help us to stamp out the accursed thing!

Auntie Wince.

To Be Continued.

To the Point.

Referring to several letters on the temperance question that the London Record, Prebendary Fox, of Durham writes:—"Surely it is a waste of words to discuss the question which has been raised in your columns, whether the practice of total abstinence or of limited indulgence in stimulants, be the higher virtue. We are face to face with one of the most dreadful evils which ever afflicted humanity. Sixty thousand lives are annually sacrificed in this country to intemperance, and £150,000 000 swallowed up in the drink traffic. The greater part of the crime, lunacy, and poverty, which blight our land is avowedly due to the drinking habits of our people. The only question, therefore, worth discussion is how we may best grapple with this evil.

"No one asserts that total abstinence is forbidden in the Bible, or that even under certain circumstances it is not commendable. The liberty, therefore, to abstain being equal to the liberty to indulge moderately, and the circumstance of a 'present distress' being admitted, it only remains to be shown which means have been found most useful for the rescue of the drunkard, the safety of the tempted, and the reformation of the people. The question is simply one of experience, and easily answered. If my non-abstaining brother shows that he can accomplish these objects most successfully by his example of moderate indulgence, then I cheerfully yield him the palm. But if otherwise, do not let him blame the abstainer who prefers a method which he has proved and found in innumerable cases to have been blessed of God to the conversion of souls and the rescue of precious lives.

But to most of us I imagine the sacrifice (even if it be worthy such a name) of a petty indulgence is so infinitesimal when set against the possibility of winning one for whom Christ died, that we do rare to weigh nice distinctions between the relative merit of taking a few mouthfuls of wine per diem or none at all; the more so when we find the way left so open for us in the Scripture."

The article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to H. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

Acts iii. 19-21. "Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord; and he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you: whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all the holy prophets since the world began."

The Southern Illinois Conference convened as published, Sept. 25, and lasted till Oct. 3rd. Visitors began to arrive the first day and they continued to arrive till the close of the meeting. A good delegation from the Marshall church attended; and ones and twos and threes came from different parts of the state, and one or two from Indiana. Brother Jeffrey with granddaughter and daughter-in-law, Bro. and Sister Lantz, Sister Harriet E. Boice, Sister Anna E. Drew, and others whose names we cannot recall. The preaching was ably conducted by Brethren Conner and Jeffray. Simplicity marked the utterances of the speakers; they used "great plainness of speech" in stating the gospel truths to their auditors. From the first meeting the attendance was good, and as the meeting progressed it grew better; and in the latter part of the series the house was full, with some on the outside of the church unable to get in. Six heard the Word gladly, and were baptized. Four were children of believing parents; and two were formerly Christians or Campbellites. One was the daughter-in-law of Bro. Jeffery; the other was a Miss Congelton who lives near the church. When these dear souls understood the truth they did not parley over the question of re-immersion, and hesitate as some do who have perverse minds and stubborn wills, and after a long period of disobedience to God's law, reluctantly submit to it, but they gladly and willingly and immediately submitted to the ordinance of baptism which God has seen fit to require every believer of his truth to obey in order to the remission of sins and adoption into his family. Thus ended the best Conference ever held in Southern Illinois, so reported the brethren.

It is said that the Mormon church has suffered a serious setback by reason of the discovery of the north pole. The Mormon believed and taught that the ten tribes of Israel, which wandered off from the Holy Land, went to the north pole, where they found an open sea and a lovely country and raised up a mighty nation and that in time they would join hands with their Utah brethren and rule the world. But this dream has been frosted by Cook and the Mormons will have to change their Scripture to conform to the latest revelations of scientific discovery.—Terre Haute Tribune.

Principalities and Powers.

Dear Brother Huggins:

Will you give an exposition of Eph vi 12. What are the principalities and powers and rulers of darkness? Are they your enemies and mine? If so, are we waging an intelligent warfare against them by uniting our forces and by working harmoniously? —N. D. Titchenal.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Paul had just concluded his remarks on the Christian's armour and the necessity of putting it "on" to be strong in the Lord, and to be "able to stand against the wiles of the devil", when he wrote the 12th verse: "For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places." To briefly analyze the statement: The wrestling the apostle mentions means his contention and warfare against the various adversaries he specifies. 'Flesh and blood" is a Hebraism for human beings. In Gal i 16 the expression is clearly a periphrasis for man; a human being of any kind. The supposition that Paul here means he did not daily with the erroneous suggestions and unrenewed propensities of his own heart, is obviously wrong. The great apostle was fully satisfied that his call was of God; he had no doubts within himself about so great a matter; but he had no occasion to consult man, "confer with flesh and blood". That by "flesh and blood" he referred to men or human beings other than himself is clearly indicate in the next verse which speaks of the apostles in particular: "Neither went I up to Jerusalem to them which were apostles before me." Now "we wrestle", says the apostle, that is, we are carrying on the lively exercises of the athletic Olympic, or other national games, a warfare in general; not against "flesh and blood" or men in general, but "principalities" (chief rulers). The warfare is not against ordinary but extraordinary men. Not only against the "chief rulers", but also against the "powers", the authorities derived from, and constituted by, the "principalities"; and the "rulers of the darkness of this world": people who occupy "the high places" in the governments of earth—the most sublime stations. These, mark you, were a kind of religious people, "spiritual" in a way—"spiritual wickedness"! They are charged with being guilty of the spiritualities of wickedness; highly refined and sublimed evils; sins of culture; disguised falsehood, in the appearance of truth; antinomianism; in the fig leaf garment of Adam and Eve. The rabbins and Jewish rulers are directly referred to. This is proved by the fact that the words, "rulers of the darkness of this world", and "high places," are phrases which often designate the Old Testament and the Jewish system and the New Testament and the gospel system. Psa ii 2 which speaks of the "rulers" taking council together is applied by the apostles to the Jewish rulers who persecuted Peter and John for preaching Christ. Acts iv 26. From these principalities came all the "wiles of the devil" to which Paul and his fellow apostles were subjected. They preached "another King, one Jesus"; and this different kind of government which they preached was to come in the setting up of the kingdom which would destroy all the "principalities" of the present "world". Let brethren who vote be careful; they may be found fighting against God and his plan. Consider well.

The Judgment.

Dear Editor Huggins:

Not because I am identified with an ilk of "cold intellectualists" but because I am keenly alive to the fact that while "it is the glory of God to conceal a thing, the honor of kings is to search out a matter," it will be necessary for me to address you as above until I find out that your "Declaration" states and you believe not only in a judgment for "the other fellow," but also in one for yourself.

A certain member of Congress, some time ago, in this city was holding forth in favor of a certain measure, when he was interrupted by a well-wishing auditor, with the remainder, "But such a policy would be unconstitutional." "Oh, well," he replied, nothing daunted and with a significant wink, "What is the constitution between friends?"

You, dear Editor Huggins, have, I glean from your reply to my letter, "Judgment Omitted," searched the matter out and fully believe in a judgment tribunal for a large class who will be resurrected from the dead at the end of the thousand year's reign of Christ, (of whom you have no idea of being one;) but when I call you, and the Declaration of Things to be Believed, which represents you to account for not believing in and stating the judgment seat of Christ to be established at the appearing of Christ, before which will be summoned a smaller class of quick and dead ones, (of which you do hope to be one,) you gleefully adjure me to put on my glasses and read of the later resurrection and judgment in paragraph 4 Now admitting for the time being that the devoted body of believers I belong to are "more addicted to debate than to prayer" I solemnly protest with uplifted hand, that we never, no never, indulge in debate, or argument, or disputation of an Oliver Twist, artful dodging variety; and neither do I wish you to.

Please do, therefore, my dear Editor, in your next issue, and with Correspondent Stewart assisting you, if you like, get right down to the subject in hand, and tell why you do not give judgment of the household of faith at the appearing of Christ, and in natures compatible with such an assize, a place, and a good place in your Declaration of the Faith, with especial reference to the numerous testimonies I adduced in your issue of September 22, and which are applicable to the first resurrection and judgment and not to the last, if indeed there be any "last" resurrection

Sincerely Yours,
GEO. A. WHITFORD.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

"Dear Editor Huggins" again! and so it must continue, says the "intellectualist" Whitford, "until I find out that your 'Declaration" states and you believe, not only in a judgment for "the other fellow, but also in one for yourself." Witholding from us the appelative of "brother" till he finds out what we believe, is very different from the example set us by "just Lot," "that righteous man," who dwelt among the wicked Sodomites. 2 Peter ii. 7, 8. While a mob of these villians were assembled around his home, and were about to commit a crime, the bare mention of which would make a sardonic hearted sinner blush, Lot stepped to the door of his house and began an address to them in these words: "I pray you, BRETHREN, do not so wickedly!" Gen. xix. 7. "The men of Sodom were wicked and sinners before the Lord exceedingly," (Gen. xiii. 13,) yet this "just" and "righteous" man called them "brethren." Had supercilious Whitford been there he would have promptly rebuked this good man, and would have told him "to find" out what the Sodomites believed, particularly about the judgment; and if they did not believe in the judgment of others and themselves too, he dare not call them "brethren!" "Ananias, a devout man" (Acts xxii. 12) addressed Paul as "brother Saul" before he was baptized. xxii. 13, 16; and the apostle himself addressed the Jewish council as "men and brethren" Acts xxiii. 1. All these texts are symphonious in calling sinners "brethren." Brother Whitford point blank refuses to be led and guided by these instances of Holy Writ, and the examples of these righteous men. He might have called a Sodomite "Mr. Sodom;" and before his baptism he might have called Paul, "Dear Mr. Paul," or "Dear Editor Paul;" but never "Brother Saul!" Thus when your hyper-critical methods and customs are put along side of God's Word, there is such marked inharmony that there is nothing left for you to do but smile.

Our Brother's letters are very vacillating. In his first epistle he charged that there "was no reference whatever to the judgment" in our outline of faith; now he writes that we "believe in a judgment tribunal for a large class!" He first objected that we had omitted judgment altogether. The printer then put the word "judgment" in capital letters; Brother Whitford put on his glasses, and lo! "a large class" was to be judged. At one time there was no judgment; at another time too much! Surely you must be hard to please. At one time you complain that judgment should have a place, and "a good place in our Declaration of faith!" We then showed you that it had a good place. You call this explanation an "Oliver Twist." We believe that some of God's judgments are in the past; some are present; others are reserved till the coming of the Lord and the close of the thousand years. I am a greater believer in judgment than you are. After whining and showing symptoms that you were uneasy that I did not believe in the judgment, now you conclude your letter by expressing doubt about millennial judgment in the words, "If indeed there be any 'last' resurrection." If there be no last resurrection there can be no last judgment. The fact that you doubt the last resurrection shows that you doubt a judgment at the close of a thousand years After all your blatant zeal for judgment here you are expressing doubt. I am ashamed of you; "for wherein thou judgest another, thou condemnest thyself; for thou that judgest doest the same things." Rom ii. 1. I do not wish to appear unkind, Brother Whitford, but I must repeat, I am ashamed of you.

"Get right down to the subject," says our Brother, "and tell why you do not give judgment of the household of faith at the appearing of Christ, in natures compatible with such an assize, a place, and a good place, in your declaration of faith." I do not care to ask "correspondent Stewart" to help in this work: on the contrary I select, by preference, Brother Whitford.

In unfolding the subject he will not give any text an "Oliver Twist;" will do no "artful dodging"—he is just the man. Let him then in an article show

1. That no one but those of the household of faith will be judged at the coming of Christ.

2 That the saints are then judged in mortal nature;

3 And that all who refuse to accept this theory of the judgment are not "brethren"—and let him show by the authority of the Bible that it is not admissible to call us by that appelative.

Psalm ii 8 "Ask of me, and I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession."

Abrahamic Land Covenant.

Compare Gen xii 7; xiii 15-17 and xv 18; and xvii 17, 18. We have to rely upon the records, as to descriptions, rights, titles and estates of the several allotments of Land noted in the Holy Scriptures. These records are the foundation of all the things builded thereon. All the ingredients of our physical frame comes from the land—earth and water being the basis of all things relating to the sustenance of animated nature. Therefore, let us hold fast to the land; and recognize our relations to these, with the Noahic covenant in view, and advance on unto the Abrahamic. The Abrahamic territory includes the Tribal allotments, but a distinction must be drawn between them for reasons referred to later on. Compare Psa cv 10, 11. In harmony with this distinction, there are two seeds brought to view which must not be confounded. The outcome of Abraham's trial—put to the proof—constituted him the father of all believers and the founder of the Isaac type—because, "in Isaac shall thy seed be called." Heb xi 17, 18 For a description of this territory see Gen xv 18. "From the River of Egypt unto the great River Euphrates"—that is from Lat. 29 degree 31 minutes to Lat. 37 degrees—more than 500 miles. Longitude from 30 degrees 2 minutes to 48 degrees 26 minutes—1100 miles amounting to 550 000 square miles of territory.

The covenant arrangement in relation to the tribes is confined to the land of Canaan. See Gen xvii 7, 8 and Psa cv 9, 10, 11. All this territory being under the Ottoman ruler and usurper and has been for centuries. But the time is not far distant when the Son of Man shall send forth his messengers; and they shall gather out of his kingdom (territory) all things that offend and them which do iniquity; and shall cast them into a furnace of fire", etc.

The subjugating procedure will begin within the kingdom territory. So as to establish the Divine authority in Jerusalem. Victory, followed by victory until the nations far and near submit to the demands of King Messiah. Consult Zech x, xii and xiv. The decisive battle will be fought in Bozrah in the land of Edom. Consult Isa xxxiv 2 8 and lxviii 1 4 and follow up the Conqueror from Bozrah to the Mount of Olives. Zech xiv 4. Then note his demand to the city authorities as recorded (prophetically) Psa xxiv 7, "Lift up your gates, O ye princes and be ye lifted up, O eternal gates; and the King of glory shall enter in.

(8) Question: Who is this King of glory? Answer: The Lord who is strong and mighty in battle—and therefore (9) Lift up your gates, O ye princes; and be ye lifted up, O eternal gates, and the King of glory shall enter in. (Douay Version) Compare with Ex xiii 4 and xiv 2.

As yet Abraham has never possessed even a foot-breadth of this land. See Acts vii 5 and Heb xi 18, 16 A heavenly country indeed and in fact it will be when the promised blessings to Abraham will be fulfilled according to Gen xxii 16, 17, 18. Note the reason assigned: verse 18, "Because thou hast obeyed my voice." No contingency here, the matters mentioned result from that which Abraham had already done. Compare xxvi 5, "Because that Abraham obeyed my voice, and kept my charge, my commandments, my statutes and my laws."

The covenant of circumcision an important element in this Abrahamic arrangement: A token or mark so as to distinguish the family of Abraham from the mass of earth's population. Consult Gen xvii 10, 11; Acts vii 8, and Rom iv 11. To Abraham it was a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had prior to his circumcision; and to his male offspring, a token of ownership on the part of God The circumcision of heart as well as of flesh one of the requirements in the ceremonial of worship in the "age to come." See Ezek xliv 9.

Isaac: his birth, his childhood, his sacrificial offering; and symbolic resurrection, a fitting type of our Lord and Savior Jesus the Christ. Heb xi 18, 19. Divine intervention in relation to the production of Isaac, in harmony with the Divine Purpose as announced by Elohim or angel to Abraham. Gen xvii 15 16, "I will bless her, and give thee a son of her." ....." A royal people shall be from her." Compare Luke i 35 "Holy Spirit shall come over thee and power of the Most High shall overshadow thee; therefore also that holy product shall be called Son of God." The conditions pervading Mary's organism prior to conception demanded the "therefore" so as to fix the thought on the quality of the product, namely: "Son of God."

Isaac, a son of promise and prophecy. Gen xvii 16, 21. His status in the "plan" defined, Gal iv 22 31. Two seeds from two mothers, Hagar bringing forth children into bondage—that is, according to the flesh and for which the covenant from Sinai was adapted, for the time then present. But he, born of Sarah was a Son of Promise.

Emphasize verse 28, "Now we brethren, as Isaac was are children of the promise" in whom the heirship inheres. Rom viii 17 and iv 13. But the Seed of Abraham are not all children of the promise, "They are not all Israel who are of Israel." "But in Israel shall thy seed be called" verse 7. "That is—They which are the children of the flesh—these are not the children of the flesh—these are not the children of God [of the Isaac type] But it is the children of the promise that are counted for the seed. Compare. Gal iii 16, The unit seed Christ. (27) For, as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put him on. (29) And if you are Christ's, then are you Abraham's and heirs according to the promise." Isaacs every one and to the manor born "from above;" belonging to the Christ, with the promise to the conquerors, to have a seat with the exalted Jesus on his throne.

Sketches of Church History.

The next reformatory movement toward casting aside all creeds and following only the teachings of the Bible was begun in 1810 by Alexander Campbell, of the Presbyterian church, abetted by his father—Thomas Campbell. For a time he had been allowed to preach his views to the Presbyterian church of which he was pastor, but the opposition against them ultimately became so strong, that he and his family, with a number of others, withdrew from its membership and formed a church of their own at Brush Run, Washington Co., Pa. There a house of worship was put up, and the father and son were made joint pastors, everything went on smoothly and harmoniously in the new body, and no subject of debate came up until one day a man asked, "Is infant baptism Scriptural?" Both the Campbells thought that it was, and attempted to prove it. In the resulting investigation they found that neither it, nor the sprinkling of adults had any foundation in the Scriptures of truth. They were then immersed, and with many members of the Brush Run church united with the Baptists. June 12, 1812.

But a dispute came up as to the design of baptism, the Disciples claiming that faith and repentance are preparatory to immersion for the remission of sins, and the Baptists claiming that we are regenerated before baptism, "believing the ordinance to be only an outward sign of an inward grace." This dispute led to another separation and to the forming of what is known as "The Disciple Church" of the present day. Both the Disciple and the Christian Church are Congregational in their organization.

The Genuineness of Matthew xii. 40.

Mr. Moody once very properly referred to the testimony of our Lord Jesus Christ, affirming the historic credibility of the narrative concern-Jonah and the great fish. The Independent declared in its reply that the genuineness of the passage "is a matter of very serious doubt," this doubt, however, resting on "internal evidence purely." Whereupon Ex-President Bartlett, a competent witness came to the defence of Mr. Moody:

"The great critical editions of Tischendorf and Tregelles, which cite authorities, both give the verse without a hint that it is wanting in any one of the hundreds of Greek manuscripts. They refer to it as also contained in the old versions of weight, the two Syriac, the Latin, and the Ethiopic. They also allude to it as found in the Christian Fathers Irenaus, Origen, Cyril, and Eusebius. The careful text of Wescott and Hort contains it without a doubt. The English and American revisers do the same. The recently discovered Diatessaron contains it, and so do the recently found Syriac gospels. So far as appears, it is not even accidentally omitted from any known authority. Thus on the grounds of text criticism there is not a better authenticated text in the New Testament; and if this may be disputed on the ground of internal evidence purely, any and every other verse may be rejected on the same ground."

One thing which you may make sure of is, that however good you may be, you have faults; that however dull you may be, you can find out what some of them are; and that however slight they may be, you had better make some—not too painful, but patient—effort to get quit of them."—John Ruskin.

ANNA DREW.

Respecting the objection raised by some that Christ was not entombed fully seventy-two hours. I have thought that it would be an assistance to them to be reminded that not only did he say that he would be three days (in the civil sense) and three nights (in the natural sense), in the heart of the earth, but he also said: "Thus it is written, and thus it behooved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day." This last prophecy would have been defeated had he remained entombed the full seventy-two hours.—G. A. Whitford.

A Father's Advice.

The following letter was written in 1801, to S. F. B. Morse, inventor of the telegraph, when he was ten years old, by his father, who was a clergyman. The advice given is just as good now as a hundred years ago.

"Your natural disposition, my dear son, renders it proper for me earnestly to recommend to you to attend to one thing at a time; it is impossible that you can do two things well at the same time, and I would therefore never have you attempt it. Never undertake to do what ought not to be done, and then, whatever you undertake, endeavor to do it in the best manner. It is said of DeWitt, a celebrated statesman of Holland, that he did the whole business of the republic and still had time left to go to assemblies in the evening and sup in company. Being asked how he could possibly find time to go through so much business and yet amuse himself in the evenings as he did he answered: 'There was nothing so easy, for that it was only doing one thing at a time, and never putting off anything until tomorrow that could be done today.' This steady and undissipated attention to one object is a sure mark of a superior genius, as hurry, bustle and agitation are the never-failing symptoms of a weak and frivolous mind. I expect that you will read this letter over several times, that you may retain its contents in your memory. Give me your opinion on the advice I have given you. If you improve this well I shall be encouraged to give you more as you may need it."

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, OCT. 24.

Paul a Prisoner.—Before Festus and Agrippa, Acts xxvi. 19-32.

Golden Text.—"I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day." 2 Tim i. 12.

The connecting links of last lesson and this one, that there was a change of governors of Judea. Festus came in place of Felix. Paul had been in prison two years or more when Festus went to Jerusalem. The Jews had not forgotten Paul. That he was in prison did not satisfy them. They wanted Festus to bring him to Jerusalem. This he refused, but said they could come to Cesarea. They did and accused Paul of many things they could not prove. Paul again denied, and Festus—like Felix—willing to please the Jews, asked Paul to go to Jerusalem to be tried. Paul knew that was just handing him over to the power of the Jews, he said "I appeal unto Cesar." Festus said, "You shall go to Cesar." A good while after King Agrippa—son and successor of Herod, the persecutor of the church, Acts xii. 1-4. Agrippa was King over several Roman Provinces He and his sister came to visit Festus. Paul was now a very notable prisoner. Festus informed Agrippa about him. He said, I will hear the man myself. Next day Agrippa with his sister and Festus held court with great pomp. A great show of royalty and authority. Festus with a grand speech introduced Paul. Agrippa gave him leave to speak for himself.

Paul was pleased to do this as Agrippa knew all about Jewish manners and customs. Paul gave him a brief account of his life from his youth up to the time of his conversion, by, and his commission from, his Lord—the Lord Jesus.

Lesson—verse 19 Paul was satisfied that the vision was from heaven. Nothing among men, or by men had any effect to change him. He had seen Stephen stoned to death, and afterward made havoc of the church, Acts vii. 58; viii. 1-3.

20. In this verse Paul in a very few words sums up the whole of his three missionary journeys.

21. The time when Jews from Asia saw him in the temple, caught him, crying "Men of Israel help," and wanted to kill him, Acts xxi. 27-31.

22. He would long before this have been killed if God had not helped him. He had well occupied the time preaching the things found in the prophets and Moses.

There are many at the present day who claim to be "mighty in the Scriptures" and profess to be servants of Christ, and helped of God, but who deny Moses and disbelieve the prophets.

23. This concludes Paul's grand defence and sermon before Agrippa and Festus.

24. This whole address of Paul's must have been what newspaper reporters call "a masterly argument, a powerful sermon." It aroused Festus to the point where he could no longer control himself. It is true that Paul's words did sound like the talk of a crazy man. If any man said the same now we would know he was "beside himself." During his so-called "missionary journeys" the Holy Spirit testified to the truth of his preaching by many marvelous signs and wonders. But for over two years there had been no miraculous demonstration.

25. He had nothing to give but his word. The hearers must decide by that. He said he spoke the sober truth.

26. He told Festus that the king knew things were so. What was done had been done openly. His whole life in the gospel, had been before the public both near and far.

27. Here he appeals to the knowledge and belief of the king. Some thing in the face or manner of the king assured him that the king believed the prophets.

28. We can only guess why Agrippa was not fully persuaded to be a Christian. There are a number of people right now who are "almost persuaded" but complete separation from the world frightens them. Indeed they are fully persuaded but dare not obey.

29. A noble, earnest, and certainly unselfish prayer.

30. This was all they could stand, so to speak.

31. After consulting they pronounced him "not guilty" among themselves.

32. And if he had not appealed to Cesar, would have been set at liberty.

19. Where did Paul see the heavenly vision? Acts ix.

20. Did he go right from Damascus to Jerusalem? Galatians i. 17

Did the Gentiles turn to God? Acts xiii. 48.

22. What did Moses and the prophets say? Luke xxiv. 27.

23. What prophet said Christ should suffer? Isaiah liii.

Who said he should rise from the dead? Psalm xvi. 10.

24. Was Paul mad—crazy? Why did Festus say he was mad?

25. Do all religious people now believe what Paul then preached? Acts xxviii. 23.

26. Why do many religious people now say that the things in Moses and the prophets are mysteries?

Did not Jesus and the apostles make them plain enough?

27. How did Paul know that Agrippa believed?

28. What more would have made him a Christian?

Next lesson—Paul a prisoner—the Voyage. Acts xxvii. 13-26.

P. NEILL.

Dear Restitution:

We are pleased to report to the Household of Faith, the good work done here near Perryville, Kentucky, by Brother W. H. Wilson, who came September 8, and returned the 20th. He preached about fourteen sermons which were all fine and to the point.

We are also pleased to say there was one who came forward and put on the name of Jesus Christ. There has been some good seed sown, and we trust that in the future it may bring forth good fruit.

Yours in the Blessed hope,
BEN. H. CARPENTER.

Dear Restitution:

I see my time has come to renew, so I enclose $1 50 for my renewal, as I should be lost without it to read.

Our little flock here at Blair is still holding together, and I think we are advancing, and growing in grace and the knowledge of the Lord. We hold our Bible readings every Sunday, and still keep our little sewing circle going.

Yours in the Faith,
MRS. LIZZIE JOHNSON.

Acts xv. 13-18. "And after they had held their peace, James answered saying, Men and brethren, hearken unto me: Simeon hath declared how God at first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name. And to this agree the words of the prophets; as it is written, After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up; that the residue of men might seek the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things. Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world."

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Announcements.

The Churches of God in Michigan will convene in Quarterly Conference at Coats Grove, Barry Co., Michigan, October 22, 1909, continuing over the following Sunday. It is hoped that all the brethren that can possibly do so will make an especial effort to be present. Good speakers will be in attendance; and the Coats Grove brethren will provide entertainment, and all who can come will be accorded a hearty welcome.

Those living at or near Kalamazoo, take the C. K. & S. R'y at Kalamazoo for Coats Grove. Those coming from the north or from other distances, take M. C. R'y to Hastings where teams will convey them to Coats Grove, unless they get to Hastings in the forenoon, when they could get a train on the C. K. & S. for Coats Grove.

TRY THE RESTITUTION, $1.50 a year

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show one paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

Hindu Literature.

This book of over 400 pages is of special value to the young people in order to enable them to meet the attacks upon Christianity from Theosophists and others. It has been fully endorsed by the most eminent Oriental scholars of Europe as being authentic, and the historic facts here presented are unimpeachable. A few copies of this standard $1 50 book may now be had for $1.00 a copy post paid. It is used in colleges and universities. Send all orders to Mrs. Elizabeth A Reed, 1311 Belmoral av, Chicago. Illinois.

THE RESTITUTION is only $1.50 per year. Try it a year.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. DANIEL.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Ever lasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10643 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson. 625 N Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Scripture Searchers Assistant.

A very valuable help to all who are studying the Scriptures—a reprint of one of our beloved Brother Joblin's works. Treats of thirty different subjects, with about four hundred references. All should possess a copy for ready reference. Price by mail six cents, order from Mrs M Joblin, 10643 Ashbury ave. N E Cleveland Ohio

The Elements of the Kingdom of God, is the title of an eighteen page tract by Brother T J Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He sets forth that a kingdom cannot exist without a King, his cabinet officers, territory, a capital city, subjects, laws. Brother Daniel will send this little tract to you at 10 cents each, or $1.00 a dozen. Send direct to him for them.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and State, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money sent in a paper money is easily deterted and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind., not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed, give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it by saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards we write us notify her about it both become offended. So stupid is us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready, picks up an envelope that has, or is afraid to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp, and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce an article worth, then neglected these important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Age of Wonders.

Age of wonders! angel eyes
Filled with light, yet dark with crime;
Oft foretold by seers and sages—
Pictured on the prophet's page,
In the far back olden time.

Portents in the earth and heaven;
Meteors blaze in midnight skies;
Solid rocks, and earth are riven;
Tidal waves are forced and driven
Till in mountain heights they rise.

Winds which heretofore were sleeping,
In their distant northern caves;
The law of balance overleaping,
Lash the coasts of ocean sweeping,
Fret the demon of the waves.

Flood of fire all efforts spurning,
Paints with grandeur midnight gloom;
Midst its reckless blaze and burning,
Granite walls and poor man's earning
Fall before a common doom.

Hail, famine, tornado, famine,
Desolate the fairest plains;
While the worshippers of Mammon,
Are possessed of evil Daimon,
Grasp more closely hoarded gains.

Right and wrong contend in battle;
Human blood in torrents flow;
Mid the clash, the roar and rattle,
Men are piled like slaughtered cattle—
Holocaust of friend and foe.

Who can hush the groan of nature?
Make the wrath of man subside?
One God-ordained, though ranked as creature;
Wearing human form and feature,
Stilled the Galilean tide!

—John L. Wines.

He Careth for You.

Go to the Lord with all your care,
With all your sorrow, pain and woe;
A troubled heart, and spirit sad,
Before him all your burdens show.

As loving children boldly come,
Before your heavenly Father's throne;
And meekly there in humble faith,
Make all your wants unto him known.

Our God is merciful and good,
Loving, compassionate and kind,
He knows our frame that we are dust,
And all our trials bears in mind.

He watches o'er the sparrow's fall,
He is a guardian ever true;
Then cast on Him your every care,
For he surely cares for you.

Then praise the Lord, and hallowed be,
His holy name, let every voice
Throughout the earth, in loud acclaim
His praises sing, and all rejoice.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, OCTOBER 27, 1909. NUMBER 40.

Communicated.

The Bible and Its Message. No. 19.

In this article we wish to show clearly by Scripture testimony, what is taught in the phrase "The things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ." These are the things that Philip preached to the Samaritans, and when they believed were baptized, both men and women.

We meet a class of men who are "ever learning and never able to come to a knowledge of the truth." Such are not satisfied with the simple statement as made by Acts viii. 12, but claim that it also includes the subject of the judgment. Some claiming that at the judgment seat of Christ there is an investigative judgment. Volumes have been written and published trying to prove that that the dead righteous and unrighteous are raised mortal. First it was stated that the saints will be judged to determine their fitness to be made immortal. Therefore the judgment must be an investigative one.

Why should such differences divide the Household of God? Suppose we differ slightly on some phases of the judgment, shall we refuse to fellowship each other over these differences of opinion? Twenty-five years ago the questions of "responsibility" and "verbal inspiration" divided Christadelphian people. The ecclesias were and still are separated on these questions.

Now if these be vital questions the division was the result of the lack of scriptural knowledge. It is our purpose to show that the Scriptures do plainly teach that the righteous are not subjects of the future judgment. Paul says that the Scriptures concluded all under sin. Again this same writer states that By the offence of one judgment came upon all men to condemnation. All men were placed under condemnation or judgment. Jehovah's plan is that all who are accounted righteous are relieved from this judgment. Please note the language. He that believeth on him is not judged; but he that believeth not is judged already, because he believeth not in the name of the only begotten Son of God. To believe in the Name relieves the alien of the judgment. If he continues thus can he ever be a subject of the judgment? Reason and Scripture answers No.

In Romans viii. 1 the apostle declares that there is no condemnation to them who are in Christ Jesus who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit. If we go down into the dust being in Christ Jesus, we will come up in the same relationship to our Heavenly Father. If this is not true why should Paul write to Timothy the following, I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth (from this time) there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness.

Was Paul mistaken in his faith? We think not. He knew he would receive a crown when the Lord should appear. It would not require a judgment to determine his fitness to occupy a throne in the kingdom of God. We need not be deceived with such sophistry or man-made theories. Let us labor to be an overcomer that we may be given power over the nations. If we walk in the light, as he is in the light, our reward is assured. The gift of God is Eternal Life through Jesus Christ our Lord. Labor for the meat that perisheth not. Contend earnestly for the faith.

Fellowship is based upon an intelligent knowledge of the "things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus the Christ." These two phrases are connected, but by different Scripture to prove each.

1. What is meant by the things concerning the kingdom of God? In Acts 1. 3 we are informed that Jesus during forty days, taught his apostles things "pertaining to the kingdom of God." This teaching prompted them to ask a question of their Lord. Now please note the question—"Lord wilt thou at This Time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" The question was as to the time and the restoration.

What answer did Jesus give them? It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power. The only conclusion to be drawn from the above question is that the kingdom will be restored to Israel in Jehovah's time. There can be no question as to what kingdom is to be restored. Then the "things concerning the kingdom of God" is the restoration of the Israelitish kingdom. The base of this promise is found in the promise made to Abraham. Abraham and his seed was promised the land as an everlasting possession. We believe that many fail to see clearly these promises. Both are made to Israel—that is Israel in the flesh; state. Jehovah in order to discipline Abraham's posterity, placed them under the law. He desired to make of them a Holy Nation. It could only be done by isolating them. The law became their school-master. They were given a law that would develop them morally and physically. The law of sacrifices was intended to lead them to Christ. They would then have been given the land as an everlasting possession. This would have made them a Holy Nation. Many of them became such, and Jehovah will make them kings and priests in the kingdom promised. Israel as a nation failed to keep the law and therefore Jehovah scattered them among the nations where they are today.

The same prophets that declared that he would scatter them also declared that he would again gather them, and fulfil his promise made to the fathers, see Ezekiel xx. 33, 38; xxxvii. 15-28; Jeremiah xxxi. 31, 40; Amos ix. 11, 15. Follow the references from the above Scriptures and you will be enlightened on this subject. However we must not forget that this promise is Israel as a nation. Therefore the restoration is future and must embrace a landed estate.

This great blessing takes place when Christ, the rightful heir to David's throne comes. We must remember that Israel as she appears when Jesus comes, must be purged before the kingdom can be restored to them. There will be no rebels in the kingdom of the future as it will be restored by Jesus the Christ. Israel was placed under the law to make of them a perfect nation. Jehovah in times past suffered all nations to walk in their own way. Israel as a nation became a peculiar treasure unto God, therefore he desired to make a holy nation of them. Had this people obeyed the law covenant, no nation could have harmed them.

The prophet calls Israel "the apple of Jehovah's eye." Jerusalem would have been a rejoicing, and her people a joy. Their forgetfulness resulted in their destruction as a nation, and their severe punishment as a people. Israel today is in chastisement for her sins. This will be largely her condition when Jesus comes. All those who have died as rebels will suffer the fate of all who have opposed the edicts of Jehovah.

Thus far we have been led to see Jehovah's purpose in calling Abraham from the land of his fathers. It was to produce a righteous nation. Thus far fleshly Israel has failed, but Jehovah cannot. The apostle says The gifts and the callings of God are without repentance. If Israel failed as a nation, God has saved a few whom he will make rulers in that kingdom. All those whom God has counted righteous, from righteous Abel down to the coming of Christ, belong to this class. They belong to that class that will bless all nations. They belong to the royal house of David, whose throne and kingdom will be restored.

We have said that the Jews will remain in a rebellious spirit until Jesus shall come. They will then be developed into a strong nation from which all rebels have been driven out. Will they not again be placed under a covenant that will make them morally and physically perfect? The prophet says, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts: I will be their God, and they shall be my people. This will not be accomplished in a day.

Many of the Jews will be found in Jerusalem when Jesus shall come, and in great distress. The nations will have gathered there, and a great battle fought. The Lord will come and fight against them, and Israel will be saved. Zech. xiv.

Then will begin the gathering of scattered Israel from all parts of the earth, Isaiah lxvi. They will then pass through a purging process and be cleansed. To them will be restored the land that was promised to Abraham as an everlasting possession. This promise embraces not only the land, but the privilege of living as righteous subjects under the rule of Jesus and his saints.

In conclusion permit me to say that every Jew who has failed to comply with the covenant under which they have been placed, will share the fate of those who have fought against Jehovah during all the ages. They will be regarded as the dust on the balance. As a nation God will save them and not as individuals. Jehovah is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham, are the words of the Master.

Your brother, in search of truth.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, NOV. 7.

Paul a Prisoner.—The Shipwreck. Acts xxvii. 39-44; xxviii. 1-10.

Golden Text. "The Lord redeemeth the soul of his servants; and none of them that trust in him shall be desolate." Psa. xxxiv. 22.

Verses 39-41 give an excellent description of a shipwreck, and also proved that they believed Paul saving the ship would be lost. Acts xxvii. 22.

42. The soldiers counsel was right for them. It was their business to see that no prisoner escaped.

43. The Lord provided a friend for Paul.

43, 44 The prisoners were given orders to save themselves. They all reached the land. There is no record that any tried to run away.

1. Melita—now Malta, twelve miles wide and twenty long, an island in a part of the Mediterranean Sea, at that time often called the sea of Adria. Acts xxvii. 27.

2. Barbarous does not mean that they were like some tribes found in "Darkest Africa" but different from Jews, Greeks or Romans.

3-6 Here is a fine account of the working of superstition. The people saw the viper hang on Paul's hand. Hanging on his hand leads us to suppose that he had tried to shake it off more than once. Watching him they said he is a murderer—vengeance has overtaken him. He would suddenly fall down dead. He went on building the fire as if nothing unusual had happened. Then the watchers said, "he is a god." There was nothing new about this superstitious conclusion, or conclusions—and it is sad to say there is nothing old about it. It is with us today, not quite openly rampant as in times gone by, but as long as the great delusion of the "immortal soul" is cherished, just so long will people be superstitious, in bondage to imaginings of some sort. The notion that Paul was a god would be firmly settled in the minds of the people when they saw the things done that are told in verses 8, 9.

The Golden Text is certainly a blessed assurance for the servants of the Lord. For those who have believed the gospel and been immersed, Mark xvi. 15, 16. The lives—souls—of such will be redeemed—from the grave, Hosea xiii. 14, at the resurrection of the just, Luke xiv. 14. The text has nothing to do with being saved from a shipwreck.

Only a part of the lesson tells of the shipwreck. Referring back to verse 30, we see that the "shipmen"—sailors believed Paul that the ship would be a wreck. They played the selfish coward by trying to take the small boat and escape; but Paul could not allow that. Every one would be saved, but all must stay on the ship. This was easily secured by the soldiers cutting the ropes that held the boat. We see by reading the whole story that this was no ordinary shipwreck although it looked just like others.

Those who have had some experience, or have lived at the seaside will have a keen interest in this story, and find their anxious sympathy go out to Paul and the company on board. A short but vivid description of a tempest at sea is given in Psa. cvii. 23-30. "They mount up to heaven, they go down again to the depths, their soul is melted because of trouble. They reel to and fro, and stagger like a drunken man, and are at their wits end." The writer has experienced what these words portray, and also what the poet Whittier says in "The Slave-Ships,"

"Night settled on the waters,
And a storm in heaven,
While fiercely on their lone ship's track
The Chased vessels driven."

The trouble on the sea is like the trouble on land, it is ten fold more terrible by night than by day. So we read in connection with this shipwreck "They cast four anchors out of the stern, and wished for the day." Acts xxvii. 29. At daybreak they broke fast, ate bread, and were all of good cheer, and set to work, when it was daylight. Believing that they could not save the ship, they saw a creek or cove where the vessel could be beached, run aground. To make sure of this, they made all ready, hoisting the mainsail to run up on shore as far as possible. Success attended their efforts, for on board landed safe, but the ship was wrecked.

39. Did they know where they were? What did they discover? What did they make up their mind to do?

40. What did they take up? What is an anchor? What is a rudder? Then what did they do?

41. What did they fall into?—Two seas—most likely the waves rushing with tremendous force up both sides of a sandbar, and meeting across it dashing on the vessel from both sides. What did they do with the ship? What was broken? What is the whole disaster called?

42 What did the soldiers counsel? Was that right?

43. Who was Paul's friend? How did some get to land?

44 How did the rest escape?

1. Where did they land?

2. How were they taken care of?

3-6 What took place?

The Revelation of Jesus Christ

Act 6. Chap. xix. 11; xx. 10.

"The Lord is a man of war." "Let God arise, let his enemies be scattered." "If I whet my glittering sword, I will speak of the things which I have made touching the king."

Heaven opens and reveals Jesus Christ the King at the head of his army, he rides prosperously because of truth and meekness and righteousness, "in righteousness he doth judge and make war."

The little horn's abomination, Dan. ix. 27, has made the land desolate, he has scattered (crushed marg.) the power of the holy people, "their power is gone." Deut. xxxii. 30; Isa. vi. 10-13; lxiv. Matt. xxiv. 16-24; Rev. xiii. Satan's man, the beast, blasphemes God and them that dwell in heaven, this Goliath type, 1 Sam. xvii. exalts himself, "who is like unto the beast who is able to make war with him."

Now that the campaign is against Israel and man, the Son of Man meets satan's man. The King moves upon the enemy. The battle is described in Psa. xlvi. lxviii. Isa. xvii. 12-14; xxvi. 11; lxiv. 1-5, Ezek. xxxviii. 18-23. Dan. ii. 31-35; Joel ii. Hab. iii. Zech. xiv. Type. Gen. xv. 14-16; Ex. xiv. 24; Josh. x. 8-14; Judges viii. 19-22; 1 Sam. xi. 11-15; xxx. 2 Chron. xx. 20-25.

This great battle changes the course of human history. Satan suffers another defeat, his armies are slain, his officers, the beast and false prophet are cast into the lake of fire, satan himself is arrested, bound and imprisoned for 1000 years.

In six plain, narrative verses this 1000 years is mentioned six times; it measures five distinct events:—

1. Bound him 1000 years.

2. That he should deceive the nations no more till the 1000 years be fulfilled.

3. They reigned with Christ 1000 years.

4. The rest of the dead lived not again till the 1000 years were finished.

5. Priests of God and of Christ and shall reign with him 1000 years.

Neither of these five events on the loosing of satan can be placed in the past.

"They lived and reigned with Christ 1000 years." "Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world?" 1 Cor. vi. 2; Luke xix. 11-27; xxii. 28-30; Rev. ii. 26.

This is no burnt ground millennium commencing with the cremation of all the families of the earth, of all our neighbors who "follow not with us," of the millions who in their blindness bow down to wood and stone, who if they ever heard of Christ it was as the man-stealer's and land-robber's God, the millions who pray to Ali, those who worship the Father and the Son, and pray to the virgin Mary, those who still pray for the peace of Jerusalem, the skeptics who have been turned from the Bible by the allegorizing, criticising, adding and perversion of Christian teachers. Isa. xxv. 7; Jer. xvi. 19. "Is thine eye evil because I am good." It is sunrise, a morning without clouds. "Look unto me and be ye saved all the ends of the earth."

For some pictures of the glorious, happy times of restitution, read and believe Gen. xvii. 18; Psa. xxii. 28; lxxii. xcvi. c. Isa. ii. 1-5; xi. xxxii. 1-5; lx. Rev. viii. 17-28; Acts xv. 14-17.

The Waiting Bride

The true attitude of the waiting Bride of Christ is that of constant expectation and joyful anticipation of the soon coming of the Bridegroom.

It will be no surprise to her because she has prepared herself for his reception, she is not in ignorance of the near approach of that day, for the signs that the Bridegroom gave, that should usher in the bridal morning, are closely watched, "and when these things begin to come to pass, then look up and lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh," said the Absent Bridegroom.

The marriage robe of divine holiness has been provided, and put on, and the work of adornment progresses during the tarrying time, the fine needlework and the inwrought gold, the figure of the fiery trials, and tests of faith, that prove her loyalty to the betrothal vows.

"For many shall be purified, made white and glistening, and the wise shall understand."

And as Noah's dove returned to the ark with an olive leaf, emblem of the new world, so the blessed Holy Spirit, the Heavenly Dove, brings to the elect Bride many evidences of the nearing approach of the coming King and his heavenly kingdom.

And soon, yea, very soon, shall we hear a great multitude, whose united voice will sound like the voice of many waters and mighty thunderings, saying: "Hallelujah, for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth."

"Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honor to him, for the marriage of the Lamb is come and his bride hath made herself ready."—Open Door.

CIRCUMSTANCES of late have added somewhat to our expenses, and we do really need what is due us right now. This ought to be enough to say, and we will not add more to it, but trust that by thus calling your attention to the matter, all who know that their time has expired, will send in renewals at once, and so relieve our necessities.

We thank you for the favor.

THE rulers of Servia and Bulgaria had a meeting at Belgrade on October 25, and taked over plans for a Balkan Federation.

CZAR Nicholas of Russia has made a visit to King Victor Emmanuel of Italy. Just what these royal visits portend is not known, but they surely mean something.

BROTHER Joseph Williams of Hillsburg, Indiana, will preach at the Plymouth Church on next Sunday morning and evening. Make an especial effort brothers and sisters, and be out to hear him.

LAST Saturday at a meeting at a Jewish synagogue in Chicago, the Rabbi in charge denounced the efforts made by certain Christian societies whose special work is with the Jews. He pointed out that the Jews were proportionately far better morally than other nationalities, and advised "Christian workers" to labor among their own kind, and make Christians of them, and leave the Jewish societies to care for their own people.

AT a great revival meeting being held in Chicago, one evening last week at the close of the meeting those who had been "converted" by the evening address, were told they would not be required to go to the "inquiry room" but to come forward and take him by the hand and "by that sign know your soul is saved, and you are at peace with God." Easy business, this "soul saving." Thousands are thus "turned to God" and "make their peace with him." An entirely different plan from the one inaugurated by Jesus Christ and his apostles. Shame on a man who will play such a "confidence game" and deceive people, and fie upon such easily gulled, and fickle brained dupes.

Report of Labor.

Brother D. M. Hudler came from Scotland Neck, North Carolina, to Tennessee about the middle of September and preached some at Emery Gap and White Creek, and baptized seven, and another is to be baptized next Sunday, making eight in all and there are others almost persuaded—some that have been persuaded but rather than suffer the loss of friends have given it up.

It is a bitter fight for the Truth here and all those who have come out and embraced the faith are from the Baptist or Methodist churches, and are all heads of families, and earnest contenders for the faith.

Their names are Sisters O. H. Ampbrey, Polyen, Tidwell and daughter, Bailey, Lindsay, and Brother and Sister Stevenson, and Mrs. James Bean is to be baptized next Sunday. May the dear Lord keep them, and may they put their trust in him is our prayer.

Brethren of the west and middle west, you who know Brother Hudler, he is still earnestly battling for the faith, and has sacrificed all for the cause. The folks among whom he has worked in Tennessee and in North Carolina on account of floods, drouth and crop failures, and being poor in this world's goods, are not able to support him. He has a welcome home with us as long as he stays in Tennessee, but we are not able to pay all his expenses. Any one wishing to aid him can send it to the undersigned at Rockwood, Tennessee. I will see he gets the money. Any one in the region of the southern states who wish his services can address him in my care as above.

Your Brother in Christ,

J. W. GOOD.

[Brother Hudler has traveled over a large part of the United States—as far as to the Pacific coast, and his ability as a speaker and his deportment among those where he has been, is well known, so any who do know him, and desire to hold up his hands, have the opportunity.—ED.]

Selections.

Rich Man and Lazarus.

FIRST DIALOGUE.

Mr. Johnson. Say, Brother Thompson, I should think you soul sleepers would find it pretty hard to get over the parable of the rich man and Lazarus.

Mr. Thompson. We don't try to get over it or around it, Brother Johnson, but just allow the Bible to explain itself upon this and all other points. Do you believe that the teaching of this parable is directly contrary to repeated declarations of Scripture, that the dead neither remember nor know anything, but dwell in silence?

J. Oh, well, those passages apply to the body and not to the soul.

T. Do they not apply to the mind?

J. Of course not; or this account of the rich man and Lazarus would not be true.

T. Very well, then, the Bible has taken great pains to assure us that in death the body does not know anything. But did you ever know of a body, alive or dead, that ever knew anything apart from the mind which possessed it?

J. No; the body is only the case or tabernacle for the mind; it is the mind which thinks and knows.

T. Very well, then, please tell me why the Bible is so careful to assure us that this case or tabernacle is unconscious in death; when, according to your own statement, it never was a conscious thing of itself? Does the Bible waste words in assuring us that a mere tabernacle is without knowledge or remembrance?

J. There is no use of your trying to pin me down that way; that language about the dead not knowing, and dwelling in silence, and sleeping in the dust, must of course, be taken figuratively; it only represents the appearance of the thing; because, when a man dies, it has, of course, the appearance of his becoming unconscious and sleeping in the grave.

T. That is an important admission to make. Taking your own ground, the testimony of our senses is that a dead man is unconscious; and the testimony of natural reason is that there can be no thought without a brain; and the language of the Bible, instead of contradicting our sense and reason, is in exact accordance with them.

J. There is considerable language in the Bible which shows that the evidence of our senses is not to be relied upon, because the dead are really in a conscious condition. For instance: this parable teaches that plainly enough.

T. You prefer, then, to accept this parable as literally true in this respect, and you regard the language of Scripture which agrees with our senses, as highly figurative; and the evidence of sense and natural reason as untrue?

J. There is no escape from this conclusion, unless you make the Bible contradict itself.

T. The Bible does not contradict itself, but explains itself. The difference between you and me is just this: you take direct statements that have no connection with a parable, and interpret them figuratively, to make them agree with a parable which you interpret literally, while I regard the parable as figurative in accordance with universal laws of interpretation; and therefore in no way contradictory of those plain statements of Scripture concerning the condition of the dead, which are so fully endorsed by our senses and our reason. Now I will take other parables of Scripture and proceed according to your rule and see what kind of conclusions we arrive at.

J. All right; I'm listening.

T. In the ninth chapter of Judges, you will find a parable where it is stated that various trees met together for the purpose of electing a king, and their conversation is recorded. Now does this overthrow the direct evidence that trees do not possess soul or being, but are unconscious things? I have as much right to take my stand on this parable, and say that it teaches the consciousness of trees, as you have to take the parable of Dives and Lazarus, and say that it teaches the consciousness of the dead. We have no right to draw an inference from any parable which is at variance with the direct evidence of Scripture, and our own senses and reason. Everywhere the Bible represents death as a sleep—sound or perfect sleep is the unconscious condition of the mind, and not necessarily the quiescent state of the body.

J. But parables were meant to teach truths.

T. Yes, but not to contradict the direct teaching of Scripture in other places. The mere circumstances of a parable are only the scaffolding which surrounds the truth; and if you fail to take the parable in its connections, you will generally miss the real lesson intended to be conveyed; and may very easily come to erroneous conclusions. Let me give you an example. You remember the parable of the unjust judge, and the importunate widow. Now if you just take the circumstances and do not discern the connection with other Scriptures, you may easily come to the conclusion that God, instead of being a loving, merciful being, ready and willing to answer prayer, is like the unjust judge who granted the widow's petition, not because he cared to, but to get rid of her importunity. And how do we know this is a wrong conclusion? Because other Scriptures describe the character of God in direct language, and give us a very different idea. Take one more example; the parable of the unjust steward seems on the surface to present the Lord in the attitude of commending acts of deceit and betrayal of trust, until we get at the true idea to be conveyed. Infidels have exulted, and Christians have worried over the character which these parables seem to impute to God; but when we get the key to them, and see that the parables are only vehicles to convey great lessons, we need not be troubled any more about the shape of the vehicle

J. But if this parable of Dives and Lazarus does not teach the conscious state of the dead what does it teach?

T. Next time we meet I will try and show you that our Savior simply used a Jewish notion, believed more or less firmly by his hearers, to convey a great lesson to their minds. He did not endorse their doctrinal absurdities, and thus stultify his own teaching on the subjects of death, resurrection and judgment; but their notions served his purpose of illustrating and enforcing what he wished to teach. It is very questionable whether the Jews themselves seriously believed these vague conceptions of Hades, which were only a modification of the pagan mythology of the Greeks and Egyptians. Most likely they regarded them as poetic efforts of the imagination, as did the more intelligent heathens themselves.

J. I will call and have another talk with you.

SECOND DIALOGUE.

J. Well Bro. Thompson, I have come round again to hear what you have to say about that parable of Dives and Lazarus. What do you say it teaches, if not the conscious condition of the dead?

T. I have already shown that there is no real foundation for that idea in this parable, any more than for the idea of the consciousness of trees or the injustice of God in other parables which seem to imply these things. You are willing to admit, I suppose, that this parable is not to be understood as literally true?

J. I have always supposed it to be true.

T. What! Do you believe that in the future state, Abraham is the judge to whom lost souls make their appeal; and that the righteous go to a place called Abraham's bosom where they are within sight and sound of the tortures and groans of the lost? Do you believe that immaterial spirits are suffering from fire, and have tongues whose thirst could be quenched by material water?

J. Well, no; of course a good deal of the story is figurative.

T. Tell me why you think these things of which I have spoken cannot be literally true.

J. Because they would conflict with our reason and with other Scripture, if we understood them literally. Reason and Scripture both forbid our believing that the saved ones can watch the agonies of the damned, or that Abraham has anything to do with deciding their condition.

T. You have conceded all that I could desire. Now if you, Brother Johnson, are unable to receive one part of the parable as literal truth, because it would be opposed to reason and other Scriptures, why do you complain of me because I take the other part the same way and for the same reasons? You use the same arguments as I do to show that this parable does not present literal truth.

J. But why would our Savior use a parable which seemed to imply the consciousness of the dead, if this is contrary to the fact?

T. Why would he use a parable which seemed to imply that the saved could be happy while watching the torments of the lost, or that Abraham was the ruler of Hades, if these things are contrary to the truth?

J. Because they are in their very nature so utterly impossible, that, like a fable, they serve the purpose of conveying a true idea, without any necessity of being themselves received as truth.

T. Precisely so; well, then, what good reason can you give why I should not regard in the same way the idea of consciousness in death as contained in this narrative?

J. Because it does not appear to be as impossible to the mind, and opposed to Scripture as these other things you mention.

T. That is on account of our educational bias. Our minds have become so accustomed to the idea that the dead are alive in a spirit condition, because we have always been taught so, that it has become difficult to look at the matter in an impartial or independent way; but the doctrine of the conscious state of the dead has really far more Scripture directly opposed to it, and is much more clearly contradicted by our senses and reason, as I have shown, than even the idea of Abraham's tribunal in Hades, and the outlook from his bosom over the fiery region in which the rich man was being tormented. The fact of the matter is, that more than once in Scripture, the utterly impossible idea of the dead having power to think and converse is poetically and allegorically presented as a vehicle of certain truths. For instance, in the fourteenth chapter of Isaiah, the dead kings whom Nebuchadnezzar had slain are described as occupying thrones in hades, and rising up to meet their former conqueror, and taunt him with his descent to their condition; not a condition of life, but one where "the worm is spread under thee and worms cover thee." No one thinks of arguing from this that dead kings are really occupying thrones in Hades, and can cry out words of taunting welcome to new comers. Then why in the name of commonsense, should this parable of Dives and Lazarus, or any part of it, be taken as literal truth, in opposition to the plainest language of Scripture as to the state of the dead, and the time when they shall be judged and punished or rewarded? Christ is the only arbiter of the condition of mankind in the future, and the day of decision is to be when he comes in the glory of his Father with his holy angels to call the sleeping millions from land and sea, and bring them into judgment. If the dead were already alive—already judged, already punished or rewarded, as this parable represents—what need would there be for the judgment which God has appointed at the last day? Is this solemn act to be performed twice over?

J. I must confess the force of your reasoning, but still you have not told me what you consider the true meaning of the parable.

T. I see that time will not permit me to go into that today; but come round again and I think I can show you that its real significance does not at all involve belief in its mythological ideas.

J. All right, I'll come. I'm getting considerably interested in the matter.

THIRD DIALOGUE.

J. Good morning, Brother Thompson; have you time to give me the rest of your argument upon that parable we were discussing?

T. Good morning. Yes, I shall be happy to do so; and may our gracious God give us both a good understanding on this important subject.

J. Amen. There is one thing in particular I want to ask you about. In our first talk you intimated that the circumstances of this parable were simply a modification of the mythology of the Greeks and Egyptians. What did you mean?

T. The events of the parable are laid, as you are aware, in Hades. The Greek conception of Hades, as we get it from their poets, was that of a region to which the spirits of both the good and the wicked were consigned at death. The arbitrator of their fate in this region was Minos, who during his life on earth, had been an eminently wise and just king, and for this reason was appointed by the gods to this position in Hades. According to his decrees, the shades of the righteous were appointed to the Elysian fields, which formed a portion of Hades; while the wicked were consigned to tormenting flames in another portion of this region, separated from the fields of the blest by an impassable river or gulf. The Egyptians had a somewhat similar mythology; only with them the god Osiris was the arbitrator instead of Minos. The Jews, by centuries of intercourse with the Greeks had imbibed some of their poetic notions, among others this conception of Hades which is nowhere found in their own Scriptures. Of course they could not adopt Minos as the arbitrator in Hades, and so put Abraham in his place. It is very doubtful however, if they seriously believed these fanciful ideas; most likely they held them as mere theories; and our Savior evidently did not deem it necessary to combat such absurdities. They were so intensely unreal, so contrary in themselves to common sense and the teachings of Scripture, that they would answer the purpose of a convenient vehicle to convey great moral teaching in the same way as we use fables of dogs and horses conversing to convey a moral to the mind.

J. What do the commentators say upon this matter?

T. Of course they all argue for the so-called orthodox idea; but some of them feel compelled to admit much of what I have just stated. Benson allows that some of the circumstances are not to be taken literally. He quotes Lightfoot as saying, "Our Savior adapts this circumstance of the parable to the popular opinion of the Jews." He also quotes Macknight thus: "It must be acknowledged that his (Christ's) description of those things (i. e., the abodes of departed souls) are not drawn from the writings of the Old Testament, but have a remarkable affinity to the descriptions which the Grecian poets have given of them."

J. What then do you regard as the true teaching of this parable?

T. In the first place it teaches on the one hand the rejection of the Jews from their position as the seed of Abraham and heirs of the promises; on the other hand, the taking in of the despised Gentiles to Abraham's bosom of family. The Jews had fared sumptuously as possessors of the privileges of God's chosen people, while the Gentiles had received nothing but the crumbs from the Jewish table, and their condition [illegible] covered over with moral sores. But Christ taught that the time was coming when the Jewish church should be cast out from its high position, and enter a suffering condition where it would be glad to receive help even from those whom it formerly regarded as utterly beneath it; and that the despised Gentile should then occupy the place, and enjoy the privileges of the seed of Abraham.

J. But if this is a correct interpretation, would not the parable imply that the Jews have no place for repentance?

T. It certainly shows that there is now no possibility for the Jews as a church or nation to regain their former estate. Individual Jews may be saved, but only by ceasing to be identified with their nation. The rich man and Lazarus symbolized the Jewish and Gentile churches. The Jewish church still exists, but is cast out, and is tormented by the knowledge that its temple is destroyed, its city trodden down, and its land desolate; and the Gentile church, enjoying the blessing and favor of God which the Jewish church has lost, is unable to carry one drop of relief in the way of removing this tormenting knowledge, because of the great gulf caused by the Jewish rejection of Christ; and their adhesion to the law of sacrifices and circumcision.

J. But the rich man in torment is represented as unable to repent and find mercy; while we know that Jews may be saved as well as Gentiles.

T. Yes, but the Jewish church cannot regain its former estate, it cannot cross the great gulf; it is unable as a body to receive Christ, for it is suffering judicial blindness and hardness of heart, as the Scriptures inform us. Read the 24th and 27th verses of the last chapter of Acts.

J. Are there no other truths to be derived from this parable?

T. Undoubtedly so; some of its details require us to believe that Christ was not only conveying the lesson we have already considered to the self-righteous Pharisees, who were the accepted representatives of the Jewish church; but that he also employed this fanciful imagery of mythological poetry to bring before the minds of the Epicurean Sadducees, who denied a future life, the general truths that after death comes judgment, and that each one will receive according to the conduct in the present life. He had already taught them in clear and unmistakable language that he was to be the judge, and that the judgment was to be at the last day, when all who were in their graves should come forth, either to happiness and life, or to anguish and death; and he had also shown them that his teachings on the subject was endorsed by Moses and the prophets; so that you see there was not the least need of their gathering from the parable anything more than the general ideas of future judgment and retribution, as set forth in their own Scriptures. It is a very common thing, both in our own and other countries, for religious teachers to employ the language of poetic mythology to convey general truths; but no one thinks of regarding the mythological stories themselves as presenting actual facts. Fenelon's Telemachus is an illustration of the teaching of true ideas in mythological language.

J. But what would you make of the rich man's desire to have Lazarus go and warn his five brethren?

T. There is no need to see in it any more than the real truth which is there put into the mouth of Abraham. The incident itself is part of the poetic imagery of the parable, and is needed to give the story roundness or completeness; so that the further truth may be evolved from it, that if sinners will not receive the testimony of the Word of God concerning future life and judgment, they certainly cannot be brought to true repentance by the greatest miracle. "If they believe not Moses and the prophets, neither will they believe though one rose from the dead." A real Lazarus did rise from the dead soon after, and Christ himself rose as the leaders of the people very well knew; but it did not bring them to repentance.

J. I have nothing more to say, I expect you are right, at any rate I cannot see how the parable can be defended as a statement of literal facts. Your doctrine of the state of the dead appears much more reasonable to me. I must confess your arguments are forcible and Scriptural, and I will continue to investigate the subject and pray over it, until I can come to a definite conclusion for I desire to [illegible] clear light upon his Word it [illegible] early seek it.

T. You are right, my dear brother and I shall unite my prayers with yours, that both you and I may get a clearer knowledge and firmer grasp upon Divine truth in all its aspects.—W. R. Young.

Sunday, October 24th, was a glad day for the children of God in Cleveland. Two young men of sterling character, after making the "good confession" of faith before witnesses, were helped to enter the Name of the Lord—the strong tower into which the righteous run and are safe. Their names are Ernest Blythe, son of Sister Blythe, and Clifford Groves, son of Brother and Sister Groves. May they run patiently and well the race before them, and reach the goal of eternal life.

The Editor wishes to keep himself aloof from participating in the discussion of the question now being so freely ventilated in "Ebenezer," videlicet, "Church Discipline." As Editor we think we will have discharged our duty when we have given both those who are for and against the proposed discipline, an impartial hearing in our columns.

In this issue the reader will find a racy composition from Brother Eychaner on the subject; and while we have no desire to take "sides" with him nor against him, yet in fairness to all we must point out that he has made one mistake, undoubtedly unintentionally on his part. He says of the Ohio Conference in his criticism of their resolution on discipline that they are not to "bear down very hard on the morals 'at first,' but hunt up their faith," etc.

A reading of the resolution they passed will reveal that just the reverse of this statement is the fact; that "at first" they are "to bear down very hard on the morals." The warmth of feeling begotten by antagonism often leads one to unwittingly mistake the position of his opponent, and these vortical remarks instead of solidifying tend only to widen and deepen the chasm of difference. Without giving our brother the mildest whisper of implied rebuke, may we not here germanely enter the plea for contributors in future to avoid, in the discussion of this issue, all such peccadilloes? And may we not indulge the hope that some glad day, not far in the future, our brethren who are now intractable advocates, some for too much discipline, others for none, will see the folly of their way, and heartily unite upon the basis of a reasonable discipline? Too much discipline is a bad thing; none is a worse thing.

Many of our churches in the past, and some still are, without any discipline, or practically we know of the bitter fruit which this lawlessness has borne. To ear marking of the heretical dogmas which this boasted, creedless "liberty" has patted on the back and hugged to its bosom; to wink at the ugly excretions on the body of divine truth which, like gangrene, is striking into the very vitals of the body (2 Timothy ii. 17) and will soon send it toppling into the grave, if the knife is not used;—to overlook, I say all this, then there are enough evils left of a moral tinge to condemn the "no discipline" plea to everlasting infamy. It makes a member of the church a law unto himself; he is thus greater than the church of which he is only a member. As a member of the body he is independent—greater than the body (?) and thus swelled up with "freedom" he has independency of soul—he can flout the church and defy her to her face. If the church intimates anything about discipline, he at once raises a whoop about a "written creed," "exclusion," "sectarianism," "intolerance," etc. So he pleads for "liberty" while he goes on his way perverting the gospel, committing all kind of sins and enormities.

Lodges of men, so much abhorred by some of our brethren, would not stand for such unbecoming behavior in their members. We have had ministers who lived and died in our Church, who were mendicants, liars, swindlers, cheats, and dishonest to the very ventricals of their hearts. I know a minister now, a man who has had license to preach for years, and whose wife has left him for his immorality, but who remains a member of the Church of God without rebuke or discipline. As our church is destitute of discipline either in doctrine or morals, there is no barrier to keep out heretics or criminals; and the consequence is, we are the dumping ground for all the "undesirables;" the rendezvous for renegades, liars, rascals, and all the unnamables.

We now hear the mutterings of discontent, and see signs of an uprising all over these United States, that bids fair to roll away the reproach now resting on the Church of God, when its members will be brought to know how they ought to behave themselves "in the house of God." 1 Timothy iii. 15.

The Beast Out of the Earth

Brother Huggins:

In your exposition of 2 Peter iii. 10 I find and quote these words: "The subjects, or people governed, are represented by 'the earth.'" This is a fact, and cannot be successfully denied, although it is understood by but few Bible students. Now as you have demonstrated in your reply to J. H. Westerman that you understand the symbolism of the earth, with this truth as a key, I wish you would give the readers of THE RESTITUTION a logical exegesis of the two-horned symbol of Revelation xiii. 11, which comes up "out of the earth."—George Francis.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

The article from which Bro. Francis quotes and refers in his letter, the reader will find in THE RESTITUTION of August 25, under the caption "The burning up of the earth;" a disquisition written at the request of a Baptist friend on 2 Peter iii. 10.

If the reader desires to see the proof that "the earth" in prophetic symbolism represents the subjects of a kingdom in contrast with the "heavens" or officials of its realm, we request him to turn back and studiously peruse that composition. Assuming now as true what we then demonstrated correct by copious scriptural authority, we proceed to remark that since a "beast" in prophetic language represents an earthly or human government (Daniel vii.) and "the earth" its subjects, the beast which John saw "coming up out of the earth" must mean a kingdom originated, constituted and established by the plebeians; without an iota of doubt this interpretation is "logical exegesis." If the reader cares to confirm this interpretation of the two-horned and dragon speaking beast by historical illustration, let him read Milman's Gibbon's Roman Empire, volume 4, chapter 40 about Charlemagne (born 742 A. D. and died 814) the great king of the Franks and also Roman Emperor. He subjected middle Europe to thirty-three rigorous military campaigns, and after besieging the camp at Pavia with a blockade of two years, Desiderius, the last king of the Lombards, surrendered the sceptre of his kingdom.

From Gibbon I quote the following remarkable statement: "It was an effect of his moderation that he left the maritime cities under the real or nominal sovereignty of the Greeks.....The three and thirty campaigns laboriously consumed in the woods and morasses of Germany would have sufficed to assert the amplitude of his title by the expulsion of the Greeks from Italy and the Saracens from Spain. The weakness of the Greeks would have ensured an easy victory, and the holy crusade against the Saracens would have been prompted by glory and revenge, and loudly justified by religion and policy."

The surprise here expressed by the historian Gibbon, is all due to his ignorance of prophecy. God gave the Saracens a mission against images and demonial worshipers in the east and south, while Charlemagne's mission was the subjugation of Germany. He had nothing to do with maritime dominions; his entire operations were confined to "the earth," the inland portion of Europe, the "woods and morasses of Germany." Not knowing that his work was thus circumscribed by prophecy, Gibbon accounts for his inland military operation by calling it "his moderation." The Romans with all their skill and power had never been able to do what Charlemagne did—found a dominion in the woods and forests of Germany. He was to pluck up three of the ten horns. This enlarged his mission some, as it committed to him the work of annexing Italy and Hungary to the middle European kingdom. A kingdom springing out of the barbarians or Lombards of the north is, in the language of John, a "beast coming up out of the earth."

Church Discipline.

Under the above covering there is now an effort being made to form a written creed. It is probably not the intention of those who are zealous for the truths they hold and believe to be narrow or proscriptive, yet the proposed measure, to have the Conference Board determine what a man's faith and morals should be, is the opening wedge to sectarianism and intolerance in church matters.

Two State Conferences have already taken action on the subject, and an invitation to consider it has been sent to other state conferences, and the Ohio and Nebraska action has been published in THE RESTITUTION, our leading paper.

This measure gives the Conference Boards of the different States power to determine what a man's faith shall be. The Nebraska State Conference deviating somewhat from the Ohio Conference, has "appointed a committee to draw up and draft the articles of our faith, as found and proven in the Bible."

The reader will discover two things that look suspicious. 1. A committee is to determine what the articles of our faith shall be—what members must believe in order to be considered Children of God and members of the Church. 2. The Bible as a whole is not to be taken as the standard of faith, but the articles culled out by this committee, and proven and found in the Bible.

The Ohio Conference wants the Conference Board to do this creed making, and in addition thereto to sit in judgment on the morals of each member—they are not to bear down very hard on the morals "at first," but hunt up their faith—determine whether all the members agree with them in the articles which they may make, and if they fall short of the standard, the Board shall proceed to discipline them.

The Nebraska Conference says nothing about the morals of members, but is intensely interested in what a man must believe. They did not even publish the names of this committee which they appointed, or whether they had examined into their morals. A very interesting question arises in the minds of every one who may come under these conditions is; What does this committee believe. Who is to examine them to see whether they are capable of drawing up articles of faith by which others are approved or condemned. Or the Conference Board—Who is to determine whether they are qualified to say what a man shall believe?

There are many grave objections to the action of these Conferences, which may be considered later; it is enough to say here that such measures lead to endless contention over matters of belief, whether we consider them essential or non essential. They lead to bitterness, exclusion, sectarianism and proscription; and any Church, congregation or conference organization, should be very careful in these matters. Where love rules in our hearts and the Golden Rule leads the intelligent member of the body of Christ, he will not desire to dictate to a brother as to how many articles of faith he can conscientiously adopt. We do not need such discipline.

Your Brother in the Hope of the Gospel.

Who Are the Guilty Ones?

"Prisoner at the bar," said the judge, "have you anything to say why sentence of death shall not be passed upon you?"

A solemn hush fell over the crowded court room, and every person waited in almost breathless expectation for the answer to that question.

The judge waited in dignified silence. Not a whisper was heard anywhere, and the situation became painfully oppressive.

Then the prisoner was seen to move. His head was raised, his hands were clinched, while the blood rushed to his pale, care-worn face. Suddenly he arose to his feet, and in a low but firm voice said:

"I have, your Honor. You have asked me a question, and I now ask, as a last favor on earth, that you will not interrupt my answer until I am through.

"I stand before this bar, convicted of the willful murder of my wife. Truthful witnesses have testified to the fact that I was a loafer, a drunkard and a wretch—that I returned from one of my prolonged debauches, and fired the fatal shot which killed the wife I had sworn to love, cherish and protect.

While I have no remembrance of committing the fatal deed, I have no right to complain or to condemn the verdict of the twelve good men who have acted as jury in this case, for their verdict is in accordance with the evidence which I myself have heard.

A STARTLING STATEMENT.

But, may it please the court, I wish to show that I am not alone responsible for the murder of my wife."

This startling statement created a tremendous sensation. The judge leaned over the desk, the lawyers all wheeled around and faced the prisoner, while the jurors looked at each other in amazement.

The prisoner paused a moment, and then continued in the same distinct voice:

"Yes, I repeat it, I am not the only one guilty of the murder of my wife. The judge on this bench, the jury in the box, the lawyers within this bar, and most of the witnesses, including the pastor of the old church, are also guilty, before Almighty God, and will have to stand with me before his judgment throne, where we shall all be righteously judged for our words, thoughts and deeds.

If there had not been saloons in my town I would not have become a common drunkard, my wife would not have been murdered, and I would not be here now, ready to be hurled into eternity. Had it not been for these human traps, I would have been a sober man, an industrious workman, a tender father, and a loving husband. But today my home is destroyed, my little children cast out on to the cold world, while I am to be hung by the strong arm of the state.

God knows I have tried to reform, and prayed for strength to withstand the licensed temptation, but so long as the open saloon was in my pathway my weak and diseased will power was no match against the fearful, agonizing, consuming appetite for drink.

For one year our town was without a saloon. I was one of those who signed the remonstrances against the re-opening of saloons in our town. One-half of this jury, the prosecuting attorney on this case, and the judge who sits on this bench all voted for the saloons. By their votes and influence saloon were re-opened, and they have helped to make me what I am."

The impassioned words of the prisoner fell like coals of fire upon the hearts of those present. The judge made a motion as if to stop further speech, but the prisoner hastily said: "Your honor," I am nearly through. Do not close my lips." Then he resumed:

"I began my downward career at a saloon bar, licensed and protected by the voters of this town. Had it not been for the license voters, the saloons which have wrecked my life and destroyed my home would not have existed. After the saloons you have established have made me a drunkard and a murderer, I am taken before another bar, the bar of justice, and now the law power will conduct me to the place of execution, and hasten my soul into eternity. I shall appear before another bar then—the judgment bar of God!

There you who have licensed the traffic must appear with me. Think you that the Great Judge will hold me, the poor weak victim of your saloons, alone responsible for the murder of my wife? Nay! I, in my drunken, frenzied, irresponsible condition, have murdered one—but you have deliberately voted for the saloons which have murdered thousands—and these saloons are in full operation today by your consent.

You licensed the saloons that made me a murderer. I am the logical product of your own votes, and you are guilty with me, before God and man, for the murder of my wife.

I stand here today, a condemned murderer, only one of a million, the product of licensed saloon votes. Let your consciences condemn you, who voted for the rum shops. There is a remedy, and every sensible man knows what it is.

I am done, your honor. You will close by asking God's mercy on my soul. I close by asking the Lord to have mercy on his people, and to open their blind eyes, that they will cease to give their votes to consent to the running of licensed murder mills in our country."—Selected.

A New List of Kings.

The pupils at a certain school were asked to write original compositions on "Kings." The prize was won by a bright youth who perpetrated the following:

The most powerful king is Wor-king.
The laziest king—Shir-king.
A very doubtful king—Smo-king.
The wittiest king—Jo-king.
The leanest king—Thin-king.
The thriftiest king—Drin-king.
The slyest king—Win-king.
The most gyrrulous king—Tal-king.

Trust in God.

"I will never leave thee nor forsake thee."

As we linger faint and weary
Travelers through this vale of tears,
Darkness gath'ring all around us,
And our courage yields to fears:
Then how joyous is the message,
"Cast thy burdens all on me,
In the hour of sore temptation
As thy day thy strength shall be."

When by sickness we are wasted,
Or fierce trials bring us low,
When by trusted friends forsaken
And we sink beneath the blow,
Then the words of love—how precious—
"Fear not—put your trust in me;
If you love and serve me ever,
All shall work for good to thee.

How much love our heavenly Father
On his children has bestowed;
Calling us his sons and daughters,
Fitting us a bright abode.
When we reach those heavenly mansions,
Free from sorrow, care or pain,
We shall know that all our trials
Were to us eternal gain.

Words of comfort! O how cheering
To the lonely pilgrim band,
Pressing on through mist and darkness,
To that bright that better land.
Courage then, we'll press with vigor,
O'er the straight and narrow way;
For behold! o'er yonder portals
Shines the dawn of endless day.

The Divine Artillery.

I humbly request all theologians, expositors, critics, Bible students and ministers of the gospel, whose business it is to handle God's weapons of warfare, to inform me on the following important matters, namely:—

1. Where in the Scriptures are men told to covet death as a blessing, or to be reconciled to death? Or where is a love of death declared to be a Christian grace, or the pious said to be characterized by such a love?

2. Where in the Scriptures is the first death made a ground of hope or comfort to the church? or its state, condition, consequence, or result put as the Christian's gospel hope, desire, chief good, or reward?

3. Where are men exhorted to be prepared for death, or where is the preacher commanded to make use of death as a motive to repentance or a holy life, or a spur to good works?

I have been a careful reader of the sacred oracles for some forty years, but have never been able to find warrant or sanction for such incentive. Death was not the motive to draw men to holiness used by Christ, prophets and apostles. Death fired no confessor's heart. Death urged no missionary to heroic deeds. Death spurred no martyr on to the flames. Death consoled no dying saint, fanned no fire of love, provoked no lofty ambition, cured no sin-sick soul. Yet we are told now-a-days that we must make ready for the embrace of "the enemy," and that the result of his cold clasp is to bring our chief good!

"Death is the Prince of Life," wrote Edward Young. The sentiment is a horrible sacrilege, a libel on Christ. In thousands of pulpits the last enemy is perpetually made a good, a reward, a garlanded angel, and forever and ever until the strain is nauseating, we are told for the thousandth time to get ready to die; as if death were the chief and lawful Scripture motive to all godly action—God's only spur for sinner or saint; as if there were no other, no better incentive ordained for us by the Master.

The church seems to have fallen in love with the old foe. "Ah lovely appearance of death," she sings. Death is clothed with celestial attractiveness. Christ, angels, heaven, are closeted with it, shut up in the devil's den together, and Milton's hideous trinity of goblin shapes, Sin, Death, and Satan, made partners with Jesus in introducing souls into glory. All this conglomeration of contrarities, just because christendom will maintain the immortality of the soul, and will not take hold of the Resurrection, Advent and Kingdom.

Now the personages of Scripture drew their motives, incentives, reasons, arguments, etc., from a cluster of events higher, diviner, grander, truer, more glorious, more awful even than Death, namely: The doctrines of the last things—the last day. Motives not of Time but of Eternity; motives never furnished by sin and the devil—the paternity of death—but by God himself from his own armory.

"Prepare for death" writes William Anderson of England, "is almost all the cry of the modern pulpit, whereas I do not recollect of one instance of it in the whole of the apostolic writings." "I wonder" writes William Cunningham of Scotland, "that our popular divines remain so blind to the philosophy of human nature, as they manifestly do, in expecting so much from the annunciation of death." "How foolish" says Edward Irving, "to constantly present before the saints death, or think to encourage them thereby; you should show them death conquered, that is, the resurrection, first of Christ, and then of all Christ's people at his coming." Says the pious Dean, Henry Alford, "In the Holy Scriptures we do not read anything of preparation for death; I doubt whether one text can be found in which we are exhorted to make such preparation, as such. But the constant note, the continually occurring exhortation is, to be prepared for the Lord's coming."

How true are these testimonies! Did John the Baptist and his Master announce repentance to Israel? It was because a divine kingdom was approaching. Matt. iii. 2; iv. 17. Did Christ enjoin prayer and watchfulness upon us? It was in view of his sudden advent to judgment. Mark xiii. 31, 37. Did our Lord earnestly urge continual readiness? It was because he would unexpectedly return. Matt xxiv. 44

"Repent," said Peter in the temple. Why? In view of Christ' being sent again into our world, Acts xvii. 30. Did the same apostle make a king to tremble under his ministry? It was because he clenched the presentation of practical christianity with thunders of a coming judgment. Do we hear the apocalyptical angel bid all the earth to fear God? It is because of instant judgment again. Rev. xiv. 7. Does the wise man sum up all of duty in the exhortation to fear God and keep his commandments? The incentive is a day of judgment. Eccl. xii. 13-14.

Thus continually men are told to repent, believe, fear God, pray, watch be ready, live righteous lives, etc., never because of death, but always in view of final retribution and reward. In the language of the late Bishop Henshaw, "As an incentive to repentance and holiness to sinners—as a motive for watchfulness, prayer, zeal and diligence on the part of Christian ministers and people—more prominence is given to the Savior's second coming in the pages of the New Testament than any other." It is even so.

I read of a youthful sinner asking Christ what he should do to be ready to live forever, but never of one asking to get ready to die. Matt. xix. 16. I read that men are to be reconciled to God, but nowhere learn that it is required of any one to be reconciled to the tyrant, the monster, the enemy—death.

There is but a single instance in the Book where a human being was told to make preparation because he was going to die. But this case was a good man, and the thing he was to "set in order" was not his heart—for that was "perfect"—but his house, that is, the business affairs of his kingdom. Isa. xxxviii. 1-3.

Why not then, O ye ministers, urge from your pulpits the one mighty motive? Why not use incentives drawn from a final coming of Jesus Christ to inaugurate a judgment day? Death as a motive is stale and worn out. Men are reckless concerning it. Judgment has alarm. "Are you not afraid to die?" a clergyman inquired of a condemned criminal in prison. "No" was the blunt reply. "Not afraid to die; have you no fears?" again asked the preacher. "Yes, I have fears; I am afraid of the judgment," said the guilty culprit. The death-cry is flat and wearisome; a gun fitted by an enemy.

Let God furnish his chosen weapons for your hands. Copy the ministry and methods of prophets, apostles, and the greatest of all teachers, Jesus. Stop proclaiming the king of terrors and cry aloud the approach of the King of kings. When pistols are too short, military men make use of the long rifle. When small arms fail, they try cannon. "What is the chaff to the wheat?" saith Jehovah. Is not dynamite and nitro-glycerine mightier to rend the rock and batter down the fortress wall than saw-dust? Then lay aside the unscriptural motive and forge your steel in Heaven's armory, and sharpen your blade on the whetstone of Truth. Cast away the old blunderbus, and thunder in the ears of a dreaming church and dying world with God's artillery.

He that is afraid or ashamed to preach the coming of Jesus, cowardlike, suffers the devil to spike his cannon. Preach the coming of Jesus, dear sirs. Preach the coming of Jesus! Preach the coming of Jesus!—D. T. Taylor.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 16.

The rest of Auntie Willard's narrative of the happenings at their Alleghany home, seem to refer to a much later date, so we will leave it for the present and go back to the letters, so full of tender reminiscences and instruction.

I cannot but feel that we need just such lessons as are found in these carefully written sheets; that there is much in them to encourage us to press forward in the work of the Lord and also to convict and draw the sinner to God. If I did not, I am sure I should not spend days and weeks and months in arranging and copying them. I want to speak to the Household of Faith through these letters as I could not speak through my own, and I want those friends though dead to continue speaking.

I would love to bring more matter of general interest into my work; to connect it with reminiscences of our brethren outside of New Jersey, in other states and even in foreign land, but I do not feel able to look up the material and dates, so I trust my readers will be lenient and put between the lines what I am compelled from lack of strength to leave out.

Brother Willard June 8, 1873, says "We have again been reminded of your kind regards for us in the receipt of yours of May 29. Of all the large circle of our acquaintances, it is only through you and your family we are kept posted as to the changes in the society in which we once so lovingly commingled, and where we felt at home. In looking back I sometimes think I made an unfortunate choice when I bade adieu to Covington, Kentucky, and came to Indiana, having left a whole square enclosed, with a brick mansion in the center, and all arrangements made to spend our lives in the city which I myself had started—it being situated on the upland portion of the State where the soil is very fertile, and the climate delightfully mild and healthful—but for the unpopular sentiments we held on the subject of American slavery, we should have done so. We were speckled birds; branded and disqualified for general tolerance in upper society. I was advised to publish my dissent to abolition sentiments (as I was then in favor of colonization) but I can now see that the good Lord in his providence prevented our amalgamating with that nefarious and God-hating system of human wrong, not suffering us even to touch the 'unclean thing.' Moreover he also released us from arbitrary theology, and set us free in Christ Jesus according to a better light of his precious Word.

Had we remained at Covington, I doubt if ever we had come to the light or the light come to us. It looks to us now that a good providence designed that we should hear in the wilderness the charming sound 'Behold He cometh!'

This consideration requites us for all privations incident to that backwoods experience when we used to ferret our way through mud and bramble to meet at the old log cabin where smiling faces greeted us a ten-fold welcome. O, were not such occasions truly halcyon? The refreshing dewdrops of Christian simplicity cheered our every heart. Nature smiled while as yet art had not found way to those sylvan retreats.

I need scarcely mention those two aged personages, so admired by all. What zest they gave to social and Christian entertainment, and without whom the feast would have been wanting. But their memory still lingers, and gives blessed cheer to all, and we fain would live it over. But they sleep for a little season till the Life-giver shall bid them rise, when that aged father will need no crutch, and that aged mother have no dislocated shoulder. Truly we are near that blessed time when the dear ones laid away in sorrow will meet in glorious triumph.

Sister Hels from the city is with us for a few days. Have just had Bible class, taking James i. Communion service this afternoon."

June 24th, 1873, Brother Willard wrote again having just read what he was pleased to term "the sweet chimes" in the Indianian, entitled "My Baby." He was glad that I could avail myself of such an afflicting trial to shed a halo even around an early tomb, and said "It is indeed such adversities in our course through life, which engrave the deepest and render most indelible all that goes to make up the chain of our short sojourn here. Well may we learn like Job to construe all God's dealings with us for good, and not charge him with folly. Who knows but there may be in store for us such blessings as shall more than compensate all our grief and loss?

A much-needed rain came this morning. It had been dry for weeks, late planted corn could not sprout, and crops were beginning to stand still. It seemed to me that I never realized so fully before how dependent we are for the life-giving rain, and how more dependent we are for the hope of him who 'shall come down as rain upon the mown grass; as showers that water the earth.' The nation could not have produced that refreshing downpour, but God's store-house is always full, dispensed alike to 'the just and to the unjust.' All nature smiles and even animals sense the change.

We are all well and happy, having an abundance at our hands, and what is among our greatest enjoyments, is that of dear Christian friends who come and go at pleasure.

Sister Hels is still here, as is also Sister Bussler. Amelia Whiting is with us also, while Rowland is at the city having taken the place of a fellow graduate at a public dispensary, on Catherine street below Eighth. I find I can do the chores without much effort, and am willing to have him in business if not too far from home.

As you are already aware, I did not visit my sons at Petrolia and Titusville in the spring, but may go early in the fall, D. V. Have had recent letters from Brother and Sister Conley and Brother Crewes, the former proposing my coming there in September when Sister Conley will accompany me home, and he come after her some later on.

That brother is an honor to the cause of truth, God bless him I pray. His letters are mellow and ripe, having the good spirit of Christ, and he is ready to do sacrifice if need be in any part of the Master's vineyard.

We appreciate your account, dear Sister Wince, of the Conference at Antioch. It reminded me of our former meetings with those dear brethren and sisters in Christ. Don't forget Brother Chaplin to give them our Christian regards, remembering us especially to Brother Thomas McDonald and wife. When we landed at Plymouth on our western visit in 1869, my first enquiry was, Does Thomas McDonald live here? His pleasant domicile was soon pointed out across the road, and you may be sure the occasion was not a lost one. They are indeed 'the salt of the earth,' cities 'set on a hill that cannot be hid.'

Yours in the Beloved,—R. Willard."

Ezekiel xxi. 25-27. "And thou profane wicked prince of Israel, whose day is come, when iniquity shall have an end, Thus saith the Lord God; Remove the diadem, and take off the crown; this shall not be the same; exalt him that is low, and abase him that is high. I will overturn, overturn, overturn, it; and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him."

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Hindu Literature.

This book of over 400 pages is of special value to the young people in order to enable them to meet the attacks upon Christianity from Theosophists and others. It has been fully endorsed by the most eminent Oriental scholars of Europe as being authentic, and the historic facts here presented are unimpeachable. A few copies of this standard $1 50 book may now be had for $1.00 a copy post paid. It is used in colleges and universities. Send all orders to Mrs. Elizabeth A Reed, 1311 Balmoral av, Chicago, Illinois.

THE RESTITUTION is only $1.50 per year. Try it a year.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D.C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Plymouth, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. DANIEL.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 80 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1 25

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs Susan Williams and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say the was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it onto an ordinary letter sheet and despatches same. He has labored hard to produce a good article, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and he neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Never Give Up.

Over and over again,
No matter which way I turn,
I always find in the Book of Life
Some lesson I have to learn.
I must take my turn at the mill,
I must grind out the golden grain,
I must work at my task with resolute will
Over and over again.

Over and over again
The brook through the meadow flows,
And over and over again
The ponderous mill-wheel goes;
Once doing will not suffice,
Though doing be not in vain,
And in Heaven failing as once or twice,
May come if we try again

The Bible and Its Message. No. 20.

When we began the subject of "the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ," we expected to finish it in one article. But the subject seems to open up to the extent that our space was entirely taken up, so we have reserved the "things concerning the name of Jesus Christ" as a separate article.

The things here spoken of must be those things mentioned in the prophets. In Luke xxiv. Jesus declares concerning himself, "Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory? And beginning at Moses and the prophets he expounded unto them in all the Scriptures the things concerning himself." Again in Acts xxviii. And when they had appointed him (Paul) a day, there came many unto him into his lodgings; to whom he expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses and out of the prophets, from morning till evening.

Here we have the testimony of two credible witnesses that the things concerning the name of Jesus Christ are recorded in the Scriptures. By referring to Genesis i. 28, we learn that Jehovah's purpose was to give to one of the race power to rule, or to have dominion. And God blessed them [illegible] and said, Be fruitful and multiply and replenish [illegible] and have dominion. Dominion means to rule. Under trial the man failed, and Jehovah extended this blessing to the seed of the woman. I will put enmity between thee and the woman and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel, Genesis iii. 15

In this we have the promise of the restored rulership or dominion. To this restore the race all look forward for [illegible] years. He is known as Micah as the "tower of the flock," and to them, O tower of the flock, to the stronghold of the daughter of Zion, unto thee shall it come, even the First Dominion.

David says of him "He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth." His reign will be a righteous one. He will judge the poor with judgment. In his day shall the righteous flourish. All nations shall serve him. His name shall endure forever. He shall spare the poor and needy; he will break in pieces the oppressor. These are a few of the things that are spoken concerning his name.

Isaiah says, Behold a king shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rule in judgment. The prophet promised that David's Son should be seated on his throne forever. Jehovah made an everlasting covenant with David. When thy days be fulfilled, and thou shalt sleep with thy fathers, I will set up thy seed after thee, I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever. Thine house and thy kingdom shall be established forever before thee, and thy throne shall be established forever.

These promises are made to David's seed (son). This promise was to be fulfilled after David's death. Isaiah 55 reads: I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David. Paul in Acts xiii. reveals to us who this personage is by applying this prophecy to Christ. As concerning that he raised him (Jesus) up from the dead, now no more to return to corruption, he said on this wise, I will give you the sure mercies of David.

Jesus is the seed who is to be established on David's throne. He is the King that will reign in righteousness. In Isaiah ix. 6 7 we have recorded the fact, Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given. The government shall be upon his shoulder. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even forever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform it.

How strange it is that many spiritualize all these passages. To them they mean that Jesus shall reign in their hearts. The angel announced to Mary that she should bring forth a son and call his name Jesus, and that Jehovah would give to him the throne of his father David, and that he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever.

Dear reader, have you ever thought why the heavenly messenger directed that the mother should call the child's name Jesus? If not, please let me inform you that it is the Memorial Name. Jesus is a corruption of the Father's name which was revealed as Yahweh, the powerful one. This name is translated by the word Jehovah and God. Neither of these names express the name of The Eternal One. God is an Anglo-Saxon word meaning good. The Yahweh name signifies strength. In Genesis xvii. the Eternal One is revealed under the name of Al Shadai, which means all powerful, and is translated by Almighty God. All is the name by which Abraham, Isaac and Jacob knew The Eternal One. The Jewish translators put it The Eternal Is One

All revealed himself to Moses at the burning bush as The I Am. Hebrew scholars say that it should be translated I Will Be, and is the Yahweh name, The Powerful One. The religious world recognizes their God as

EXAMINE Your account, and give us a renewal of subscription if you can do so.

Circumstances of late have added somewhat to our expenses, and we do really need what is due us right now. This ought to be enough to say, and we will not add more to it, but trust that by thus calling your attention to the matter, all who know that their time has expired, will send in renewals at once, and so relieve our necessities.

We thank you for the favor.

Word came from Brother D. C. Robison that he was to work in Iowa for a few months. We hope to have a report soon from him.

From the report of the Michigan Conference it will be seen that Brother S. J. Lindsay is doing some good work in that part of the Lord's vineyard.

Brother and Sister D. T. Halstead of Rensselaer, Indiana, visited over last Sunday with Brother J. H. Willey, who formerly was a member of the Rensselaer Church. They are both well along in years, but are strong in the faith and hope of the soon-coming of the Redeemer-King.

Brother Joseph Williams was with the Plymouth Church last Sunday, and gave two discourses. Bro. Williams makes careful preparation of his subject, and delivers his message in a pleasing manner that gives no offense even should there be differences in opinion. The brethren here will look forward to his next visit with pleasureable anticipations.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

Second Series, Number 17.

Never but that one time do I remember of Brother Willard's looking back with a momentarily longing gaze to the blue grass meadows, and fair cities of beautiful Kentucky. But having summed up all, as Moses, and Paul did before him, he was well content to endure the loss in hope of future glory—the light of truth, far outweighing the brick mansions and elegantly laid-out squares of Covington.

How we need these contrasts! How one gleam of the Golden City dashes into dust the lush pictures of Goshen with its rank grasses, and grievous servitude, and how ready we are to trade the fading for the fadeless things! Never do we look back with desire to go back, for to turn is to die.

"O look not behind thee, remember Lot's wife!"

There are more than the usual number of letters for this year; that must be because of our recent bereavements in the death of my mother in '72 and babe in '73, or else because the visit of those dear friends to us, and of father's to them, drew our families nearer together again. Here is another letter from Auntie Willard written on July 10, 1873. She begins:

"Dear Brother Chaplin:

This morning just as we were singing in worship that beautiful hymn—'Out on the ocean all boundless we ride' Sister Gresty and her little grandson drove up, and came in and joined in our services. Altogether we were Brother Henry Taylor, Brother Edie, Arnie, Rowlie and I, as dear husband left on Tuesday the 1st, for Titusville, Pa. All prayed and we had a blessed time. After an hour's stay Sister Gresty left, taking Amy with her. Brother Edie and Rowlie took the way to the hay-field, Brother Taylor to Sister Moores', and I put in and did up the work. Then back came Amy with needful things for dinner and with letters from both you and Roxana. I read these with moistened eyes—for though I have been spared the depths of sorrow from the tenderest tie of earth being snapped asunder, yet when you speak of Jesus' power to make the sin-oppressed heart 'well.' I know about it more than language can tell, and O how I praise him for that power which he alone has. I feel its sweet effects upon my heart day by day, and it is only this that makes life a boon; without it existence would be a burden too heavy to be borne.

Your letter comforted me. I am glad there is one who knew us in our comparative youth whose heart beats so faithful toward us in our declining years. Do not apologize, but write to us as you feel; not striving to cover the depths of your sorrow. It is your heart-swellings that reach our hearts.

I sent the letter you wrote to us on the death of your darling grandson, to Lyman and Maggie and in replying they quote you soliloquy to the dear babe and say, 'That is just as we felt when we looked upon our little Jesse, cold in death.' Brother Chaplin, write out your full soul and let your words and sentiments do others good. Few have the ability, natural and cultivated that you have and this, God knows is no flattery. It is a gift from God which he will bless you in using, and not even in the ministry can you do more.

Lyman and Maggie are delighted with your letter to them. O Brother Chaplin, if you will help me save my precious children, I shall praise God that I ever saw you. Do please send them a letter or a paper now and then; something that will help them to keep in mind their eternal interests amid the busy rush for the needful things of this life. It is so easy to forget, especially when you have none of like precious faith with whom to meet, no one to exhort you to continue faithful, no pastor to speak to you the words of life. They love you and will listen, Maggie is loud in your praises. I think you must visit them if you come east again.

* * * * * * *

Sister Ellis is coming down tomorrow, and will stay with us a week."

Then she mentions that Brother Grant was to preach in Philadelphia, and go on to Ocean Grove; that Mary Hastings had not yet sailed for Mexico, where she was going as a missionary—that her foster-daughter Ella Burton was in Kansas City with her brother; etc.

This letter will certainly interest those who knew my father, because of the tender side-lights that it throws upon his life. How much I would give for that soliloquy to my dear babe. The public never saw the more beautiful things that my father wrote. No wonder Auntie Willard urged him to write out his full heart, that he might do others good.

Do you recognize Sister Gresty? She is the woman who said she wasn't going to the Willard meeting because they were not Methodists, but afterward repented and went, and in a few months avowed, with her husband, her faith in a soon-coming Savior and in life only through Christ, and was baptized. I think she must have been one of the "Marys" so often spoken of in Auntie Willard's autobiography but am not sure.

To Be Continued.

Sunday School Lesson.

Lesson for Sunday, Nov. 14.

Paul a Prisoner in Rome. Acts xxviii. 11-24; 30, 31.

Golden Text.—"I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God to salvation to every one that believeth." Rom. i. 16.

Beginning with the lesson for Sunday, May 2, we have had some of the most important studies concerning salvation. We have had an account of the evangelistic labors of the apostle Paul. "Many false prophets are gone out into the world." 1 John iv. 1. These false prophets—called "missionaries" have gone into "the four corners of the earth" preaching the serpent's falsehood "ye shall not surely die," Gen. iii. 4. Hundreds, thousands are in this and other lands preaching the same "strong delusion" and boasting of converts by the thousands, and some of them tell of hardships and dangers that make Paul's troubles seem like a mere trifle by comparison. To say that these false teachers are honest, earnest, and sincere, but deluded does not help the matter. A false doctrine is destructive no matter who preaches it. The doctrine of the "Immortality of the soul" and all that belongs to it is not in the Bible, not even hinted at, whereas the gospel of Christ that Paul preached is found everywhere in the Bible from Gen. iii. 15, to Rev. xxii. 20.

Think of a preacher, that teaches of "heaven at death" getting from three thousand to ten thousand dollars per year, and highly honored wherever he goes. Think of him reading of the persecution of the prophets, the persecution of the Lord himself, the suffering of the apostles and disciples, and then think of him reading "Yea, and all that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution," 2 Tim. iii. 12. Surely such a man, if he had a "good and honest heart" would know that there was something wrong in his case.

We are not told all that Paul did in Rome; but in this lesson we find him hard and earnest in the work to which he was called,—to bear the name of Jesus the Christ before the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Israel. Acts ix. 15.

Briefly noticing the connection between the last lesson and this,—the ship was wrecked on the island of Malta, they were kindly treated by the inhabitants. When putting wood on a fire a poisonous viper fastened on Paul's hand, because it did no harm, the people said he was "a god." During the three months on the island Paul healed the father of Publius, the governor, and many others. When they left the island they were loaded with necessary good things.

Lesson. Verses 11-16. They left the island, touching at Syracuse. Were there three days, one at Rhegium, the next day landed at Puteoli "Where we found brethren".—This was better than all the good times they had on the island. There is nothing on earth so cheering and refreshing as the brethren meeting brethren. Brethren at Rome came about thirty miles to meet Paul and his company; for which Paul thanked God, and took courage—or more courage, 2 Cor. iv. 8, 9. At Rome he was not treated like a common offender.

17, Denies having done anything to cause his being made a prisoner. This statement was made to "the best of the Jews," those in authority among the Jews at Rome.

18, According to the common sense of the Roman law he would have been set at liberty.

19, But the Jews that had "a zeal of God, but not according to knowledge." They were ignorant of God's righteousness. Rom. x. 2, 3, would not consent to it. They wanted him taken back to Jerusalem that they might have a chance to kill him, Acts xxv. 3, 9. He made no charge against the Jews. So having denied any wrong doing he proceeds to explain why he is bound, and makes the strong assertion that he was chained like a common prisoner, because he had preached the very same hope that they themselves had.

21, They had heard nothing against him.

22, But wanted to know what he thought—yea, what he thought. It is one of the very strangest things, religiously. If a man preaches the most glaring error, religious people think he has preached from the Bible. When another man preaches the very gospel of Christ, religious people think it is "just his views."

This sect everywhere spoken against—those who believe, and live a consistent life, and speak, or teach, or preach "the glad tidings of the kingdom of God" always were, are now, and will be "spoken against" until the Lord comes.

23, He expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuaded them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses, and out of the prophets.—To know what he said read Acts xiii. also Stephen's sermon, Acts vii.

How did Paul come to be in Rome? Acts xxv. 10.12.

Was there any other reason? And was he to preach at Rome? Acts xxiii. 11.

24, Why did they not all believe? Luke xvi. 31.

30, How long did Paul preach in his hired—rented—house?

31, Was he troubled—persecuted—in Rome because he preached the kingdom of God?

Could he have preached from the New Testament? If not, why not?

Can the kingdom of God, and the things concerning the Lord Jesus Christ be preached NOW from the New Testament? If no', why not?

Where, in Moses and the prophets is the glad news—gospel? Gen. xxii. 17, 18; 2 Sam. vii. 11-16; Psa. lxii. Isa. ix. 6, 7; Dan. ii. 44; vii. Mal. iv. 2.

Spirit. (Continued)

In our last we had under consideration the value of the Hebrew word Ruach and its English equivalents, and as a result we found something like twenty different words in the King James' translation of the Old Testament coming out of it. If we will look the list over carefully again and read into each word the thought of "force" (not "intelligence" itself, but that which united with the clay made man, leads to intelligence on his part) we will have arrived about the proper conclusion of the worth of the word. Having thus dealt with the word Ruach in the Hebrew, we will now take up the Greek word PNEUMA.

Ruach and Pneuma are identical in the thought conveyed by them. In our language we have several words which derive their force from this word Pneuma. We speak of Pneumatic tubes and tires and of pneumonia and we recognize at once the relationship these words bear to the root from which they are taken. We know that a pneumatic tire is a tire that is filled with air (force) and that pneumonia is a disease of that part of the human organism which has to do with deriving this 'force' from the atmosphere. Pneuma, then, conveys to the mind the thought of FORCE, and in the New Testament it is found as necessary to employ many different English words to convey the different shades of meaning as is the case with the word Ruach in the Old Testament.

In John iii. 8, we find Pneuma translated "wind." Think rather of the force connected with the wind than of the wind itself. Do this for present purposes. In Rev. xiii. 15, comes the word "life" (margin, breath) from this same Greek work. Can we think of "life" as a force which it is necessary for us to have if we are to live? The words 'wind' and 'life' are found only once in the New Testament translated out of Pneuma. The word "spirit" comes 152 times from this word in the New Testament. For an example, read Matt. iii. 16. Again apply the thought of 'force.' The word 'spiritual' is found in 1 Cor. xiv. 12 (see the marginal reference.) The Greek text employs the word Pneuma. It is only once so translated. Independently of the term "Holy Ghost," the word ghost is twice translated out of Pneuma, and Spirit (of God) is found 188 times. See now Rom. viii. 11 and again apply the thought of Force.

The word Spirit is found coming from one other Hebrew word in the Old Testament and that word is Neshama, found twice—Job xxvi. 4 and Prov. xx. 27. Here again apply the thought of Force. In the New Testament also the word Spirit is found twice coming from the word Phantasma (Gr.)

In our next we will consider more definitely the word SPIRIT in its different applications in the text. Ever keep in mind the thought of FORCE in this connection.

Conference Report.

Again have a goodly number of brethren of like precious faith, who are anxiously awaiting the Lord's return and setting up of his kingdom, met in Quarterly Conference with the brethren at Coat's Grove, Mich., and we are all very certain that we were much benefited and instructed at these meetings.

Brother L. D. Decker, being delayed en route, could not fill his position as president the first evening, so Brother Payne was appointed as temporary Chairman. Brother S. J. Lindsay gave an excellent discourse, following the usual opening exercises. Some excellent points were brought out from some of Christ's Parables.

Saturday morning Brother B. W. Woodward gave an excellent discourse on "The Covenants of Promise," which are always dear to a believer's heart. In the afternoon, Sister M. A. Woodward gave a rousing discourse from the subject "Profit and Loss," drawing her main lesson from Naaman's Sin. In the evening Brother Lindsay spoke very convincingly from the subject "Conversion," showing how necessary is repentance, and that to the extent of making past wrongs right, and being willing to yield ourselves to God and his Son whom he hath sent, his Word that we have for our enlightenment, put on Christ by baptism, and thus become heirs of God's promises. We greatly rejoiced, when the invitation was given, to see one desire to be obedient, and we therefore now have the pleasure of introducing to the brethren, Miss Helen Fletcher, 529 So. Park St., Kalamazoo, Mich. Bro. Lindsay as leteacher to put on Christ by baptism, as also her mother, Mrs. Fletcher, who while a believer had become satisfied that she had not been properly baptized, and therefore applied for baptism with her daughter. We commend these "babes in Christ" to the tender care and solicitation of the brethren everywhere.

Sunday morning, after the Bible School, Brother Lindsay spoke from the topic "The Two Adams," and how much more beautiful and to be desired becomes God's promises, when we are made to see what he has in store for his children.

In the afternoon the undersigned spoke from the topic "The Value of a Life," endeavoring to show the necessity of Christian character to success both here and hereafter. After social meeting in the evening, Brother Lindsay spoke again on "Value of the Types and Shadows of the Old Testament," pointing out the very evident difference between present day "Theology" (as by Foster and his kind) to the beautiful truth and promises God has spoken for those that are his. Several types were used to point out and prove that those early records are truth, because so clearly verified in the antitype, Christ our Lord.

The Communion Service followed the evening discourse, at which Brother Woodward officiated.

All who attended this Conference seemed most glad that it was their privilege to be there, and we are glad that arrangements were made with Brother Lindsay to continue services there for another week, as such good interest was being manifest, and may God help us all to be faithful in that which he has intrusted to us, that when Jesus shall appear he may say "Well done" unto us, is the prayer and wish of

Your Obedient Servant,

What Makes a Great Life.

Do not try to do a great thing; you may waste your life in waiting for the opportunity which may never come. But since little things are always claiming your attention, do them as they come—from a great motive, for the glory of God, to win his smile of approval, and to do good to men. It is harder to plod on in obscurity; acting thus, than to stand on the high places of the field, within the view of all, and do deeds of valor at which rival armies stand still to gaze.

No such act goes without the swift recognition and the ultimate recompense of Christ. To fulfil faithfully the duties of your station; to use to the uttermost the gifts of your ministry; to bear chafing and trivial irritations as martyrs bore pillory and stake; to find the noble trait in people who try to molest you; to put the kindest construction on unkind acts and words; to love with the love of God even the unthankful and evil; to be content to be a fountain in the midst of a wild valley of stones, nourishing a few lichens and wild flowers, or now and again a thirsty sheep; and to do this always and not for praise of men, but for the sake of God—this makes a truly great life.—F. B. Meyer.

Brother O. J. Allard of Fort Dodge, Iowa, writes under date of October 25, as follows:

Please say through the columns of The Restitution that I am in a position to answer calls for evangelistic work in any State. Who wants the work first? First come, first served!

The article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

The Church at Rensselaer, again in grief stricken by death taking from them another member much beloved,—Mrs. Margaret J. Grant.

Margaret J. Dillon, born Feb. 20, 1835, died at Rensselaer, Oct. 28, 1909, at the age of 74 years, 8 months and 8 days. She came to Jasper County, Indiana, in 1850—where she continued her residence until death. In 1875, Jan. 17th, she was happily united in marriage with Aton Grant of Rensselaer, also a beloved member of the church. This union was blessed with three children born to them,—Charley, Garland and Josie Gertrude, who with her husband are left to mourn her departure.

In the early sixties, she united with the Church of God, at Rensselaer—ever after proved faithful to her vows, although in very poor health for a number of years before her death, she failed not to assemble for devotion and exhortation to love and good works, as often as health would permit. The Church truly mourn her loss, and deeply sympathize with the bereft companion,—children,—many relatives,—and large circle of friends, who deplore her death.

The funeral was held at the home, Tuesday the 26th, attended by a very large concourse of long standing friends, who listened attentively to words of comfort, by the writer, from 1 Thess. iv. 18, "Comfort one another with these words," after which she was laid away in silent, peaceful slumber, until "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven; with the voice of the archangel" to awake his sleeping dead. May he soon come and gather them together with the living saints, to be ever more with him.

D. T. Halstead.

Died at the home of his brother Arthur Chaplin, at Arkansas City, Kansas, Oct. 18, 1909, Rolando P. Chaplin, aged 65 years, 4 months, and 17 days.

Rolando P. Chaplin was born near Warsaw, Indiana, June 1st, 1844. Enlisted as a soldier in the Union Army at the age of 18, served 3 years. Was married to Clarissa Logan in 1867. To this union were born three children, Allen P. and Ora M. of Arkansas City, Kansas, and Mrs. Chloe Shinn of Wichita.

His wife died in Geuda Springs, Kansas, Feb. 13th, 1893. Several years after he was again married to Mrs. Minnie Beam, of Chicago, who, with his three children still survive him.

In early manhood he became a believer in the things concerning the kingdom and the name of Jesus Christ, and for a great many years was active in the work of the Master, as his brethren in the faith in Indiana will remember. And while failing health and various causes has deterred the active work he once engaged in in the Master's vineyard, yet we are assured he died in the faith of a triumph over death and the grave.

A short funeral service was conducted at his brother Arthur's home, after which his remains were conveyed to Geuda Spring, where a large company of friends assembled at the Christian Church, to pay their last tribute of respect to their neighbor, brother and friend.

Elder G. B. Williamson, the pastor of the church conducted the service, then we laid him to rest in the Geuda Springs cemetery, to await the resurrection of the dead.

His home for the past twelve years has been Wichita, Kansas. He was visiting at Arkansas City when death's messenger called him to sleep the last long sleep.

Brother George Elton, of this City, mourns the loss of his wife. She died Oct. 25th, and was buried on the 27th. We extend to our brother, his family, and his relatives, our sincere sympathy and Fotherly prayer in this sad hour of his bereavement.

We are writing these editorials Oct 28th. At present date we have not heard from Brother Whitford, who, the reader will remember, refuses to call us "brother" because he imagined we do not believe in the judgment. We have asked him to show us by Bible authority that we are wrong on this subject, and that the error is so serious as to rupture our fellowship. We are still waiting to hear Brother Whitford's response.

Dating Oct. 25th, Brother Elijah Satterfield, of Bismark, Mo., writes: "We take great pleasure in introducing to you Brother G. M. Morgan, of Bristow, Oklahoma, who has just closed a meeting here. Our brother preaches the truth of Christ with boldness, meekness, and sincerity. A person of the One Hope can only be confirmed by hearing him. During his series of meetings here a Christian preacher asked him several questions, assisted by a man in the rear of the church. Though Brother Morgan preached one discourse after this disturbance, he made no mention of how he had been treated. His suggestion made to the Christian minister that they settle their differences by dividing the time equally between them for a week, was not accepted. We hope some good seed fell on good ground."

Obsession and Exorcism.

My mother, Sister E. Williams, wishes you to explain obsession and exorcism in Ebenezer.—Joseph Williams.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Obsession denotes the state of a person vexed or besieged by an evil spirit; the act of being besieged; but particularly the condition of a person antecedent to possession. Exorcism is the act of expelling evil spirits from persons by a set form of adjurations and ceremonies; sometimes an incantation used for this end. "Certain of the vagabond Jews," we are told, were "exprcist." Acts xix. 13. Lit, erally vagabundus signifies a nomid, one who has no certain abode. From the days of Soloman, if we give credence to Jewish tradition (Joseph. Antiq 8: 2. 5) the country was overrun with strolling exorcist, who pretended by a ring, root, and cup of water, to perform wonderful cures. Jesus refers to them as casting out devils, either as a fact, or by accomodative reference. Mt. 12: 27. At the best these exorcist who went from place to place as "vagabonds," were but cheap imitations of Christ's power to heal; for though the populace were unfriendly to him, yet when confronted by a dumb man speaking as the result of Christ's healing, they confessed. "It was never so seen in Israel." Mt. 9: 33. It is worthy of notice that while the power of casting out devils was bestowed by Christ while on earth upon the apostles (Mt. 10: 8) and the seventy disciples (Lk. 10: 17 19,) and was, in fulfillment of his promises (Mk. 16: 17,) exercised by believers after his ascension, (Acts 16: 18.) no miracle, whither performed by Jesus himself or his followers, is ever described by the terms "exorcise" or "exorcist" in the New Testament.

A Plain Talk on Creeds.

From Alexander Campbell, the founder of the Christian church to the present day, the Votaries of that sect have been abusing Creeds (See the Millennial Harbinger vol. 3, page 362), "whether the opinions in them were true or false; they are hostile to the union, peace, harmony, purity and joy of Christians." (Christian Septem. p. 9). Strange to relate that this self-styled "reformer", after hurling thunder bolts at creed-mongers of the universe, wrote and sent "a written declaration of their faith" to the Red Stone Association as proof of their orthodoxy; and that he and followers were received into fellowship on that written creed! If creeds, "whether the opinions in them were true or false," be so destructive to "union, peace, harmony," etc., as Mr. Campbell says they are strange, that he should write an article on the faith and practice of his "disciples" for insertion in the "Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge," page 462! Strange as the inconsistences of Campbell and his devotees are, it is yet more inscrutable how his invectives against creeds should indirectly and powerfully influence some members of the Church of God. For their sakes we wish to have a "plain" talk on the subject of creed.

Is it true as Campbell affirms, and as some of our own brethren allege, that creeds are full of deadly poison, and are responsible for most of the evils in the world? We admit the Babel that is in the religious world; that Christendom is divided into waring fractions, etc. Are creeds responsible for all these evils? Some people seem to think so, hence they have sworn vengeance on creeds. They think that since the introduction of creeds have caused all this trouble, to abolish them would bring peace to the world, and usher in the latter day glory. Different creeds exist; did they cause the trouble? No affect can exist uncaused. Did the creeds cause the trouble, or the trouble the creeds? So long as the church was of one mind, entertained the same belief of the import of God's word, different creeds were impossible. Unity of faith rendered it impossible to produce different creeds. Different opinions must have existed before creeds. Different creeds originated from the previous existence of conflicting opinions in the church. To suppose, as some do, that creeds make men to differ, and to have caused all the divisions found in the religious world, involves the absurdity of supposing the effect to be older and more powerful than the cause that produced it!

Suppose the Campbellite crusade against creeds to be successful: suppose they were all committed to the flames: imagine all this effected—What, after all, would be the result? Would the non-existence of creeds make all men chime into harmony, and dance to the same measure? Would there be less heterodoxy and more orthodoxy in the world? No. Some would read the Bible and come to one conclusion, others at another. One would decide that the Bible taught the pre-existence of Christ; another that he was a created being; one that he was the Son of Joseph; another that he was the Son of God; one that pardon of sin was by "faith only", another by faith, repentance and baptism; and so on. The result would be the formation of different creeds and as many sects. The trouble antedates creeds and caused them; were creeds abolished, the trouble which caused them would survive, and would soon give birth to different creeds again. So brethren let us quit reverberating the Campbellite cry of nonsense about creeds. Let us quit abusing people because they have creeds. Rather let us encourage them to have right creeds (beliefs). If they have wrong ones let us show them the error that is in them kindly and scripturally.

The element among us who decry creeds are very much like the saloon men when the dry elections were held in the different states; they invariably raised the "personal liberty" howl. They resemble a foreigner who recently came to Cleveland, and who was brought into the police court for whipping his wife. When the charge was made against him he seemed much surprised and said: "Why is not America a country of freedom and liberty? Haven't I the right to whip my wife if I want to?" He was told that people in this country had perfect freedom and liberty to do just as they pleased, as long as they pleased to do right! People object to discipline in the church for the same reason that an anarchist objects to law and order; he wants "liberty" to do as he pleases. The man who objects to creed and discipline in morals and doctrine, does so (and he will admit the truth of my charge, if he will examine the motives of his heart) because he wants "liberty" to believe any old rotten doctrine, and do any old detestable deed. Mark such men; they are dangerous. Mark such men; they are religious anarchist. 2 Thess. 3: 14. Rom. 16: 17.

Sermon Gems.

Another Prophecy. Isaiah 7-16.

We have now explained in logical order the Messianic prophecy of Isa 7: 14 and 15. Our concluding thought is this: We have in Isaiah 7:16 another prophecy independent and separate from the one we have expounded. That is a distinct prophecy we affirm for the following reasons:

1. The Lord directed the prophet Isaiah to take his son Shearjashub, when he went to meet Ahaz, no doubt with the design that the child's presence would serve some purpose; yet no use is made of his son unless it is made in the prophecy recorded in the 16th verse. (See verse 7.)

2. The prophecy of the Messiah in the 14th and 15th verses was fulfilled seven hundred years after it was uttered; the prophecy in the 16th verse was to be accomplished before Shearjashub arrived at the years of discretion—"before the child shall know to refuse the evil." (See verse 16).

3. The first prophecy was plural, and addressed to the "house of David"; the second is singular and addressed to Ahaz, for it tells of the destruction of "both kings" (verse 16); and then continues in the following language which cannot be understood as addressed to any one but Ahaz: "The Lord shall bring up THEE and upon thy people, and upon thy father's house, days, etc., verse 17.

4. The same word that is translated "for" in the 16th verse is rendered "but" in verse 13: "It is a small thing for you to weary men, BUT will you weary my God also?" Dr. Kennicott says in a sermon on this text (he preached it at the University of Oxford, May 19, 1765) that the old English Bibles printed in 1535, 1537, 1539 1549 and 1550, translate the 16th verse, "BUT before THIS child shall know to refuse the evil." "But" distinctly marks the transition from one prophecy to the other.

5. The word translated "the child" in the 16th verse should be rendered "THIS child." I make this affirmation not only upon the authority of the old English versions before referred to, but the Greek and other ancient translations confirm my statement; for in Gen. 48, when Jacob blessed the two sons of Joseph, he used the same word in the plural form which Isaiah uses in the singular number, "these children." Our translators of the Bible represent the ripest and best scholarship of the world, and they have often expressed the emphatic article by THIS and THAT in the singular number, and by THESE in the plural form. To cite a few examples: "There is nothing before our eyes, but THIS manna." Numb. 11:6; "Make THIS fellow return," 1 Sam. 20:1; "I have not sent THESE prophets." Jer. 23:21; "THIS year thou shalt die," 28:16. When we say that Isa. 7:16 should be rendered "this child," we are hiding behind the best scholarship of the world. The translation is fully vindicated.

6. Shearjashub was the child referred to (Isa. 7:3). His name means, "A remnant shall return." A powerful confederacy had formed against Ahaz, and as the enemy entered the land of Judah, the heart of the king and his people was moved "as the trees of the wood are moved with the wind." V. 2. It was a time of fear and consternation. The prophet first gives the "house of David" (V. 13), a prophecy of the Messiah. "The Lord himself shall give YOU a sign" (14). Through this predicted event was a long distance in the future, it gave them present consolation, as it assured them of the preservation of the house of David. Then the prophet turned to Ahaz with Shear-jashub in his arms, a child about two years old, and said to him, "PUT BEFORE THIS CHILD shall know to refuse the evil and choose the good, the land that thou abhorrest shall be forsaken of both her kings." This prophecy was soon after fulfilled. The words, "this child," are words of action, like when our Lord said, "Destroy THIS TEMPLE," pointing to his body. Jno. 2:18-19. Editor.

SALVATION. No. 1.

"This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am chief."

Salvation consists of deliverance from two things:—From sin, which is the cause, and from death which is the resulting penalty. For death came by sin, and sin by man, "in whom all sinned," and therefore God "will have all men to be saved." Any salvation which does not deliver from both sin and death is therefore incomplete, and any gospel preaching which does not include both in its offer is deficient. For, "thou shalt call his name Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins." And again, he who has become a sinner is to be a soul saved from death, Jas. v. "Jesus," "Savior," because he saves. "Life Giver" because to be saved through pardon we have need to have life given to remove the penalty, 1 John v. 16-17.

What is sin? "Sin is the transgression of the law." Therefore, "where no law is there is no transgression." Hence the imperfect deeds of animals are to them not sin. Likewise, people of good morals may follow a conscience not fully enlightened without a sense of guilt, when in God's sight they are foul. We do not realize our foulness till we stand before God's mirror. But since this mirror is "perfect" we may now know as we are known by him as we see ourselves "face to face," and can say with him, "All unrighteousness is sin," for all our sins are then laid bare.

It is sin that indulges the foul thoughts, slanders his absent neighbor, cheats his friend, oppresses his hired servants. Sin lies awake nights studying how to "get even" and gain advantages over a rival. Sin consumes hundreds of thousands of dollars yearly in liquor, tobacco, tea, coffee and indigestible foods. It fills the dark places of fair earth with the "habitations of cruelty." It murders, steals, defiles itself in every way it can, and then glories in its shame by telling dirty stories. Its heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked, because its imaginations are only evil continually. And you and I are both guilty in all points. But, "He shall save his people from" all these. His blood "cleanseth us from all sin. If we say that we have no sin we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, he is just to forgive us our sins," and more than that, to "cleanse us from all unrighteousness. If we say that we have not sinned we make him a liar, and his Word is not in us." "He loved the church and gave himself for it, that he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot, nor wrinkle, nor any such thing, but that it should be holy and without blemish."—Joseph Williams.

Selections.

The King of Kings.

He is the hero of a sacred story, "Whose goings forth have been from of old from everlasting to everlasting." The seed of the woman who shall bruise the serpent's head; the one to whom all the prophets gave witness; the seed of Abraham, in whom all families of the earth shall be blessed; the seed of David, whose kingdom and dominion shall be under the whole heavens; the Son of God, the Wonderful, Counsellor, the mighty God, everlasting Father, the only Redeemer, the babe of Bethlehem, the Teacher of Nazareth; the crucified, the risen, the ascended, the Mediator, the soon-coming One; the resurrection, the Eternal Life to all his dear saints. He is the Bread of Life. This is our Savior. This is our Christ. Eternal victory shall be ours when he comes. Blessed day; blessed hour.

We are warned there are times of peculiar peril. Paul tells us of the "evil day," as presenting an extraordinary occasion of temptation. It may come when we are the least prepared for it. In sudden increase of wealth man may be led to forget God, or he may sink under trial and like Elijah pray for death. In some great exigency he may be led to risk integrity and do that which is dishonest, or when trouble comes upon him he may seek to drown his sorrows in the intoxicating cup. The greatest safeguard is to be so constantly clothed with the whole armor of God that is evil day may be transformed into a good day. If we realize our danger and make fit preparation for it, we may be "more than conquerors through him that loved us."

ALL-ROUND CHARITY.

"Charity thinketh no evil."—1 Cor. xiii. 6.

A little all-round charity is very desirable, and as rare as it is desirable.

It is a good sign, in one sense, when our adversaries have to resort to misrepresentation in making out a case against our conflict or preaching. It shows they are hard pressed for arguments. The misrepresentation may not be wilful, however. It may be the result of honest, though distressing, misconception.

We are so apt to forget that the Spirit of God works through each man's natural temperament moulding directing, and energising it for the Divine purpose, and for its assimilation to the Divine character. Yet no two persons may think or act exactly alike. The differences of style among the Sacred writers are very marked, but they all manifest one and the self-same Spirit in their wondrous variety.

It is sometimes as needful to exercise the wisdom of the serpent as the harmlessness of the dove. The skillful angler does not stir up the waters into foam, and frighten the fish before he tries to catch them. Sometimes preaching would be more effective if we did not bring in extraneous matters, and alienate men's minds by stating our strong convictions on points which might well be left alone, and on which our hearers hold equally strong, but contrary convictions. Our arguments would be quite as strong if we refrained from such side issues—indeed, they would be much stronger, since the force would be unweakened by the distraction arising from subsidiary points. If our views on these points are wrong, of course the mischief is much more serious, but even if our views are right, there are weighty considerations which may deter us from their untimely presentment. Our Lord Himself acted in this way, and at times withheld what He would have said. "I have many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now." (John xvi. 12.)

Another thing, is the measure of prominence given to a doctrine in the Bible not some indication of its importance in the Divine plan, and of the [illegible] it should have in our [illegible] Should it [illegible] serious mistake to press subordinate matters to the front. However sincerely and ably it may be done, such a course can hardly fail to keep back more important matters, and hinder, rather than help, the Gospel of Christ.

One has so little time, even at the longest, that it seems a pity not to spend it largely in setting forth the most pressing and primary truths where these are not embraced. Paul's resolution when he came to visit the Corinthians was excellent:—"I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and Him crucified" (1 Cor. ii. 8). This is an invaluable guiding rule, and it settles many subordinate matters into a subordinate place.

Of course, one who sees differently in these things must act differently. If he is convinced that it is his duty to press some particular idea which others ignore or reject, he must do it, but with love and moderation, and those who hear should hear in the same spirit, so that both speaking and hearing may be with the meekness of wisdom.

Everyone who has had much experience of life, and has kept an open eye must have been struck with the amount of evil that arises from sheer misunderstanding of other peoples' meaning when there is no intention whatever to make mischief or misrepresent another. But the best of us are fallible, and with all our efforts we sometimes fail to express our ideas so that those who hear us should carry away the precise meaning we intend to convey.

Two striking instances of this were forced upon my attention lately when studying the Book of Joshua. Twice over, the tribes of Reuben, Gad and half the tribe of Manasseh, caused serious misapprehension of their meaning by apparently expressing it inadequately. In the first instance (Num xx) they told Moses they wished to obtain their inheritance on the east of the Jordon as the land their suited their large possessions of cattle and sheep. Moses reproached them with unfaithfulness in seeking to leave their brethren to fight their battles alone on the other side of Jordan. If they persisted in this the Lord would not bless them. It was only after the remonstrance that they explained their intention fully, viz, to leave their women and children behind them with the flocks and herds, while they themselves would cross the Jordan with their brethren to help them in subduing the Canaanites. This quite changed the aspect of matters Moses agreed to their request, after which the two and a half tribes honestly carried out their engagement, and remained with their brethren—for about seven years probably—until all enemies had been subdued. Afterwards they returned home with the blessing of Joshua and then occurred the second case of misunderstanding, which nearly led to civil war in Israel. On crossing the Jordan they built a large altar which was evidently a violation of the law in Deut. xii. 13,14, which forbade offerings being made anywhere except in the place appointed by God, which was then in Shiloh.

The other tribes at once took alarm, and assembled in a body to make war against their offending brethren. First, however, they sent a deputation to ask the meaning of this trespass and rebellion, and to remonstrate with their misguided kinsmen, whereupon it came out that the eastern tribes had no thought of rebelling, and that the altar was not erected for burnt offerings at all, but as a witness to the unity of the whole nation, and as a memorial to their children who should come after them, of the one altar which Jehovah had appointed for His people. Thus a little kindly consideration and patience, leading to charitable investigation, cleared away a grevious misunderstanding, and averted a warlike collision among the people of God, which must have had most disastrous results.

The lesson from all this is very obvious. The apostle James puts it briefly:—"Wherefore, my beloved brethren, let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath" (James i. 19). The memories of our own failures and mistakes, and precipitate actions, will help to drive it home, and encourage charity all round.

We are but the Lord's servants after all, and if we are chiefly concerned about pleasing Him, we shall escape many troubles, and be considerate of our fellow-workers. At the same time, let us do our best to prevent and remove misunderstandings, and every root of bitterness that may spring up to mar peace and disturb usefulness. Then, if we have a conscience void of offence towards God and men, we need not fear the judgment of our fellows.

It is a comfort to remember that the Lord knows our frame. "He remembereth that we are dust" (Ps. ciii 14). He has unfailing compassion for all weak and out-of-the-way ones, and no service, however humble, goes unnoticed or unrequited. The consoling and succouring Hand will not be withheld now from those who will seek it, and the Rest that remaineth, is sure.—J. R. Norrie.

Franklin's Retort Courteous.

After the name of Washington had been made in Europe, Benjamin Franklin chanced to dine one day with the English and French ambassadors, when toasts were the order of the day. The following toast was offered by the British ambassador:—

"England, the sun whose bright beams enlighten and fructify the remotest corners of the earth."

The French ambassador, glowing with national pride, but too polite to dispute the previous toast, said:—

"France, the moon whose mild, steady and cheering rays are the delight of all nations, consoling them in darkness and making their dreariness beautiful."

Dr. Franklin then arose, and with his usual dignified simplicity, proposed:—

"George Washington, the Joshua who commanded the sun and moon to stand still, and they obeyed him."

STAND FIRM.

This is the customary caution for every hour of peril or danger. In the battle's front the division or brigade commander gives out the word as he forms his lines either for the onslaught or to resist the enemy's attack, and the regimental and company commander pass it along the line—"Stand firm, men, stand firm," and every soldier braces himself for the shock and prepares to do his duty faithfully, whatever it may cost. So also in times of natural, financial, political, social or family peril, the caution comes from the more experienced or the more alert, who see the danger and the need of united effort to oppose it. "Stand firm," rings out from the press, from the party leaders, from the pastor, the teacher or the parent as the case may be, and those addressed heed the call, support the public or party policy to which they are pledged, pour forth money and workers freely, set on foot meetings, rallies or more private measures, as may be required and thus the emergency is met and the danger resisted. The value of the caution depends upon the loyalty of those to whom it is addressed. If they are well disciplined soldiers, they will respond like Wellington's Iron Brigade, and die if they must, but it will be facing the foe. If they are intelligent, public-spirited citizens, they will defend their principles, their nation's honor, or their social and family rights against any of the aggressions of evil.

As a religious faith and people, now is the time to sound the caution, "Stand firm," and pass it all along the line. We are a people by right of a God-given heritage of truth. We have seen with no uncertain vision the light of divinely given truth breaking from the sacred Scriptures; and have heard the thrilling message from our absent Lord, speaking to our hearts: "Behold I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according to his work shall be." Awakened by this message we have rejoiced together in the glorious privilege of confessing it before the world, and of uniting to send it on to others who have not heard it, or whose slumbers in carnal or churchly security have not yet been sufficiently disturbed to compel them to either accept or reject its appeals. For more than a generation have this people rejoiced in this truth, and stood for its advance, few, and often poorly equipped, but undaunted, and with a firm front; and we have seen it win acceptance and a place, until now there are strong men in nearly every evangelical denomination, who hold it, and some who advocate more or less openly and boldly, all honor to their nobility of soul, the plainly revealed truth of all Scripture and of all experience that man is now mortal and must go into eternal oblivion, unless given a life giver or vivifier from death and the grave. That Christ is that Vivifier, "the resurrection and the life," the only hope for immortal life; and added to this the thrilling assurance, from celestial signs, of speedy deliverance and the realization of our hope in the glorious return of the Son of God in majesty and power to complete his promised redemptive work.

The danger to which we are now exposed is that of insidious disintegration. We are a small and scattered people and shall never be aught but this. Our work is that of witnessing and keeping before the world a generally rejected truth, and of necessity we cannot expect to become large or popular in any land, hardly in any community. Like Noah we have been commissioned to deliver a message that would save a world if believed, but have had the disheartening experience of its rejection. And the most dangerous form of rejection is a quasi acceptance, that listens courteously, praises our sincerity and earnestness, assures us of Christian fellowship and then invites us to unite with a much larger people in order to promote the cause of modern (lukewarm) Christianity. If we do this, beloved, we are lost, as a people. We shall simply disappear among the mass of those who are either indifferent or hostile to truth, but who are perfectly willing to take us into their churches, fellowship us, permit us to help sustain their work, help pay their pastors, and help support their colleges and missionary societies; perfectly confident that however we may protest and object they have both the numbers and the prestige to quietly squelch us if we will only permit it by merging our individually into theirs. Brethern, we entreat you. Do not be so hoodwinked and ensnared. Stand this way.

firm for your faith, small and puny as it may seem compared with the mighty organizations about us.

Stand firm, my brother, my sister in the "blessed hope." The great cause of truth needs your sturdy resistance to the wheedling tempter. Do not hide your light under a bushel. Put yourself among Christians, in some Christian church, wherever you may be, and modestly, humbly yet faithfully, deliver your message. They will hear it as long as you are independent. If they will not you can go elsewhere. But when you have given them your name and your hand you will have to drop objectionable talk or feel the weight of quiet opposition and cool intimidation. Retain your independence.—Our Hope.

THE POCKET-BOOK.

"Tom Jackson says he does not believe there is a God; he says he never saw him; and I don't know that I believe—I never saw him," said John Cary, just come in from the company of Tom Jackson. "I do," said his mother. She said nothing more.

A week or more after this, John burst into the kitchen with Tom at his heels. "See mother," he cried, "what I have found—such a handsome pocket book!"

"Where did you find it?" said his mother.

"In Pine Grove; now, who do you suppose it belongs to?" said John with a puzzled look?

"I dare say it grew there," said his mother.

"Grew there," exclaimed John, lifting up his eyebrows with great surprise; "a pocket book grow in the woods! Who ever heard of such a thing? It could not be."

"Why not?" she asked.

"Why not?" replied the boy; "the pocket book was made on purpose. Look here!" opening it; "here is a place for bank-notes, and here is a little out-of-the-way spot with a snug fastening for gold, and a memorandum book and a pencil-case, and a beautiful gold pencil. Look, mother, with a pen and a lead, both; it was made for a man to use."

"Some contrivance here, certainly," said his mother, putting down her work and taking it into her hand, "for wonder; was it made there that he might write a useful pocket-book if it did not grow there, perhaps it made itself." Both boys stared at her more and more.

"Why, mother, you talk foolishly," said John, with a sober and puzzled look; "there must have been a man with a mind to make it so."

"A man that knew how—a pretty neat workman," added Tom Jackson.

"How do you know? you never saw him."

"No, but I have seen his work, and that's enough to convince me; I am just as certain that somebody made it as if I saw him."

"You are!" said Mrs. Cary; "how so?"

"Why mother," said John, very much in earnest, "you see the pocket-book had to be planned to answer a certain purpose; now, it must have had a planner, that's the long and short of it; and I know it just as well as if I saw it planned and done by the man himself."

"That is," said his mother, "it shows wise contrivance, and it must have had a wise contriver. Somebody must have made it and thought beforehand how to make it."

"Just so!" exclaimed both boys at once. "It would be foolish to think otherwise," added John.

"I think so," said his mother. "And it is just as foolish," she continued, as she looked into the boy's eyes, "when you see the wonderful contrivance in the beings and things around you, the end for which they were made, and the skill with which they were put together, for you to doubt or deny that there is a God who made them. Who planned your eyes to see with, and your ears to hear with? Can eyes make themselves? Can a man make a bird? Who created the sun, and planned night and day? Did your mother and father plan your fingers and make them grow? You never saw who does all these things, but you know perfectly well that a great somebody thought beforehand, designed and contrived the eye, and the sun and your fingers—all things and all beings which are around you. And that great somebody is God, the eternal Mind, and great Maker of us all."

The boys did not expect to be condemned from their own mouths in

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Hindu Literature.

This book of over 400 pages is of special value to the young people in order to enable them to meet the attacks upon Christianity from Theosophists and others. It has been fully endorsed by the most eminent Oriental scholars of Europe as being authentic, and the historic facts here presented are unimpeachable. A few copies of this standard $1 50 book may now be had for $1.00 a copy post paid. It is used in colleges and universities. Send all orders to Mrs. Elizabeth A Reed, 1811 Balmoral av, Chicago, Illinois.

THE RESTITUTION is only $1.50 per year. Try it a year.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foora's tracts, nor for D.C Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John J. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1 00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Thy Kingdom Come.

Lord, when we pray "Thy kingdom come!"
Then hold our hands without a care
For those whom thou hast died to save,
We do but mock thee with our prayer.

Thou could'st have sent an angel band
To call thine erring children home;
And thus through heavenly ministries
On earth thy kingdom might have come.

But since to human hands like ours
Thou hast committed work divine,
Shall not our eager hearts make haste
To join their feeble powers with thine?

To word and work shall not our hands
Obedient move, our lips be dumb,
Lest through our sinful love of ease,
Thy kingdom should delay to come?

The Bible and Its Message. No. 21.

We are led to believe that many who have taken upon them the name of Jesus through faith, repentance and baptism do not fully understand their relation to Jehovah's purpose I fear that they do not realize that they are a SEPARATE PEOPLE, an ELECT PEOPLE. They are a part of the body of Christ. They in the end will become the Bride. They are not now the Bride but will be made that if they reach that fulness in Christ. We are now elected for that position and are admonished to make our election sure. We can only do this by a strict adherance to the requirements of Jehovah's laws. Paul says I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord; for whom I have suffered the loss of all things and do count them but dross, that I may win Christ, and be found in him, not having mine own righteousness, which is of the law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is of God by faith; that I may know him, and the power of his resurrection and the fellowship of his sufferings, being made conformable unto his death. If by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead. Phil iii 8 to 11.

The apostle counted all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus the Lord. Should we not apply this ourselves. Did not Paul separate himself from the religious world around him? Permit me to say that this age is one of trial. The church (ecclesia) which Christ will present will be one without spot, or wrinkle or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish. Eph v 27. Each of the called out ones should strive as did Paul to become a part of this perfected body. If you are saved it will be as an individual member of the body of Christ as separated from the world. Jehovah has elected that the church is a peculiar (purchased) people. He has prescribed laws whereby we may ELECT ourselves to an honorable position in this body. Paul to the Galatians says, Jesus Christ hath been evidently set forth, crucified among you. He says of himself, I am crucified with Christ, nevertheless I live. Yet not I, but Christ liveth in me; and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God who loved me and gave himself for me. The conclusion of this matter is that, They that are Christ's have CRUCIFIED the flesh with the affections and lusts. Any thing less than this will leave us out of the kingdom of God. What Jehovah required of the apostle Paul he requires of you. Read the history of the ancients (Heb xi) and you will learn that they were strangers and sojourners in the land that Jehovah had promised them. They separated themselves from the evil world in which they lived. For this reason Moses refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter. He refused to become a Pharaoh and rule Egypt. To be a ruler of God's people he must declare his separateness. He chose rather to SUFFER affliction with God's people than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season. He esteemed the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt; for he had respect unto the recompense of the reward. Do not the lives of such men as Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and Moses remind us that we can make our lives sublime? They refused to become world leaders looking for that reward which is promised, Eternal Life. Should we not labor to bear honorably the titles of honor bestowed upon us? We are addressed as holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly calling. As saints and faithful brethren in Christ.

Again unto the church at Corinth to them that are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints with all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ our Lord. To these the Apostle admonishes to all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and the same judgment. Christ is not divided. If we hold the truth in unrighteousness we will not be among the saints who will rule the earth in righteousness. You are only as strong as your weakest point. Upon this point the enemy will test you. First Christ was tested on the point of hunger, the weakest point. Second on his desire to exhibit his power, perform a miracle. Third on his desire to be the ruler of the habitable. The last was the desire to gather the fruit before it had matured. He had been promised the power to rule the world but not then. On all these points he became the victor. Not one of all the saints can escape the "threefold trial." Along this line we are admonished to watch. We become his disciples, then comes the time of our testing.

Peter says, That the trial of your faith being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honor and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ. 1 Pet 1 7. There are two results from this testing. (1) We are to become the epistles of Christ to be read by all men. Also the mirrors that reflect the Christ life. This aspect of our lives is to help the weak and to prove to the world that we are a SEPARATE people. (2) that we may be found unto praise and honor and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ. The latter is our individual reward.

Dear readers, we have written the above to show you that Jehovah's purpose concerning us is that we forever remain a separate people. The Church of Christ is a separate community. She has renounced the world. In every characteristic she has come out of the world. Her hope is not that of the world. The world's hope is to save the world in the Church. They hope to save the world before the perfecting of the Church. This is at variance with every prophecy concerning the Christ and his future work. This eliminates the necessity of the kingdom that God has promised to the saints, Daniel ii 44; vii. 27.

The separateness of the Church is a first principle—it is constitutional and essential. Its work cannot be accomplished in this dispensation, or age. Therefore we look beyond the present. This age is an age of discipline. The call is for recruits that may be developed into men and women, who will and must become physically and morally perfect. The world cannot be saved now. The preparation is being made for its future when all evil will be banished from it. Christ was manifest that he might destroy the works of the devil. I John iii. 8.

Our Captain has been perfected through trial, and will lead his brethren to victory. The Church and the world are each a separate organization. The purpose of each is opposite. The one is composed of "the called out ones," the other of the religious, social and political world. They hope to save the world now. To accomplish this would be to destroy the purpose for which Jehovah elected the Church, viz: to save the world through Christ and his immortalized saints. That is what Paul calls "another gospel." To preach it will bring down the curse of Jehovah—though an angel preach another gospel let him be accursed.

It is for the saints to see that the world is an evil organization and has a prince, John xiv. 30, The prince of this world cometh and hath nothing in me. It has a god, 2 Corinthians iv 4, If our gospel be hid it is hid to them that are lost. In whom the god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not. A spirit rules it, Ephesians ii. 2. In times past ye walked according to the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience.

Thus we see that the world has a leader, a god and a spirit. The work of the world is to oppose Jehovah's elect Church. The present work of the Church is to keep herself separate from the world. The future work of the Church will be to destroy this religious, social and political cosmos, and establish one in which equity and justice is supreme. When Jesus returns from heaven he will beautify the saints with salvation. They will then execute vengeance upon the heathen and punishment upon the people; they will bind their kings with chains and their nobles with fetters of iron; to execute upon them the judgment written. This honor have all the saints. Then will come the time that Jesus and his saints will judge the people with righteousness and the poor with judgment. His dominion shall be from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth. Universal peace will then have been established, and this present evil organization destroyed. The future is glorious to those who are crucifying the flesh and the lusts thereof.

To those who have forgotten that the Lord delivered to them a talent, we would say, The Lord will come and reckon with that servant. The punishment inflicted upon such will be death eternal.

Every thing indicates that the Lord's coming is nigh at hand, even at the door. If you are in any way identified with "this present world," may you throw it off, and stand for the truth as it is in our Lord.

Hoping that the above article may be helpful to some who are struggling in weakness, we are as ever,

Yours standing for the truth.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOVEMBER 17, 1909. NUMBER 43.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, NOV. 28.

Paul's Self-Denial.—Temperance. Rom. xiv. 10-21.

Golden Text.—"It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth." Rom. xiv. 21.

Self-denial is a thing that very few people like. The great majority of the people have no use for it, and the minority—the few—who are somewhat self-denying, try to force the greater number to be so by law.

The verses composing this lesson set before us a little of the trouble the Church of God had in passing from the law to the gospel. The law given to and administered by Moses, beginning from Exodus 20 to the end of Leviticus is briefly summed up by Paul in Heb. ix. In verse 10 we read "Which stood only in meats and drinks, and divers washings, and carnal ordinances, imposed on them until the time of reformation." This law was only "a shadow of good things to come." Heb. x. 1, and "made nothing perfect, but the bringing in of a better hope did" Heb. vii. 19 From a consideration of these Scriptures we can much better understand the force and import of the lesson. The church at Rome "beloved of God, called to be saints" Rom. i. 7, was composed of Jews and Gentiles. While some of the Jews believed the gospel they wanted to cling to the carnal ordinances imposed by the law, and wanted the Gentiles to do the same. They said "ye must be circumcised and keep the law" Acts xv. 24. Paul said, doing that would "subvert their souls"—destroy their hope of eternal life. The Gentiles never having been under the law, refused to keep or observe it. There was a long contention between the two parties, and caused much ill feeling. It was to correct and instruct both that Paul wrote this portion of his letter to the faithful at Rome. He wrote to those who were strong in the faith not to dispute and debate concerning eating this or that, with those weak in the faith; but practice self denial by neither eating meat—flesh—nor drinking wine if it offended the weak ones. "We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves" Rom. xv. 1. There are those in the faith who never get beyond the "babe" stage. They use milk and are unskilled in the "word of righteousness" Heb v. 13. They seem not to know their condition and are liable to be offended at the words and acts of those who use strong meat, who have exercised their senses, to discern both good and bad Heb. v. 14.

The conditions set forth in the lesson do not obtain now in the church of God; but there are other things and circumstances in the church that call for self-denial on the part of those who know they are strong in the faith.

10, But why dost thou judge thy brother—condemn thy brother, condemning belongs to Christ,—no one, not any one has this right, or privilege. Those of "ripe age" in the Church of God will not attempt such a thing. All shall be judged by Christ, all submit to him, all account to him. Let there be no more judging one another." But let each of us judge—determine—that we will not do or say any thing that will upset the faith of a brother, verses 10 13.

15, An exhortation to be careful and self-denying so that one brother destroy not another,—cause him to lose eternal life, "for whom Christ died" verse 15.

17, The kingdom of God is not meat nor drink—nor anything else that is necessary to this life, but righteousness, peace and joy in the Holy Spirit—mark the words "in the Holy Spirit" Jesus said, My words are Spirit, John vi. 63. And he called his words "The glad tidings of the kingdom of God," Luke viii. 1. It requires much and continued self-denial to believe and obey the glad tidings and so obtain or be accounted righteous, and have peace and joy in the Holy Spirit.

18, All who serves Christ according to the gospel, serves him in righteousness, and has joy and peace in believing. By self-denial they believe to the saving of the soul. Heb. x. 39, because their conduct will be acceptable to God. And every law-abiding man—neighbor, will approve of such a life, though they would not even take the trouble to know the reason—the mainspring for such conduct. This leads us to again say that people generally do not like self-denial, especially the self-denial necessary to the faith that pleases God.

10, What is the first question? Where must we all stand?

11, Where is it written?—Isa. xl. 23.

12, What shall every one do?

13, What should we not do? What should we rather do? What is now a stumbling block?—The Jews reject Christ, the Gentiles profess to believe he was crucified—was dead—they deny their profession by saying he went to heaven with the thief. 1 Cor. i. 23.

14, Who persuaded Paul that there was nothing unclean? To whom is anything unclean?

15, Is it right to offend or grieve a brother? What brother? Heb. iii. 1. What may happen if we are uncharitable?

18, What is acceptable to God, and approved of men?

21, What is it not good to do? What should we do so as not to offend, to make a weak brother stumble,—ruin his faith in God? Rom. xiv. 1.

Next Lesson. Paul, On the Grace of Giving. 2 Cor. viii. 1-15.

P. NEILL.

"Behold a Sower Went Forth to Sow."

"Behold a sower went forth to sow, and when he sowed some seed fell by the wayside, and the fowls came and devoured them up; some fell upon stony places, where they had not much earth, and forthwith they sprung up, because they had no deepness of earth; and when the sun was up, they were scorched and because they had no root they withered away. And some fell among thorns and the thorns sprung up and choked them—but other fell into good ground, and brought forth fruit, some a hundred fold, some sixty fold, some thirty fold. Who hath ears to hear, let him hear." Matt. xiii. 3-9.

To the best of our knowledge this precious seed of the kingdom was first sown here, near the Perryville Battlefield, in 1876, by Levi Skeels. Not many years later Brother J. S. Hatch made us a visit, sowing the same precious seed. Oh, how it thrills our hearts when our memory calls back how these dear brothers worked hand in hand, how their voices blended in sweet melody of song, singing the sweet songs of Israel. One song in particular comes back through the mists of the past to our memory,

"What vessel are you sailing in?
Declare to us the same.
Our vessel is the Ark of God,
And Christ, our Captain's name."

But they have "hung their harps on the willow," they labored on while the shadows lengthened, they have gone to rest in the shade till the trumpet shall call them forth to take up their more glorious work of ruling, and reigning in that same kingdom, for which they worked and prayed day and night. Brother Hatch went to other fields to labor, leaving father to labor on alone, like Noah, converting none but his own house from this field. The seed was good, and although there were plenty of stones and thorns, some of the soil was good. But the seed of the kingdom differs from most seeds, it sometimes lays dormant for a number of years before it germinates, so at sunset the weary laborer looked out over the field, and beholdt there were no sheaves of golden grain to rejoice the weary heart.

Although these early laborers had prepared the soil and sowed the seed so faithfully, after they had lain down their sickles and gone to rest in the valley where the clods are sweet unto them, this same precious seed of the kingdom had germinated after laying dormant so many years, Brother J. F. Wagoner came into the field gathering a few precious sheaves, and sowing more seed. He has labored in the field here three different times, enduring many hardships traveling several miles to his place of meeting in a sleigh, with the thermometer close to zero, the frost killing orange groves in Florida, but God's love in his heart kept him in the field of labor, and it is a delight to recall the way he unfolded God's messages of love to mankind; but it is with greater pleasure we recall his October trip, with meetings in the grove, while the ripened leaves of red and golden tints were lazily tumbling down spreading a beautiful carpet for our feet, while the precious words of life were falling on anxious ears. These are pleasant memories indeed!

The next laborer to enter the field here was Brother W. H. Wilson. He comes bringing in the same good news, sowing the same precious seed, bringing joy to many hearts, and also gathering a few precious sheaves. He has labored in the field here two different times, the last being in September of the present year, of which report has already been published in THE RESTITUTION.

The next to enter the field here is Brother Joseph Williams. This young brother has wonderful talent, both as a speaker and singer. He seems to be using all his talent for God's glory, telling the gospel story—sowing the same precious seed. His work in the field here has done a great deal of good, he also, bringing in his sheaves. The morning of the 22nd, we met again at the little pool on the Bradley farm, where Brother Williams baptized Sister Flora Carpenter and Brother Ethan Carpenter. The earnestness and sincerity of our young Brother Williams is a great help and inspiration to both old and young. The only regrets of his many Kentucky friends is that he could not lengthen his visit, as we never saw greater interest, or more rapt attention given to the precious words of life—but we knowing what a great sacrifice he was making to come, leaving his other work in Indiana, could not ask him to stay longer, but hope he can find time in the future to make us another call. So on Saturday morning he and Brother Frank started out in a blinding thunder-storm for a seven mile drive to Mitchellburg to catch the train for home. We have just received a letter from our dear Brother and Uncle William Skeels, who is thinking of a trip here some time. Hope he can come. Your Sister in hope,

LAURA SKEELS.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Dear Restitution:

Enclosed find money order for $5.00 and use $1 50 to renew for THE RESTITUTION, and the remainder for helping fund or as you think best to use it. We enjoy the weekly visits of our dear paper very much, and pray God's richest blessings on you and your faithful labors.

I am your Brother in hope.

C. E HATCH.

Brother O. J. Allard of Fort Dodge, Iowa, writes under date of October 25, as follows:

Please say through the columns of THE RESTITUTION that I am in a position to answer calls for evangelistic work in any State. Who wants the work first? First come, first served.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
JOSEPH H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOV. 17, 1909.

EXAMINE Your account, and give us a renewal of subscription if you can do so.

CIRCUMSTANCES of late have added somewhat to our expenses, and we do really need what is due us right now. This ought to be enough to say, and we will not add more to it, but trust that by thus calling your attention to the matter, all who know that their time has expired, will send in renewals at once, and so relieve our necessities.

We thank you for the favor.

ONE week from tomorrow, Thursday, November 25, is the day set by the authorities of our government, as Thanksgiving Day. In some places services are held in Churches, and the people take special pains to thank God for his goodness. Others make the day a time for family reunions, with feasting and pleasure the principal feature. It is well to take a day for these purposes, but we should at all times give thanks to our Heavenly Father for the blessings he bestows on us each day of our lives.

THE suggestion has been made that we have a Christmas Love Feast this year. We favor the plan, and will gladly hold space for each one to give expression of their hope and a word of cheer for the waiting faithful ones. Write short letters, telling of your service in the Master's vineyard, and of your expectations and heart-longings. Send in as soon as you can, so we will have opportunity to arrange in proper shape. Every one, from the oldest to the youngest, all are invited to take part in this letter writing—to attend this "Christmas Love Feast."

What God Wants

The person engaged in any sort of work—from the man who digs a small trench to drain a pool of water, up to the man overseeing the construction of the Panama Canal—from the boy who sweeps the floor and tends the furnace up to the man who occupys the superintendent's chair—each is expected to "bring results." In factory, at the store, on the farm, men are asked to produce "results."

The market demands a certain article. A plant is established for its manufacture. Men are employed and asked to produce the desired commodity for a stipulated amount, so that the desired profit will be realized by the promoters. It is not so much the methods used; the end to be attained, is what counts. "Results" are asked for. Quality must be maintained. Should one man fail to "make good" in his department of the work, an investigation is called for, and a remedy sought. If the method employed be at fault that is changed, and if it be the workman he is replaced by one who can "bring results."

What is true in the every day business and industrial world is equally so in religious matters. God demands "results." It is an easy matter to go back in the early history of man as we have it given in the Word of God, and ascertain what he wanted. The world was made—made good. Various creatures were made and given life. The several elements that comprised the Garden of Eden—Paradise—were all produced, and by the Omnipotent declared to be good for the purpose each was intended. It yet lacked a care-taker—a governor. Man was created and instructed in his duties. He was asked to take the oversight of the things God had created, to care for the establishment delivered to his hands, and to produce his kind. The desired end was that this Paradise might be filled with a race of beings, holy, happy, intelligent and obedient to the supreme command of the Creator.

What happened is familiar to you each, and need not be gone over here. The man failed to produce the "result" desired. God demanded this finished product. Adam's failure made necessary a change of workmen. In order to get the "result" some one capable must be found. Jesus the Anointed—the second Adam—undertakes the task. He went successfully through the trial-test given him. Proved himself a capable leader and organized his forces. He chose a few men and instructed them, and they in turn were to teach others, ever enlarging and expanding the business, until a sufficient number of willing workmen were secured to accomplish the end sought—the desired "result."

The Master Workman, after leaving full instruction, went away for a season, promising to return when in the wisdom of the Father the time had arrived for a change in methods to be used. To the Church of the Living God was entrusted the carrying forward of this work. The Redeemer has not yet returned, and the Church is not released from her obligation. Every man entering this service is asked as was Timothy to "study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

Brother, Sister. Members of the Church of God—the Household of God. Are you producing in your life, each day, just the "result" that you know will please your Heavenly Father? If you are a member of the family of God, it is because Jesus the Christ bought you. Then you belong to him. You have a sort of feeling that even if you do slight him a little now, that at the end he will look over your "weaknesses" and accept you. You think he is so kind, and compassionate, and loving, and merciful, and forgiving, that you can depend on him for salvation, don't you? What is your idea of Paul in writing to the Philippian brethren when he called them "my beloved, and said they had "always obeyed," not only when he was with them, but in his absence as well, and then says "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling?" Do you suppose the Philippian brethren got the idea from Paul that they could neglect their Christian duty, do as they pleased, engage in all the pleasures of the world, spend their time, energy and money on frivolities, and be so exhausted and tired they could not attend to the service of God, and yet at the last could expect Jesus to save them? Be honest with yourself now. You have money to pay lodge dues, you have time and strength to get your work done so you can attend the party, you can so adjust your affairs that you can go on the excursion, you can summon up energy to dress and go visiting, or walk the streets when the band is playing. Why? Because you want to do these things.

On Sunday morning you just can't get up and hurry round to Sunday School and Church services. You just must have rest, and Sunday morning is the only time you have for it. Now honest. If you really and truly wanted to go to Sunday School and Church as bad as you wanted to go to the party, couldn't you hustle and get round in time? Did you ever think that the Church was of as much—or more—importance as the lodge? You pay lodge dues regularly—else you are dropped. Do you know that the Church has expenses that come just as regular as the lodge, and you being a member of the Church, are accountable for your part—each and every week?

Is the Church in your locality on the decline? Does the Sunday School appear "draggy" and lifeless? Did you ever do anything to stop the decline in the Church, or put vim and life in the Sunday School? Think seriously of these things. Perchance you are the main cause of the condition.

God wants "results." He has done his part for you, and has set you a task to perform. The shiftless, careless workman who fails to "make good" in his department, is replaced—is discharged. Why? Because he produced no "results." Do you think he has hopes the proprietor of the factory will some how be so kind and good as to pay his house rent, grocery and fuel bills? Has he not just as good ground for his hope as you have that God will overlook all your shortcomings? God does not ask of you impossibilities at all. But he does ask that you shall not by your love of pleasure and indulgence therein so exhaust yourself and your means that you cannot attend to his service.

My Brother and my Sister. This is a matter of serious importance. Why? Because it affects your salvation. You are not one whit better than the Philippian brethren to whom Paul wrote. They were told to "work out their salvation with fear and trembling." Be fearful and tremble lest they miss it. This subject is so important an element in your salvation that it ought to be taken into your closet, where alone with God you can think, meditate, and determine what you must do to be saved.

God wants "results." What is the measure of the service you have been giving him? Are you satisfied with it? If you are, well. If not, will you better it? Think of What God wants!

Scripture Truth Concerning Baptism.

A synopsis of a Sunday morning address delivered at Salem, Ohio, by Brother W. C. Heacock of Canton, Ohio.

All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, 2 Timothy iii. 16. Therefore in considering the subject of baptism, from the Bible, we do not follow cunningly devised fables, 2 Peter i. 16. We appeal to the law and the testimony, Isaiah viii. 20, and speak as the oracles of God, 1 Peter iv. 11.

I will endeavor to present this subject of baptism under three heads:

1. Its importance and necessity.
2. The form or mode.
3. The result.

John the Baptist came with a call to repentance. Those who did repent came to him confessing their sins. He baptized them.

Jesus said that by being baptized he would fulfill all righteousness, and John baptized him. Surely this, without further proof, does establish the importance and necessity of baptism, but proof is abundant and we will proceed.

Jesus made and baptized more disciples than John the Baptist, John iv. 1. Jesus said to Nicodemus "Except a man be born of water and of the spirit, ye cannot enter into the kingdom of God," John iii. 5.

The record of Mark confirms that statement. He that believeth—the gospel—and is baptized shall be saved, Mark xvi. 15, 16.

At the time of Pentecost Peter, standing with the eleven preached Christ to the multitude, believing what was said, they cried, Men and brethren what shall we do? The apostle said Repent, and be baptized every one of you for the remission of sins, Acts ii. 37, 38.

When Saul—Paul—made havoc of the Church at Jerusalem, Philip went down to Samaria and preached Christ, "And when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women," Acts viii. 1-12.

Philip was then told to go to the road from Jerusalem to Gaza. He met a man of Ethiopia, a eunuch. He found this man reading Isaiah. Philip from the same Scripture, preached unto him Jesus. When they came to water the eunuch said, What hinders me to be baptized? Philip said, If you believe with all your heart, you may. The eunuch said he believed, and then Philip baptized him, Acts viii. 26 38.

When Saul—Paul—was in the house of Judas in Damascus, fasting praying and blind, the Lord sent Ananias, a disciple, to him. He came and put his hands on Saul, he received his sight and was then baptized, Acts ix. 1-18.

At Philippi Paul preached to the women at a riverside. One of them, Lydia, which worshipped God, whose heart the Lord opened, she gave heed to what Paul said. She was baptized and her household, Acts xvi. 13-15.

Paul and Silas were put in prison at Philippi, the Lord opened the prison, the jailer said "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?" and they said "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house." They then showed him what to believe by preaching to him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in his house. He was baptized and all his straightway, Acts xvi. 27-33.

Crispus, the chief ruler of the synagogue at Corinth believed on the Lord with all his house, and many of the Corinthians hearing—the gospel from Paul—believed and were baptized, Acts xviii. 8.

We might go on building yet higher this tower of proof on the importance and necessity of baptism. One more instance we will add, a remarkable case, read Acts x.

Cornelius, a Gentile, a devout man, fearing God, giving alms and praying to God always. An angel told him to send for Peter and he would tell him what to do. About this time Peter had a vision in which he was told that men were coming from Cornelius for him. He went taking witnesses with him. He preached Christ and the resurrection to Cornelius. Things Cornelius did not know till then. He knew about the kingdom. As he preached the Holy Spirit fell on the Gentiles, and they spoke in tongues. This was not all sufficient to give the Gentiles a hope of salvation. Peter said, Can any man forbid water? He commanded them to be baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus.

The Church in Salem will change much, or Brother Heacock will if he ever fails to get a warm welcome. We would not be selfish in this matter, and say to any and all the brethren in Ohio, Brother Heacock—and Sister Heacock too—are much in earnest; they love the Lord, and the truth. Give Brother Heacock a warm invitation to visit you and preach. For this I have no authority from Brother Heacock, but I am sure he will respond. The Church needs such men.

This subject will be continued by consideration of "The form or mode of baptism."

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 18.

Brother Henry Taylor was another of Brother and Sister Willard's Hammonton converts. His child-life had been full of weakness and suffering and on this account he had won from his mother the tenderest love and solicitude, and never did son return a mother's love in fuller measure. When her health failed he did all for her that love could do, and when she died he was inconsolable. Two of his friends—the Judsons—had given themselves to Jesus in the first series of meetings at Hammonton, and Brother Taylor, already professing religion, often came with them to the services; but grief and undue excitement in orthodox religious circles had so affected his nervous system, that even when every thing was conducted as calmly and sedately as possible in the meetings at Brother Willards, he would turn suddenly pale and if not caught and seated, would sink to the floor in a swoon. At last, Auntie Willard,—sure that a better understanding of God's Word, would not only heal his broken heart and give him physical health, but that it would also show him that religion does not consist in excitement—invited him to make his home at their house. This he did but his sorrow over the death of his mother still continued and his constant prayer was to die, that he might go and be with her. In vain did they try to teach him the truth. He had been so long in a dark room that he shrank from the light, and every effort to comfort him was of no avail.

The people of the church to which he belonged now became alarmed, fearing he might become a "soul-sleeper" through his protracted stay at Brother Willard's, and to keep him away from the meetings at the hall, gave him license to exhort, and employed him every Sunday and every evening in a protracted meeting that lasted almost the entire winter. Brother and Sister Willard perfectly understood and thought, "We can bide our time." Every opportunity was sedulously used to set before him Bible truth, and nearly a year had passed without apparent result, when he while on a visit to friends in New York, was startled by the sudden news that his eldest brother, then in the army, was dead,—dead! Without God and without hope!

He had been taught that the wicked go to a place of eternal torment—"Is my brother there?" was his agonising cry. Suddenly the texts that had been quoted to him on this subject at Brother Willards flashed upon his mind, and he set himself to studying the Bible "as to the nature of future punishment and the time of its infliction," and his eyes were opened; the punishment he saw to be "everlasting destruction"—the awful burden was taken away; his brother would not be tortured forever, but would mercifully cease to be. At about the same time, he learned the truth as to the saint's inheritance, the nature of man, and the nearness of the advent. "His whole soul went out to the coming of Jesus, the truth of God did him good 'like a medicine'" just as Auntie Willard had thought it would. "He became cheerful and happy and comparatively strong in body, was ordained to the ministry and has preached the kingdom of God with all confidence, nearly up to the present time, though partially blind for many years. He is now in a Home for the aged in Philadelphia, as I heard in an indirect way recently. During his ministry "he dwelt in his own hired house" alone, cooking, sweeping, making his bed and doing everything as nicely as a woman could have done it, with no better eyes. I myself have been in that little house, and know of what I am writing.

I had the happiness of making this brother's acquaintance when father and I visited Haddonfield in the fall of 1873, and greatly enjoyed hearing him talk and sing in our meetings at Brother Willard's. What a trophy to Brother and Sister Willard's faithfulness was this faithful man. Through him they doubled their influence, for he "delighted to let his light shine among those with whom he first held church-relationship, and thus were their prayers answered that "he be an apostle of 'present truth' to these people, and to all that had an ear to hear."

"The world may sound no trumpets, ring no bells,
The Book of Life his shining record tells."

Spirit. (Continued)

The thought presented in this present article is in large part condensed from Miles Grant's Positive Theology a book which I am glad to recommend to all our readers. It may be had of the Advent Christian Pub. House, at Mendota, Illinois, price $1 00.

Going back to the Old Testament and to the word Ruach we find that while the word occurs 400 times in the original, it is translated "spirit" but 240 times. It is this word Spirit coming out of rauch that we wish now to examine. This word Spirit is given about 22 shades of meaning which may reasonably be reduced to 4. They are:

1. An intelligent being.
2. A power proceeding from a being.
3. A state of mind, or feeling.
4. The breath of life.

As we shall look into the various texts where these different shades of the word Spirit are shown, let us ever keep in mind the thought of the word Force.

We will take up section 1:—An intelligent being.

Hebrews xiii. 2: "Be not forgetful to entertain strangers; for thereby some have entertained angels (spirits) unawares." Again in Hebrews i. 14: "Are they not all ministerings spirits (angels) sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation?" Reference is made to New Testament where the Greek Pneuma occurs, for we have learned that ruach in Hebrew and pneuma in the Greek are synonymous terms. Read now Genesis xix. 1-5 and you will evidently get the occasion which the writer of the Hebrew letter had in mind when the above texts were written.

Questions: Do you think of these spirits as real, tangible beings—beings that could eat, drink, and converse with men? Were they as men talking with men? Or, do you get from the Scripture narrative that they were disembodied mists having "neither body, parts, nor passions?" Can the human mind conceive of anything of that kind? Can you not see that these angels were sent to convey the Force or Power of God?

Section 2. A power proceeding from a being.

John xv. 26, "But when the Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father, even the spirit of truth, which proceedeth from the Father, he shall testify of me."

This text is self explanatory and plainly sustains the thought of this section. All animate beings possess a greater or less degree of power over others. In this fact lies the secret of hypnotism. In this again we readily recognize the thought of Force or of Power.

Section 3. A state of mind or feeling.

Proverb xvi. 18, "Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty Spirit before a fall." Eccl. vii. 8, Better is the end of a thing than the beginning thereof; and the patient in spirit is better than the proud in spirit." Galatians vi. 1, Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such an one in the Spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted."

Here again no comment is necessary further than to call your attention to the applicability of the word Force.

Section 4. The breath of life.

Job xxvii. 3, "All the while my breath is in me, and the spirit of God is in my nostrils." See margin for the "spirit of God."

The word Spirit coming from the words Ruach and Pneuma may reasonably be collected under these four heads, although they are translated with some twenty-two different shades of meaning.

S. J. LINDSAY.

Christ continually pointed his disciples to the "great object of his mission. It was that he ever kept before him." And the quenchless zeal of the same mighty purpose has burned its way down through the centuries and will never cease to fire the heart of man.

That Discipline.

and has the right to examine its members to see if they hold the doctrines of the church; should I take him in without question? You say no. Well then shall I examine him from my individual standpoint? You say yes. Well, another comes to another minister of ours, and he examines him from his stand point. In that case both have had a different examination, and are both of the same body. Does this sound like it comes from an All-wise God who has order in all things? No; we should be compelled to examine applicants by the standard of the church, not of individuals; and then both would be alike. Suppose in examining an applicant we should find he believes in the immortality of the soul, what then? If it is left to the individual and "liberty" so that love and good will may prevail, as is argued, why, take him in, of course!! But if you say, No, we can not admit him, then you have taken the first step toward the narrowness, that you allege against us, and have both destroyed and answered your own argument.

2 Tim. iii. 10, Paul says, "Thou hast fully known my doctrine." Was that Paul's individual belief, or was it the doctrine of the church? We want the Brother or some one else to point us to the place where Paul stands for "liberty" of belief. If wrong teaching could overthrow the faith of some in Paul's day (2 Tim. ii. 18) might it not do the same today? Even the teaching of a past resurrection ate like a canker in those days, and Paul believed in cutting it out, but we must perform no operations now but let every festering sore remain and eat out the very vitals of the church!

He speaks as though we would not take the Bible as a whole. That is just what we want to do, but in the past we have ignored the above Scriptures. Just as your position would force us to continue to do, and in so doing we have become the cage of every foul bird. In other words, for the lack of discipline we have tolerated all kinds of immorality and false doctrines; now shame covers us. Who is to blame but the church? The church is the custodian of the doctrine and morals of its members, and should always exercise a care over both. Let us hope and pray for the time to come when the church will stand for definite faith and purity of life. Paul realized the fact that he was bound to certain doctrines and principles and calls himself the "prisoner of Jesus Christ." Eph. iii. 1-6. If you argue for perfect "liberty" in belief, you must to be consistent do the same in regard to morals. If you advocated discipline for both you become a creed or discipline maker. Liberty all around or discipline: which will it be? Have we got the courage to stand for something definite in both doctrine and morals?

[Yes, dear Brother Adams; and by the grace of God we shall "stand" for both.—EDITOR.]

While the Day Lasts.

It will not last long. Your day, my day, the world's day of opportunity, the day of grace, the day of salvation, all days are swiftly passing away; and the great day, the last day, will surely and speedily come. Now there is opportunity for us to work; by and by the time will be past. While it is day we may work the work of God, and do what he has commanded us. But if we idle this present opportunity away it will never return, and the neglect of today may never be repaired. Tomorrow will bring the work for tomorrow, and every day and year will bring its appropriate duties. Let the work of today, be done today, and then we may calmly await the coming of the morrow if the morrow shall ever come.—The Christian.

"The Bible," said Toplady, "is God's epistle to mankind; and what greater affront can be shown, even to an earthly friend, than to throw his letters aside unopened and unread? May we not address the generality of those calling themselves Christians in the words of Mr. Boston? "The dust on one hand, or the finery on the other about your Bibles, is a witness now, and will at the last day be a witness of the enmity of your hearts against Christ.

No cheating or bargaining will ever get a single thing out of nature's establishment at half price. Do we want to be strong?—we must work. To be hungry?—we must starve. To be happy?—we must be kind. To be wise?—we must look and think.

Brother Whitford has responded after all. We had given up all hopes of hearing from him again. His article will appear in serial form for three consecutive issues, beginning Nov. 24. With each article will be editorial strictures on the same.

The Real Issue.

Brother Huggins:

You rather surprised me by your reply to G. W. Whitford on the subject of judgment to come. The position you assume, appears to me as a poor makeshift, an effort to evade the real issue. I say this not with any feeling of unkindness, or any desire to be sarcastic, for I do not allow myself to bring a railing accusation against those who may differ with me. The real question is, Will the responsible, living and dead ones, be required to render an account of their stewardship at the coming of the Lord? I am not particularly interested in men's opinions concerning judgment at the end of the thousand years, for I know of no testimony that teaches it. Indeed I do not know that the truly loyal and obedient will experience death during the thousand years reign of Christ. It is written, "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city." Rev xxii 14. The foregoing does not seem to indicate death, but rather life, to the faithful in the age to come. The symbolic Holy City is the one body; and the gates of the city are the twelve tribes of Israel. You will therefore see how the obedient enter the holy city. The fact that they have right to the tree of life apparently forbids the idea of death. The idea of judgment at the end of the thousand years of those who experience death in that age is in my judgment all guess work.

Those not found written in the Lamb's book of life are cast into the symbolic lake of fire, which is the second death. There is no evidence of this lake of fire being in existence at the end of the thousand year period. The lake of fire is specially related to that period of time styled "the hour of judgment" that precedes the beginning of the thousand years. Only those of this and previous ages are related to the Lamb's book of life; that is, those who by faith and obedience have been cleansed—justified by the blood of the Lamb. The opening of the books, therefore, occurs in "the time of the dead" under the seventh trumpet, when all those who have been entrusted with the Lord's goods will be called to account.

There is no room for controversy here; the testimony is too plain to be misapprehended. Paul declares we must all stand before the judgment seat of Christ, including himself in the "all," for doubtless he knew he could give a good account of himself, but it does not follow that every one knows what Paul knew. Hymenus and Philetus will be there, also Caiphas the high priest, for Jesus said to him: "Hereafter shall ye see the Son of Man sitting on the right hand of power and coming in the clouds of heaven." There is no evidence that Caiphas has as yet witnessed the fulfilment of this prediction, or that he ever saw Jesus again. This testimony does not favor the idea that the unrighteous dead will be left over until the end of the thousand years. There is no necessity of making a technical application of the word judgment as indicating only condemnation. Primarily the word signifies to "separate, divide, distinction, form an estimate of, determine, decide, reporting, the act of giving judgment," (Greenfield). This is just what occurs at the coming of Christ; the good and bad are separated in an open court where every one can see that perfect justice has been done to all parties related to the Judge, whether faithful or unfaithful. The account giving is not for the purpose of informing the Judge, for he knows all, but rather to justify his approval of the good and disapproval of the bad, on the basis of their previous conduct. The slothful servant hid his lord's money, concealed the light of the truth given him, and confessed his wickedness in the account that he rendered, hence the statement, "out of thine own mouth will I judge thee, thou wicked and slothful servant." Here we discover an open exhibition of what is right and just.

The hidden things of darkness are brought to light, and the inner thinkings of the heart are made manifest, leaving no room for any of the servants to complain that injustice had been done to any. So then, says Paul, "Every one of us shall give an account of himself to God." Rom xiv. The apostle includes himself with others, all of whom are privileged to speak for themselves to God. Approval or disapproval is not rendered in the absence of all or a part of those whose future well being and destiny is suspended upon the verdict of the righteous Judge. All have been probationers for the kingdom and the glory of the future life, and the very fitness of things would suggest the assembling of all the responsible living and dead at one and the same time.

Moreover what is here suggested as fit and wise, is very clearly revealed in the testimony bearing on the subject. The expression "fearful surprise" may not be so far out of the way as one might at first think. Admitting Paul and some others as an exception, still there is reason to justify G. W. Whitford's words, Taken by surprise, unexpectedly, the stoutest heart will overcome with fear and trembling. An angel of God knocking at your door with a summons requesting your presence before the Judge of quick and dead, cannot be regarded as a trivial matter to be dismissed from further thought by flippant words. I regard it as a very serious matter. There are circumstances and conditions connected with the "time of the dead" to be thought of especially as concerning the living who are related to Christ. We cannot hastily conclude that the gathering together unto the Lord of the quick and dead is accomplished in a flash, or in the twinkling of an eye, as some seem to think. There is order and deliberation and time allotted for all things involved in the work and purpose of God in the earth, as is evident from what has thus far been fulfilled. In such an hour as ye think not, the Son of Man cometh. Can we fully realize the force of this statement? The time is coming when that unknown and unthought of hour will arrive, but what immediate effect will it have upon the living servants who may be careless and indifferent—the worldly minded—saying, "My Lord delayeth his coming?" It may truly justify the words, "fearful surprise," as indicating their mental condition at the time. The allurements of time and sense, all of which are but a vain show, nevertheless quite captivating and enticing, so monopolizes the attention of mankind all around us, that some who cherish a love and zeal for God are in danger of being engulphed in the maelstrom of worldly enterprises that seem to promise both profit and pleasure.

G. W. Whitford contends that judgment to come is one of the first principles of the gospel, in this I give him my right hand. The official title of Judge is just as fundamental, as that of priest or king. One of the first things Peter declared at the house of Cornelius was he is "ordained of God to Judge the living and dead." Paul declares this work transpires at his "appearing and kingdom." To this end it is revealed to John that death, the grave and the sea delivered up the dead, and that they stand before God the Judge of all." This great multitude of awakened dead ones are related by virtue of their calling to books: one of these books is styled "the Lamb's book of life"—a symbolic record of names individualizing those who overcome and are accounted worthy of eternal life. Moreover it is further declared that these overcomers constitute God's tabernacle on the earth, in which he will dwell by his spirit. It is also further affirmed that this same class, Rev xxi 9, constitutes the bride the Lamb's wife, under the symbol of a great city, the holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God."

Kindly submitted for your consideration.

GEO. MOYER.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Our Brother Moyer seems to think that in our reply to Brother Whitford we made "an effort to evade the real issue." A retrospective look at the ministers of our church who preached the gospel formerly with grace and acceptance, reveals the painful fact that most of them have fallen out by the way over some particular doctrine which they have usually termed "the real issue". The few that have remained "faithful unto death" are an insignificant minority. The reason is not hard to find. Instead of preaching the "whole counsel of God" (Acts xx 27) as Paul did, they have made "the real issue" out of some particular part of it. They have a narrow foot path blazed out in the Bible, and over this well-beaten path they waddled up and down all their lives! Some little star in the firmament of God's truth was "the real issue" with them: they became so infatuated over their one little pet dogma, their darling theory, that they could not see any other star—their eyes could not behold the sun! Introduce to their attention any of the divers and sublime subjects of divine revelation and before you can get your breath, they are back to the "real issue". Their vision is so distorted they make a part of the truth as great if not greater than the whole truth. A mole-hill barely visible in the dim distance, if it happens to be in the pathway of their hobby, looks to them like a mountain. Such lopsidedness prevents them from seeing the truth on any subject. No one subject of the Bible can be properly understood by itself. Different subjects of divine truth are so intimately connected with each other; truth is so related in all of its parts that one subject amplifies or qualifies another. This is why lopsided people always go wrong.

"The real issue" in the present instances according to Bro. Moyer is whether all responsible people, both of the dead and the living, are to render an account to Christ at his coming. We have made no "effort to evade" this question at all. We admit without an iota of reservation that we must give an account of our stewardship when the Master returns. A frank admission like this should in justice exonerate us from the charge of subterfuge. But while we clearly see that personal account-giving is a Scriptural doctrine, we cannot stand silently and see this part of truth magnified into the whole truth, and otherwise abused. There are some other "real issues" in the Bible besides account-giving; and as some fanatically uphold this "real issue" to the detriment and destruction of others equally important, we are bound by our pledge of loyalty to all truth (John xvi 13) to oppose them, even if they denounce us in the language of Beshrew. We have no desire to ignore in our reply what Bro. Moyer calls the "real issue"; we would not if we could, inveigle him away from a subject he considers no "trivial matter"; yet in discharging our duty to the whole truth we must pass by most all that he has said in defense of his particular views of the judgment, and show him how he has denied other issues that are just as "real" as the one for which he is contending. Our strictures shall not be invidious; our whole purpose is to throw some cold water on his zeal about the judgment, and to keep him bestride all truth if we can. Now consider:

1. That while our Brother claims that judgment of all responsible beings at Christ's coming is "the real issue" now, yet to the people who live during the thousand years the judgment will be no issue at all! A judgment at the end of Christ's reign is to him only "men's opinion"; "for", he adds, "I know of no testimony that teach it". And again: "The idea of judgment at the end of the thousand years is in my judgment all guess work." Is it not wondrously strange that our dear Brother who so tenaciously clings to the idea of personal judgment for this age, should denounce as "men's opinion" and "guess work" the judgment of the people in the next age? To error you can only add error, so this blinding inconsistency leads him to deny that

2. "The loyal and obedient will experience death" during the reign of Christ, that "there is no evidence", of the lake of fire being in existence at the end of the thousand year period". These assertions apparently made in good faith, raise several "real" questions. If we consult the Divine Oracles touching the truthfulness of these affirmations, we can make quick work of this matter. In the first place Paul tells us that the "last enemy" to be "destroyed" is "death". 1 Cor xv 23-26. If death is the "last enemy" subdued under the reign of Christ, it must prey upon somebody until the close of the thousand years. It cannot prey upon the saints, for they are immortal; it cannot prey upon the "loyal and obedient", says Bro Moyer; then we anxiously ask, Who are subject to death during the reign of Christ? Not the wicked, for people then do not die for contumacy: they are "all righteous". Isa lx 21. If all are righteous, all are "loyal and obedient"; and if there is death at all during the reign of Christ, the righteous must be the ones who fall under its power. Paul is our authority for saying that death remains in the earth until the very "end". And the prophet Ezekiel (chap xliv) expressly recognizes the existence of death, and that too among the "loyal" priests of the Temple Service. In reading his testimony on this point, notice that he speaks of widows "that had a high priest before", meaningless words unless the priests were subject to death. The elementary gospel fact that the saints are to be priests as well as kings in the next age argues that there must be death among the people of that age. God's truth as expressed either in texts or principles wages a hot warfare on the assertions of our Brother. But when he goes the length of saying that there is no lake of fire at the end of the thousand years, he "surprises" me. God says emphatically in Rev xx that the devil is let loose at the close of the close of the thousand years (v. 7), and that after the expiration of a "little season", he is cast into the lake of fire (v. 10); and that death and hell is cast into the same lake. v. 14. If there be no lake of fire at the end of the thousand years; if that is when Christ comes, then we are invited to accept the wonderful discovery that there will be no judgment, devil, lake of fire, death nor hell at the close of the reign of Christ; we are to get rid of all these things when our Lord comes!

3. A few words now about the "real issue". We heartily assent to our Brother's remark, "There is no room for controversy here; the testimony is too plain to misapprehend". Greenfield says the word judgment means to "separate, divide", etc. All agree that judgment separates the righteous from the wicked. And it is farther agreed that all, including both the just and the unjust, are judged or separated at the coming of Christ. No dispute about the time of judgment. But is there anything involved in the idea of judgment to fill the apostle Paul and other saints with grave apprehensions, and to cast over them a "terrible suspense", as Brother Whitford affirmed? You say that "that unknown and unthought of hour will arrive", and that the "careless and indifferent" servants who are saying, "My Lord delayeth his coming", will be in such a "mental condition at that time" as to "justify the words, 'terrible suspense'". Of course: no one is trying to belittle the judgment of God so far as it pertains to the ungodly. It will undoubtedly be a "terrible" time to the wicked; but what we object to is representing the judgment as a "terrible suspense" to Paul and the saints. Why should they be alarmed at the idea of judgment? Will they entertain fears that the Great Shepherd will mistake a sheep for a goat when he "separates them one from another"? Matt xxv 32. Shall judgment separate us from the love of God? Rom viii 35. What can be laid to the charge of God's elect"? (v 33). Are they to fear that God will condemn them? No; "it is God that justifieth." (v 33). Will Christ disown them? No; "it is Christ that died" for them and "who asketh intercession for us". (v 34). If God justifies them, and if Christ owns and intercedes for them, we ask you candidly, is there any "charge" to be made against the people of God? Where does the "terrible suspense" come in? Do you respond in the language of Brother Roberts, page 82 of "Christendom Astray", that the good and the bad are all commingled indiscriminately, 'awaiting the tribunal, none knowing who is who"? Have you not yet got the witness within yourself that you are a son of God? 1 Jno v 10. If you have this "witness" now, you will not have to wait till the judgment to "know who is who". Justified by God, forgiven through Christ, uncondemned by our own hearts, we "assure our hearts before him", and have "confidence toward God". 1 Jno iii 19, 21. You represent the saints as entering the judgment not knowing 'who is who" without any "assurance", not knowing a thing about what is "charged" against them, knees knocking together under a spell of "terrible suspense," without an iota of "confidence toward God"!! My dear brother, you are not living up to your opportunities and privileges. You may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming." 1 Jno ii 28. With love made perfect you may have "BOLDNESS In THE DAY OF JUDGMENT." 1 Jno iv 17.

Bad men oppose the gospel because it interferes with their schemes for making money.

That Discipline.

In THE RESTITUTION, of recent date, Brother Eychaner seems to be disconcerted over certain actions of the Ohio and Nebraska Conferences. As the Nebraska Conference is referred to quite often I, as a member of it, take the privilege of replying. As the Brother thinks he sees some weak points in our actions, and promises to write of more, we think it not out of place to point out a few of the weak things we see in his article.

In the first place, no one intends, I hope, to be proscriptive: that belongs to God. And will the Brother deny that God has said we shall believe and do certain things? Has he not proscribed for us? and if none of us can tell what it is we are to believe and do, let us blush and quit. If God's Word is clothed in so much mystery that none of us can be certain whether we believe the right thing or not; and if the cry of "liberty" is based on such argument, let us hasten to join the orthodox churches, and say "it makes no difference what we believe." Brother Eychaner has been preaching for years and adding members to the body by telling them they must believe certain things. He has debated and stood for the doctrines of the church, but you must not write them down! Are these things you have preached for years and defended in public discussion, essential to salvation? If so, why not write them down and hand them to the brethren you preached to as a guide through life? You say they have the Bible, yes; do they always know where to find it? I suppose if the Brother had lived in the days of Luke and had heard that he was about to write the things "most surely believed among us," Luke i. 1, he would have said: "Hold on, Brother Luke; we don't need that Creed; it will be the entering wedge to division and strife." Might just as well allege that against Luke as the Ohio and Nebraska Conferences. You may say Luke was inspired (yet I doubt if you would go that far.) What if he was; can't we understand him? I have heard the Brother preach on the throne of David and cite Luke i. 30 33, but he would object to setting forth what we believe in writing on this point and citing this same Scripture as proof! Is this consistent in him? Paul in writing to Timothy, 1 Tim. 1 3, says, "As I besought thee to abide still at Ephesus when I went into Macedonia, that thou mightest charge some that they teach no other doctrine." The next verse teaches that by letting in the teaching of fables and other things (some of which has come among us,) causes trouble; while the Brother contends in his article that trouble comes by eliminating errors. It is an utter impossibility to reconcile the present condition of things among us with the Bible. One man will preach in a certain place one thing; and after awhile he goes back there and finds that another preacher of the Church of God has been there and has taught a different thing. In this way division and variance are sown; and oftentimes our own ministers, because of these differences, are even enemies to each other.

It is hard to believe one to be sincere when they argue that the cutting out of this practice will cause trouble. Every one knows that it is the toleration of this practice among us that has been the source of most all the trouble in the past, and is the cause of all our trouble now. I know what the Church believes, as a church; and if the time should ever come that I hold different views, I will do one of two things; I will either keep still or step down and out. As a Christian I owe that much respect to the church and myself. If I did not do one or the other of these things, the church would fail to do her duty if she did not see to it that I did. But if I was sincere in my new ideas and believed them to be essential, I could not keep still, and it would be wrong for me to. In that case it would be the Church's duty to give me a hearing, and if they could not agree with me, would I raise the cry of 'intolerence" because they refused to allow me to force my views upon them, and cause division and strife? No; the church must stand for something, and God requires it; and his Word is the evidence on this point as on all others. Brother Huggins' reply filled me with emotion and hopefulness. And by the way, I believe he at one time preached for another people; and when he changed his views, he went where they held the same, and left the others in peace and did not compel them to take action against him. Was not that the right way? Pardon the reference, but it is to the point.

Right here I remember a few years ago the Iowa and Illinois conferences, got up a Year Book as required by the General Passenger Association in order to get a permit for half fare for ministers. In said Year Book the doctrines of the church appears; and Brother Eychaner's name among many others is there! Was that a Creed then, or was that idea waved for the then present time for the sake of half fare? Why not hand a book of that kind to the church and world as well as the R. R. Company?

Suppose we try to follow Paul's teaching in 1 Tim. iv. 12, 13. In verse 12 he teaches Timothy to be an example to the believers in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity. With us one minister sets an example so far as faith is concerned, in one way; another one sets an entirely different example! therefore we must ignore this Scripture. The 13th verse says, "give attendence to doctrine." If it read "doctrines" it would fit the case better! Talk of "liberty" with that text before me! Can I argue that I can teach one doctrine; Brother Eychaner another; and still represent the same church? In the language of the 15th verse, "Meditate upon these things." Then listen to him "that thy profiting may appear to all." Can any one point out the "profit" we are getting out of the present loose way of not standing for any thing definite? No; every one teaches as he wills and does as he pleases; they have no fear that the church will rebuke their sin before all that the same sin may be restrained in others. 1 Tim. v. 20. Is the church charged to do this? Listen: "I charge thee before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, and the elect angels, that thou observe these things," verse 21. Now is it wrong for the church to say in a written discipline that the above Scripture must be observed? No; and if every member was furnished with one they would know just what they were subscribing to when they joined the church. Paul wrote it out for Timothy. We must write it out for our elders and compel them to carry it out or fail to meet the requirements of Scripture. Yes, we need such discipline and need it bad. We need a perfect organization. Set the churches in order in every locality and appoint elders who fear not man but God, and put the discipline of the church in their hand, which would point them to the Scripture concerning their duty, and the duty of the members to them. Require them to see that the members "walk honestly, (margin, decently,) not in rioting and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantoness, not in strife and envying." Rom. xiii. 13. We have more or less of all this in our church and have no one with authority to stop it. I heard Brother Eychaner say once he had rather preach where there was no church members. Why? Because of the lack of proper discipline among the church members. Their influence was bad. When the world accuses us of preaching different things the influence is equally bad. In Phil. i. 27 Paul exhorts the brethren to all stand fast for his own particular doctrine? No; he says to "stand fast in one spirit, with one mind." I have no right to disturb that oneness of spirit and mind. Again I say the church fails to do its duty if she allows me to do it. It is a Scriptural fact and we can not get away from it. Read 1 Tim. vi. 1-6, and you will discover that it is the doting, ("sick" the margin says,) "about questions of words" (we have this experience) that breeds strife and envy. "Perverse disputings." (Margin, "galling.") In these disputes that is nearly always the case, instead of bearing love as the Brother would infer. Paul goes so far as to say, "from such withdraw thyself." Would not the Brother think it awful if we should dare do that? Yet it is there, and what will we do with it?

Again our Brother asks, "Who shall examine this committee to see whether they have the proper faith?" We answer, That is the trouble: There is no one to examine them, and never would be according to your plan. Paul says, 2 Cor. xiii. 5: "Examine yourselves whether ye be in the faith." If this examination is left to the individual, then the church stands for nothing, and each member can claim he is in the faith, though he may differ from all the rest. Just as it is now. It is idle to argue in favor of such a position. The church as a whole is built upon certain doctrines and principles; not individual ideas;

The Love of God.

When the trump of God has sounded,
And the dead in Christ have risen,
To the life of love unbounded
From death's dark and dreary prison.

What a chorus of rejoicing
Shall resound throughout the skies:
When the plan is consummated
Of God's love which never dies.

For the plan, through all the ages,
Of the Master, was to bring
To his saints the richest blessings,
And deny them no good thing.

And at last the crowning glory
Of the blessed to bestow,
Never mortal dreamed such capture
As his chosen then shall know.

And this gift of priceless value,
Is so freely offered all,
Put the wealth of earth against it,
And soon the balance falls.

For all earthly things are fleeting,
They are nothing more than dross
As compared with Heaven's riches,
Bought by Christ upon the cross.

When for all mankind he offered
Sacrifice complete and full,
Though the sins of men were scarlet,
Jesus washed them white as wool.

And to think! the Christ so holy,
Suffering such bitter pain!
That all men who will come believing,
Everlasting life may gain.

And there's only one condition—
Just believe upon his name,
Be baptized, and live thereafter
Doing naught of sin or shame.

And the blessed Christ has promised
Strength in every hour of need,
That through him his children ever
May be conquerors indeed.

And at last may reap the blessing
Which his chosen ones shall know;
Enter in unto the City,
Leave behind all grief and woe.

Surely such a store of blessings
Should be sought by every one,
And all earth be filled with praises
To the Father and the Son.

Who in love so deep, so wondrous,
Offered at such fearful cost,
Full salvation to all people,
That through him none might be lost.

Then may we ever serve him,
Love, and reverently adore,
And when earthly things are over
We shall rest forever more.

Deception.

What is popularly known as a "religion" is the banding of a number of people together, for the purpose of performing certain forms and ceremonies of worship within certain limited areas, usually contained in roof and walls, and to these localities they proceed more or less regularly—to meeting house, church or cathedral—according to the dictates of their "consciences" or the limits of their purses, and listen to certain orations in accordance with their several particular "views."

God the Creator fills heaven and the earth—"where is the house we may build unto him, or where the place of his rest." Doubtless many of the errors in "religion" may be accounted for by the fact that the works of God in the material world are so lightly considered by those of religious temperment. In the confines of the room or hall for meeting, however spacious it may be, it fally miserably short of the vast arch of the sky, and the bright sheen of the daylight is different from the thwarted "dim religious light" shed through stained glass, showing violent colored figures and letters that bear almost no relation to the soft tints and quiet shades of God's outside exhibition.

May be there is no such thing as "natural religion" such as some folks talk about. The lower animals seem to have no instinct to "feel after God" and the fetish worship of wild tribes is vaguery of superstition further apart from nature even than stained glass and stucco. Nevertheless no true knowledge of God can be attained without first considering the works by which we are surrounded, and which are his handwriting as it were, the material expression of his will and power, and the conspicuous evidence of his intelligence and presence. It is the sacred contemplation of these things that develope the true spirit of worship and adoration

How beautifully is this illustrated in the Old Testament Scriptures in Psalms and Prophets! "Oh Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth," is their joyful keynote, and the newer Gospel message is softer and sweeter even—"Consider the lily of the field" and the sparrow "sold two for a farthing." From such were the highest spiritual lessons evolved concerning the Infinite Intelligence of "The Father" and his boundless power. Only when we attain to such contemplation are we prepared to bow in reverence to the august Presence in which we abide.

On the contrary observe the religious fanatic. Seldom or never is he a student of nature. Whether attached to some antique institution or a fire-eating "mahdi" starting out in a new line. When such are not absorbed in contemplation of their "one idea" they are generally filled with their own importance, which being nourished by the admiration of followers develops chronic conceit, and thenceforth they bear on their shoulders the weight of a world—a world of which they know absolutely nothing, for from their little area the great world has been shut out, the blinds drawn and the door locked, and there is there but the spiritual sepulchre and spiritual death.

Take us out to the blue sky and the green fields, where the sun shines and the lily blooms. Let us look at the awful sea as it roars along the cliff, or sit like Elijah in the cave and listen for God in the wind and the thunder and the earthquake, and perchance we may hear the still small voice.

What good are the artificial trappings that men use, but to draw converts and custom, but to fill the eye with color and the ear with sound, and to distract the mind from the realities and truths of God.

Dear Restitution:

Find enclosed a post office money order to renew the subscription of my sister in St. Louis. She has enjoyed very much the reading of its dear pages, and has profited by its help in studying the things that teach concerning the Lord Jesus Christ and his soon coming kingdom, and will obey by baptism as soon as possible. May she go on learning those things that are able to make one wise unto salvation with meekness and love.

I attended the Missouri Conference, which was a great feast to me, as I had never heard but six sermons in all my thirty-five years since I heard the truth. The Word was ably set forth by Brothers Conner, Wilson and Jeffrey, and the Bereans showed good work. Every one seemed so anxious that the Master's work would be successful in that part of his vineyard. The brethren of the Morse Mill Church are certainly a grand good people. May God bless them in their labor of love in spreading the good news of the Bible hope, and may the next Missouri Conference be of lasting good in that locality.

Your Sister in hope of a soon coming King in glory,

MRS MARY C. SMITH.

As the ascending sap in the tree crowds off the dead leaves which in spite of storm and frost, cling to the branches all winter long, so does the Holy Spirit within us, when allowed full sway, subdue and expel the remnants of our sinful nature.—A. J. Gordon.

No new doctrines have been elicited by the aid of Bible criticism, nor have any historical facts been summoned by it from obscurity. All the doctrines and duties of Christianity remain unaffected. Think seriously of this.—Dr. Davidson.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

ANY one wishing Photo post cards showing the membership of the Illinois Bible School for 1900 can get them by sending to C. L. Curtis, Oregon, Ill. We are informed that the photo is a good one, and can be had for 5 cents each by mail.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 303 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1 25.

Cunningly Derbed Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.
